ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Twenty-five years ago, Craig Winn was an entrepreneur. The turbulent story of his last adventure is shared in his first book, In The Company. It is an entertaining read, providing an eyewitness account into the culture of a private and then public company.

After the Islamic suicide bombings of 9.11.01, Craig met with al Qaeda and wrote Tea with Terrorists to explain – Who they are, Why they kill, and What will stop them. His most widely read book, Prophet of Doom – Islam’s Terrorist Dogma in Muhammad’s Own Words has now been updated and substantially expanded, becoming God Damn Religion after witnessing the sadistic savagery of Muslims on 10.07.23 in Israel. The resulting assessment of Islam is irrefutable because the deplorable nature of this death cult was revealed by reordering the Quran chronologically and setting it into the context of Muhammad’s life using the earliest and most credible Hadith, notably Al-Tabari’s Tarikh | History and Ibn Ishaq’s Sirat Rasul Allah | Life of Allah’s Messenger. Also, by citing the Torah and Prophets, he has conclusively demonstrated that Allah was invented in the 6th century CE and is not God, much less, Yahowah, the God of Abraham and Moses. If you want to know why fundamentalist Muslims commit 90% of the world’s most heinous terrorist acts, these 5 volumes will answer your questions.

In his quest to resolve a puzzling prophetic anomaly, Craig began translating the text of the Dead Sea Scrolls. That endeavor led to the 3-volume series providing An Introduction to God, the 9 volumes of Yada Yahowah, the 5 books encouraging Observations, 3 exploring Babel, 5 for Questioning Paul, now Twistianity, and then to the 3 volumes devoted to Coming Home. Throughout, Mr. Winn has been committed to providing amplified translations, which are not only more accurate and complete, they are readily verified. As a result, he has been afforded thousands of unique insights into the words Yahowah inspired, many of which are unheralded and profound.

Beyond his books, Craig Winn has been interviewed as an expert on religion, politics, and current events on over 5,000 talk radio programs and has hosted 5,000 more, leaving a vast quantity of archived shows from Shattering Myths to Yada Yah Radio. He currently produces a live podcast every Friday evening, where he discusses insights gleaned from his translations.

Mr. Winn is not a theologian, nor is he associated with any religious or political institution. He does not accept donations or receive financial backing from anyone. Everything he has written is shared freely online. Even his 35 printed books are offered without royalty.

Craig has devoted his life to exploring Yahowah's revelations. He enjoys God's company and is enriched by the experience. If you have an open mind and a desire to learn, you will enjoy his translations and insights.

He encourages readers to share his translations and resulting conclusions, albeit with two important caveats: 1) You may not use them to promote any religious, political, or conspiratorial agenda. And 2) You may not use them to incite or engage in a violent act. When it comes to exposing errant and counterproductive ideas, wield words wisely.

You may contact Craig at YadaYah.com. He enjoys constructive criticism and will engage with readers. But be forewarned: he is immune to religious idiocy and will not respond to threats or taunts. The YadaYah.com site provides links to his books, to Yada Yah Radio, to many of his audio archives, as well as to friends and forums.

Lastly, Craig has a bias and an agenda. He knows and respects Yahowah, and he has devoted his life to advancing God's primary objective: which is to call His people home.

How much time do we have left? Where are we on God's schedule? Is it possible to discern when the most important events pertaining to our relationship with Yahowah transpired in the past? And should they be calculable, can they be used to deduce when the promises associated with the four remaining Mow'edym | Restoring Witnesses to the Eternal Meetings will be honored?

Said another way, as we ponder these questions in the Fall of 2025, has it been 5786 years since creation as Maimonides and rabbis insist? Or did creation occur 15 billion years ago, suggesting an entirely different commencement of God's timeline and another position on it? After all, since we know that creation time flowed at a much slower rate in comparison to our current experience, fifteen billion years of creation would have passed in six days from the perspective of the One overseeing the event.

Recognizing that we have considered and resolved these questions previously throughout the Yada Yahowah series, focusing on it in Bare'syth | Beginning, we know that Judaism's accounting is erroneous. We have done the math to correctly equate 15 billion years with six days relative to the observer. And using the Towrah's guidance, we ascertained that the starting point of Yahowah's timeline commenced when we were escorted out of the Garden, marking this event as year 0 Yah in what would have been the fourth millennia BCE. As validation, this is the beginning of recorded history, and it is the point civilization began to flourish around the Black Sea.

Recognizing that Yahowah's plan for our relationship together plays out based upon a six (number of man) plus one (representing God) formula, our reentry into Gan Eden* will occur in year 6000 Yah. Using these millennial markers to frame our experience, and turning to the Towrah's genealogies, we can assign dates to these events.

By simply counting the years between generations, Adam's and Chawah's time in Eden concluded in 3968 BCE. Forty Yowbel thereafter, or 2000 years, in 1968 BCE Abraham and Yitschaq ascended Mount Mowryah to confirm the Covenant relationship that would ultimately allow us back inside. And from this data alone, we can readily deduce years 4000 and 6000 Yah as 33 and 2033 CE.

As further affirmation of this sequence of events, we find God's beloved Son, Dowd, as the keystone in the center of time. Continuing to use the genealogical records God provided for this purpose, and with an eye to archeology, in his first of his three lives, Dowd lived for 70 years and reigned as King for 40 of them, 7 in Chebrow | Association and 33 in Yaruwshalaim | Source of Reconciliation. This period concluded four years shy of what would have been year 3000 Yah in 968 BCE. And it was at this moment that Yahowah revealed Dowd's Song, the 89th Mizmowr, to acknowledge that His Firstborn Son was the cornerstone of the Covenant Home.

As a Prophet, King Dowd foretold that he would be crucified and then journey into hell carrying our guilt while fulfilling Chag Matsah, writing about his upcoming ordeal in first person a thousand years in advance. Thereafter, he would meet with Dany^{el} in the form of Gabry^{el} in the 6th century BCE to explain exactly when he would return and fulfill Chag Matsah in year 4000 Yah, ascribing the exact date he would honor his promise ~ April 9th, 33 CE.

This is extraordinary because in 555 BCE, Dowd, as Gabry^{el} | God's Most Exceptional Man foretold that 111 years thereafter, in 444 BCE, a yet unborn king would make a pronouncement that would allow the rebuilding of the Temple. Then he explained that from *Abyb 1, 444 BCE, another 476 years and 21 days would pass before he fulfilled Chag Matsah commencing at sunset on Thursday evening April 2nd and concluding on Friday, April 9th, 33 CE. Recognizing that we have copies of Dany^{el} dating to the 3rd century BCE, this prophecy is irrefutable affirmation of Yahowah's timeline and our place on it.

Also relevant, the Messiah's fulfillment of Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym occurred exactly 40 Yowbel from year 2000 Yah in 1968 BCE when Abraham and Yitschaq were in the same place, doing the same thing, providing a dress rehearsal for Passover.

It should, therefore, be obvious that the final Fall Miqra^{ey} | Invitations to be Called Out and Meet with God will be fulfilled in year 6000 Yah which transpires in 2033. In that year, Taruw^{ah} runs from sunset on September 23rd through the Shabat of the 24th. Yowm Kipurym begins at sundown on October 2nd, 2033 with Sukah commencing on the Shabat of October 7th. And as such, here in the Fall of 2025, we are living in year 5992 Yah, with only eight years remaining prior to the return of Yahowah and Dowd.

These things known, there are still a number of unanswered questions. For example, we know that the commencement and conclusion of the Time of Israel's Troubles is on Shabuw^{ah} and Taruw^{ah}. And we know that Israel will have its heart gouged out by awarding a terrorist state to the Muslims who seek to annihilate Jews in the immediate proximity of Shabuw^{ah}. We also know that Shabuw^{ah} represents a Harvest and that it is the next to be fulfilled. The only question is which Shabuw^{ah}, the one in 2026 or 2027? And will all three events coincide on one day, or will they be spread out between them?

For answers, our journey commences in the prophets. And in this case, we must compare what Gabry^{el} revealed to Dany^{el} with what we read in Yasha^{yah}, Yirmayah, Zakaryah, Howsha^o, Yow^{el}, and Malaky. And so, with fresh eyes and an open mind, albeit after 24 years of translating and studying Yahowah's prophetic testimony, we are prepared to solve the most revealing puzzle pursuant to time.

Let's being our review in Dany^{el}...

“In the first year of (ba chad shanah la) Belsha^{tsar} (Belsha^{tsar} – Bel (the Lord) Protects the King, commonly transliterated Belshazzar, last king of the Neo-Babylonian Empire), the ruler of (melek – highest governing authority in) Babel | to Commingle and Confuse with the Lord (Babel – to Intermix and Confound in Conjunction with the Lord, commonly transliterated Babylon; from ba – with bel – the lord and balal – to mix, mingle, confuse, and confound), Dany^{el} | My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns (Dany^{el} – God is My Means to Judge; from dyn – to judge and be judgmental, to vindicate or condemn, any* – my, and el* – God) saw (chazah – was able to look at and watch, observe, perceive, and witness) a revealing vision (chelem – a prophetic revelation) and (wa) distinguishing insights (chazuw – sensory perceptions deployed to convey what will occur visually) in his mind (re^{sh} huw^{}* – in his head) while upon his bed (al mishkab huw^{} – on the place where he lies down to relax).

Thereupon, during (*ba edayn – in the transition, then) the prophetic revelation (chalam – the revealing and restorative vision), he was prompted to write a complete copy of (kathab – he was facilitated in the writing about) the things (milah – the matters, events, affairs, and dialogue) being communicated (amar* – being told and spoken).” (Dany^{el} / My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns / Daniel 7:1) Yisra^{el}

The awkward phrase “he related the sum of the words” found in most English Bible translations does not exist in Qumran’s 4QDan, the only scroll that preserves this verse. Should you be reading along in a translation influenced by the Masoretic Text, you’ll understand why it was omitted.

In the preceding chapters of Daniel, we are regaled with Belshazzar’s death, so this is a flashback. Belshazzar was the son of Nabonydus (Nabu is Praised). Nabonidus, as it is more commonly transliterated, was an elderly courtier at the time of Belshazzar’s conniving insurrection and murder of King Labashi-Marduk. Whether or not Nabonydus was an accomplice, he nonetheless served Belshazzar's interests because he had married one of Nebuchadnezzar II's daughters, making him part of the royal family. Therefore, when Belshazzar instigated the coup d'état which brought him to power, he was able to confiscate the previous king's estates and wealth and claim them for himself. And since his father was a religious recluse, off worshiping the moon god, Sin, Belshazzar did not have to share Babylon's riches and power with anyone.

With an absentee father, the manipulative son ruled over Babylon from 556 to 539 BCE. Much of what is known about this dubious duo is gleaned from four terracotta cylinders housed in the British Museum. Upon them, Nabonidus claims to have orchestrated repairs to the Temple of Sin in Charan | Haran – the same shrine and deity that would influence Islam and explain its fixation with the moon. In a bit of irony, it was in Haran where the Assyrian Empire would ultimately succumb to superior forces.

As a devotee of Sin, Nabonydus would have been at odds with the Babylonian priesthood. They favored Lord Bel and Marduk. In fact, this religious conflict is what caused Nabonydus to flee to the desert oasis of Tayma in Arabia. And as we learned from Cyrus, it was the Babylonian preference for Marduk over Sin that enabled him to conquer Babylon without a fight.

The 4th chapter contains Daniel's assessment of Nabonydus, explaining his seven years of self-imposed exile in the desert surrounding Tayma. Dany^{el} surmised that the king's hubris would cost him his sanity and claimed that he would live like an animal, fending for himself. The account states that Nabonydus was smitten, which is why Belsha^{tsar} ruled in his absence. And as for the power-hungry and money-grubbing Belshazzar, he was killed during Cyrus' invasion of Babylonia in 539 BCE.

If ever there was an evil place, Babel | Babylon is the prime example. Even its nomenclature speaks to us because, as a compound of ba and bel, Babel means “With the Lord.” More incriminating still, whether it is spelled Ba^oal in Hebrew or Bel in Aramaic, the Lord is Satan’s name and title. To be ba-ba^oal or ba-bel is to be a proponent of the Devil’s desire to rule over and control humankind through the integration of religion and politics. And this is particularly concerning because the Hebrew spelling of BaBeL is the same as it would be if writing ‘Bible.’

Yahowah explains the basis of this name in its first use, revealing that to babel is to commingle and confuse – intermixing truth and lies. Babel is to confound, which is how the Adversary dupes the unwary into believing that he is a god ~ their god. To help minimize the confusion is why Yahowah inspired Yasha^oyah to inform us that Satan would draw his power from Babel | Babylon as the Adversary has sought to be perceived as the Son of God and even as the Most High.

These connections are particularly relevant in this context because they serve as an indictment against Judaism and its Babylonian Talmud, Christianity and its Bible, and Islam, because its Quran was first written in Babylon. Further, all three religions have become institutionalized and integrated into the cultures and governments of the people most affected by them.

Judaism, Christianity, and Islam are predicated upon babel – with each intermixing deception with the truth in order to confuse, confound, and control. Within the “Scriptures” of each religion, we find copious misappropriated citations from the Towrah wa Naby^{}* – all perverted and twisted to confuse the unwary.

Dany^oel’s name is also informative, revealing that Yahowah is judgmental, both vindicating and condemning. Further, it states that “God is my means to decide between vindication or condemnation, between being right or wrong.” The purpose of this name is to equip us with these capabilities.

These things known, we discover that Daniel experienced a number of revelations, receiving them in different ways. In this case, his chelem | illuminating vision provided chazuw | distinguishing insights in his head. However, had it remained solely in his memory, that would have thwarted the intent.

Since he never understood any of it, Dany^oel's sole contribution to everything that follows is contained in these words: "Thereupon, during (*ba edayn) the prophetic revelation (chalam), he was prompted to write a complete copy of (kathab) the things (milah) being communicated (amar*)." While this has been Yahowah's approach since the first and greatest of the *naby, Moseh with His Towrah | Guidance, it is particularly important here because this is all we get from Daniel. But as we will discover, due to the explanations of Gabry^oel and Myka^oel, it is enough.

Based upon what preceded this and follows it, Dany^oel was used in two ways, both meaningful. His own words and deeds represent all that is wrong with Judaism and Christianity while his recording of these visual and audible revelations serves to bring them to us in a way we can now decipher.

A written record can be used to validate the prophecies, especially when scrolls are found which were copied long before the events they predict transpired. Moreover, with the written word, the message is far less corruptible, providing later readers such as ourselves unparalleled access to the original discussion. It is as if we were there – because we are brought forward and back in time by these narratives.

"Dany^oel | God is My Means to Decide Between Vindication and Condemnation (Dany^oel – My God is Judgmental; from dyn – to judge, any* – my, and el* – God) responded (anah* – answered and replied) and then said (*wa amar), 'I am able to see (hawah chazah – I can envision, perceive, and realize), with my sensory perceptions, the vision (*ba chazuw anah – in my supernatural revelation) during the night (im lyly* – in the darkness).'

And then (wa), behold, right there (aruw*), four (arba^o*) spirits (ruwachy – winds) of the heavens (shamayn – of the sky, atmosphere, universe, or spiritual realm) were churning up

(guwah – they were stirring up having burst forth upon) that which corresponds to the Great Sea (la yam rab).” (Dany^oel / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 7:2)

At this moment, Dany^oel was a considerable distance away from the Great Sea – which is the Mediterranean bordering Yisra^ael on the west. Therefore, with the erets* | Land representing Yisra^ael, the yam rab | Great Sea is a reference to humankind’s most prominent and powerful empires – particularly those existing or emerging to the west of the Promised Land. And in that this was a prophetic revelation, the interaction he was foreseeing is what would transpire globally among gentiles in Dany^oel’s future.

The most notable empires to arise west of Yisra^ael after 600 BCE would include Greece, Imperial Rome, and the Roman Catholic Church and, by extension, the Holy Roman Empire in Roman Catholic Europe and the United States. But keep in mind that not every western power qualifies for consideration because only those which have left their fingerprints or bootprints on Yisra^ael are of interest to Yahowah. Prophetically, we know that Yahowah predicted that multitudes of Gentiles would combatively crash into and trample the Promised Land.

Aramaic and Hebrew share many words in common. Among them is ruwach, which can mean “spirit” or “wind.” Since these beings were from shamayn | the heavens (as scribed in Aramaic), this statement suggests that the ruwach Dany^oel witnessed were spiritual beings with the capacity to enter and influence the physical world.

Until we learn more about what Dany^oel witnessed these four ruwach doing, we will have to keep an open mind, especially since shamayn also means “sky.” Therefore, ruwach shamayn can correspond to naturally occurring “atmospheric winds.”

Also relevant, should these ruwach be spiritual beings, while most continue to serve Yahowah, others are in league with the Adversary. And in this regard, while Satan is a spiritual being, wind is often associated with him, particularly when it is circular, agitating, or destructive. Wind is also an indication of war.

While there are various ways to interpret guwah | churning up, most are violent and destructive. In a physical sense, the surging waves of the sea are often the most devastating aspect of a hurricane. And metaphorically, when gowym are aroused against Yisra^{el}, the carnage can be horrific. So, in concert with what is likely spiritual agitation...

“Then four (wa arba* *) great beasts (chyuwah rab – large and terrifying creatures, mighty and massive living beings, powerful animals, lordly monsters, and militant chieftains) came up from (salaq min – grew out of, arose from, ascended to project the thinking and power of) the Sea (yam – the swamp and large body of water), evolving, changing, and transforming (shanah – altered and differentiated to frustrate, always becoming worse, being reorganized into somewhat dissimilar defiant orders throughout the years) one to the other (da^e min da^e – one to the next, each one growing in opposition).” (Dany^eel / My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns / Daniel 7:3)

Should there have been any question as to whether yam was addressing the sea or gentiles, it is now answered. This being the case, the four spirits from the heavens are agitating gowym on behalf of Satan. As a result, God is predicting that four beasts, horrific human constructs, pervasive and dominating, demonic and vicious creatures would emerge from Babel to adversely impact Yisra^{el}.

These evil empires would shanah | evolve over the years, reorganizing into more defiant and frustrating entities. The inference is that Babylon would be the birthplace of these monsters, the womb from which they would emerge and grow more menacing over time. And as the first of them, with three to follow, it would be the source of all four. Due to the amorphous and transformational aspect of their evolution, while distinct entities, they are projected evolving one from another. Examples of this would be that, while Rome conquered Greece, the victim metastasized within the devouring monster to influence Roman behavior. Then in a different, albeit even more direct manner, the Roman Catholic Church grew out of Imperial Rome such that for a time they were indistinguishable.

These chyuwah rab arising out of a sea of gentiles would be terrifying beasts, powerful and mighty creatures, lordly and militant monsters. They would be large in numbers and, thus, each comprised of millions of individuals. Their lords and chieftains would be unrestrained and brutal beasts. Their behavior would be monstrous. Further, the four savage empires would salaq min yam | ascend from the sea to project their merciless mindset and power.

Therefore, we are being encouraged to consider what was unique about Babel that would spawn four exceedingly adversarial, especially demonic, overwhelmingly anti-Israel, and monstrous institutions. Who are they, when would they emerge, what would they share in common with Babel | Babylon, in addition to how would they metastasize and be differentiated over time?

And while we will wait on Dany^el to describe these beasts prior to affirmatively identifying them, we are already prepared to assess Babylon. It was the birthplace of institutionalized religion and its integration into the government, culture, economics, and the military. Babel | With the Lord was named after its association with Satan. It is defined by the process and consequence of confusing by commingling and confounding by intermixing.

“The first (qadmay – the initial one of the series) was similar to (ka – was like, corresponded to, and could be associated with) a fierce and powerful lion (aryeh* – a predatory animal; from arah* – to pluck away and gather together, to remove for oneself) but with (wa) wings (gaph) of (dy) an eagle (nashar – a vulture) upon her (la hy^a).

I kept watching (hawah chazah – I was totally focused and observant, continuing to look) while (ad* – providing enduring evidence and restoring testimony) her wings were plucked off (*marat gaph hy – her wings were torn off, pulled off, and removed, eliminating her ability to fly away). But then (wa) she was lifted up (natal – she arose and was raised up, resurrected) from the earth (*min *ara – out of the world of humankind and the ground).

Upon (*wa al) two feet (ragalyn) like a mortal man (*ka enash – similar to a person, corresponding to an individual, akin to a people, nation, or manmade and human institution), she arose and was established (quwm – she was set up and came into existence, becoming influential and powerful).

Additionally (wa), the heart and mind, the desires and inclinations (labab – the judgment, thinking, mindset, attitude, and emotions), of a mortal man (enash* – of a person with human characteristics) were given to her (*yahab la hy – were ascribed to her and placed within her, granted and entrusted to it).” (*Dany*el* / God is My Means to Decide between Vindication and Condemnation / Daniel 7:4)

The beast of Babel | Babylon was depicted as a winged lion. And that means our travelogue through the worst of human history begins where such statuary dominated the city. There were 120 lions created in polychrome relief tiles along the processional to the Gate of Ishtar and then to Nebuchadnezzar’s Throne Room. Winged lions decorated the empire’s palaces – some also shown with the head of the Babylonian king, depicting him as a god.

The most impressive verification of this symbolism is found in Babylon’s most massive monument – a 2,600-year-old black basalt carving of a lion trampling a man. It even dates to the time of *Dany*el*. Wearing a saddle, the lion was once ridden by Astarte, more commonly known as the winged Goddess Ishtar. She not only serves as the origin of “Easter,” Astarte was perceived to be the Mother of God and Queen of Heaven upon whom Roman Catholicism's Madonna was based. She remains the inspiration behind the worship of Mary as the Blessed and Virginal Mother of the Son of God – serving as verification of Christianity's Babylonian origins while explaining its Trinity. And in this way, we see the connection between the first and the last of these beasts.

This enormous lion, located just inside the famed Ishtar gate of ancient Babylon, with its original winged goddess, Astarte, and a fallen man beneath, provides a complete picture of Yahowah's conveyed symbolism. The whole story is depicted before our eyes. This is the Beast of Babel, replete with its Roman eagle wings that would evolve into the Roman Catholic Church. Babylon's institutionalized religion and its political integration would be personified in Christianity's god-man, the resurrected Jesus recast with the desires and inclinations of the men who made him in their image. What's more, as we read further into Danyel's revelation, we will find the final Beast treading upon the entire world, just as this statue is shown trampling mankind.

Babylonia was the world's leading superpower, albeit for a short period of time, just 66 years from 605 to 539 BCE. This deplorable State known for its assimilation of religion and politics continues to influence humanity. In fact, Babylon is where Christmas and Easter, Sunday worship and the Trinity, reverence for the Lord as the Son of God, and the Virgin Mary all began. It is where the Babylonian Talmud was written. And it is where the Quran was initially compiled.

As we know, the entire 14th chapter of Yasha'yah | Isaiah is devoted to explaining the connection between Satan, whose name is Heyl ben Shachar, and Babel | Babylon. In his words, we learn that a desire to be seen as above the Most High and to be revered as God instead of the Adversary, is what brought Satan down to the Earth as the Lord of religion.

Few things this clearly stated are as universally misunderstood. Satan does not want to be known as the Adversary, as an ugly and menacing beast. And that means he does not want to be seen as ha satan. Instead, the Adversary seeks to fool the unsuspecting so that they bow down to him as if he were God. Therefore, you will never find Satan in an occult ritual but, instead, as the Lord in humankind's most popular religions.

Satan's primary tool is "babel – confusion," which is one of several reasons his duplicity and feigned devotion is associated with the Whore of Babylon. Through religion, he confounds many by corrupting God's testimony – just as he did in the Garden of Eden where he confused Chawah to the point that she misquoted Yahowah's instructions to Adam. Seeking to be like God, she added to and took away from God's Guidance, a strategy that would be rehashed to conceive Judaism, Christianity, and Islam.

The replacement of Yahowah's name for the title "the Lord" 7,000 times in the Towrah, Prophets, and Psalms by religious publishers was paramount in positioning Satan as God. Accepting the Babylonian preference for Sunday worship rather than enjoying the intended relationship during the Shabat led to the same result. Religious Jews just made things worse when their laborious interpretation of the Shabat became the most limiting of days, restricted and controlled by a plethora of onerous religious laws.

Ignoring Chag Matsah in favor of a prolonged Passover was among the worst ideas advanced by the rabbis because it precludes acceptance into the Covenant. Even worse, however, is celebrating Easter Sunday, where in the looming shadow of a dead god on a stick a corpse is resurrected, consistent with Babylonian lore. Following the pagan customs, pagan families took their children to Sunday sunrise services, then hunted brightly colored "bunny" eggs. They ate ham as well – all serving as giant strides in the wrong direction. The holy holiday was even named after the Babylonian Queen of Heaven and Mother of God, *Asherah / 'Astarte / Ishtar whom Yahowah despises. All the while, Jews would advance the myths of Babylon by observing Purim and Rosh Hashanah. Hanukkah would be an ode to the Greeks who conquered Babylon and then Judea.

Instead of concluding the year camping out with our Father during Sukah, honoring yet another Babylonian myth, a baby god was deemed to be born on Christmas nine months after Easter. In defiance of God's warning through Yirmayah, a dead tree is brought into the home, illuminated and decorated, while families sing carols to the baby Jesus – the most popular and insidious of counterfeit gods. Replacing the Towrah with a New Testament and Babylonian Talmud also served Satan, as the religious continued to worship the Lord while spitting in God's face.

The blame for much of this can be placed upon the rise of Rabbinic Judaism in the 1st and 2nd centuries as they tried unethically, ignorantly, and irrationally to deal with the erroneous claims Sha'uwl had popularized regarding the myths he was promoting through his counterfeit. By ignoring what Yahowah had revealed about what He would achieve through Dowd, the rabbis allowed the Romanized Jew whom Christians know as Paul, a charlatan who even admitted to being demon-possessed, to promote the audacious claim that God authorized him to contradict His Towrah. Pretending to be inspired by God, his Lord was Satan – a point vividly portrayed in Paul's own hand. By being a "wolf in sheep's clothing," Paul would "babel – confuse" more souls on behalf of the Adversary than anyone who has ever lived.

He was not alone, however. Muhammad, another man who claimed to speak for God while also admitting to being demon-possessed, named his wannabe god, "Allah," creating a persona that was equal parts satanic and self-portrait. And while the Islamic god's Quran is the antithesis of Yahowah's Towrah, Allah claimed to author both by way of Talmud readings rabbis in Yathrib sold to Muhammad. Allah not only covets the title, Lord, rabbis fooled Muhammad into using their rabbinic title to depict him. So, of course, Allah demands prostrations, terrorizes believers into fearing him, requires obedience, and spends all of his time in hell torturing those who don't submit. Then, eliminating the competition, Allah ordered Muslims to exterminate Yahowah's Chosen People.

Much of Yirma'yah | Jeremiah, the prophetic book committed to enlightening Gentiles regarding the consequence of aligning themselves with human institutions, particularly those in opposition to Yisra'el, is focused on explaining the connection between Babylon and religion, political power, military conquests, and economic malfeasance and, thus, between Babylon and the things which are opposed by God. Babel is the place where the things God despises were syncretized, institutionalized, and nationalized, even systemized. And sadly, most everything that Babylon represents endures in Christianity, borne out through the babel of the Roman Catholic Church.

Babylonia's wings were plucked over 2,550 years ago, and yet, the text of this prophecy revealed: "I kept watching (hawah chazah) while (ad*) her wings were plucked off (*marat gaph hy). So then (wa), she was lifted up, even resurrected (natal), from the earth (*min *ara). Upon (*wa al) two feet (ragalyn) like a mortal man (*ka enash), she arose and was established, becoming influential and powerful (quwm). Even (wa), the heart and mind, the desires and inclinations (labab), of a mortal man (enash*) were given to it (*yahab la hy)." These and other clues point to the reincarnation of Babylon into Christianity where the myth of a man is worshiped as God.

In this regard, there has been one man, one beating heart, one stream of human consciousness that was lifted up who represented Babylon in opposition to Yahowah to such an extent that Paul and his letters would warrant this kind of notoriety. He is the inspiration behind the Christian New Testament and the founder of the religion. And in exactly 600 years, he would be preaching his Towrahless mantra to Rome.

There is another connection we should recognize. In 586

BCE, the Babylonians pummeled Yaruwshalaim and much of Yahuwdah, forcing Yahuwdym into slavery. In this way, Babylonia foreshadowed Rome's assault on Judea and the Temple in 70 CE as well as Roman Catholicism's war upon everything Yahowah cherishes and has sought to achieve.

The most relevant king of Babylon from Yisra*el's perspective is Nebuchadnezzar II, known in Akkadian as "Nabu-kudurri-usur – God Nabu Defend My Firstborn Son." Nabu, the son of Marduk, was the god of wisdom in the Babylonian pantheon. By choosing this name, Nebuchadnezzar was claiming to be the firstborn son of his god as well as wise. He ruled from 605 through 562 BCE.

His father, Nabopolassar, is credited with achieving Babylon's independence from Assyria. In alliance with the Medes and Scythians, he razed Nynowah | Nineveh in 612 BCE. And while this battle didn't destroy Assyria, it ended Babylon's servitude as a vassal state. Thereafter, with visions of grandeur dancing in his head, Nabopolassar sent his son west at the head of a large army. In the Battle of Carchemish in 605 BCE near Haran, Nebuchadnezzar defeated the Assyrians again, this time because their allies, the Egyptians, were waylaid in Yahuwdah. This brought western Assyria and Phoenicia under Babylonian control. But during his son's absence, Nabopolassar died, making Nebuchadnezzar king upon his return to Babylon.

Enchanted by war and unimpressed by alliances, Nebuchadnezzar defeated the Scythians. He would bypass the Medes temporarily, however, because his arranged marriage to Amytis, the daughter of the Median king, was perceived to be a vow of peace. Turning west again, he fought battles in Syria en route to Egypt, where his army was rebuffed.

Frustrated by alliances forged against him between Yahuwdah and Egypt, Nebuchadnezzar turned his attention toward Yaruwshalaim in 597 BCE. Yahuwdah capitulated, and so, as was the Babylonian custom, Nebuchadnezzar took prominent hostages with him to encourage the vassal state to honor their agreement. But by the time his departing troops had reached the Sea of Galilee, he received word that those who had lost family and friends revolted against King Yo'shyah | Josiah for having surrendered their loved ones.

Nebuchadnezzar responded immediately by decapitating every Jewish hostage and turned his army back toward Yaruwshalaim. The city was sacked, and the people were ravaged. Those who were not killed were enslaved by the Babylonian monarch.

Throughout the book of Yirma'yah | Jeremiah, Yahowah speaks vociferously of Babylon, calling the empire a “destroyer of nations.” This is often considered to be a reference to Nebuchadnezzar, because, within the kingdom’s 66-year existence, he conquered Assyria, Egypt, and Yisra^{*}el. His siege of Yaruwshalaim and obliteration of the House of Yahowah are then depicted in the 52nd chapter.

While not the focus of the book, Yahowah has a great deal more to say about Babylon through Yasha'yah | Isaiah, this time focusing on its religious influence and demonic instigator and agitator. When we are introduced to Satan in Babylon, we discover that the Devil has no interest in being known as the Adversary but, instead, wants to be worshiped as if he were more important than Yahowah. Satan is, therefore, most clearly depicted through “Allahu-Akbar – Allah is Greater.”

These insights help explain why the first thing Yahowah asks of ^{*}Abram prior to entering the Promised Land and engaging in the Covenant is to walk away from Babylon. Unfortunately, however, most have not, which is why Yahowah calls His people out of Babylon prior to His return – indicating that many remain mired in the religion of the Babylonian Talmud.

While we have just begun, and have covered but a single Beast, before we move on, here is Yahowah’s initial assessment of the mother of harlots...

“In the first year of (ba chad shanah la) Belshaʿtsar | the Lord Supports his Dictator (Belshaʿtsar), the ruler of (melek) Babel | to Commingle and Confuse with the Lord (Babel), Danyʿel | My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns (Danyʿel) saw (chazah) a revealing vision (chelem) and (wa) distinguishing insights (chazuw) in his mind (reʿsh huwʿ) while upon his bed (al mishkab huwʿ*)."

Thereupon, during (*ba edayn) the prophetic revelation (chalam), he was prompted to write a complete copy of (kathab) the things (milah) being communicated (amar*). (Danyʿel 7:1)

Danyʿel* | God is My Means to Decide Between Vindication and Condemnation (Danyʿel) responded (anah*) and said (*wa amar), ‘I am able to see (hawah chazah), with my sensory perceptions, the vision (*ba chazuw anah) during the night (im lyly*).’

And (wa), behold, right there (aruw*), four (arbaʿ*) spirits (ruwachy) of the heavens (shamayn) were churning up (guwah) that which corresponds to the Great Sea (la yam rab). (Danyʿel 7:2)

Then four (*wa arbaʿ) great beasts, powerful and mighty creatures, lordly and militant monsters (chyuwah rab) came up from, emerging to project the thinking and influence of (salaq min) the Sea (yam), evolving, changing, and transforming to frustrate and be progressively more defiant (shanah) one to the other, growing in opposition (daʿ min daʿ). (Danyʿel 7:3)

The first in the series (qadmay) corresponded to and can be associated with (ka) a fierce and powerful lion (aryeh*) but with (wa) wings (gaph) of (dy) an eagle (nashar) upon it (la hyʿ).

I kept watching (hawah chazah) while (ad*) her wings were plucked off (marat gaph hyʿ). Then (wa), she was lifted up, even resurrected (natal), from the earth (*min araʿ).

Upon (wa *al) two feet (ragalyn) like a mortal man (ka *enash), it arose and was established, becoming influential and powerful (quwm). Additionally (wa), the heart and mind, the desires and inclinations (labab), of a mortal man (enash) were given to it (yahab la hy)." (Dany^eel 7:4)

The second of four beasts to evolve out of Babylon is now in view...

“So, behold (wa *aruw – look now and pay attention), another (*achoran) beast (chyuwah – terrifying creature, powerful being, and animalistic monster), a second one (tinyan – the next in a series), resembling (damah – appearing like) a bear (la dob – the approach of a bear). On one side (wa la satar chad – then approaching from the side at first), it was established (quwm – it rose up and endured). And (wa) three (telath) ribs (ala^e – bones or planks for having made lame) were in its mouth (ba pum hy) between her teeth (ben shen hy* – in the grip of her upper and lower jaws).

And (wa) therefore (ken – thusly), it was said of her (amar la hy – they spoke approaching her), ‘You have chosen to rise up (quwm – it has been your will to come forth) and devour (*akal – consume) an abundance (sagyi^e – a large and important number) of human witnesses (basar – of people who would be heralds).’” (Dany^eel / Daniel 7:5)

The symbolism of the bear was deployed to depict the fierceness and lumbering nature of the Medo-Persian Empire. After conquering Babylon, Persia overthrew Lydia and Egypt, which is why three ribs were found in its mouth. And while the Medes didn’t survive long, the Persians reigned from 539 to 331 BCE – actually much longer than that through their various derivatives.

As for being murderous, Islam would emerge from this Beast, and nothing man has ever conceived has been as deadly. Its assassins bear religious names, jihadist and mujahedeen, and they kill screaming that their wannabe god is greater than Yah: “Allahu Akbar – Allah is Greater!” Over two hundred million men, women, and children would die in the first one hundred years of the Islamic era.

Imagine being Dany*el at this moment. He and his people are enslaved by the most powerful nation on Earth, and yet, he is witnessing the demise of his captors. There would, therefore, be a beast more dominant than the one which had destroyed Yahuwdah.

Since Persia’s participation in this drama chronicling the fall of man will be reprised following a prophetic explanation, and since Persia’s role is considerably less significant than Babylon’s, or the Beasts which follow, let’s develop Persia’s character later as the vision progresses. For now, the focus remains on the Middle East, from Mesopotamia to Egypt with Yisra*el in between.

The third beast would strike quickly and appear regal in the process...

“At another point in time in this same sequence (ba danah *atar – concerning this same matter), by remaining observant, I was able to witness (hawah chazah – I kept watching) the revelation (wa *aruw) of another (*achoran), this one resembling (ka – similar and corresponding to) a leopard (namar).

And with it (*wa la hy) were four wings (arba gaph) such as (dy) a bird (owp). They were on her back side (al gab hy). The beast (la cheywah – the approaching terrifying entity) had four heads (wa arba re*sh – with four top leaders), and to it (*la hy) was afforded (yahab – it was entrusted) governmental dominion (wa shalatan – the power and authority to rule, mastery and sovereignty).” (*Dany*el* / My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns / Daniel 7:6)

The leopard with wings and the power and mastery to rule describes the Macedonian Empire of Alexander the Great. He conquered the Persians, and most everyone else his troops encountered, rapidly, with the agility of a leopard and the speed of a bird. He never lost a battle, so by age thirty-two, he had conquered much of the known world.

The reason this empire is depicted with four heads is because, when Alexander died suddenly in Babylon, his four generals – Cassander (who claimed Macedonia, Greece, Albania, Kosovo, Serbia, Montenegro, Bosnia and Herzegovina, and Croatia), Lysimachus (who reigned over Bulgaria, Romania, Moldova, and Northern Turkey), Seleucus (establishing himself over southern Turkey, Syria, Iraq, Iran, and parts of Afghanistan, Pakistan, Tajikistan, Uzbekistan, and Kyrgyzstan), and Ptolemy (who became emperor over Lebanon, Cyprus, Israel, Jordan, Egypt, and part of Libya) – divided the territory they had conquered among themselves. As a result, the Greeks were the world's most influential civilization from 331 to 168 BCE, when their dominion was sequestered by the Romans.

As we did with Persia, we will do with Alexander and Greece. Since these characters will make a second appearance in this historic play, it's best to retain continuity and deal with them after they are irrefutably identified for us in the next chapter.

Thus far, in the name of Babel, we discovered that the confounding commingling which occurred within Babylon was in conjunction with the Lord. We learned of four demonic spirits churning up and agitating a great number of Gentiles which in turn led to the emergence of four horrible beasts, creatures of enormous power and influence – each projecting the mindset of the gowym. They would evolve one from another, becoming ever more defiant and devastating.

The lion with eagle wings was Babylon, whose religion would be resurrected to create Roman Catholicism. And with it, the myth of a man was personified as a god.

The second beast was a bear, from which only Persia would survive the brief alliance with Media. It was depicted with the bones of its three victims in its mouth as it devoured those surrounding it.

The swift and agile Macedonian leopard came next, a far-reaching empire that would be divided among four generals. And this is an intriguing match for what occurred. So, while what we have been given is an accurate picture of history, more revealing still is that it serves as a harbinger of what will occur in our future.

Chywah ~ Terrifying Beast

The next empire, which is also the last, was arguably the worst in human history. Following the nimble leopard and the four heads of Macedonia, we are now witnessing the rise of Rome and the Roman Church.

“After this (*ba danah atar – following this sequence of events), I remained observant (chazah hawah – I kept watching) regarding this revelation during a time of enfolding darkness (ba chazuw lyly – of the vision of night).

And behold (*wa aruw – then paying attention), the fourth (*raby*ay*) awesome and monstrous beast (chywah – terrifying and animalistic creature), the most fearsome and frightening so as to be respected (dachal – formidable and dreadful, oppressive and terrifying, threatening and terrible), would be genuinely horrifying and appalling (*wa eymatan – dreadful and horrific, sickening and gruesome, inflicting tragic and horrible consequences), with (wa) an exceptionally powerful and preeminent military (yatyr taqyph – an overwhelmingly prodigious and mighty army, surpassing all others in influence).

It had (*wa la hy) teeth comprised of iron (shen dy parzel la – rows of incisors which appear as hardened metal and are perceived to be invincible).

Great multitudes, including the highly populated and powerful (rab – a great number), it devoured and devastated (akal* – it destroyed and consumed), crushing the remainder (*wa daqaq wa sha*ar* – smashing and pulverizing piece by piece the rest, including whatever is left) with its feet (*ba ragal hy) by trampling them down violently (raphats – rejoicing while completely destroying and ruining them) under foot (ba ragal).

And so (wa), this one was different in its transformation (hy shanah*) from all the other (min kol) beasts (chywah – terrifying monsters and horrible entities) which preceded it (*dy qodam hy – that came before it).

Ten (*wa asar) horns (qeren – indicative of leaders and nations) were extended from her (*la hy).” (Dany^eel / My God Vindicates and Condemns / Daniel 7:7)

Babylon, Persia, and Greece were militant, expansionist, and oppressive, but they were pussycats compared to Rome – the most formidable and fearsome of empires. And it isn’t just that her legions were vicious throughout Europe, the Middle East, and Northern Africa, it is that their most appalling assaults were against Yahuwdah.

Imperial Rome was everything God detests. They were resolutely religious and political, imposing both schemes upon everyone within their reach. Their emperors paraded around as gods and built shrines to their egos. They deployed the most oppressive caste system with no upward mobility and ran a slave economy. Their legions were ruthless killing machines, and the generals driving them were covetous and duplicitous. It was a nation without scruples, without ethics, and devoid of morality. Their agreements were onerous, and even then, they did not honor them. They ruled through terror, inventing the most excruciating forms of torture and using them publicly and prolifically – once even against Yahowah’s Passover Lamb.

Rome was a chywah dachal | the fearsome and formidable monster, a dreadful and frightening beast, an empire respected for being overtly oppressive, terrifying, threatening, and terrible. The empire was eymatan* | horrifyingly appalling and horribly gruesome. Their legions were yatyr taqyph | exceptionally powerful, the preeminent military of the age.

With the bite of an iron jaw, no one escaped. And those who tried, Rome pursued and crushed. Even worse, Romans celebrated their collective atrocities – doing so in the Colosseum they financed and constructed with the treasures stolen from Yahowah’s Temple and labor supplied by Jewish slaves.

While Yahuwdah was relatively easy prey for Rome, a bite-sized morsel, the empire subjugated the most heavily populated and powerful nations of the known world – devastating them.

What made Rome unique from the others was how it shanah | evolved, transforming into Beasts of a different ilk – Christianity via Roman Catholicism, the Holy Roman Empire and Feudal Europe on the way to metastasizing into the European Union. Rome’s deplorable subjugation was not ending – just beginning.

As for her epitaph – that of giving way to the ten horns – we will examine the implications later as Yahowah elaborates on this and explains it to us.

Yahowah was right in saying that Rome was best known for the Empire’s horrific and ruthless military. She was born as she died, fighting – with those she abused finally trampling the empire that had oppressed them underfoot.

Some three hundred major battles were fought over twelve centuries. No nation has been as appalling or tyrannical. Rome devoured people far and wide, including consuming her own.

Since historians are typically amoral, and present the grandeur that was Rome, I think that it’s important that we look behind the shimmering shields to the slashing swords and examine the blood that stained the Empire’s soul.

So in light of Yahowah’s revelation reproaching the pervasiveness and cruelty of Roman conquests, I prepared an accounting of Roman characters and wars for your consideration and it is detailed for your edification in volume one of Babel.

But I would be remiss in telling God’s story if I passed over the greatest villain of all ~ Hadrian. He claimed the throne of the Roman Empire at age forty and remained in control for twenty years. He is credited for having rebuilt the Pantheon – the universal home of Rome’s pagan gods. He served as the architect and then arranged for the construction of the Temple of Venus and Eternal Rome, erecting Rome’s second most imposing building between the Forum and Colosseum. This tribute to the Everlasting and Divine Fortune of Rome was set upon the porticoed vestibule of Emperor Nero's Domus Aurea, requiring him to move the Colossus of Nero which was modified to become the Colossus of Sol.

The rotating ceiling of gods that rose above the giant Nero was later repurposed by Pope Honorius, with the consent of Emperor Heraclius. The gilt-bronze tiles and jewels from the roof of Nero's Temple were used to adorn the roof of St. Peter's Basilica. The building which housed the Colossus of Nero was transformed into the church of the Saint Mary, with the columns of the pagan temple still visible and dominant in the rear. Delusional, Roman Catholics claim that this is "one of the oldest and most important shrines in the world dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary and was, in fact, built at her request!"

Since the papacy of Saint John Paul II, the temple has been used as a platform for large public addresses, especially on Good Friday, when a cross is carried by the pope from the temple to the Colosseum. And so, it is with every stroke, the Beast of Empire and Church become one.

As will be the case with the Towrahless One, Hadrian is regarded as a humanist – as a man who celebrated the works of men. In this regard, he was also a Philhellenist – a lover of Greek culture and philosophy. Hadrian actually established an extensive and enduring Greek religious cult in Rome and served as its leading evangelist. His first tour of Greece as a Roman emperor was climaxed by his participation in 124 CE in the Eleusinian Mysteries where he, himself, was initiated. Less than a year later, during Easter week in March 125 CE, Hadrian presided over the Festival of Dionysia to honor the god, Dionysus, the deity upon which the deified nature of the Christian caricature of Jesus Christ was fashioned. This makes it all the more intriguing that Paul, a Roman himself, quoted Dionysus' most famous line during his conversion experience seventy-five years earlier.

The Festival of Dionysia was held over four days approaching the full moon in the midst of the lunar month nearest the spring equinox. It served as the inspiration for the Catholic Holy Week celebration associated with Easter at the same time of year. On the first day of the Festival, statues of Dionysus, who was believed to be the Son of the Sun, were brought into Athens. Once they arrived in the Theatre of Dionysus on the southern slope of the Acropolis, the god in the image of a man was rejected, with Dionysus being severely punished, mirroring the Christian Good Friday. This is said to have plagued the male genitalia, which was then cleansed and cured, saving the people when the preponderance of the population accepted Dionysus and joined his cult by splashing around in holy water. This was a symbolic counterfeit for circumcision, the sign of the Covenant, which Christians replaced with baptism.

The faithful pagans acknowledged their devotion by marching in the streets carrying a phallus on poles, a rite also associated with Mercury, the Messenger of the Gods. Chorus leaders in the most expensive and ornate robes carried holy water and wine in the procession. Bulls, the symbol of the sun, were sacrificed.

In the Eleusinian Mysteries, Dionysus, who was known to Romans as Bacchus, was called the “Liberator” who “frees his faithful from fear and from the oppressive restraints of the laws imposed by the most powerful. This then became synonymous with “Jesus” freeing Christians from the Law through Paul’s Gospel of Grace.

Those who partook in his mysteries were believed to be possessed and then empowered by Dionysus, which is why the faith was called the “Cult of Souls.” His devotees were restored to life by feeding on bread representing his dead flesh and by drinking wine, symbolizing his blood during a divine communion – establishing the tradition upon which the Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox Eucharist would be based.

Dionysus was the son of Zeus, the father of the gods. But he had a mortal mother, Semele, who served as one of many models for Roman Catholicism's devotion to Mary, the acclaimed Mother of God. This illicit affair between a supposedly divine being and a virginal woman was said to have conceived Dionysus in human form, a being who was also considered the Son of God. His birth was celebrated by bringing trees into homes during the winter solstice, then December 25th on the Julian calendar, thereby establishing the timing and tradition of Christmas. In addition to his birthday, his annual death and resurrection were celebrated in numerous mystery religions.

In yet another parallel, Dionysus is said to have appeared before King Pentheus, who imprisoned him, for having claimed to be a god. This is obviously comparable to the idea of "Jesus" being tried on the same claim before Pontius Pilate. And in Rome, Dionysus is celebrated for bringing an end to the old Law, freeing the faithful from its restraints.

Nietzsche observed that the oldest forms of Greek tragedy were based upon the suffering of Dionysus. In particular, the story underlies the most famous of Greek poems, with several of the trials and tribulations of Odysseus in the Odyssey incorporated into Christianity. The same holds true with the Sibylline Oracles – particularly when discussing baptism.

In Roman form, Bacchus appears in C.S. Lewis' Prince Caspian, which was part of The Chronicles of Narnia. The famed Christian apologist interprets the Greek religious myth to insert a story celebrating the mythical Christian Christ.

Paul, the man who created Mr. Christ, cited the most famous line from Euripides' play, The Bacchae, during his conversion experience: "It is difficult to kick against the goad." First performed posthumously at the Theater of Dionysus, it won first prize in the City Dionysia Festival Competition in 405 BCE. In the Greek myth, Dionysus, as the son of Zeus and a mortal mother, arrives to avenge being slandered by King Pentheus and his mother, Agave of Thebes. His resolution is to initiate a new religion with the Dionysian rites replacing prior rituals. The story even includes the gruesome punishment of Pentheus for not supporting the new religion. This, along with Agave holding the head of her beloved son on a plate, is not only reminiscent of the crucifixion but, also, the myth of “John the Baptist.” Indeed, the entire story serves as a warning, telling the old establishment and future doubters that there will be hell to pay in this life and the next if they dare speak out against the religion of Dionysus – a.k.a., Christianity.

Returning our focus back to the Roman who sought to be a god, the author of The Prince, Machiavelli, who was the patron of papal supremacy and strategy, placed Hadrian among Rome’s five greatest emperors. British historian, Edward Gibbon, agreed, and wrote in 1776 that Hadrian’s “vast genius, equity, and moderation” created the “happiest era of human history.” Methinks, God disagrees.

Emperor Hadrian, like today’s popes, wielded absolute power. He spoke for Rome and its gods. He served as supreme commander of the most brutal military State the Earth would ever endure. And he most always dressed for appearances, creating the illusion of being a great and distinguished leader by wearing an elaborately designed uniform. He, like today’s pope, was never seen in civilian attire.

Hadrian’s father was of Patrician rank and a Senator. As a young man, the future emperor began public life as the Tribune – an officer considered sacrosanct, prohibiting any assault on his person. He was placed in command of Legio II Adiutrix – Second Rescuer Legion. It had been levied by Vespasian from Rome’s naval marines. Still at a young age, he was transferred to Legio I Minervia when the First Army Devoted to the Goddess Minerva was stationed in Germania. Then upon Emperor Nerva’s death, Hadrian was appointed Legate of a Legion in Pannonia, eventually becoming Governor of the Province. And prior to becoming the Legatus of Syria and Emperor of Rome in 117 CE, as Archon / Lord and Ruler of Athens, he accepted Athenian citizenship.

At the time, Roman Emperor Trajan became gravely ill, which was a problem because Hadrian, who had served with him during the expedition against Parthia, had not been adopted as Trajan's heir. To remedy this problem, the adoption papers were signed by Plotina, Trajan's widow, albeit after Trajan was dead. With his legitimacy feigned, Hadrian secured the support of the Legions, knowing that the Senate didn't have the courage to oppose their swords and spears.

Hadrian, however, initially shied away from Rome, preferring to busy himself with admiring the Greek religion and eradicating Jews. Even then, before returning to the capital, in typical Roman fashion, Hadrian charged anyone loyal to Trajan with conspiracy, including his adoptive father, hunting them down and killing them. Yes, indeed, it was the happiest era of human history.

Apart from his obsession with obliterating Yahuwdah and annihilating Yahuwdym, Hadrian wasn't much of a fighter. He capitulated his predecessor's conquests of Mesopotamia, claiming that the territory was indefensible. He used diplomacy rather than the military with Parthia. He built the massive wall in Britain and others near the Danube and the Rhine to separate the barbarians from the Romans.

As will be the case with the Towrahless One, as was the case with Paul, and now is true with the Catholic priesthood, Emperor Hadrian's closest and most enduring sexual relationship was with Antinous, a beautiful Greek boy. Upon his death from drowning, Hadrian "wept like a woman." At his request, "the Greeks deified Antinous, and spoke oracles through him that were composed by Hadrian, himself." The sullen emperor founded the Egyptian city of Antinopolis in his memory. The resulting Cult of Antinous at Hadrian's direction became extremely popular in Greece, Egypt, and Rome, serving as the means to unify the religions, cultures, and politics, synchronizing these things with Roman authority. It was an act that would foreshadow the development of Roman Catholicism as it evolved from Imperial Rome.

Hadrian's Villa at Tivoli included a sacred Alexandrian Garden which was then repurposed by Catholic Cardinal d'Este to erect his Villa d'Este, replete with its Tivoli Fountains. And while Hadrian considered himself to be a great architect, the leading designer of the day, Apollodorus of Damascus criticized his sense of proportions. In response, Hadrian had him exiled and then executed. And as was the case with Nimrod, Hadrian fancied himself a great hunter. He established cities in places where he or Antinous tormented lions, tigers, and bears.

Prior to his death, Hadrian designed the largest mausoleum in Rome for himself – a building that was later transformed into a papal fortress: Castel Sant'Angelo. Atop his grandiose tomb, Hadrian erected a statue of himself. Presented as a god, the antisemite depicted himself driving a four-horse chariot that was so enormous, it not only dwarfed the number of individuals offering tribute, each horse's eye was bigger than the largest man.

Therefore, as we investigate the character of the men who shaped the Beast, we come to see the personality of the men who will ravage Yisra'el again during the Time of Ya'aqob's Troubles. We also witness just how overwhelmingly Imperial Rome and the Roman Catholic Church were entwined, forever babel | mingled and confounding.

During this time and thereafter during Christianity's formative years, the religion's Roman overlords often turned to their gods for assistance. According to Historia Augustus, the Sibylline Books were consulted and religious ceremonies were conducted to elicit the help of the Roman and Greek deities.

These Sibylline Books were tightly controlled by the Roman Senate, demonstrating that, in the Roman Republic and Empire, there were no distinctions between politics and religion. The texts were used to set pious observances, to resolve political disputes, and to preclude military defeats. As would be the case with the Latin Vulgate, the script itself was not made available to the public at the time, but that did not stop the Romans from drawing from it to embellish Christian mythology.

There were actually two sets of politicized religious literature from similar sources – the Sibylline Oracles and the Sibylline Books. Both were written in Greek and considered divinely inspired and prophetic. Legend has it that the “Roman Books” were originally scribed by a Sibyl at the Temple of Apollo on Mount Ida in Gergis (near Troy) during the reign of Cyrus the Great. And while that is unlikely and is without historical support, it was during this period that we are reviewing in the late 3rd century and through the 4th, as Christianity was being conceived, that the Sibylline Books became resurgent. The devotees worshiped a trinity of gods, including Apollo, the Father, Cybele, the Great Mother, and Ceres (a female interpretation of Dionysus). The Books served to syncretize the Greek and Roman religions while integrating them into Roman politics as the foundation of the official State religion.

By comparison, the Sibylline Oracles were also written in hexameter verse and in Greek. They were cited vociferously by early Church fathers to justify Christian doctrine. In particular, the notions of baptism and the story of John the Baptist emerged from the Sibylline Oracles. And that is troublesome for the religion because the Oracles were an amalgamation of Gnostic and Hellenistic Jewish, now Kabbalistic beliefs, blended with a dose of Christian apocalyptic notions, while all derived from pagan Greek and Roman religious mythology. Also interesting, the oldest surviving copies come from scriptoriums in Alexandria – the same sources from which we find every pre-Constantine text of the Christian New Testament.

The Christian apologist, Athenagoras of Athens, quoted verbatim from the Sibylline Oracles in his letter requesting leniency from Marcus Aurelius. The Oracles were cited by Justin Martyr (circa 150 CE), Bishop Theophilus of Antioch (circa 180 CE), Clement of Alexandria (circa 200 CE), Lactantius (250 to 325 CE), and Augustine in 400 CE to validate the new religion using pagan mythology. Of them, Lactantius is particularly intriguing because he was an advisor to Roman Emperor Constantine and was responsible for guiding his policies and interpretations of the Christian religion as it was integrated into the politics of Rome. His poem, The Phoenix, was based upon the myth of the immortal bird of Greek mythology. It dies and is resurrected, born again, a myth Lactantius helped amalgamize into the Christian perception of the death and resurrection of their god.

However, there were some bumps along the way. As Diocletian entered the picture, we find him presenting himself and his royal court as Roman royalty. He spared no expense promoting lavish ceremonies. His personal extravagance required greater taxation, which he also imposed. He then tried unsuccessfully to control the inflation that he had caused with the Edict on Maximum Prices. Administratively, Diocletian appointed fellow military officer, Maximian, as Augustus and co-emperor a year into his reign in 286 CE.

Seven years later, Diocletian appointed Galerius and Constantine as Caesars and Junior Co-Emperors, the bane and sponsor of Roman Christianity. And so, due to the influence of Galerius, it is alleged that Diocletian persecuted Christians late in his reign, sometime after 303 CE. Although, it is seldom acknowledged that he also appointed the two men who set the stage for the emergence of the Roman Catholic Church.

Moreover, let's be clear: the brevity and brutality of the period of Christian persecution was relatively insignificant in the annals of Rome, not even 0.001% of the magnitude when compared to Rome's war against Jews and Judaism. And to the degree it was true, it would be the empire's final act of denial because Rome was quickly being absorbed by Christianity. There was nothing anyone could do to stop the plague Paul had spread in the crumbling empire 250 years previously.

Aware that those telling this story were not trustworthy, the alleged persecutions were magnified to convey that the new faith was so compelling, believers were willing to die to promote it. It is the same level of commitment we view today in suicide bombers – and to the same result.

Diocletian became the ideal foil while trying to restore Rome's lost luster. He surrounded himself with patriotic proponents of the pantheon of Roman gods, with men like Constantine and Galerius. Both were fierce advocates of the old ways and of new wars. Purging the army of Chrestucians, later known as Christians, was done for practical reasons. Some vocally defied the chain of command and refused to fight, even in self-defense.

It is said that Galerius urged Diocletian to lessen the growing Christian influence in State institutions. This was to be done without any bloodshed. The intent was to remove Christians from government posts while curtailing the influence of their churches and literature. Beyond this, an overt act of defiance was required to engender a Roman response.

The most acclaimed of these is that of Marcellus of Tangier (d. 298 CE), a centurion who threw away his belt, his arms, and the ensigns of his office in a public display of insubordination. He is said to have shouted, "I will obey none but Iesou Christou, the eternal King. I forever renounce the use of carnal weapons in service to an idolatrous master." He was tried locally and convicted using his own declaration and beheaded for the crime of desertion.

In another act of defiance, when the edict restricting Christian influence in the State offices was first posted in Nicomedia, we are told that a Christian named Eutius tore it down. The myth is that he was arrested, tortured, and burned alive, setting the standard for martyrs to follow. They would prove their faith by dying for it.

In reality, within four years of his edict, Diocletian retired in 304 CE. And Galerius, who was a dullard and simpleton, not unlike today's conspiratorialists, gave up on the idea of subduing the growing influence of Christianity within the Beast. In 311 CE, he issued the Edict of Toleration which legalized Christianity throughout Rome.

Galerius died within weeks of his acceptance of the religion, only to be besmirched posthumously by the ultimate cancer, Eusebius. The amalgamator and creative editor, even a substantial contributor, to the Christian New Testament, Eusebius, would describe the man who legalized Christianity in Rome as “a malignant ulcer...down in his secret parts.” The truth, however, was staring him in the face because, just 69 years after Galerius’ Edict of Toleration, Christianity and Rome would be inseparable.

The pagan warrior who militarized, politicized, and legitimized Christianity, Constantine, wasn’t willing to share power with anyone. This makes him the next Roman in a long line of egotistical men who fought other Romans for control of the most depraved civilization in human history.

His initial rival was Maxentius. He was not only the legitimate heir to the throne, he had just completed fortifying Rome with one hundred thousand soldiers. However, since Constantine couldn’t play nicely with others, the empire was split between these men.

Junior Co-Emperor Constantine initiated hostilities against his brother-in-law, Emperor Maxentius Augustus, in 312 CE by crossing the Alps from Gaul with forty thousand troops. Constantine was initially thwarted at Susa, Italy, when the residents refused to open their gates to the usurper. So, the Junior Co-Emperor took the city by force and burned it, only to extinguish the flames thereafter to gain the support of the surviving Romans. This example of what’s now known as the Stockholm Syndrome would be deployed again.

Constantine would fight his brother-in-law, Maxentius Augustus, at Turin, Italy. Displaying a head for conflict, not family, Constantine elongated his line, hoping that the superior heavily armored cavalry of his foe would ride into the middle of his infantry, leaving his opponent's flank vulnerable to his more maneuverable cavalry. Wielding heavy clubs with iron spikes, Constantine's horsemen ripped Maxentius' riders off of their mounts, clubbing them to death on the ground. If it were just a clash of Roman egos, we'd pay it no heed, but in this case, the most vicious Roman was instrumental in the transition from Imperial Rome to the Roman Catholic Church, and the men being bludgeoned were given no option but to die in a gruesome manner.

As the battle progressed, the Junior Co-Emperor ordered his infantry to advance, cutting down the men retreating in Emperor Maxentius Augustus' army as they fled. Celebrating the carnage, the citizens of Turin cheered from afar while the fighters assigned to Maxentius were slaughtered with their backs up against the city's walls.

Bad became worse because, later that same year, Milan changed allegiances, drawing Constantine further south toward Rome. Following this defection, Verona, an imposing Maxentian stronghold, became the next target. Doing what the "Barbarians" had thus far been unable to achieve, wannabe Emperor Constantine encircled and besieged the Roman metropolis. Then Constantine attacked and the Legions of Christianity's sponsor prevailed, forcing their foe to retreat into the city center. But Maxentius summoned additional troops, forcing the Junior Co-Emperor to fight on two fronts.

Even with his army divided, Constantine prevailed, routing the newly arrived recruits while demoralizing those still garrisoned in Verona. With the surrender of the city, and the death of Emperor Maxentius' most trusted general, opposition to Constantine in northern Italy collapsed. One city after another changed its allegiance. Heil Emperor.

Thereafter, the resolutely pagan, egomaniacal general and emperor advanced the transition from empire to church at the Battle of Milvian Bridge. If only there had not been the claim of a vision, if only Constantine had lost, what a better world it would have been.

The problem wasn't just that Constantine legalized Christianity. Galerius, the man responsible for what has been blamed on Diocletian, ended whatever harassment may have existed with a declaration favorable to the new religion. In fact, Constantine's edict wasn't even specific to Christianity but, instead, was written on behalf of every religion – not unlike the U.S. Constitution.

The problem with Constantine wasn't just that he was an anti-Semite who passed laws in opposition to Jews and the Torah. Hadrian had been much worse, and Vespasian and Trajan had been as bad.

The issue wasn't just that Constantine was a vicious combatant, a man whose life had been devoted to killing. Roman Emperors were always chosen based on their military prowess and vengeful nature. He was even willing to lead Romans into battle to slaughter fellow Roman conscripts, simply to satiate his lust for power.

The prevailing concern wasn't just that Constantine's alleged conversion was feigned by his propagandist and Christian apologist, Eusebius, or that the emperor remained devoted to Mithras and was a hypocrite and fraud. Romans had turned hypocrisy and duplicity into performance arts.

The problem with Constantine is that he blended all of these adverse characteristics together and melded them to his pagan beliefs. He postured an immensely popular, albeit deadly and demonic, duplicitous and hypocritical, politicized and militant, anti-Semitic religion that was economically and socially integrated into Roman society.

The biggest issue with Constantine was his propagandist,

Eusebius. This Roman Catholic cleric offering the pretense of historian is largely responsible for the anti-Semitic tone of the Christian New Testament as well as for writing its most devastating narratives. Eusebius is the one who inserted pretend-Peter's response, "You are the Christ, the son of the living God" into Mark and Matthew along with inserting his ode to Roman Catholicism with the absurd, "Upon this rock I will build my church."

It was also Eusebius who proposed a revisionist history of Constantine's battle long after it was fought, attributing a conversion experience to the general which was reminiscent of Paul's encounter with Satan on the road to Damascus. By so doing, the bishop beguiled billions, turning an appalling villain into a Christian hero. It was Eusebius who forged the connection between Imperial Rome and Roman Catholicism.

The bishop, who was no doubt enamored by the power and appeal of Constantine, as well as pleased with the attention and money the emperor threw his way, shaped the religion to meld into Rome, completing what Paul had begun with his letter to the Romans. Revisionist history and Replacement Theology would turn a mythical man into a god – one modeled after the popularity of Dionysus while robbing Dowd of his titles and achievement.

As a result, Constantine's publicist and religious advisor embellished stories that served to integrate Christianity into the fabric of Rome, making the nation and the religion homogenous. The Beast would live on and trample the world – right up to the very end. Even today, and with all evidence contrary to its claims, the Roman Catholic Church is the most popular institution in the world.

The reason that there is no common accord regarding when, where, what, or how Constantine allegedly saw the vision that would change Rome, and then the world, is because it was made up, like much of the Christian New Testament. In the third rewrite and embellishment of Constantine's biography,

Eusebius wrote that during the evening of October 27, 312 on the Julian calendar, with the Roman armies preparing for battle, “Constantine had a vision which led him to fight under the sign of the Christian god.”

Another conspirator, the Christian apologist, Lactantius, proposed: “the night before the battle, Constantine was commanded in a dream to delineate the heavenly sign on the shields of his soldiers.” (On the Deaths of the Persecutors 44.5) Lactantius describes that sign as a “staurogram,” or Latin cross, with its upper end rounded in a P-like fashion. But in reality, there is no evidence that Constantine envisioned anything or ever deployed such a sign.

Eusebius, for his part, provided several conflicting accounts – just as he did in his augmentation of Mark and Matthew for Codexes Vaticanus and Sinaiticus. In his Ecclesiastical History, he promotes the belief that the Christian god helped Constantine, but he does not mention any vision. Much later, in his second edition of the Life of Constantine, Eusebius, who had become the emperor’s premier propagandist, conveyed a detailed account of the supposed vision and stressed that he had heard the story from the Emperor, himself. As to why it was omitted from his Ecclesiastical History and the first edition of the Life of Constantine, he did not say.

According to the revised account, “Constantine was marching with his army, when he looked up to the sun and saw a cross of light above it, and with it the Greek words ‘Εν Τούτῳ Νίκα,’ usually translated into Latin as ‘in hoc signo vinces,’ with both phrases meaning ‘In this sign, conquer.’” Eusebius never specified an actual location for the momentous event, or even indicated when it occurred, but testified that it was not anywhere near the camp outside Rome where the battle was actually waged – explaining why no one in the city saw or reported it. All this is to say, Constantine couldn’t remember the details because it did not happen. It’s akin to Paul having three conflicting accounts of his nightmare on the way into Damascus.

So, as we might expect, the alleged sign on the shields was not reported by any of the participants in or witnesses to the battle. Moreover, there is no evidence to suggest that the Greek letters Chi Rho were identified with any individual or with any religion previously. It is a religious myth, one developed many years after the civil war on behalf of the victor, initially appearing on Roman coinage to facilitate Constantine's grandiose ambition to embellish his legacy by giving it a religious sanction.

Those who have studied Constantine speak of him as a lifelong devotee of Mithras. Coins depicting the emperor as a "companion of Mithras" were minted as late as 313 CE, a year after the battle. The Roman solar deity, "Sol Invictus – the Unconquerable Sun," was not only pictured with a halo, but Constantine's official coinage also continued to feature the Unconquerable Sun as the companion of the emperor through 356 CE, doing so with much greater frequency than his predecessors. All of his gold coinage, or solidus, from the era presents his bust with Sol Invictus. Moreover, the official cults of Sol and Mithras were exceptionally popular with the Roman Legions – which was the source of his power. Statuettes of Mithras as the Unconquerable Sun were carried by the Legion's Standard Bearers along with their Eagles. These likenesses even appear on the Arch of Constantine, which was positioned to align with the Colossus of Sol Invictus (formerly the Colossus of Nero) outside the Roman Colosseum – the most depraved pagan amphitheater in human history. This is all to say that Emperor Constantine remained a pagan – as are those who believe the religion Eusebius fashioned to burnish the emperor's legend.

What we know of the occasion is that two Roman generals, Junior Co-Emperor Constantine and Emperor Maxentius Augustus, met on October 28, 312 along the banks of the Tiber River in eyesight of Rome. Constantine camped in Prima Porta, famous for its statue of the Divine Augustus. After his stay, the Junior Co-Emperor would erect the Arch to commemorate the arrival of the Divine Constantine.

It was assumed that Emperor Maxentius Augustus would remain in Rome and rally the people during the expected siege, a strategy he had deployed successfully twice previously. In preparation, he had stockpiled sufficient food supplies. But instead, he met his brother-in-law in battle formation after consulting the oracle of the Sibylline Books. Since the religious sage declared “on October 28 an enemy of the Romans would perish,” he assumed that his rival and usurper was doomed.

History tells us that Maxentius organized his superior forces in long lines along the Tiber next to the Milvian Bridge. Defending the portal was critical if the emperor was to keep Constantine’s Legions out of Rome. He knew that the fickle Senate, in an act of self-preservation, would endorse whoever the Legions closest to Rome favored. But inexplicably, Maxentius positioned his troops with their backs to the river, removing an obstacle from his opponent and creating one for himself. He was so close to the Tiber, he left no room to reposition his forces or strengthen his lines.

Initially, the cavalry on both sides engaged, with Constantine’s horsemen prevailing. Then, the Junior Co-Emperor’s infantry pushed Maxentius’ infantry back and into the Tiber River. At that point, the emperor wanted to retreat back into the city and make another stand from inside Rome. But since he had already destroyed the original Milvian Bridge in preparation for a siege, the substantial rock bridge had been replaced with a temporary pontoon conduit. With panicked troops scrambling for their lives, the only escape route collapsed. Constantine took advantage of his brother-in-law’s misfortune, slaughtering the men who were now stranded on the north bank of the Tiber. The troops who were not killed were taken prisoner. Most of those who tried to swim across the river drowned, including Emperor Maxentius Augustus.

The following day, Constantine entered Rome as a god, personally staging a grand religious and political celebration in his honor. This stalwart of Roman Catholicism fished Maxentius' body out of the river, decapitated him, and paraded his head through the streets for all to see. Thereafter, religious structures such as the Temple of Romulus and the Basilica of Maxentius were rededicated to Rome's new god: Emperor Constantine. Rome's new divinity condemned his brother-in-law to "Damnatio Memoriae – Damnation of Memory." All of Maxentius' legislation was invalidated. And the fine fellow who did these things is considered by many to be the founder of the Roman Catholic Church.

In reality, at this point Constantine was only Emperor of the Western Roman Empire. Licinius was still in control of the East. He had come to that position as the close childhood friend and most trusted confidant of Galerius. He had received the title Augustus in 308 CE, when he was put in command of the Provinces of Illyricum, Thrace, and Pannonia. Thereafter, he successfully fought the Sarmatians in 310 CE.

Upon the death of Galerius in 311, Licinius entered into an agreement with Emperor Maxentius to share the Eastern Provinces between them. Also noteworthy, in 313 Licinius married Julia Constantia, Constantine's half-sister. It was during the wedding that Emperors Licinius and Constantine jointly issued the Edict of Milan, allowing freedom of religion "on behalf of any Divinity whatsoever in the seat of the heavens" – including all pagan gods but expressly excluding the God of the Jews, throughout the Empire. Subsequent edits provided Christian clerics with tax-exempt status.

This brings us to 18 September 324 CE and to the final battle between the rival Roman Emperors and brothers-in-law. The empire wasn't big enough for them to share. Constantine wanted it all, to be both god and man, general and politician, pope and king.

In dire straits and fighting for his life, Emperor Licinius replaced Valens, the general that Constantine had wanted to be executed, with Sextus Martinianus, naming him co-emperor.

They attempted to unify their armies and supplement their force with Visigoths under the command of Aliquaca, but Constantine struck before any of this transpired.

Constantine's historians tell us that, after summoning "divine guidance" in a tent meeting with his gods, Constantine attacked his brother-in-law. The religious nature of the battle was undeniable, with Emperor Licinius prominently displaying images of Rome's pagan gods throughout his battle lines. His troops also carried images of Licinius with a halo, implying that he was the son of the Sun. On the other side, Constantine's soldiers drew upon occult powers with talismans worn as magic charms and amulets in addition to their Rx Labarum above a red field with three golden suns. And while I realize that the order of the letters is typically reversed as XR, all of the images I've examined show the Rho superimposed upon the Chi.

In this regard, it should be noted that Constantine and his Legions worshiped Mithras, a Persian, Hindu, Chinese, Greek, and Roman solar deity. The god's name means "Covenant," making it a clever counterfeit. According to ancient mythology, Mithras was the son of the Sun, born of a virgin known as the "Mother of God." Therefore, Mithraism's Trinity explains why there were three golden suns on Constantine's war banner.

Salvation through baptism and Sunday worship were among countless similarities between Mithras and Christianity. And as was the case with Dionysus, the devotees of Mithras observed an annual Last Supper featuring wine and bread, symbolizing the body and blood of their pagan god. Mithras' birthday was observed at the same time Christians celebrate Christmas. On Easter Sunday, Mithras who had died for the sins of the faithful was resurrected, making Mithras very similar to Tammuz, Osiris, Adonis, Dionysus, Bacchus, and the Christian Jesus.

Also interesting, especially considering Paul's influence on Christianity, Mithraism was developed in the city of Tarsus, Paul's birthplace. The followers of Zoroaster are credited with developing the sun god into a religious cult, one which became especially popular in the 1st century CE, particularly among Roman soldiers.

While the religious artwork may have taken days to construct, the battle was over in minutes. Emperor Constantine struck the center of Emperor Licinius' line and it buckled. According to the historian Zosimus: "There was great slaughter at Chysopolis," affirming that it was indeed a religious spectacle. More than twenty-five thousand Romans died on this day. But Licinius escaped, gathering thirty thousand troops around him at Nicomedia.

In what appeared to be a brief moment of sanity, Constantine's sister, who was Licinius' wife, convinced her husband to surrender. Then, responding to her tears and pleas for mercy, Constantine vowed to spare the life of his brother-in-law. But once his sister was out of earshot, he ordered his execution, breaking his vow. He justified the hanging by accusing Licinius of treason – which is an odd charge to pin on an Emperor defending his empire. A year later, Constantine's nephew and Licinius' son, fell victim to the emperor's suspicions. He was killed as was Martinianus, the short-lived co-emperor.

Constantine, ever the egomaniac, and always seeking to promote his legacy, made every effort to besmirch the reputation of his former Imperial colleague. To this end, he circulated stories about Licinius' cruelty – which is hypocritical considering Constantine's propensity to be savage. The emperor claimed that Licinius had murdered Severianus, the son of Emperor Severus, as well as Candidianus, the son of Emperor Galerius. Then Constantine claimed that Licinius had ordered the execution of the wife and daughter of Emperor Diocletian. It was all propaganda, with the pot calling the kettle black. And with the dirty work done, Constantine turned Licinius' capital, Byzantium, into Constantinople – a shrine to his ego.

Christianity's newly minted apologists attempted to minimize concerns over Constantine's questionable behavior by besmirching the behavior of his predecessors. Their best argument in favor of the monstrous man who was using them for his own benefit was to say that other Romans had been worse. It was as if we were to consider Stalin good because Hitler was worse.

With the new religion itching to be integrated into Roman politics, Licinius was portrayed as anti-Christian. But this was not the case. Contemporary evidence demonstrates that he co-authored the Edict of Religious Tolerance in Milan which specifically exonerated Christianity. Licinius was far more aggressive than Constantine in reaffirming the rights of Christians in his half of the Empire. Licinius even orchestrated the affairs of the Church, establishing its hierarchy while determining its doctrine.

And yet according to Eusebius, Constantine's lead propagandist, Emperor Licinius simply feigned sympathy for the sect while actually being a bloodthirsty pagan who had to be stopped by the virtuous Constantine. On Licinius' death, his memory was branded with infamy, and his statues were toppled. Every law, edict, and judicial proceeding during his reign was overturned. In other words, Constantine treated Licinius' legacy the same way he had treated Maxentius' reputation. But in doing so, it's Constantine's reputation for duplicity and revenge that is laid bare. Christianity could not have had a much more pathetic man than Constantine to set the stage for the transformation of the Roman Empire into the Roman Church.

And quite the transition it was – from convicting and then murdering the Messiah and Son of God, torturing the Passover Lamb in the cruelest possible way – to revisionist history with Romans portrayed as the good guys advancing their incredible rendition of his reputation. Jews would play the role of Romans and be recast as the villains. And Romans would become the priests – having turned the fulfillment of God's sacrifice for the benefit of His people into a religion hell-bent on accusing and annihilating them.

The most monstrous thing these Romans would accomplish would be to upend everything Yahowah had said and done for Yisra*el. Satan had achieved a great victory. He was now the Lord God, Holy Ghost, and Jesus Christ of the Roman Catholic Church.

If we were to step forward to 380 CE, we will be able to set the table to witness the final amalgamation of Imperial and Catholic Rome. This gateway from oppressive politics to even more repressive religion commences with the Battle of Thessalonica. As had been the case previously, the Goths pummeled the Romans yet again and Eastern Emperor Theodosius, who led the Byzantines, surrendered. Then to further ensure their impending demise, Imperial Rome fought two additional Civil Wars, the first pitting Magnus Maximus against the Eastern Roman Empire led by Theodosius. The usurper was defeated, and Maximus became de minimis as he was captured and executed.

In the second of these two internal conflicts, the Byzantine Theodosius engaged the army of Roman Eugenius. This conflict was seen as a major milestone because Eugenius, the king of the Western Empire, while professing to be a Christian, has been presented as having had some pagan sympathies – which is to say that he was willing to let people make their own choices in this regard. So, his defeat meant that the politicized Christianization of the Roman Empire was complete. Christianity wasn't just accepted; it was required. And there would be no tolerance for discerning views or alternate opinions. It was capitulate or be branded a heretic and die a torturous death. Greco-Roman polytheism was replaced by the Babylonian Trinity. Although in reality, there was little difference apart from who ruled the roost.

It should be noted that the supposed hero, Theodosius the Great, as he was called, was the last Emperor to rule over both halves of the Roman Empire. His reign would shape Europe for a thousand years. Much of the horror imposed on the continent and its people by the Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox Church can be laid at Theodosius' feet. He inaugurated the feudal system and imposed religious mandates that plagued the masses, robbing them of all personal freedoms.

Theodosius forced the Church and State's interpretation of Christianity on everyone, declaring that the Eastern Orthodox Church was the official State religion of the Roman Empire. It began an open hunting season on pagans and heretics. Every polytheistic ritual which hadn't already been incorporated into the Church's nomenclature was banned. The mantra was: convert or die – submit or cease to exist.

The imposed orthodoxy had been set in place decades earlier in Nicene (named after the Greek Goddess of Victory). With Theodosius' edict, it became the only accepted form of Christianity in the Roman Empire. Every Christian denomination in the world today, no matter if it is Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox, or Protestant, was conceived in Nicea in 325 CE. Sixty years earlier, bishops of the emerging Church convened the Council of Nicea on Constantine's orders to resolve the controversy of Arianism. The Arians recognized that the Messiah was conceived and was not Divine. After all, apart from the many expressions of paganism within empires, gods were gods and men were men.

With the rational conclusions of Arianism disposed of, the religious zealots sought to remove Yahowah and His "Old Testament" from their religion and replace God and His Towrah with Iesous Christos and their New Testament.

To accomplish this less-than-divine duplicity, the Christian man-god had to be at least equal to the God he was replacing and, thus, "homoousios – the exact same essence and being," albeit completely disassociated from everything that the "old god" had said and done. These Roman clerics would turn their identity theft of Dowd and reincarnation of Dionysus into the totality of their god in concert with the “fullness of the godhead” notion that had been preposterously promoted by Paul.

It was so Roman of them. God not only became a man, he was so malleable, the Romans could remove him from his Yahuwd | Jewish roots and turn him into a Greco-Roman. He was theirs to manipulate, always depicted as a baby in his mother’s arms or nailed to a stake and suffering unto death. Thereafter, by usurping control over the myth’s testimony, they could make him say whatever they wanted. And by doing so, they invented their god in what became the greatest crime in human history.

The fact that the mother was modeled after Astarte, the Queen of Heaven and Mother of God in Babylon, was convenient because it made the ensuing religion easier to impose. Pagan Romans were already worshiping her. The image of a dead god on a stick (even altered as it was from the Roman form of crucifixion, which appeared more like a capital T so that the horizontal beam could be reused), served Roman interests because nothing controls the masses more convincingly than the constant threat of torture. Nothing says submit or die more clearly than the world’s most agonizing implement.

With a little judicial editing, well actually a comprehensive rewrite and embellishment of the Gospels by Eusebius so that they were in sync with Paul’s dubious proposition, one he had already dedicated to the Romans, the empire would hold the keys to heaven. The Beast was reborn as the Church.

By imposing the edicts of the Nicene Council, the future of Christianity was settled politically and religiously. Any other form of the religion, even any other approach to God, was labeled heretical, such that those advocating it could be hunted down and tortured to death.

They would rewrite history to establish the uniform observance of the pagan celebration of Easter. Truth would be discarded to promulgate Cannon Law and to degrade Yahowah's name and His Towrah. God's actual instructions and His Covenant would be outlawed to impose the resulting religion on Rome's subjects.

The first step in the process was initiated in Paul's letters to the Galatians and then to the Romans. The second step was inaugurated under Constantine and the Nicene Council. The third materialized 55 years later under Theodosius when he imposed the resulting religion in 380 CE. Nothing has changed since. The Beast that was the Empire of Rome was soon to be severed and then die, only to be resurrected as the Christian Church.

There would be more meetings and decrees to be sure, but the world was profoundly punished during the Easter Nicene Council in 325 when Jesus Christ became the Christian god. It was pummeled again in 380 when the Trinitarian religion was imposed as the only acceptable Imperial and Catholic religion in the Edict of Thessalonica. While Rome was two distinct Empires, West and East, it was one religiously.

The following year, Theodosius reiterated his ban on all religions except the officially accepted version of Christianity. And with this decree, he began to prosecute any magistrate who failed to enforce his laws against all rivals. Persecution followed, with Christians doling out the abuse. All non-Nicene Christians were excommunicated from the Church. The Roman holidays that had not been incorporated into the new religion, along with Yahowah's Feasts, were now outlawed. Witch hunts were pursued vigorously. All temples were either shuttered or transformed into churches. Theodosius even banned the Olympics due to its association with Mount Olympus. He encouraged the destruction of any ancient edifice that had any association with any god other than his own Christian construct, unless, of course, they could be converted into palaces for his lords or into churches for his priests.

Like Constantine, his comrade in crime, Theodosius was a product of his environment. He began his career in the military, accompanying his father into Britannia. Together they quelled the “Great Conspiracy.” His father, however, was disgraced and executed after losing two Legions to the Sarmatians (Iranians) in 374 CE. Theodosius, not wanting the same fate, retired to live the life of a feudal lord as a provincial aristocrat on an enormous family plantation in Galicia in northwestern Spain.

However, four years later when Gratian invited Theodosius to take command of the Illyrian army following Valens’ death, it served as his de facto invitation to become Co-Augustus of the Eastern Roman Empire. Within five years, Gratian was killed during a rebellion, enabling Theodosius to fight his way to supremacy.

While the Church regales him, as it does Constantine, neither were bastions of virtue. In 390 CE, after one of his garrisons in Thessalonica abused the indigenous population, they rebelled, and in the ensuing chaos, the Roman commander was killed. So, in retaliation, Theodosius ordered a garrison of enslaved Goths under his command to “kill all of the spectators in the Circus.”

Theodoret, who was not alive at the time and, therefore, promoting hearsay, claimed the following of Theodosius ~ the man who turned an Empire into a Church: “The anger of the emperor rose to the highest pitch, and he gratified his vindictive desire for vengeance by unsheathing the sword most unjustly and tyrannically against all, slaying the innocent and guilty alike. It is said seven thousand perished without any forms of law, and without even having judicial sentence passed upon them; but that, like ears of wheat in the time of harvest, they were alike cut down.”

With the imposition of Roman Catholicism and the transition from Empire to Church, from Emperor to Pope, predicated upon the edicts of these two horrendous individuals – Constantine and Theodosius – it is little wonder that it all turned out so badly. This deplorable shadow would linger over Europe and the Church for one thousand years – establishing and imposing the only surviving form of the Christian religion along with its preferred financial system – feudal fascism.

But there was yet another incident in Theodosius' morbid existence that would influence the world for the next millennium. As a result of the massacre of civilians in Thessalonica, the Bishop of Milan, Saint Ambrose, excommunicated Theodosius for a couple of months, readmitting him to the Eucharist after proper penance and payments.

His additional contribution to Christendom included the removal and transfer of an enormous obelisk from Alexandria, Egypt to Constantinople. The Obelisk of Pharaoh Thutmosis III, now a monument to Emperor Theodosius the Great, still stands in the Hippodrome, the long racetrack in the center of the city. The obelisk was replete with sun-god slogans and imagery devoted to Amen Ra. It had originally been dedicated in Karnak, the Vatican of the Egyptian priesthood. The Church, in order to make the pagan object Christian, carved a supporting base that shows Theodosius and his royal family set apart from other nobility, offering a laurel wreath – another symbol of the sun.

This obelisk was actually part of a pair of religious icons. Its partner, now called the Lateran Obelisk of Constantius II, was shipped to Rome a few years earlier. The Pharaoh Thutmosis IV monument became Emperor Constantius II Obelisk. The pagan symbol currently stands next to the Papal Palace in the Vatican. It is also covered from tip to base in the names and claims of false gods.

The most famous Roman Catholic obelisk, the one in the center of the Vatican, was brought from Egypt to Rome by Caligula. It reveals that there is no distinction between this evil Empire and its Church. One simply emerged out of the other.

Another issue that would loom large in Theodosius' reign as Pope, Lord, Emperor, and General was his predilection for using barbarians to suppress barbarians. Goths were allowed to settle alongside Romans so long as they gave their sons to the Legions. But they were as prone to pounce on their masters as they were to leave and go back home.

A moment ago, we discovered that Theodosius would fight not one but two civil wars in pursuit of his ambition. In the second battle of egos, Theodosius sought to rid the empire of Flavius Eugenius simply because he was reluctant to impose his religion on all Romans. During the ensuing conflict, Christian propagandists masquerading as historians want us to believe that the Christian Eugenius placed a statue of Jupiter on the battlefield. To position this as the ultimate battle between good and evil, he is said to have had images of Hercules drawn on his Legion's banners. In this way, we are told, he had hoped to reclaim Rome's greatness. It wasn't true, but truth has never been Christianity's strong suit – nor Rome's.

With the landscape duly colored, the Lord Pope General Emperor Theodosius, Rome's fascist and dictatorial Christian, deployed a Gothic army comprised principally of pagans. With them considered of little value, he sacrificed them first, having the Goths charge headlong into the Roman lines, hoping to prevail by attrition. It produced nothing but blood and death. Then the following day, some Western troops deserted, which the Christian Emperor looked upon as an omen from his god, even though they were also pagans.

But the plot would thicken. A fierce tempest blew over the Western Empire, allegedly casting their arrows back at them. Theodosius announced that it was an answer to his prayers and the fulfillment of a prophecy. Buffeted by the winds, the Western Empire's lines broke, enabling the Lord Pope Emperor General Theodosius and his Eastern Empire, aided as they were by barbarian mercenaries, to claim supremacy over the West, turning out the lights on Rome and eventually the whole of Europe.

Roman Emperor Eugenius, a fellow Christian, was captured. He was brought before the Emperor of the East where he begged for mercy. None was shown and he was beheaded.

In the real world, there was no divine wind. If there was a breeze at all, it blew before the battle was even waged according to contemporary sources. The whole religious underpinning was contrived by the Christian theologian, Rufinus, to demonstrate the validity of his faith. This fanciful myth was promoted by the propagandist poet, Claudian, to make war seem godly. Pagans were fighting pagans under different names, but it was now: “Onward, Christian soldiers, marching off to war, with the cross of Jesus going on before! Christ, the royal Master, leads against the foe; forward into battle, see his banner go!”

In reality, all this battle did was hasten Rome’s demise. Theodosius died a mere four months later, leaving the crumbling empire to be governed by his incompetent children, Honorius and Arcadius. Soon thereafter, the pagan aristocracy in Rome reinvented itself, providing a legacy of decadent popes for the new Church. It all became Machiavellian.

Let's reestablish our bearings. We have just completed the first seven statements of Dany^{el} 7. And so that we rejoin our journey in the proper place, they reveal...

“In the first year of (ba chad shanah la) Belsha^{tsar} | the Lord Supports his Dictator (Belsha^{tsar}), the ruler of (melek) Babel | to Commingle and Confuse on behalf of the Lord (Babel), Dany^{el} | My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns (Dany^{el}) saw (chazah) a revealing vision (chelem) along with (wa) distinguishing insights (chazuw) in his mind (re^{sh} huw^{}) while upon his bed (al mishkab huw^{}*).

Thereupon, during (ba^{}edayn*) the prophetic revelation (chalam), he was prompted to write a complete copy of (kathab) the things (milah) being communicated (amar*). (Dany^{el} 7:1)

Dany^{el}* | God is My Means to Decide Between Vindication and Condemnation (Dany^{el}) responded (anah*) and said (wa^{}amar*), ‘I am able to see (hawah chazah) the vision with my sensory perceptions (ba chazuw^{}anah*) during the night (im lyly*).’

And (wa), behold, right there (aruw*), four (arba^o*) spirits (ruwachy) of the heavens (shamayn) were churning up (guwah) that which corresponds to the Great Sea (la yam rab). (Dany^{el} 7:2)

Then four (wa^{}arba^o*) monstrous beasts, powerful and mighty creatures, lordly and militant (chyuwah rab) came up from and emerged to project the thinking and influence of (salaq min) the Sea (yam), evolving, changing, and transforming to frustrate while being progressively more defiant (shanah), one to another, each growing in opposition (da^omin da^o). (Dany^{el} 7:3)

The first in the series (qadmāy) can be associated with (ka) a fierce and powerful lion (aryeh*), but with (wa) the wings (gaph) of (dy) an eagle (nashar) upon it (*la hy).

I kept watching (hawah chazah) while (ad*) her wings were plucked off (*marat gaph hy). So then (wa), she was lifted up and resurrected (natsal) from the earth (*min *ara).

Upon (*wa al) two feet (ragalyn), like a man (*ka enash), it arose and was established, becoming influential and powerful (quwm). Additionally (wa), the heart and mind, the desires and inclinations (labab), of a mortal man (enash*) were given to it (*yahab la hy). (Dany^eel 7:4)

So then, behold (*wa aruw), another (achoran*) beast (chyuwah), a second one (tinyan), resembled (damah) a bear (la dob). On one side (wa la satar chad), it was fully developed (quwm). And (wa) there were three (telath) ribs (ala) in its mouth (*ba pum hy), between her teeth (*ben shen hy). And (wa) therefore (ken), it was said of her (amar la hy), ‘You have chosen to rise up (quwm) and devour (akal*) an abundance (*sagyi) of human witnesses and potential heralds (basar).’ (Dany^eel 7:5)

At another point in time in this same sequence (*ba danah atar), by remaining observant, I was able to witness (hawah chazah) the revelation (*wa aruw) of another (achoran*), this one resembling (ka) a leopard (namar). And with it (wa la hy) were four wings (arba^e gaph), such as (dy) a bird (owp). They were on her back side (al gab hy). The beast (la cheywah) had four heads (*wa *arba^e re*sh*), and to it (*la hy) was afforded (yahab) governmental dominion and the power to rule (wa shalatan). (Dany^eel 7:6)

Following this sequence of events (*ba danah atar), I remained observant (chazah hawah) regarding this revelation during a time of enfolding darkness (ba chazuw lyly). And behold (*wa aruw), the fourth (raby^eay) monstrous beast (chyuwah) was the most fearsome and formidable, dreadful and frightening, respected only for being overtly oppressive, terrifying, and threatening (dachal), genuinely horrifying and appalling, terribly gruesome (*wa eymatan), with (wa) an exceptionally powerful and preeminent military (yatyr taqyph).

It had (*wa la hy) teeth comprised of iron (shen dy parzel la). Great multitudes, including the highly populated and powerful (rab), it devoured and devastated (akal*), crushing the remainder (*wa daqaq wa sha*ar*) with its feet (*ba ragal hy) by trampling them down violently, celebrating while destroying them (raphats) under foot (ba ragal).

And so (wa), this one was different in its transformation and evolution (hy shanah*) from all of the other (min kol) beasts (chywah) which preceded it (*dy qodam hy). Ten (*wa asar) horns (qeren) were extended from her (*la hy).” (Dany^{el} / God Judges / Daniel 7:7)

While it is unlikely, the ten horns may depict the ten ethnicities of the Western Roman Empire. They were: Alemanni (Gaul / Germany), Franks (France), Burgundians (Switzerland), Suevi (Portugal), Vandals (exterminated), Visigoths (Spain), Anglo-Saxons (England), Ostrogoths (exterminated), Lombards (Italy), and the Heruli (who were also exterminated). But ultimately these diverse people coalesced into five political and geographic divisions: Britain, France, Spain, Germany, and Italy. But let us not forget, there were also five kingdoms in the east. They were: Greece, Turkey, Syria, Egypt, and Libya. These ten principalities are important, so we’ll want to remember them.

Dany^{el} had witnessed an amazing vision, one that two representatives of God even tried to explain to him. So, it’s no surprise that he reflected upon what he had seen...

“I was thinking about, trying to understand (hawah sakal – I was contemplating, considering, and reflecting upon, prudently evaluating the insights and instruction regarding) what was with the horns (ba qeren) and then, behold (*wa aluw – there while paying attention), another and final (achoran* – someone else and something different which appears in the end) horn, a boneheaded blowhard (qeren), a worthless one who will be brought down (za^eeyr – a lowly, insignificant, and worthless one to be humbled), came up between them and among them (selaq ben ^einuwn – grew out and ascended in their midst).

And three (wa talat) among (min – from) the initial group of horns (qadmay qeren – the previous horns) were dehorned (aqar* – were deprived of their horns, with them pulled out at their roots, cutting them off at the stump, and plucked up) from before her (min qodam hy^e – from involvement in the previous relationship with the Beast).*

Then behold (wa ^ealuw), eyes (ayn*), like the eyes of a human (ka ^eayn ^eenash – similar to the perceptions and sight of a mortal man, of humankind) in this unique horn (ba qeren da^e), along with (wa) a mouth (pum) speaking powerfully and abundantly as if an esteemed authority (malal rab – prolifically conversing from a position of high status, pontificating verbosely as a great individual, conveying big words which are considered high and mighty, while discussing the important issues arrogantly).” (Dany^eel / My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns / Daniel 7:8)

At this point, Dany^eel was overwhelmed, confused, and even a bit agitated. The vision was frightening to be sure, but mostly challenging to decipher. How was it that humankind, with all of its potential, with all Yahowah had provided, could be this horrid? From Babylon to Persia, from Greece to Rome, and from the Empire to the Church, man continued to devolve, becoming progressively more duplicitous, destructive, and deadly.

Since we can read ahead in the text and see that the identity of the Chywah | Beasts are disclosed, and with the benefit of history, this progression from bad to worse is readily discernible. But even with further elaboration, we have yet to be provided the data from which to ascertain the names of the ten horns which emerged from the Beasts of Imperial Rome and the Roman Catholic Church as presented in Dany•el 7:7 – which is why we tabled the subject.

And now, we find ourselves scratching our heads along with Dany•el as to the identity of the final horn, the Za•eyr | Lowly and Little One with human characteristics that is predicted to arise from among the undisclosed ten nations. All we know at this reading is that they will not only evolve out of the Roman Empire and the Roman Church, but that they will do great harm to the Land and perhaps the world.

The fact that this infamous and verbose ruler will take down three of the ten nations is intriguing, but also left unspecified. Adding to the intrigue is the realization that the rise of the one leader, the ten nations, and the demise of three of them will be Last Days events, not past days – so we do not have the luxury of history as our guide.

Further, while considerably more information regarding all of this will be provided as we move from Dany•el 7 through the 8th, 9th, 10th, and 11th chapters, we are explicitly told in the 12th chapter that an accurate explanation of the last 3½ years will not be forthcoming until we are nearly in the throes of them. And even then, there will be very few who understand, although the two witnesses will enlighten many as we approach Yahowah's return.

Indeed, in the concluding chapter of Dany•el, we are told that something marvelous happens in the midst of something equally horrific. The Last Days will be a tumultuous time. And so, before we attempt an explanation, even before we have been afforded all of the details which will soon be forthcoming, let's consider what was revealed to Dany•el in the 12th and final chapter of this book from Babylon.

It is here we discover that “wa ha sakal – one or two with insight, along with those who are discerning with the capacity to understand, will learn based upon what will be taught.” Then: “zahar – they will become prominent, obtaining a high status, being respected among heavenly beings, shining brightly while enlightening.” This is because they will be “ka zohar – like light, brilliant and intense, glowing while teaching and admonishing, enlightening and warning.”

The scope and nature of these informative heralds, and likely also those who will benefit from them and join them, will be “ha raqya” – a big deal, as rock solid as it is expansive, so enormously important that their merits are comparable to the entirety of the universe.”

As a result: “wa tsadaq ha rab – the numerous and valued individuals who are right will be vindicated” becoming “ka ha kowkab – like stars, heavenly and powerful, brilliant luminaries” “*la *owlam wa ad – forevermore as restored and eternal witnesses.” That is quite a promise, but also one which comes with a sobering reminder – a great deal is at stake, and it is important that we do our part to capitalize upon this opportunity.

So, with the fate of humankind and with your soul hanging in the balance, here is the concluding chapter of Dany^el for your consideration...

“And so at that time (*wa ba ha *eth ha hy), Myka^eel | One Who is Truthful and Right About God (Myka^eel – Who is Correct About the Almighty, Who Validates these Connections with God; from a compound of my – who is ky, ka, and ken – verifying these associations, connections, and comparisons to be correct and truthful, even emphatic and certain regarding el* – Almighty God), who is representing the king (sar – the one serving the anointed leader by focusing on his family and their relationship as an authorized and designated individual), will have an important role in nourishing the growth and promoting (ha gadowl – will be applicable and vociferous, even intense, using amplification to empower, distinguishing himself by magnifying) your family’s children (al ben *am atah – on behalf of the people and their children), taking a stand, present and accountable (amad* – standing up, never bowed, appointed and supported (qal participle)).

Then there will be (wa hayah – so there will exist (qal perfect)) a Time (eth* – a period) of Trouble (tsarah – of confinement, anguish, and distress, of competition in the relationship, of tribulation and affliction, of adversity and of the adversary, of being opposed and then constrained), beyond which has ever existed (asher lo* hayah*) from a gentile nation (min hayah gowy – occurring as a result of gentiles, people other than Yisra^{el}elites) prior to this time (ad ha *eth ha hy).

And (wa) during this period (*ba ha *eth ha hy), your people (am atah – your family) will be saved, everyone rescued from harm's way and delivered (malat kol – all will be spared and liberated (nifal imperfect)) who is found (*ha matsu – who is discovered) written (kathab – inscribed and engraved, recorded and listed in writing) in the book (ba ha sepher – within the written record).” (Dany^{el} / Daniel 12:1)

There are thirteen references to Myka^{el} in the Towrah, Prophets, and Psalms, ten of which address ordinary individuals from long ago. The three depictions which apply to this particular individual are found only in Dany^{el} – with the other two appearing in the 10th chapter. Therefore, what we know of him, his identity and purpose, is explained here.

The most overriding clue to the nature of this individual is the recognition that Myka^{el} | One Who is Truthful and Right About God is a descriptive title rather than a name each of the three times that it is presented. It is a compound of several Hebrew words, beginning with my, which is an interrogatory, encouraging us to ponder “who” is being addressed.

This is followed by a contraction of ky, ka, and/or ken. If ky, then it means “indeed,” speaking of someone who is “certain, sure, and truthful” and who is “emphatic and reasonable.” If ka, then this individual has a propensity to make the kind of “comparisons and associations” needed to understand. And if ken, then his claims about Yahowah are “verifiable and correct, truthful and certain.”

Myka^{el} concludes with el* which is Yahowah's title, meaning Almighty God. Therefore, the name Myka^{el} encourages those seeking to understand to enquire about God by consulting the one who is actually confident and truthful, emphatic and reasonable about Him, consistently and definitively making the kind of comparisons and associations needed to verify that he is correct, even certain, about God. Or more succinctly – Myka^{el} | the One Who is Truthful and Right About God.

As we would expect from such an individual, especially as we approach Dowd's return to defend and lead his people, Myka^{el} is sar | representing the king. He is sar | serving the anointed leader by focusing on his family and their relationship with God. As such, he is sar | clearly designated, overtly authorized, and resolutely empowered on behalf of the king.

Few things are more important than recognizing that Dowd is the Son of God, our Shepherd and the Lamb, the Messiah and returning King. This realization not only nullifies the aspirations of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam, it presents the ultimate Yahuwd calling his people home. This is the essential truth documented throughout Yada Yahowah and, in particular, Coming Home. It is Myka^{el}'s most revealing and valuable gift to his King and the Covenant Family.

Next, we are told that Myka^{el} will ha gadowl | play an important role in nourishing the growth of, while promoting, “al ben *am atah – your family's children.” This means that he will gadowl | intensely and vociferously distinguish himself through amplification to empower the prophet's people – a.k.a., Jews. And if you recall, in Isaiah 11 we discovered that the Choter will be fortified by the Ruwach Gabowrah which emboldens and enables him in like fashion to gadowl.

Further, not only will Myka^{el} amad* | be appointed and supported while taking a stand on behalf of the Chosen People, he will begin immediately prior to Eth Tsarah* | the Time of Trouble. And so that there is no mistaking the timing as our own, we were told that the resulting tsarah | confinement and adversity will be as a result of gowym and their nations being more overtly hostile toward Jews and Israel than at any time in history – worse than Assyria, Babylon, Greece, Rome, the Church, Muslims, Nazis, or Marxists.

And if that was not enough to correctly identify Myka^{el} | One Who is Truthful and Right About God and place him *ba ha *eth ha hy | in this specific period, his contribution to Yahowah's Family will be to *matsa | find and then share kathab | what is written ba ha sepher | in the book such that Yahuwdym are malat | rescued from harm's way and delivered unto Yahowah during the Time of Trouble.

Recognizing that this realization regarding Myka^{el} destroys the credibility of Judaism (because he is right about God), Christianity, and Islam (both for the same reason), let's be thorough in our analysis. When Myka^{el} is initially introduced, it is in Dany^{el} 10:13, where he is echad ha sar ha ri*shown*. echad* means that Myka^{el} is either “a certain one of” or “the one and only” in his stated role. He is either “the first” or “the foremost on this particular occasion.”

As the ha sar, he is “the leading representative of the king” – at least pursuant to this particular mission on Dowd's behalf – which would be prior to his return at the conclusion of the Time of Trouble. As a sar, he is “authorized, empowered, and capable,” so he “will prevail” even “when challenged.”

*Ha ri*shown* reveals that he is “the primary and foremost” and, thus, “the principal person” serving in this capacity. He is likely the “first” to do so. *Ri*shown* reveals that he would have “began” conveying this particular message “before” anyone else.

Therefore, Myka^{el} is first and foremost among the representatives of King Dowd. He is the first who is named as authorized and empowered to serve in this capacity. This perspective helps us better understand what we are currently witnessing from the King's Basar | Herald.

This is further affirmed in Dany^{el} 10:14, which is in Myka^{el}'s voice and reads, “Now I have come to provide you with an understanding of what will happen to your people in the end of days because the revelation pertains to that time.” And as it would transpire, while Dowd as Gabry^{el} emerged from the past to convey these prophecies, Myka^{el} would come from the future. With God, and in this way, time is malleable.

The second of three references to the Myka^{el} who was responsible for explaining Dany^{el}'s vision is found in the 21st and concluding statement of the 10th chapter. There, we learn that his role was nagad | conspicuously reported to us by ha rashuwm | having been inscribed ba kathab | in writing in the book emeth* | which is trustworthy, enduring, and reliable. It also reveals that he was and will be *lo*echad chazaq* | uniquely contentious and very intense, even overpowering in pursuit of the restoration of God's people. This sounds like Yada Yahowah – and particularly Coming Home. And once again in this pronouncement, Myka^{el} is a sar | leading representative of the king and his family.

It is mistakenly assumed that Myka^{el} is the name of an archangel – but such nonsense comes from the book of Jude (1:9) in the New Testament where there is a mythical “dispute” between “Michael, the archangel,” and “the Devil” over the “body of Moses,” “durst not bring against him a railing accusation.” Let me assure even those who venerate gravesites – the prophet's words matter, while his body was irrelevant, devil be damned, durst or not. “Michael and his angels” are also found in Revelation 12:7-8 where he “fought against the dragon” during a “war in heaven,” but “prevailed not,” or some such nonsense.

*Mal*ak* serve Yahowah and are seldom deployed to sar | represent kings. Moreover, there is no record of anyone named Myka^{el} writing anything which would gadowl | have promoted the growth of Yahowah's Family. In particular, while *mal*ak* have speaking roles, they are seldom vociferous, they do not rely upon amplification, nor is it their role to magnify anyone. And as we will discover in due time, Gabry^{el} isn't a mal^{ak} either. He is, instead, the greatest of the men of God.

Therefore, Myka^{el} is descriptive of a person who validates and verifies the status of man's relationship with the Almighty. He will be present and accountable, appointed and supported prior to Yisra^{el}'s descent into the Time of Trouble.

Since there is no one else using translations of the Towrah and Prophets and the insights derived from them to compose something comparable to the 35 volumes of Yada Yahowah, especially now just 10 months removed from the Time of Trouble, you are reading the fulfillment of this prophecy. And since I am the first to deduce that Dowd is the Messiah, Son of God, and returning King who has fulfilled Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym and will arrive on Kipurym after I fulfill Shabuwa^h and Taruwa^h, there is no possibility of anyone else serving in the role of Myka^{el}. And therefore, Yahowah has positioned Yada to herald Dowd's return as our King. But now also pertinent, Myka^{el}'s role is to explain Dany^{el}'s vision so that the world understands it before it is too late.

As bad as Rome and Roman Catholicism have been, what is about to unfold will be worse. In the annals of human history, considering the blight of nations, even the bitterness of the gowy, nothing has ever existed which can compare to the Eth Tsarah* | Period of Anguish, Adversity, and the Adversary.

All we have read has built up to this point. The confounding confusion of Babylon and the Bible was horrific as it metastasized through Persia, Greece, Rome, and Christianity, but it will become ever more vicious and deadly because the worst is yet to come.

Fortunately, it is during this Time of Trouble that God's people will be saved. And those who are rescued will find their names scribed in the book of life. Shabuwa^h and Taruwa^h serve as the bookends for the Time of Trouble ~ the beginning and the end.

“And many important and infamous individuals (wa rab – numerous people, an undisclosed but significant quantity) of those who are asleep (min yashen – from those in an altered state of consciousness) in the dust of the earth (adamah aphar – of the natural elements of the material realm) will be awakened (qyts – will be roused (hifil imperfect)), some of these (eleh*) to the restoration of life everlasting (*la chay owlam – to be restored and invigorated, growing forevermore) and others (*wa eleh) to eternal (owlam* – perpetual and everlasting) scorn and shame, insults and reproach, accusations and censure (cherpah – disgrace and contempt, the dishonor of a diminished status) for having been abhorrent and appalling (*dera*own* – for goading people in a repulsive and loathsome manner, prodding them as animals).” (*Dany*el* / Daniel 12:2)

After the arrival of Myka*el and his uplifting and enlightening message on behalf of the Covenant Family, after the Time of Trouble, and even after Yahowah has redeemed His people, rescuing those written in His book from harm’s way, God will deal with the most important and infamous souls – those who were right and those who were wrong – among those who have passed away prior to His return. Those who are awakened will be headed to one of two outcomes – Shamaym or *She*owl*. Those who read the Book and who have found the means to restore their souls in the Book will live forevermore with the Author of the Book.

However, those who sought to change the Book, discard the Book, or write their own book will be awakened to *cherpah wa dera*own* | contempt and censure for having been so abhorrent in the goading of others. And while this will serve as the reward for the Covenant’s children and the punishment for those who have harassed them, the vast preponderance of people will not be awakened for either of these eventualities – only the most influential and infamous, either good or bad. We know this because Yahowah specified that rab | many of status or renown will be awakened, not kol | all.

Of particular interest, by transitioning from the arrival of Myka^{el} to represent the King and serve in an important role promoting the growth of God's Children, while taking this stand prior to the Time of Trouble to save those who are found written in the book, to determining who lives with God or is incarcerated forever, strongly implies that Myka^{el} will serve as judge. It also suggests that a Time of Judgment will follow the Time of Reconciliation and, thus, occur shortly after Dowd's arrival and our return to Eden.

Therefore, considering the name itself, Myka^{el} | One Who is Truthful and Right About God, his arrival prior to the Time of Troubles, his duties pursuant to the King, his work promoting productivity in others, and his role in determining who is saved or condemned, Myka^{el} is none other than Yada, Yahowah's Choter and Nakry, Dowd's Basar and Zarowa^o, and Yisra^{el}'s Adamah Parah and Zeh Bow Min *Edowm.

And clearly, he will be productive...

“Therefore, the circumspect with insight, who are discerning, demonstrating the capacity to understand (wa ha sakal – the one who is intelligent, properly instructed, and successful, with desire to be observant so as to comprehend, who will learn based upon what will be taught) will become prominent, obtaining a high status, being respected among heavenly beings, shining brightly while enlightening and admonishing (zahar – they will teach and warn, they will brilliantly persuade and dissuade (hifil imperfect)), similar to the light (ka zohar – like the brilliant and intense glowing of a guide, directing and cautioning, educating and alerting) of the expansive universe (ha raqya^o – of the heavens, a big deal, as rock solid as it is enormously important, with merit comparable to the entirety of spacetime), such that they will be greatly valued for the numerous worthy individuals who will be vindicated for being right (wa tsadaq ha rab – there are many who will be correct and thus acquitted) becoming like stars (ka ha kowkab – similar to heavenly and akin to powerful and brilliant luminaries) as eternal and restoring witnesses forevermore (*la *owlam wa ad).” (*Dany*el* / Daniel 12:3)

In His narrative regarding the fourth day of creation, symbolic of the era when Dowd fulfilled the Spring Mow*edym, God revealed that there would be two luminaries visible. The Greater Luminary representing the sun is Dowd, presented here as Gabry*el, and he fulfilled the first three ~ Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym. The Lesser Luminary representing the moon is Yada, the King’s Herald, presented here as Myka*el, and he has been asked to fulfill Shabuw*ah and Taruw*ah. This is so Dowd can return as brilliant as the sun on Kipurym as the moon continues to play its role reflecting the sun’s light. But he will not be alone, and that is the purpose of the Lesser Luminary. Dowd will be accompanied by “tsadaq ha rab – a great number of highly valued souls who have been vindicated for having been right.” These brilliant individuals will have returned with the King from Shamaym as prior beneficiaries of the Shabuw*ah and Taruw*ah Harvests.

Between now and then, there is much to be done, much to learn and teach. God’s people will be growing in understanding, and they will enlighten and admonish others. Ultimately, all of Yahowah’s Covenant children will become like our Father. We will be transformed into light and become immortal, perfected, and greatly empowered. The remnant who survives to greet our Father upon His return will be bright, well-educated, and alert. And, therefore, the expansiveness of the universe will be our playground. These are the benefits of being right.

This known, there is more to this prophetic declaration. The ha sakal | insightful are masculine plural, suggesting that Yahowah is also speaking of His two Witnesses. They will pack a punch, wielding words wisely. And they will be the most prominent people in the world at this time. Their role will be to enlighten those who choose the Covenant while admonishing those who oppose God’s Family.

During the final 3½ years of the Time of Trouble, *ElYah and Myka*el will have returned as spiritual beings, and upon their return, they will appear as light. And these two sarcastic and judgmental fellows will impress even the heavenly host. So, these guys are going to have friends in high places. Not only is their witness going to be appreciated and valued by the chosen on Earth; it will resonate in heaven too.

Also encouraging, as a result of their witness, many Yahuwdym will come home, returning to Yahowah. They will be vindicated for having been right, enriched and empowered by the eternal and restoring witness of God's word.

Dany^{el}'s work as our scribe is now over. There will be a long intermission and then the work of the Witnesses will commence. And among their roles will be to leave the religious without excuse, so that, when they are judged, they will have no one to blame but themselves.

“As for you, Dany^{el} (*wa atah Dany^{el} – and so for the one whose God is his means to decide between vindication and condemnation), seal up this testimony, making the message secure while precluding access to the meaning hidden within the words (satam ha dabarym – exclude access, closing off the message so that it is protected) and place a stamp and signature on the book (wa chatam ha sepher – affix a seal, fastening the written message inside the scroll) until before the time of the restoring witnesses runs out (ad eth qets – during the concluding period for the witnesses).

Many, and notably rabbis and others who are infamous and exalted (rab – numerous), will wander about aimlessly, rowing up a waterfall (shuwth – roaming around randomly, accomplishing nothing while rowing against the current (polel imperfect)), even with access to information which leads to understanding (wa ha da^{ath} – even as learning the truth is made readily available) becoming more prevalent (rabah – increasing in quantity and quality (qal imperfect)).” (Dany^{el} / Daniel 12:4)

This realization is one of the reasons we turned to Dany^{el} 12 prior to analyzing the symbols presented in the 7th chapter.

An accurate assessment of the events being foretold, even identifying the names of the people and nations, could not have occurred until Yahowah determined it to be appropriate to disclose.

As I share these thoughts with you in the early summer months of 2025, with just 98 months left until Yahowah's return, and only 10 months prior to the commencement of the Time of Troubles, I am hopeful that we are close enough to both that we will prevail in unraveling the mystery of who will be doing what to whom and when. But if not, we will do our best to set the stage – to present Yahowah's prophetic witness as clearly, correctly, and completely as possible.

I am particularly fond of the concluding statement: rab shuwth wa rabah ha da'ath | many, and notably rabbis as well as others who are infamous and exalted, will wander aimlessly while foolishly attempting to row up a waterfall, doing so at a time when access to quality information which leads to understanding is becoming more prevalent and pervasive. If nothing else comes of these translations of Dany^{el}, we have made understanding easier, sharing what we have learned freely and abundantly at www.YadaYah.com. And what I miss, Myka^{el} and *Elyah as the Witnesses will be sure to provide.

Speaking of them, we read...

“Then I, Dany^{el} (*wa any Dany^{el} – because I know my God is judgmental, I), looked (*ra*ah* – I continued to be observant), and behold (wa hineh – paying attention), the two in the end (*shanaym acher) were present, appointed and accounted for, supported while taking a stand (amad* – assigned and sustained (qal participle masculine plural)). One individual (echad* – a single and unique man) was now present here (henah – therein and thereby) as the means to channel speech, conveying the message (*la saphah ha ya*or* – as lips which flow at the brink and as the language of the stream).

And the other person (*wa echad – a single individual) was simultaneously present close by (henah – now nearby) as a conduit for words, with verbally expressive lips flowing with language (la saphah ha ya^{or} – as the means to channel speech, conveying the message).” (Dany^{el} / Daniel 12:5)

When viewed within the context of what we have just read, and from the perspective provided by Zakaryah and Mal^{aky}, these are the two Witnesses – ^{*}ElYah and Yada (who is the one described here as Myka^{el}). Yada is otherwise known as the King’s Basar | Herald. And in the next statement, these individuals will be joined by the Messiah. Collectively, they are communicating Yahowah’s message to all who will listen. Their presence here in Dany^{el} 12:5 serves to further underscore the realization that they are the ones being described in the glowing and enlightening commentary found in Dany^{el} 12:3 and 12:4.

What’s also interesting is that Myka^{el} is not only the only one named in the 12th chapter, he is being credited with being a conduit of words. The same is true with the other individual, such that both serve as conduits of enlightenment, which is how the Witnesses are presented in Zakaryah. And while we know from Mal^{aky} that ^{*}ElYah will be joining Myka^{el} / Yada, we are reminded here that both speak for God. As witnesses and prophets, they are conduits for Yahowah’s message. God’s Towrah | Source of Guidance and Teaching Flows through them.

At this point, Gabry^{el} / Dowd returns, joining Myka^{el} and ^{*}ElYah. And as he does, one or the other asks a question that three of the four are prepared to answer...

“Then (wa) he said (amar* – he asked (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular)) to the individual (*la ha iysh) of linen garments (ha bad) who, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), was from the dimension above and beyond (min ma^{al} – out of the higher place) the source of the waters of the stream (la maym ha ya^{or}), ‘How long will this restoring Witness be until (ad matay*) the end (qets – the conclusion and limit) of these distinguishing and intensely wonderful explanations and astounding communication of things that would otherwise be difficult to understand (ha pele – of these amazing things, extraordinary occurrences, and miraculous signs)?” (Danyel / Daniel 12:6)

It should be obvious as to who asked this question, because those present at the time would have been Danyel, Gabryel (which is a pseudonym for Dowd), ElYah* (who isn’t named until Malaky), and Yada, now referred to as Mykael. One of these individuals posed the question to the fourth – the one in bad | linen from maal | greater dimensions how much time was remaining. And since everyone but Danyel would have known the answer, this is being asked and answered for our benefit.

I suspect that the reason the man in linen wasn’t identified on this occasion is because he was previously introduced as Gabryel and, therefore, is King Dowd. He is the one dressed in linen because he’s serving as the High Priest to anoint the Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant when he arrives on Kipurym. Therefore, he will come from a higher dimension and, as King, he will be above the Witnesses in status. And since Dowd will be serving as the High Priest on the Day of Reconciliations, his pants, sash, and headwrap will be linen. This is a lesson we learned when translating Zakaryah for the Mowed | Appointments volume of Yada Yahowah.

Dowd’s appearance also explains why Mykael was depicted as sar | representing the anointed King while serving his family. Dowd is the King, and we are heralding his return.

This pronouncement indicates that the Witnesses will be able to explain the events foretold here in Danyel and throughout the prophets. So, whatever we may miss today will be resolved soon enough. But as of now, we know the identity of the Restoring Witnesses and our King. The question that is lingering is how long from the point they engage can we expect the Time of Trouble to end? The many revelations and miracles that transpire along the way include a plethora of things that have been so difficult to understand that they have eluded human comprehension up to quite recently.

For us to answer the question of “how long” the world will benefit from these extraordinary explanations of that which has confounded humankind up to this point “until the end,” will require a more explicit commencement date along with an affirmation that the terminus is being equated to the end of the Eth Tsar* | Time of Troubles. At which point, we can work backwards to answer the question. But for now, should the end speak of the conclusion of the Time of Troubles, that date is known ~ Yowm Taruw^{ah}, sunrise on the Shabat of September 24th, 2033 with the arrival of the returning remnant and the sacrifice of the Adamah Parah*, who is known here as Myka^{el}. So now, when do we begin?

King Dowd is answering this specific question. And as he does, we are provided an affirming clue: “the source of the streaming waters.” This is because on Yowm Taruw^{ah}, Yahowah, “who, for the benefit of the relationship, is from the dimension above,” will release a torrent of cleansing waters to purge the remnant of Yisra^{el}.

“Then I listened to (*wa shama) the individual (eth ha iysh) clothed in linen (lebuwsh bad) who, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), was from the dimension above and beyond (min ma^{al} – out of the higher place) the source of the streaming waters (la maym ha ya^{or}).

He raised (wa ruwm – he lifted up) his right hand (*yamyn huw) and his left (samo^{el} huw) toward the heavens (el ha shamaym). And then he made a solemn promise based upon seven (*wa shaba – he swore an oath based upon seven) in conjunction with the One who lives forever (*ba chay ha owlam – through the One who restores life forevermore) that for (ky^{} la* – because on behalf of actually approaching and concerning) Mow^{ed} Mow^{edym} | Three Restoring Witnesses to three Appointed Meeting Times (Mow^{ed} Mow^{edym} – three complete iterations of the continued testimony for the eternal meeting times; from mow – this pertains to and ed* – the eternal and restoring witness, everlasting testimony, and enduring evidence) and a half, during the midst of another division or pertaining to three shortened lives (wa chatsy – in the middle; from chatsah – to divide and cut short, living half a life), then accordingly (wa ka – and so in this manner), the shattering, scattering, and separating (naphats – the breaking and dividing, the dispersing and crushing, even the defeating (piel infinitive – where the people endure the effect in a demonstrable and intense way)) influence controlling (yad – hand influencing) the set-apart people (am qodesh* – of the family which is distinct and separated, uncommon and unique, special) will be over (kalah – will cease, be finished, be concluded and completed (piel infinitive)). All of these things (*kol eleh) will come to fruition (kalah – will be fulfilled (qal imperfect jussive)).” (Dany^eel / Daniel 12:7)

Since this story began in the *Gan eden 6,000 years ago, Yahowah has chosen to engage through individuals, whether they be Adam* and Chawah, Noach and his family, Abraham* and Sarah, or the greatest among us, Moseh and Dowd. On this day, and forevermore, Yahowah has chosen to communicate through His favorite Son and our eternal Shepherd. So, the returning Messiah and King is making a solemn promise based upon the formula of $6 + 1 = 7$ and in concert with God.

It may sound odd to our ears that Dowd is referring to Yahowah as *Chay ha Owlam | the One Who Lives Forever and Who Restores Life Forevermore, but he uses a similar designation in his Mizmowr when he refers to God as the Eternal Conductor and Eternal Director. And since it has been 2,500 years since Yahowah last spoke to His people and nearly 3,500 since they last acknowledged His presence in their midst, this is a nice reminder.

Eth* is the Hebrew word for “time,” not Mow^eed, which is among the most important titles in the Towrah. Therefore, Dowd’s prophecy, which Myka^eel is explaining, is quite specific. They are announcing that the events being discussed here will play out over Mow^eed Mow^eedym | three full cycles of the seven annual meetings and then conclude in the midst of a fourth iteration. Since this is the proper interpretation, this period of approximately $3\frac{1}{2}$ years is slated to begin sometime prior to Chag Matsah in 2030 and conclude halfway through Yowm Taruw^{ah} ~ which is when the scattering of God's people will be over.

This cannot be the first half of the Time of Trouble since it most certainly does not conclude with the return of the final remnant or the conclusion of the Time of Trouble. But if that were not the case, we would look at a commencement during Shabuw^{ah} in 2026 with a conclusion during Sukah in 2029. But in this case, since it is addressing the last 3½ years, then we either have to exclude Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym in 2030 or all of Taruw^{ah}, Kipurym, and Sukah in 2033 to reflect 3½ cycles of Mow^{edym}.

While I suspect it is just a curiosity, there is an alternative interpretation which is based upon what follows mow^{ed} mow^{edym}. By adding chatsy, which is either “half” or a “shortened life,” the message could be that the three Restoring Witnesses associated with the final three Mow^{edym} will have lived partial lives. Dowd did so in 33 CE when fulfilling Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym and Yada and *Elyah will do so between Taruw^{ah} and Kipurym. Therefore, if this rather interesting analysis of mow^{ed} mow^{edym} and chatsy is intended, then the participants are already gathered ~ Gabry^{el}, Myka^{el}, and *Elyah.

What we can deduce from the narrative is that pursuant to 3½ seasons of Mow^{edym} and in conjunction with the three who will live abbreviated lives in association with these three Mow^{edym}, “then, accordingly, the scattering and separating, indeed the crushing and defeating hand controlling the set-apart people will cease.” Specifically, the White Spiritual Chariot described in Zakaryah will be gathering the final remnant of Yisra^{el} from around the world at the onset of Taruw^{ah}, bringing them to the Temple Mount. At the same time, Yahowah will be incinerating all who have come to crush this remnant. Then as the sun rises and Yowm Taruw^{ah} begins, *Elyah will be orchestrating the Sacrifice of the *Adamah Parah. This coincides with the removal of the scattered people and obliteration of their foes, making this moment, halfway through the first of the final three Mow^{ed}ym a perfect fit for the narrative. And in this scenario, should we be seeking absolute compliance with chatsah as it pertains to the commencement of this time, we should expect the two Witnesses to arrive on the 14th day of Abyb*, as the sun rises on Thursday, April 18th, 2030, which, while Passover, is the day after the Pesach meal is consumed. This way, ElYah* and Yada will have the opportunity to celebrate this Passover dinner with their Father in Heaven. So, we have come upon an elegant solution.

From this perspective, Dowd, as Gabry^{*el}, is revealing, and Myka^{*el}, as Yada, is explaining that 3½ annual cycles of the Mow^{ed}ym will transpire prior to this favorable resolution on behalf of God's People ~ setting up his return. With Yowm Taruw^{*ah} denoting the conclusion of the Time of Trouble and the ingathering of Yisra^{el}, the arrival of the Witnesses will occur in Abyb of 2030. With the 1st of Abyb* occurring on April 4th, Passover dinner will be observed on the 17th at sundown, with sunrise on Thursday, the 18th, still Pesach, as the likely arrival of the Witnesses. Thereafter, everything will come to fruition.

This is the most exacting explanation for referencing this exceptionally important title and augmenting mow^{ed} mow^{ed}ym with chatsah. This being the case, the final 3½ cycles of Mow^{ed} Mow^{ed}ym will begin with Chag Matsah, which includes the three Dowd personally fulfilled, specifically Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym. Then once Yahowah gathers His scattered flock early during Taruw^{ah}, He can purge them through the sacrifice of the Adamah Parah to set up his Yowm Kipurym | Day of Reconciliations return, with this leading the Family back into Eden on Sukah, when we Camp Out with God.

This ingathering will run from sunset in Yaruwshalaim on September 23rd, 2033, to sunrise the following Saturday morning. Logic then dictates Dowd's return will be 10 days later on Kipurym, making October 2nd at sunset in 2033 the precise moment.

The statement made by the man in white linen affirms something I surmised years ago – the Time of Ya^{aqob}’s Troubles will be divided into two 3½ year periods ~ beginning on Shabuw^{ah} – which affirms this because it means Sevens. While things will become increasingly difficult for Israel and for Jews starting in May 2026, comprising a 7-year period of oppression for Israel, the worst will be concentrated toward the end. And this means that at least this portion of the fulfillment of Shabuw^{ah} will initiate the commencement of the Time of Ya^{aqob}’s Troubles on May 22, 2026. I suspect that the Harvest of the Promise of Sevens will occur the following year on the Shabat of 11 June 2027. And as we know, the Taruw^{ah} Gleaning and Sacrifice will transpire upon the conclusion of the Time of Trouble between the sunsets of September 23rd and 24th in 2033 – which is what we surmised by studying Yasha^{yah} 17 and 18.

We should not be surprised that Dowd encapsulated the moment when his Herald would arrive and the time the scattering and crushing of his beloved Yisrael would kalah | cease. This is relevant because he was the first to gather them into a nation and the last to protect them from every foe – particularly from the Philistines. While he is the Right Hand of Yahowah, his Basar is his right hand forevermore. As a result of the ^{*}Adamah Parah on Yowm Taruw^{ah}, Yahowah and His people will no longer be naphats | separated.

Considering what is revealed next, we must approach all of this with the utmost respect and appropriate urgency. Time is quickly running out.

“And I listened (wa ^{}any shama^{}), but I did not understand (wa lo^{}byn – I was unable to comprehend, failing to make the necessary connections to discern the lesson). So I said (wa ^{}amar), ‘Dear sir (^{}adown ^{}any – my upright one), what is the end result of these things (mah ^{}acharyth ^{}eleh – how does this all conclude at the end for the remnant of the descendants during the last days)?’ (Dany^{el} 12:8)

He said (*wa amar), ‘Go, choosing to walk through life (halak – decide of your own initiative to go on with the conduct of your life (qal imperative)), Dany*el* | My God is Judgmental (*Dany*el* – God is My Means to Decide between Vindication and Condemnation). These words (ha dabarym – these statements, pronouncements, declarations, and message) are sealed up (satam – are off limits, closed up and hidden, inaccessible and unknowable (qal participle)), enclosed, signed, and stamped (wa chatham – affixed with a seal to prevent being prematurely or inappropriately opened) until the time of the final Witness (ad eth – for the time just prior to eternity) at the very end (gets – at the completion of time during the last days).’” (*Dany*el* 12:9)

While we do not have to know everything to benefit from what Yahowah is offering, to fulfill the mission God has tendered, it’s important that we remove the seal and solve the puzzle before the upcoming Shabuw*ah Harvest. Dany*el would pass away without understanding what he had seen but more is required of us now. And that is why I’m thrilled with what we have deduced thus far.

That said, we are not required to be dogmatic or pretend to be know-it-alls. Even Moseh failed on occasion – as did Dowd. To prevail, we only need to know and understand the elements of Yahowah’s plan which are essential, recognizing that every nuance is not life or death. Our relationship with God is not going to suffer if we struggle in trying to determine the names of each horn, for example.

Also, we should appreciate the reality that there are things Yahowah does not want openly disclosed – at least too early in the process. God does not want everything laid out on a silver platter such that even the religious can pervert it for their purposes. So, while we may not answer every riddle in this prophetic puzzle, we will have fun trying.

In twenty-four years of translating and analyzing, I’ve seen many things, but never the rarest of the stems – the hitpael – deployed with successive verbs. It is uncommon because it reveals that those being purged of religion and politics are being perfected expressly because they have avoided being misled and influenced by humankind's most controlling stimuli ~ politics and religion. This is particularly revealing at this point because this is the purpose of the *Adamah Parah's sacrifice on Taruw^aah...

“A great many (rab – numerous and important individuals, an undisclosed but significant quantity of worthy people) will be purged of prevailing influences and cleansed as a result of choosing to examine religious and political constraints (barar – will be cleansed (hitpa'el imperfect)), independently purified and white as a result of avoiding societal pressures (wa laban – becoming white and spotless by taking personal responsibility for their lives (hitpa'el imperfect)) and, thus, they will be refined, benefiting from having been tested and proven right (wa tsaraph – they will be examined and shown to be valuable (nif'al imperfect)).

However (wa), of those who will be condemned for acting inappropriately, perpetrating religious and political crimes (rasa^e rasa^ym – those who are wrong, who are guilty, and who will be punished for being evil (hif'il perfect)), none of the religious will make the connections to understand (wa lo^e byn kol rasha^e – all of those who are political criminals and unrighteous will remain clueless, totally incapable of making the associations needed to be perceptive and comprehend much of anything (qal imperfect)).

And yet (wa), the ones with insight who are discerning, demonstrating the capacity to be observant and circumspect (ha sakal – the prudent who closely examine and diligently explore the evidence, showing discipline in their reasoning (hif'il participle)) will assimilate the evidence in time to appreciate the proper conclusions (byn – will make the proper associations and necessary connections to understand (qal imperfect)).” (Dany^eel / Daniel 12:10)

This statement is actually far more important than establishing dates. It adroitly explains the purpose of the Adamah Parah and Zeh Bow Min Edowm*. The intent of his sacrifice is to purge the religious and cleanse the political of their guilt so that, once refined, they are ready to meet their King and to be addressed by God. It's been 3,000 years for Dowd and 3,480 years since Yahowah last spoke to Yahuwdym.

Our King is also reinforcing the fact that the fulcrum upon which a soul's fate pivots downward is religion for most and politics for many. Those who embrace either are ineligible for Shamaym and disqualified from the Beryth.

The conditions of the Covenant are clear. We must walk away from a reliance on human institutions, disassociating from the babel | confusing commingling present within religious and political cultures. It is only then that we are permitted to walk to Yahowah and be perfected.

Those who will be right in this regard, will pass the open-book test, and they will catch the last ride off the planet at sunset at the commencement of Yowm Taruw^{ah}. This is the final gleanings, and it is reserved for Yahuwdym and Yisra^{el} elites ~ some seven thousand people between them.

However, those being purged on the Day of the Herald as the sun rises on the Shabat, obscured as it will be by the moon during the solar eclipse, will be cleansed of all prevailing societal stigmas, political platitudes, and religious rubbish. This surviving mortal remnant of the Set-Apart People represents the Adulterous Woman who is cleansed by what is perceived as the Red Heifer so that she can be betrothed to Dowd as the returning King. These are also the individuals who will be gathered into the White Spiritual Chariot and brought to the Temple Mount from around the world at this very moment. And they will have been selected for precisely this reason: “A great many of valuable and worthy people (rab) will be purged of prevailing influences and cleansed as a result of choosing to examine religious and political constraints (barar), independently purified and white as a result of avoiding societal pressures (wa laban) and, thus, they will be examined and refined, benefiting from having been tested and shown worthy and right (wa tsaraph)."

Even laban takes on special meaning in this case because they will be airlifted into Yaruwshalaim in the laban | white chariot during a worldwide spiritual examination of remaining Yisra^{el} elites. And once in view of the sacrifice of the adamah Parah* | Bloody Red Man and Productive Bull, they will be purged in accordance with Numbers 5 and 19. Moreover, while the sacrificial Bull is Myka^{el} / Yada and the returning groom is Gabry^{el} / Dowd, ElYah* will be the Master of Ceremonies.

It will be the greatest Show on Earth as Yahowah releases the cleansing waters beneath the Temple Mount and ignites the purging flames from around the sacrifice as ElYah* entertains and enlightens those who have gathered in Jerusalem in anticipation of the King's return. And it is all so beautifully presented here by our Messiah Dowd.

Indeed, this is a rewarding time for Yahowah's Family, but it is also Judgment Day for those who have led others astray. Religious and political leaders will be tried and convicted for their crimes against man and God. As result, they will be collected in the Black Spiritual Chariot.

There are many things of which we can be certain. One of those is that there is no hope for the overtly religious or political. They will remain clueless, even when given access to the truth. Their faith in what they have chosen to believe will have rendered them impervious to evidence and reason. We will not waste our breath with them. We cannot help them. They will not listen to God, and so ElYah* and I will do no better.

A time will come when it will become essential that surviving Jews properly assimilate the instructions contained in the concluding statement of Dany^{el} 12:10. It is by being sakal | observant and circumspect, demonstrating the desire to diligently explore the evidence and then reason our way to understanding that a ride within the White Chariot becomes possible. God is challenging His people, saying that if they begin to listen to His Witnesses, they will make the connections to understand before it is too late.

So far, so good. Our appreciation of the nuances of Myka^{el}'s explanation of Dowd's prophecy and how ^{*}ElYah and he will advance its goals on behalf of the Set-Apart People has been exemplary – well beyond what has been achieved by anyone previously. We know the timing and can explain the events, even identify the characters.

That said, since no one has put all of these pieces together to reveal the entire picture previously, sakal remains in short supply. And to be fair, considering that the source of this challenge is the prophet Dowd, we should be aware that he is the smartest person who ever lived. Further, he had the distinct advantage of being Yahowah's Chosen One, God's Beloved Son, the Anointed Messiah, and the most prolific prophet. Dowd was also the one whose three lives would span the final half of God's timeline ~ from before year 3000 to well after 6000 Yah. What may have come easy for him will not be as effortless for the rest of us. But fortunately, we do not have to be as wise as our shepherd to be among his sheep. Also helpful, since Myka^{el} is the one tasked with explaining all of this, he has the advantage of being Dowd's Herald, putting him in a position to know.

And speaking of knowing, it is Myka^{el}'s responsibility to cultivate the Shabuw^{ah} Qatsyr. During this Harvest, the tamyd | constant and enduring will be withdrawn from the fray before the Time of Troubles. Yahowah's love for His Covenant Family will cause Him to remove His Children. And at this time, God will exert the energy and force required to raise and empower thousands of souls.

It is then after the fulfilment of the Promise of Seven, in our absence, ha Satan's corporeal presence will announce that he is God – fulfilling Yasha^{yah}'s prophecy about Halal ben Shachar in Isaiah 14. And in a moment, we will know this date as well.

“So, because from before this period, and out of this time (*wa min eth – before and from this period), the constant and enduring (ha tamyd – the continuous and unceasing, the uninterrupted and lasting; from an unused root meaning to stretch out) will be removed and taken away by the exertion of a tremendous force (suwr – he will depart (hofal perfect – God will be compelled to remove the constant and enduring)).

Then, the lifeless, devastating, and appalling (wa la shamem – the desolating and damning, the terrifying and horrifying, the ruinous and ravaging, the stunning and stupefying) abomination (shiquwts – vile religious filth associated with a detestable false god) will be offered, appointed, and brought into effect (nathan – will be assigned and given (qal infinitive)) for 1,290 days (*yowmym eleph me^{ahym} wa thesha^e – of days one thousand two hundred and ninety).” (Dany^{el} / Daniel 12:11)

I was initially stumped by the fact we were not told as to what tamyd pertained. For the better part of two millennia, it has been assumed that the speaker simply forgot to disclose the thing being censored, requiring publishers to add it. And most chose “daily sacrifice” or “regular sacrificial offerings.”

However, that’s not reasonable because there have been no sacrificial offerings conducted since the Romans tore down the Second Temple in 70 CE. And they aren’t going to be reconstituted by rabbis because they have developed elaborate workarounds throughout the Talmud for the sacrifices as a result of not having a Temple. Moreover, the verb, suwr, means “removed,” as in “taken away,” not “cease.” The result of the religious additions by Christian publications, all of which require Gabry^{el} or Myka^{el} to be inadequate communicators, is an artificial prophecy is created with no chance of being fulfilled. So, methinks they are wrong.

Upon investigation, I concluded that tamyd doesn’t convey the “continuance” of some unspecified something for a number of reasons, one of which is that whatever it might have been was not included ~ rendering the declaration moot. And I'm not about to accuse King Dowd of making such a careless omission. In searching for answers, I canvassed the Towrah and found that tamyd is used on occasion to describe the regularity of the twice daily offerings. But they haven't been in effect since shortly after Moseh gave up his job as a shepherd. And they aren't meaningful in the overall scheme of things. Clearly, they won't be reinstated so as to be curtailed, either.

In Numbers 4:7, I discovered that tamyd speaks of the "bread of continuity." That's nice, but not germane. And in Howsha* 12:6, we are encouraged to "be continually observant and constantly rely on God." That's also astute, and it even takes us in the right direction.

Elsewhere in his Mizmowr, Dowd instructs us to "constantly express our admiration for Yahowah," and "to rely upon Him so that He can continually preserve our souls." (Psalms 34:1, 71:6, 71:14, and 40:11) And while that is especially relevant, Dowd underscores this in the 119th Psalm by encouraging the constantly reliant among us "to be continually observant, closely examining and carefully considering the Towrah." (Psalm 119:44) Along these lines, Yasha*yah promises that Yahowah will continually guide those who respond appropriately to Him and His people and who are steadfastly truthful and right. Therefore, the most accurate rendering appears to describe those who endure because their relationship with God is consistent. Moreover, there is no case where tamyd is used in conjunction with the continuation of the Mow*edym or Shabat observances.

Therefore, by applying the most literal response to both tamyd and suwr, I was able to render the opening statement: "So, because of this period, and out of this time (*wa min eth) the constant and enduring (ha tamyd) will be removed and taken away by the exertion of a tremendous force (suwr)."

This is a depiction of the Shabuw*ah Harvest prior to the Time of Troubles. Yahowah is suwr | removing those who have been tamyd | consistent and steadfast.”

With the Covenant Family withdrawn, Satan’s corporeal manifestation, who I have dubbed the Towrahless One, will be making a mess of things. We should expect that he will say and do that which will be shamem | appalling, both desolating and damning. He will impose all manner of shiquwts | vile religious filth. And the crime of crimes is the essence of religion where Satan claims to be God. Nothing is deadlier or more damning.

With this being Gabry^{el} / Dowd speaking and Myka^{el} / Yada interpreting, they have provided a number of definitive clues with shamem. It presents that which causes widespread desolation and devastation, both horrifying and terrifying, indeed, stupefying. Further, shiquwts is religious in nature. It is being offered at a specific time, such that the devastating religious edict endures 1,290 days, which is just over 3.5 years, thereby overlapping some of what has been previously stated. More precisely, rather than 3½ iterations of the Mow^{edym}, 1290 days is just shy of two weeks beyond three- and one-half solar years.

We have two ways of looking at this period. It can select a beginning date and select between a commencement on the Shabuw^{ah} of 05.22.2026 or 06.11.2027, or we can mark this interval of time from its conclusion on Yowm Taruw^{ah}, which is 09.24.2033. However, since it would be unreasonable for Satan to declare that he is God coinciding with the withdrawal of the Covenant Family and senseless for the edict to conclude halfway through the Time of Troubles, we should work backwards from Satan’s undoing on Taruw^{ah}. This conclusion is reinforced by what we have already determined with the two Witnesses arriving 3½ Mow^{edym} prior to the Day of the Herald, which puts Myka^{el} and ^{*}EIYah in Yaruwshalaim on the 14th of Abyb during Pesach | Passover in year 5,997 Yah. This is Thursday of April 18th, 2030.

Therefore, our end date will be Saturday morning, September 24th in 2033. We can rewind the prophetic clock from there. When we do, what we discover is that this appalling religious edict will be offered by the Towrahless One on the 15th of March, a Friday in 2030 which is the Muslim Day of Prayer. This is 33 days prior to the Witnesses' arrival.

This day is particularly interesting because March 15th is one of the most famous dates in history. It was the 15th of March 44 BCE, when the most influential of all Romans, the Emperor Julius Ceaser, was murdered after claiming to be the Supreme Ruler of Rome, which was tantamount to announcing he was a god. Therefore, as the evidence unfolds, we will discover that on the Ides of March, Donald Trump will stand in his place, as the veritable reincarnation of JC, while claiming that he, as the Supreme Ruler of the World, is essentially divine. Imagine the pageantry and prose. The MTGA (Make Trump Great Again) movement will be all atwitter with praise.

Therefore, Satan and his Advocate will announce that he is God at this time. That is the most adroit conclusion based upon these words: “The deadly and desolating, devastating and damning, stupefying and stunning, appalling (wa la shamem) abomination of vile religiosity of a detestable false god (shiquwts) will be offered, appointed, and brought into effect (nathan) for 1,290 days (*yowmym *eleph me*ahym wa thesha*🙏).”

Based upon the preceding statements which direct our attention to the conclusion of the Time of Trouble on Taruw^{ah}, it bears repeating that we should expect this pronouncement to occur on the Ides of March, Friday, March 15th. On the day Julius Ceaser died, Donald Trump will rise. The Beast of Rome will be reborn with a Fourth and Final Riech. And at the time, there will be no one around to challenge him.

Adding insult to injury, March was named after the Roman god Mars, the son of Jupiter and the God of War. The Ides of March was celebrated during the full moon nearest the Vernal Equinox, creating a forgery for Passover. This day was considered sacred to Jupiter, the Father of the Gods, who was the Roman supreme deity. It was then that the Ides Lamb was led in a procession along the Via Sacra to Capitoline Hill where it was sacrificed. Especially Satanic in the scope of the counterfeit, this became part of the Roman Easter Week.

During the Imperial period, beginning with Julius Ceaser, the Ides of March commenced the Roman “Holy Week” of festivals celebrating Cybele who was proclaimed as the Magna Mater | Great Mother. She, therefore, serves as the basis of the Christian mythology of Mary being the Mother of God and Queen of Heaven. She was also the Magna Graecia, a name which implies that her veneration was even “Greater in Greece.” This may be because she was the secondary deity to Dionysus, upon whose mythology Jesus was crafted. In this role Cybele is cited in Euripides’ Bacchae, whereupon Paul derived the infamous line he attributed to Jesus on the road to Damascus. And in keeping with the story, Cybele cured Dionysus of the madness that befell him.

Back in Rome, her cult was advanced in the Sibylline Oracles from which Christians draw their fixation on the notion of baptism. Further, Cybele’s consort was Attis, the Roman god whose self-mutilation became synonymous with his annual death and resurrection during Easter Week. And of course, this was all memorialized in William Shakespeare’s Julius Caesar. Therein the soothsayer warns Caesar to “beware the Ides of March.” Not long after JC was stabbed, Caesar Augustus rose as a god in his place as the Roman Republic became Imperial Rome and began a series of brutal civil wars that ultimately destroyed the Empire. And if I may add one additional twist, Augustus became the Pontifex Maximus of Rome – the Pontif or Pope of the Empire – its supreme religious leader.

From this deduction, we can make a number of reasoned conclusions. Satan’s Advocate will announce that he is to be worshiped as God, rather than as a god ~ which has occurred countless times previously. That is one of many things which make this declaration so egregious, indeed, deadly and damning.

This pronouncement will almost certainly be made on the Temple Mount and will be seen as positioning the Towrahless One as greater than Yahowah, the God of the Jews. And based upon what we see before us and what the Prophets have said, the announcement will be made before a multitude of Muslims already hellbent on annihilating Yahuwd. Also, the Denizen of the Devil will be doing so on Friday, the day all Muslims prostrate themselves to Allah.

Not only would this be consistent with the prophecies Yasha*yah and Yow*el have made regarding the flood of terrorists who will invade Israel following the imposition of the terrorist state that makes the nation indefensible, it would also be harmonious with Isaiah 14's presentation of Halal bin Shachar acting out Allahu-Akbar while claiming to be above the Most High. Halal even means "acceptable" in the Quran.

It is also curious to note that the Islamic New Year for 1452 AH will begin seven weeks after the pronouncement of the Adversary's divinity, occurring as the sun sets on Friday, May 3rd, of 2030. Therefore, Satan's Passover will commence 14 days thereafter on Ashura Day, beginning Sunday evening, May 12th. In this way, the Adversary will have usurped Yahowah's preferred number, pilfered the Shabat, transferred his veneration to Sunday, and reestablished a replacement Passover such that it celebrates his bride ~ Asherah, the Queen of Heaven and Mother of God. It will meld Christianity and Islam while robbing Yahowah and Yahuwdym. And if I might offer this reminder, the reason Asherah Day was interjected into Islam is because rabbis were celebrating it in Yathrib. Not only have rabbis long insinuated that G-d had a wife, Mary as the Mother of God is essential to Christianity.

Therefore, it will be in the midst of this, right between Satan's pronouncement and his coronation, during Passover at sunrise on April 18th, 2030, that Yahowah will insert His Witnesses to rebuke the Adversary. And this is likely why Yada was asked to begin his work with Yah by excoriating Islam and then Christianity ~ becoming the foremost expert on their shiquwts | appalling nature.

It is exciting to witness the final pieces of the puzzle fall into place, even as we see ourselves in the midst of the action. Therefore, it should be no surprise that Myka^{el} is offering this prophetic explanation based upon all he has learned and shared while compiling the 35 volumes of Yada Yahowah, including the 13 comprising God Damn Religion, Twistianity, and Babel. More than anyone before or after him, Yada understands the diabolical nature of the Abrahamic religions. Therefore, considering the people in and around Israel who seek the annihilation of Jews, the antisemitic nature of the Quran, and Allah's demonic character, it is apparent that Allahu-Akbar is going to be the calling card of the Towrahless One. He will declare that he is Allah. And the rabbis who made both Islam and Christianity possible will applaud. They will even assist with the Towrahless One's quest to live out the poisonous prose of Ezekiel.

Since the Appalling Abomination on Friday, March 15th, 2030 is the culmination of Satan's ambition, it doesn't coincide with his arrival in Yaruwshalaim, which will be to set himself up politically as the Supreme Ruler of Israel and, perhaps, much of the world. The Appalling Abomination on the Ides of March is more correctly seen as Satan's coming-out party religiously when he declares that he is God. So, buckle your seatbelt because today in the summer of 2025, we are less than 5 years from this dubious day.

Affirming these assessments, in Ezekiel, which serves as Satan's autobiography and playbook, we discover (in Volume 3 of Babel) that just one of Yahowah's seven Mow^{edym} will be observed by the Adversary – Pesach – and it is corrupted beyond recognition. Chag Matsah is otherwise ignored because unyeasted bread is relegated merely to an ingredient in a manner consistent with the rabbis.

After corrupting Passover, and eliminating the other six Miqra^{ey}, the Lord of Babel will substitute the Feast of the Beast where Yada and *ElYah, as the final Witnesses, and Dowd symbolically, are on the menu. The faithful will be celebrating cannibalism while the Supreme Leader devours their flesh and drinks their blood – which Dowd, no doubt, will find sufficiently irritating and insulting to call it an abomination. Satan’s Messiah then institutes Ignorance Day, Do Nothing Day, and No Moon Day – the last of which would correspond with *Abyb 1, 5997 Yah, two weeks before the Witnesses arrive to pester the Devil’s Advocate.

These things known, one conundrum remains, and it is found in the next statement where 1,335 days are referenced. We are not expressly told why 45 days have been added, but the clues have been laid out all around us.

By way of review, we were told that following three- and one-half iterations of the Mow*edym, the scattering of Yisra*elites would be over and a great many would be purged and refined while others are condemned for their religiosity. Recognizing that this will transpire halfway through Taruw*ah at sunrise on 24 September 2033, 3½ cycles of Mow*edym brought us to the dawn of Pesach on 18 April, 2030 with the insertion of the Witnesses who will begin and culminate their work within this period.

Following the Shabuw*ah Harvest, the Appalling Abomination of the Adversary’s Apostle will follow. His diabolical deception will damn dunderheads for 1,290 days, also concluding on Taruw*ah with Satan’s last stand. Working backwards, this pronouncement will occur on the 15th of March 2030 to commemorate JC’s death and the rise of the monstrous god-men of Imperial Rome.

Therefore, by adding an additional 45 days to this date, and allowing the Maniacal Messiah to settle in as Supreme Sadist, Satan’s Corporeal Collaborator will arrive in Jerusalem on 29 January 2030. He will have six weeks to get the politics sorted out before he sets the religious rules, such that on Friday, March 15th as the day the Adversary’s Apostle, he will announce that he is God.

Interestingly enough, this will place the Towrahless One in Jerusalem during Ramadan, arriving seven days before Eid ul-Fitr, the most celebrated day on the Islamic calendar. This means the Adversary's Advocate will be pronouncing his divinity between Ramadan and Ashura Day, making the latter his replacement for Passover. Even better as counterfeits go, the day of his divine pronouncement on the Ides of March is the beginning of the Roman Holy Week that gave rise to Easter.

Considering how all of this has been laid out, there would be no reason to add the 45 days to the aftermath of Taruw•ah. But should you be curious, 9½ days from the midpoint of Taruw•ah would take us to Kipurym. In 14½ days, we'd arrive at Sukah. And then 22½ days would take us to the conclusion of the eighth day of Shelters. This would leave the possibility of the additional 22½ days for testing and trials among the departing religious and political combatants. Should this unlikely determination be the case, half of the time from the Taruw•ah sacrifice would be spent celebrating the King's return and Homecoming and half would be focused on the business of properly processing those who remain. However, since this interpretation is incongruous with the prophetic presentation, I suspect that we will enjoy the moment and wait upon Yahowah's instructions regarding what He would have us do next.

This known, since I like to prepare for any eventuality, if asked to select the Evil Five on Yahowah's Wall of Shame, I'd propose Paul, 'Akiba, Hadrian, Maimonides, and Muhammad. The contenders would be many including Vespasian, Titus, Constantine, Eusebius, and Theodosius, followed by Baal Shem Tov, Hitler, Stalin, and Trump ~ the most intriguing character remaining in play and on the board.

In light of these considerations, it's time we delve into the next statement. As a pleasant surprise, it is accentuated by the initial word Dowd wrote in his first Mizmowr and the original word I translated for Yada Yahowah. We are both exceedingly fond of asher*, which is presented here as Dowd wrote it 3000 years ago in the 1st Psalm: ashery* | benefiting from the relationship through me.

“Blessed and delighted by benefiting from me (ashry* – thrilled, enjoying every moment while led to the benefits of the relationship with me; from asher* – to receive the benefits of the relationship and any* – me (plural)) is ha Chakah | the One who Continues Confident and Certain while Cutting others into the Covenant by being pierced (ha chakah – the one who anticipates and expects this outcome to occur by adhering to that which can be trusted, longing for it to transpire, waiting for the desired result while writing about it; from chaqah – to be cut in, to engrave, and to have been pierced (piel participle masculine singular)), as he remains in close contact for the arrival even as being tormented, afflicted, and violently stricken (*wa naga – he reaches the point of being beaten (hifil imperfect third-person masculine singular)) upon 1,335 days (*la yowmym *eleph shalosh me*owah shalosh wa chamesh*).” (*Dany*el* / Daniel 12:12)

Initially, I cannot help but smile knowing that the first phase of my personal journey with Yahowah will conclude where it began, with asher*. This is the word which was errantly translated in every English Bible I consulted some 24 years ago when trying to make sense of the prophecy in 2 Shamuw*el 7. As a result, asher* was the first word I attempted to translate from the Hebrew text. And now, on the cusp of the Shabuw*ah Harvest, it affirms that on the way to Yah, I have been accompanied by my beloved brother, our Messiah and King, Dowd. And as a man who has developed a bromance with Dowd and a love affair with words, this is enormously affirming and satisfying.

This is particularly true on Taruw*ah when I will be the one *naga | tormented and afflicted, violently stricken and beaten, as I am pierced to prepare the mortal remnant of Yisra*el for the King’s Homecoming. But of course, as delightful as it is to witness Gabry^{el} / Dowd introduce this prophecy with the word that initially brought us together, I am moved to tears by his acknowledgment of the anguish of our shared sacrifice for the wellbeing of the Covenant Family.

Ha Chakah depicts the One who Remains Confident and Certain while Cutting others into the Covenant by being pierced. Gabry^{el} is equating what he would endure on Pesach with what Myka^{el} will suffer on Taruw^{ah}. With this in mind, it is the Choter's responsibility as the adamah Parah* | Bloody Red Productive Bull to be naga^o | tormented, afflicted, and violently stricken as he is beaten to death on the Day of the Herald ~ ultimately ending the conflict and resolving the estrangement between the wayward Children of Yisra^{el} and Yahowah and Dowd.

What is perceived as the Sacrifice of the Red Heifer will transpire 1,335 days after the living embodiment of Halal ben Shachar arrives in Yaruwshalaim during Ramadan, which we have noted is on January 29th, 2030. It will be in preparation for Eid ul-Fitr, the most celebrated day on the Islamic calendar. Forty-five days thereafter, Allah's Advocate will be pronouncing his divinity on the 15th of March, a Friday in 2030 which is the Muslim Day of Prayer. The Appalling Abomination will transpire between Ramadan and Ashura Day, making the latter his replacement for Passover.

Also interesting, in the presentation of 1,335 days, we find chamesh | five, which is potentially telling. It is closely related to chamets | the embittering fungus of yeast which is cruel and oppressive – Yahowah's favorite symbol for the pervasive corruption associated with religion and politics. It is chamets which must be removed for us to live with Yah. Dowd carried it away for us to enter the Covenant Family and Yada will remove it from the mortal remnant who are prepared for the King's return.

For God's Covenant Family, the days following the Taruw^{ah} sacrifice will be the best of times. For the religious and political, the patriotic and conspiratorial, it is their prelude to hell. So, please...

“Of your own freewill, choose to journey through life, traveling (*wa atah halak – you should go (qal imperative)) to the final destination (la ha qets – to the finish line, right to the very end, pushing the boundaries and the limits).

Then you will find spiritual rest, settling down and relaxing (wa nuwach – you will find repose and be permitted a vacation in your retirement (qal imperfect)), present and remaining (*wa amad – appointed and sustained, empowered and supported, standing up and enduring (qal imperfect)) in your allotted place (*la gowral atah – as your inheritance and share of what is being offered) at the end of days (la qets ha yowmym).” (*Dany*el* / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 12:13)

Yowm Taruw*ah is the end of days, while Yowm Kipurym is the first day of a new beginning. Sukah is the time of spiritual rest. Our journey through this life is complete. Forevermore beckons.

Obviously, the reason Dany*el was asked to write this down was for our edification. That is why we were told that it had been sealed up to this point. Therefore, we should all live our lives to the fullest extent, pushing the boundaries of what can be known and shared about Yahowah, so that, when we reach the final destination, there are no regrets. It is why I have been devoted to translating and explaining Yahowah’s Towrah and Naby* to the best of my ability as God has equipped me to complete this mission for His people. And there are now many at my side, walking with purpose, fulfilling their roles in Yahowah’s Family and for the benefit of Yisra*el.

We will have all eternity to rest, relax, and reflect upon all that was accomplished during the time it mattered for those whose lives will have been restored. Let’s push ahead, test our limits, and cross the finish line with smiles on our faces and our heads held high.

Before we return to the 7th chapter of Dany^{el} and consider the events which are foretold, let's reconsider what we have just read...

“And so at that time (*wa ba ha *eth ha hy), Myka^{el} | One Who is Truthful and Right About God (Myka^{el}), who is representing the king while serving his family (sar), will have an important role in nourishing the growth while promoting (ha gadowl) your family's children (al ben *am atah), taking a stand, present and accountable, appointed and supported (amad*).

Then there will be (wa hayah) a Time (eth*) of Trouble (tsarah), beyond which has ever existed (asher lo* hayah*) from a gentile nation (min hayah gowy) prior to this time (ad ha *eth ha hy).

And (wa) during this period (*ba ha *eth ha hy), your people (am atah) will be saved, everyone rescued from harm's way and delivered (malat kol) who is found (*ha matsa) written (kathab) in the book (ba ha sepher). (Dany^{el} 12:1)

And many important and infamous individuals (wa rab) of those who are asleep in an altered state of consciousness (min yashen) in the dust of the earth (adamah aphar) will be awakened (qyts), some of these (eleh*) to the restoration of life everlasting, growing forevermore (*la chay owlam) and others (*wa eleh) to eternal (owlam*) scorn and shame, insults and reproach, accusations and censure (cherpah) for having been abhorrent and appalling in goading others in a repulsive and loathsome manner (*dera*own*). (Dany^{el} 12:2)

Therefore, the circumspect with insight, those who are intelligent and properly instructed, discerning and discriminating, demonstrating the capacity to understand (wa ha sakal) will become prominent, obtaining a high status, being respected among heavenly beings, shining brightly while enlightening and admonishing (zahar), similar to the light (ka zohar) of the expansive universe (*ha raqya), such that they will be greatly valued for the numerous worthy individuals who will be vindicated for being right (wa tsadaq ha rab), becoming like stars (ka ha kowkab) as eternal and restoring witnesses forevermore (*la *owlam wa ad). (*Dany*el* 12:3)

As for you, *Dany*el* (*wa *atah Dany*el*), seal up this testimony, making the message secure while precluding access to the meaning hidden within the words (satam ha dabarym) and place a stamp and signature on the book (wa chatam ha sepher) until before the time of the restoring witnesses runs out (ad eth qets).

Many, and notably rabbis and others who are infamous and exalted (rab), will wander about aimlessly, rowing up a waterfall, accomplishing nothing and getting nowhere (shuwth), even with access to information which leads to understanding (*wa ha da*ath*) becoming more prevalent (rabah). (*Dany*el* 12:4)

Then I, *Dany*el* | knowing that my God is judgmental (*wa *any Dany*el*), looked (*ra*ah*), and behold (wa hineh), the two others in the end (*shanaym acher) were present, appointed and accounted for, supported while taking a stand (amad*). One individual (echad*) was now present here (henah) as the means to channel speech, conveying the message (*la saphah ha ya*or*). And the other person (*wa echad) was simultaneously present close by (henah) as a conduit for words, with verbally expressive lips flowing with language (*la saphah ha ya*or*). (*Dany*el* 12:5)

Then (wa) he said (amar*) to the individual (*la ha iysh) of linen garments (ha bad) who, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), was from the dimension above and beyond (*min ma*al*) the source of the waters of the stream (*la maym ha ya*or*), ‘How long will this restoring witness be until (ad matay*) the end (qets) of these distinguishing and intensely wonderful explanations and astounding communication of things that would otherwise be difficult to understand (ha pele?) (Dany^{el} 12:6)

Then I listened to (*wa shama) the individual (eth ha iysh) clothed in linen (lebuwsh bad) who, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), was from the dimension above and beyond (min ma^{al}) the source of the streaming waters (la maym ha ya^{or}).

He raised (wa ruwm) his right hand (*yamyn huw) and his left (samo^l huw) toward the heavens (el ha shamaym). And then he made a solemn promise, swearing an oath based upon seven (*wa shaba) in conjunction with the One who lives forever and restores life forevermore (*ba chay ha owlam) that there will be to draw near (ky la*) Mow^{ed} Mow^{edym} | Three Restoring Witnesses to the Appointed Meeting Times (Mow^{ed} Mow^{edym}) and in the midst of another (wa chatsy), then accordingly (wa ka), the shattering and scattering, the dispersing and separating (naphats) influence controlling (yad) the set-apart people (am qodesh*) will be over (kalah). All of these things (*kol eleh) will come to fruition (kalah). (Dany^{el} 12:7)

And I listened (*wa *any shama), but I did not understand (wa lo byn*). So, I said (*wa amar), ‘Dear sir (adown any), what is the end result of these things (*mah *acharyth eleh)?’ (Dany^{el} 12:8)

He said (*wa amar), ‘Go, choosing to continue to conduct your life (halak), Dany^{el} | because My God is Judgmental (Dany^{el}). These words (ha dabarym) are sealed up (satam), enclosed, signed, and stamped (wa chatham) until the time of the final Witness (ad eth) at the very end during the last days (qets).’ (Dany^{el} 12:9)

A great many worthy individuals (rab) will be purged of prevailing influences and cleansed as a result of choosing to examine religious and political constraints (barar), independently purified and white as a result of avoiding societal pressures (wa laban), and thus, they will be refined, benefiting from having been tested and proven right (wa tsaraph).

However (wa), of those who will be condemned for acting inappropriately, perpetrating religious and political crimes (rasa^o rasa^o), none of them will understand, remaining clueless, unable to make the connections needed to comprehend much of anything (wa lo^{} byn kol*).

And yet (wa), the ones with insight who are discerning, demonstrating the capacity to be observant and circumspect (ha sakal) will assimilate the evidence in time to understand (byn). (Dany^oel 12:10)

So, because of this period and out of this time (wa min^{}eth*) the constant and enduring who is unceasing (ha tamyd) he will be removed and taken away by the exertion of a tremendous force (suwr).

Then, the lifeless, devastating, and appalling, desolating and damning (wa la shamem) abomination (shiquwts) will be offered, appointed, and brought into effect (nathan) for 1,290 days (yowmym^{}eleph me^oahym wa thesha^o*). (Dany^oel 12:11)

Blessed and delighted by benefiting from me (ashry*) is ha Chakah | the One who Continues Confident and Certain while Cutting others into the Covenant by being pierced (ha chakah), as he remains in close contact for the arrival even as being tormented, afflicted, and violently stricken (wa naga^o) of 1,335 days (la yowmym^{}eleph shalosh me^oowah shalosh wa chamesh*). (Dany^oel 12:12)

Of your own freewill, choose to journey through life, traveling (wa^{}atah halak*) to the final destination, to the finish line, right to the very end, pushing the boundaries and the limits (la ha qets).

Then you will find spiritual rest, settling down and relaxing during your retirement (wa nuwach), allowed to be present and always remain (wa^oamad) in your allotted place as your inheritance (la gowral^{}atah*) at the end of days (la qets ha yowmym).” (Dany^oel / My God is Judgmental / Daniel

And so it is in great enthusiasm that we strive to reacquaint a lost world with Yahowah's name while reintroducing the actual Messiah and Son of God. We will remain devoted to cultivating the Shabuw•ah Harvest while anticipating Taruw•ah ~ the transformative event in human history. We know how the plan will play out and recognize our place in it.

Returning now to the place from which we transitioned out of our investigation of the extraordinary revelations in the 12th chapter of Daniel, we must return to history past. There is much more to learn regarding the identity of the horns growing out of Imperial and Catholic Rome. So, let's contemplate the possibilities while trying not to get too far ahead of God's story. If you recall, in the 7th chapter of Dany^{el} we read...

“After this, following this sequence of events (*ba danah atar), I remained observant (chazah hawah) regarding this revelation during a time of enfolding darkness (ba chazuw lyly). And behold (*wa aruw), the fourth (raby^{ay}) monstrous beast (chywah) was the most fearsome and formidable, dreadful and frightening, respected only for being overtly oppressive, terrifying, and threatening (dachal), genuinely horrifying and appalling, terribly gruesome (*wa eymatan), with (wa) an exceptionally powerful and preeminent military (yatyr taqyph).

It had (*wa la hy) teeth comprised of iron (shen dy parzel la). Great multitudes, including the highly populated and powerful (rab), it devoured and devastated (akal*), crushing the remainder (*wa daqaq wa sha*ar*) with its feet (*ba ragal hy) by trampling them down violently, celebrating while destroying them (raphats) under foot (ba ragal).

But (wa), this one was different in its transformation and evolution (hy shanah*) from all of the other (min kol) beasts (chywah) which preceded it (*dy qodam hy). Ten (*wa asar) horns (qeren) were extended from her (*la hy). (Dany^{el} 7:7)

I was thinking about, trying to understand (hawah sakal) what was with the horns (ba qeren) and then, behold (wa aluw*), another and final (achoran*) horn (qeren), one dwindling in significance (za^eeyr), came up among them (*selaq ben inuwn).

And three (wa talat) among (min) the initial group of horns (qadmay qeren) were uprooted, perhaps hamstrung or dehorned (aqar*) from what it had been previously (min qodam hy^a).

Then behold (*wa aluw), eyes (ayn*), like the eyes of a human, a mortal man (*ka *ayn enash), with this horn (ba qeren da^a), and (wa) a mouth (pum) uttering a great many things (malal rab). (Dany^eel 7:8)

While the 7th chapter, unlike the 12th, was written in Aramaic, the languages are sufficiently similar that we should be able to make some semblance of sense of this vision even if the vocabulary is a bit over the top with gruesome beasts, iron teeth, destructive feet, horns, eyes, and a big mouth, then thrones, goatish hair, and burning wheels, oh my.

To begin, after Babylon, Persia, and Greece, came Rome – a particularly monstrous beast in a time of unfolding darkness. And no doubt, Rome was fearsome and formidable, threatening and oppressive, tragically gruesome, largely because of her relentless legions. But what’s interesting, when this was revealed, nothing was known of Persia, Greece, or Rome, so this was a pretty spectacular prophecy.

It was said that Rome would be so vicious, its teeth were akin to iron based upon the great number of people this ruthless empire devoured. Quite literally, Rome would subjugate and crush the known world, even as the Romans celebrated their carnage.

Then we are told that the Beast of Rome was different than the others because it transformed itself and evolved, becoming the Roman Catholic Church. Ten horns were extended from her. This ten after Italy would include: Spain (including Portugal), France, England (including Scotland and Ireland), Germany, Austria/Hungary, what was once Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey, Syria (including Jordan and Judea), and Egypt.

Then, recognizing that achoran* is similar to the Hebrew variation of this word and addresses something that occurs much later, the final horn to emerge would occur long after the fall of the Roman Empire – although not necessarily its Church. And by the time Daniel notices it, this nation that has somehow evolved from Roman influences will be on the decline, dwindling in significance in the end. And yet it is still tied to the aforementioned countries through some form of military alliance – perhaps like the US with NATO and the EU, all of which are crumbling currently.

Three among the initial group, now including Italy, Spain, France, the UK, Germany, Austria/Hungary, the Balkan states, Greece, Turkey, Syria, Jordan, Lebanon, Israel, and/or Egypt, will be hamstrung in some way, becoming less influential than they were previously. This somehow causes a man to come to the forefront in association with the more recently evolved nation, who has somehow negatively influenced the independence of three of the nations previously controlled by Rome. What's more, this man will have a big mouth and say a great many things.

In this regard, Turkey has all but swallowed Syria as Erdogan controls al Jolani's Islamic State terrorists. He has even moved Turkey's military into Syria in pursuit of land and Kurds. Lebanon is about to implode economically and politically, especially with Israel continuing to bomb Hezbollah even in Beirut. Elsewhere in Isaiah 17, we were told to expect the terrorist takeover of the Syrian government as well as the sacking of Jordan because the kingdom is awash in disgruntled refugees. Even Israel is at risk, so much so that the nation has become dependent upon the mouth that roared – Donald Trump. For all practical purposes, Israel is Trump's to control, and that's a risky proposition since Isaiah also tells us that an arrogant American will betray the nation by forcing it to cede its heartland to the very terrorists who perpetrated Al Aqsa Flood.

This will make Israel indefensible. And since Yasha^oyah confirmed that this will either occur prior to Shabu^oah on May 22nd, 2026 or at the very latest June 11th, 2027. Both dates are well within President Trump's current term.

Also, for clarity, in Hebrew, the same word used in the Aramaic, qeren | horns, also speaks of power, influence, and therefore of kingdoms, nations, and institutions. Horns were initially used as crowns for kings and clerics. As an example, the Horns of Ammon symbolize Alexander the Great's claim that he was the son of the Egyptian god.

As so, with Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, and Israel precariously positioned for assimilation, this prophecy is hitting very close to home – as we should expect. In all prophecy, Yahowah only concerns Himself with people and nations that seek to control and subjugate His people. So this is the most reasonable interpretation of these events.

And as we know, Yasha^oyah / Isaiah was right, when in the 17th chapter, he foretold that the Syrian government would fall to Islamic terrorists and that, sometime thereafter, the refugees in Jordan would go full mujahideen and run amuck. Further, we have already witnessed the dress rehearsal for the flood of terrorists who will infiltrate Israel after the establishment of the terrorist state because it is just a much more menacing version of Al Aqsa Flood. Even more telling, as I write these words, Donald Trump has rescheduled a meeting in New York later this month, cosponsored by France and Saudi Arabia, with EU support, to officially recognize a Palestinian State. This is precisely when, how, and by whom Isaiah foretold this would occur.

Therefore, for those looking for the Towrahless One, misidentified by Christians as the "Antichrist," the prophetic evidence reveals that you'll find this uniquely duplicitous, exceedingly arrogant, and particularly verbose politician in America and currently meddling in Europe, the Middle East, and Israel. But maybe you already figured this out from what we read in the 12th chapter of Daniel leading to this point in time. I did.

And as we survey the political landscape, we have every reason to think that he will be viewed favorably in Israel, even while plotting against Israelis – as is the case with Trump. He will have made a deal with the Devil, which suggests that he will have negotiated dubious business dealings with the titans of Islam – as has Trump, with he, his family, and associates receiving $16.5 billion in bribes. And no one, but no one, has a bigger mouth.

Donald Trump has both a devoted following who worship him as a god and even more people worldwide who mock his every utterance. He is active worldwide, and particularly close to Turkey, Syria, Egypt, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, and Qatar in the region, but also with France, the UK, and Germany formerly among Rome's European provinces. He is creating and destroying economic alliances, both favorable and hostile to Israel and the United States, such that these economic confederations revolving around the petrodollar are plausible explanations of what we are witnessing from Daniel.

As a direct result of the Trump effect, with a new catastrophe each week, the planet is in upheaval. This decline began with the draconian reaction by governments to the Covid-19 virus during Trump's first term, depriving the masses of liberty and livelihood. And it set in motion the destruction of the world's economies. Taunting Russia to invade Ukraine, and then arming the proxy while imposing sanctions has further bankrupted the world, creating runaway debt while leaving nations energy starved and hungry. It also pushed Russia, China, and Iran together – an alliance that will be menacing for the Towrahless One and especially for his feigned alliance with Israel. Making matters worse, droughts and floods will continue to devastate entire populations, leaving many homeless and restless.

Therefore, Yahowah is revealing our history, past, present, and future because He does not want any of us to be left in the dark. So as we continue to make our way through the seventh, eighth, and ninth chapters of Dany^{el} / Daniel, we will be confronted with future history that is playing out before our very eyes. And while parts of this story draw from yesterday, every nuance is poised to influence tomorrow.

The Beast that will haunt us was born in Babylon. It was coddled in Persia and Greece then developed in Rome. It lives in its Church. And it will plague the world as an amalgamation of these influences. And if I may, what nation has a Senate, a Capitol Hill, an eagle as its symbol, and calls itself a Republic? And might that be the same nation from which the current Pope was born?

Since we are hitting pretty close to home, a friendly reminder ~ this prophetic portrayal was written almost twenty-six hundred years ago, beginning in 555 BCE. Evidence that it was inspired by Yahowah, abounds because its proof statements are irrefutable. And to this point, we possess sixteen manuscripts of Dany^{el}, all of which predate the book's most profound predictions.

Now as we progress into the following depiction, keep in mind that the scene has not changed. It is all transpiring within this context... “After this, following this sequence of events, I remained observant regarding this revelation during a time of enfolding darkness. And behold, the fourth monstrous beast was the most fearsome and formidable, dreadful and frightening, respected only for being oppressive and threatening, genuinely horrifying and appalling, terribly gruesome, with an exceptionally powerful and preeminent military. It had teeth comprised of iron. Great multitudes it devoured and devastated, crushing them with its feet by trampling them down violently, celebrating while destroying them under foot.

But this one was different in its transformation and evolution from all of the other beasts which preceded it. Ten horns were extended from her. So, I was thinking, trying to understand what was with the horns and then, behold, another, final horn in the end, one now dwindling in significance, emerging among and out of them.

Then three among the initial group of horns were uprooted, somehow hamstrung or incapacitated from what they had been previously.

Next, behold, eyes, like the eyes of a human, a mortal man, associated with this horn, and a mouth uttering a great many things. (Dany^eel 7:7-8)

While I was looking (chazah hawah ^ead), then (dy) the seats of power (karse^e) were placed and positioned (ramah).

The one old and aged one, advanced in days (atyq yowmym*) sat down (yathyb). His clothing (lebuwsh huw^{}*) was white as snow (ka talag hiwar). And the hair of his head (wa se^ear re^{}sh huw^{}) was like the hair of a goat, but clean (ka ^{}amar nage^e*). His esteemed seat (karse^e huw^{}*) was particularly flashy (shabyb) because of its illuminated wheels, burning and glistening (dy nuwr galgal huw^{} nuwr dalaq*). (Dany^eel / Daniel 7:9)

A shimmering stream (nachar dy nuwr) flowed (nagad – was conspicuous), and appeared before him (wa naphaq min godam huw^{}) with several thousand (alaph ^{}alaphym*) attending to him as if he were the sun (shemesh huw^{}*). But many, many more, perhaps some tens of thousands (wa ribow ribowym), rose up and stood (quwm) to judge, condemn, and convict (dyn) those who were seated (yathab). So then the written records, files, and documents (saphar) were opened (pathach).” (Dany^eel / Daniel 7:10)

The trash-mouthed world leader has suddenly become more important and menacing than have been nations previously. And at this point in time, less than 10 months from eviscerating Israel by way of the Two-State Solution, there is only one individual whose ego is fanned and panned worldwide. And all the while, he's been arranging the deck chairs on the Titanic just in time for its demise as he cruises full speed ahead into dangerous waters.

Currently at 79, the Adversary's Advocate is advancing in age. And while his suits are currently black, he pictures himself as popish in white. Even his strange-looking hair fits the portrait. And perhaps that alleged childhood bone spur that kept him out military service long ago will flare-up and force the old man with snakeskin into a wheelchair like FDR. And in actuality, this week Trump's alarming leg swelling and hand bruising led to the diagnosis of chronic venous insufficiency, such that his veins are struggling to return blood to his heart.

Previously, I had unfortunately followed the lead of the publisher's lexicons which try to justify prior religious lore by inferring that atyq yowmym* should be rendered "Ancient of Days" and refer to God. But this is a political setting among vicious beasts. And this one is clearly identified as an enash* | mortal man. Further, atyq yowmym* speaks of someone who is "advanced in days" and, thus, really old – say in the range of 79 to 87.

With MAGA's and Israelis positioning Trump as their Messiah, or at the very least, Savior, he has thousands fawning all over him. They attend to Trump as if he were the last ray of light in a dark world. And yet, he is far more akin to Halal ben Shachar than the luminary of the Son. And this is why Trump has ten times that number sufficiently informed, rational, and moral men and women to oppose him. And so, even during his rise to divine status, there will be thirty thousand or more who will sit in judgment of him, convicting and condemning Donald Trump for betraying Israel.

And so, while Trump may not be impeached and convicted in the House and Senate, he will be condemned before the people he tried to obliterate. The files will be opened, and the truth will be known ~ and nothing Trump says this time will direct attention away from his guilt. Quite obviously, Donald Trump is the Towrahless One, the Denizen of the Devil, the Adversary's Advocate, and the corporeal manifestation of Satan. He is the Antichrist in the sense of being opposed to the actual Messiah. So, there is no need to plead for the Epstein Files. Yahowah will do much better.

All the while, the politically and religiously blinded continue to believe the man who has lied to them at every turn while pretending that the man destroying their country is their savior. Such delusions may prevail because Trump's bombastic and abusive personality and propensity for deception mirror Paul's – the demon-possessed conman who conceived the myth of Jesus Christ. They swoon for the two men of whom the actual Messiah is most condemning. This is what makes Paul and Donald the Anti-Messiah now infamous as the Antichrist.

What's perturbing, however, is that Israel will welcome their betrayer with open arms. The nation that pushed Yahowah away, annoyed Moseh, and rebelled against Dowd would overwhelmingly elect Trump as the Prime Minister given the opportunity – even as the next Sha^uwl. And this flies in the face of reason because the Prophets warned them about him in Isaiah and then Daniel. But alas, Jews stopped listening to Yahowah 35 centuries ago and bad habits are hard to break.

The reason we find ourselves surrounded by evil is because, according to Yahowah, there has been a devolution of humanity, with civilization getting progressively worse, not better, as institutions grow and become larger over time. We see God's contempt for collectivization as a relatively small city-state in Babylon was overwhelmed by Persia. This Mesopotamian Empire was then dwarfed by the scope of the Macedonian conquests. And then Greece was swallowed by Rome, with the most vicious Beast spreading throughout Europe and the Mediterranean. And yet its death gave rise to the most popular and expansive institution in human history, with the Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox Churches trampling the world underfoot. Bigger and more popular was not better from God's perspective.

And so the message is also that one right-minded soul is better than the Earth's full complement of nations and institutions. Listen to the lone voice rather than the popular ones.

Said another way, while it is possible for an individual to be good or bad, right or wrong, this range of attitudes and thinking, behaviors and expressions, ceases to exist as humans coalesce into groups, such as gangs, cults, conspiracy groups, political parties, religious institutions, or nations. They all migrate from bad to worse as they grow.

Babylon, Persia, Greece, Rome, and the Catholic Church have epitomized the worst of humanity, but they are not alone. Even in the New World, isolated from the cruelty of civilizations, the Inca, Maya, Aztecs, and Polynesians were savage, as were the Chinese and Japanese. Even in the transition from political to religious, the Persians and Romans became more antisemitic and oppressive as they became Muslims and Christians.

Beyond his goatish hair and fancy wheels, Daniel saw the Adversary's Apostle as exceedingly boastful and verbose...

"I continued to look and it came to be (hawah chazah – I kept focused so that I might see and perceive and thus realize and understand (peal perfect)) then out of (*ba adayn min – because then later, making a comparison and then contrast) the voice (qal) of the Horn, this blowhard and bonehead (dy qeren – associated with the political, religious, and societal leader, the bonehead and knucklehead), a great many boastful words, arrogant decrees, big decisions, egotistical demands, and conceited edicts (milah rab – innumerable vain pronouncements and vociferous declarations) were spoken (malal).

I kept watching until I came to realize (*hawah chazah ad) that a life (dy chywah), was slain (qatal – it was executed and put to death (peil – subject receives the action passively, perfect – at the moment but limited in time, third-person feminine singular because chywah is a feminine noun)).

And its body as if showered in rain (geshem hy – its substance; context suggests that a word denoting rain showers in Aramaic and Hebrew and only used in Daniel 3, 4, 5, and 7 infers a corporeal form) he executed, ruined, and destroyed (abad – he irreparably damaged (hofal – he was compelled to destruction, perfect – at this time, third-person masculine singular)).

So it was given (wa yahab – she was positioned) to be burned by fire (*la yaqedah *esha – consumed by the flames as an offering made by fire).” (Danyel / Daniel 7:11)

If one were to describe Donald Trump with a single phrase, it would be qeren milah rab | boastful and conceited, with edicts and decrees that are over the top. He is arrogance personified, the ultimate blowhard and bonehead.

Seven months ago, the moment I came to realize as a result of retranslating and reconsidering Isaiah 11 regarding the Choter / Secondary Branch being the Parah | Productive Bull and Yasha*yah 17 with the Zarowa | One Cultivating the remaining harvests serving as the Adamah Parah on Taruw*ah, that with the 14th chapter affirming that Halal ben Shachar would claim to be God, I realized that Satan would deploy his minions to kill me. Turns out, I was correct, even if it would require some time to recognize the human manifestation of the Adversary.

In this narrative, the Horn is the old man and blabbermouth with the wild hair who is issuing a plethora of executive orders to rule the world. The chywah | life that is slain is executed by the old blowhard, who we now know is a demon-possessed Donald Trump. It is “he” who takes “her” life, recognizing that both adamah* and Parah are feminine nouns.

The reason that “showers” are seen associated with my corpse is that Yahowah will be releasing torrents of water to cleanse the mortal remnant of Yisra*el gathered at this time. And all the while, my executed and irreparably damaged body will be burned by fire in the manner explained in Numbers 19 and as rehearsed previously by ElYah* 2,888 years previously when condemning Israel's propensity to be religious and political.

This is the sacrifice known as that of the Red Heifer which will prepare the Adulterous Woman of Israel to be purged of her religious guilt so that she can be betrothed to her returning King Dowd. As for the Donald and the spirit controlling him, neither will die, but will instead endure an eternity in She^{*}owl.

As verification that these conclusions are correct...

"Then the remnant (wa sha^{}ar* – the remainder of the whole left in the end) of those living (chywah), their political dominion and authority, especially sovereignty (shaltan) ceased and was annulled (adah himow* – was removed) so that their lives (wa ba chayym) could continue and be prolonged (arkah* – could be extended).

She was offered and given on their behalf (yahab la himow – she was entrusted as payment (piel perfect third-person feminine singular)) as a restoring witness (ad* – as far as eternity as everlasting testimony regarding being passed over) for a period of time at the appointed time (zaman – as an occurrence set in time in the right season which had been appointed, agreed to, and decided previously) of year (idan*)."
(Dany^{}el* / My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns / Daniel 7:12)

When we come to know Yahowah's plans from beginning to end, the riddles that have bewildered so many are solved and we can celebrate the result. The adamah Parah* | Bloody Red Man as the Productive Bull will extend the lives of the mortal remnant of Israel. Stripped of their political guilt, their souls will be purged and their lives extended, continuing during the one-thousand-year celebration of Sukah as we return to the Garden. As for those who remain religious, they won't make the cut and will be discarded as unsalvageable.

Consistent with Yahowah's plan, the Red Heifer will be sacrificed on Taruw^{}ah, sunrise on Saturday September 24th, year 6000 Yah. The Adamah Parah is offered as a gift, entrusted as a restoring witness to Passover, all to prolong the lives of those now gathered around the Temple Mount. It is the right time, the appointed time, the moment God and man have agreed to meet for this purpose.

Trump is a reincarnation of Paul with his pathetic and twisted, irrational appeal, replete with Paul's psychotic personality and trash mouth, always ready to stroke his own ego while demeaning his foes. He is not just disparaging, he's murderous. And now rather than giving lip service to the counterfeit of Iesou Christou | Jesus Christ, Donald Trump will demand to be worshiped as a god while destroying what is God's.

This will be celebrated by right-wing Israelis and Magas alike. They aren't going to challenge him or defend themselves against him. Muslims are going to cheer on the Denizen of the Devil as well. Emboldened, he's going to take my life after nine years of taunting and condemning him. But even in this, Trump will be eviscerating himself.

And so, it isn't the Towrahless One whose body will die, but mine ~ and by design and intent. Trump and his accomplice won't be that fortunate because they will be condemned, then incarcerated in She*owl. And as for me, it will be the greatest funeral of all time, staged prominently on the Temple Mount. *Elyah will be the Master of Ceremonies. God will be in attendance as will be the entire Covenant Family. Yahowah will have brought this final non-religious and apolitical remnant of His people to Yaruwshalaim for the sacrifice of the *Adamah Parah on Taruw*ah. Yahowah will release the showers and light the fires as the Greatest Show on Earth extends the lives of Yisra*elites and Yahuwdym.

This is the fulfillment of Bamidbar 19 on behalf of Numbers 5. The Red Heifer prepares the Adulterous Women for her returning groom ~ none other than the Messiah and Son of God, our returning King.

We are now moving into the continuation and grand culmination of this revelation. In it, we find Yahowah celebrating His Homecoming with His beloved Son, Dowd. And with these additional revelations, we have all of the answers required to complete this puzzle. Albeit, since no one has figured it out until now, he did so without giving too much away. Therefore, in context...

Next, I beheld eyes like the eyes of a human, a mortal man, that were associated with this horn, this person of political status and influence, and a mouth uttering a great many things. (Dany^{el} 7:8) As I was looking (chazah hawah^{ad}), it was then that (dy) the seats of power (karse^o) were repositioned (ramah).

The really one old who was advanced in days (atyq yowmym*) sat down (yathyb). His clothing (lebuwsh huw^{}*) was white as snow (ka talag hiwar). And the hair of his head (*wa se^{ar} re^{sh} huw^{}*) was like the hair of a goat, but clean (*ka amar nage^o). His esteemed seat (karse^o huw^{}*) was particularly flashy (shabyb) because of its illuminated wheels, burning and glistening (dy nuwr galgal huw^{} nuwr dalaq*). (Dany^{el} 7:9)

A shimmering stream (nachar dy nuwr) flowed (nagad – was conspicuous), appearing before him (wa naphaq min qodam huw^{}*), with several thousand (alaph alaphym) attending to him as if he were the sun (shemesh huw^{}*). However, many, many more, some tens of thousands (wa ribow ribowym), rose up and stood (quwm) to judge, condemn, and convict (dyn) those who were seated (yathab). So then the written records, files, and documents (saphar) were opened (pathach).” (Dany^{el} 7:10)

I continued to look, and it came to be (hawah chazah) that out of (*ba adayn min) the voice (qal) of the Horn, this political blowhard and bonehead (dy qeren), a great many boastful words, arrogant decrees, big decisions, egotistical demands, and conceited edicts (milah rab) were spoken (malal).

As I kept watching, I came to realize (hawah chazah °ad) that a life of someone, as if an animal (dy chywah), was slain and literally executed (qatal). The body was showered in rain (geshem hy), irreparably damaged and completely destroyed (abad). So it was given (wa yahab) to be burned by fire as an offering (*la yaqedah esha°). (Dany°el 7:11)

Then the remnant (*wa sha*ar*) of those living (chywah) had their political dominion and authority, even their sovereignty (shaltan) removed and annulled (°adah himow) so that their lives (wa ba chayym) could continue and be prolonged and extended (arkah*). She (the Adamah Parah*) was offered on their behalf (yahab la himow) as a restoring witness (°ad) at the appointed time (zaman) of year (idan*). (Dany°el 7:12)

I continued to be observant of (hawah chazah – I was seeing and perceiving, thus witnessing) the things associated with the supernatural revelation (ba chazuw – the vision communicated through sensory perceptions) during the night and darkness (*lyly a – when there was no light).

Then behold (*wa aruw – now, drawing attention to what can be seen while emphasizing the transition being described): accompanied by (im* – in association with and within) clouds (°anan – a visible mass of water vapor; from °anan – to make an appearance) from the heavens (shamayn – of the sky above and even toward the spiritual realm), the one looking like (ka – the one corresponding with and similar to) the Son of Man (*bar enash – a son who is human) came, arriving in this place (athah hawah* – was revealed, made known, and was brought here).

Meanwhile, the Restoring Witness (wa °ad – so then the Eternal and Restoring Witness), now older by a number of days (atyq yowmym*), approached, reaching out as he was extended from the source to be present (*mata) before him, because he was offered as a sacrifice to approach him (wa qadam huw qarab huw).” (Danyel / Daniel 7:13)

These words are painting a picture of the most important moment in time. After the Adamah Parah* is slain by the Adversary’s Accomplice, sacrificing his body so that the lives of the mortal remnant of *Yisra*el* are prolonged on *Taruw*ah*, Yahowah will shower his corpse with water while igniting the flames that will refine His people so that they can approach His Son. Upon this dawn, the darkness will end. The era of eternal enlightenment will begin.

Our King will descend from the heavens upon a cloud as brilliant as the sun. The son of a man, manifest as the Son of God, is returning to his place, the City of Dowd in Yaruwshalaim. His home is Yahuwdah, now reunited as part of *Yisra*el*.

Mission Accomplished.

The reason the Son of God is accompanied by clouds is because Dowd is now elyown* | like God among us, and nearly as brilliant. He is the Greater Luminary. And so, on the occasion of the *Mow*ed*, as foretold during Creation and retold at the conclusion of the 89th Mizmowr, the sun and moon are united. As our King returns Home to Mowryah in Yaruwshalaim, he will be accompanied by his Basar | Herald, the Ad* | Restoring Witness who has been chosen and prepared to reflect his brilliance.

While just ten days older, spent in Shamaym, it may play out like a prolonged Sabbatical. And now, to support his King, Yada will be extended from the Source so that he is present, also enjoying all that has been accomplished. What’s more, Yada will be Dowd’s best man at the wedding of a restored *Yisra*el* and her King.

Before we consider what Danyel saw next, I have yet another insight I’d like to share. Dowd will be descending from the Heavens, where his soul would have been incorporeal, *ka bar enash | appearing like a son and a man. This is significant because it means that while we are on Earth camping out with our Heavenly Father during the millennial celebration of Sukah, our souls will reside in physical bodies. Although, they will obviously be remarkably enabled in that we will be able to defy gravity, as Dowd is now doing. Even better, we will be able to transition between Heaven and Earth at will, which is what we are witnessing with Yada leaving the body of the *Adamah Parah behind as he ascends to Shamaym and then return as the Restoring Witness to serve as best man for Dowd's wedding. Very cool.

Since Yahowah told us that this would be so in Shamuw^oel and in the Mizmowr, we know that this is addressing the Messiah and Son of God, our King, the Beloved, Dowd / David...

“And to him (*wa la huw – so regarding his approach) was given (yahab – was bestowed and entrusted) dominion (shalatan – power, authorization, and capability, authority over the government), glorious dignity and honor (wa yaqar – esteem, value, and an especially high status), indeed, sovereignty over the kingdom (wa malkuw – authorized royal reign).

Then, the entire family, all people, including every ethnicity (*wa kol *am umah – all people of all races) and language (wa lishan – linguistic form of communication, tongue, and dialect), to him, near, beside, and with him (*la huw), they will respectfully serve as they have been cultivated, cut in, and brought forth to work (palach – will revere and honor, ministering).

His governmental dominion and sovereign authority (shalatan huw – his right to lead and rule) is an everlasting (owlam – is an eternal and never-ending) authorization and empowerment (shalatan) that will never be taken away (*dy la^o adah – which will never cease, be annulled, or repealed).

His kingdom and kingship (*malkuw huw – his sovereign authority and reign) will never wane (dy la°chabal – will never be diminished in status or cease to exist).” (Dany°el / God Judges and Vindicates / Daniel 7:14)

What an honor it is to present this narrative on the coronation of the Son of God. What a distinction it is to serve alongside the greatest to have ever lived. And most of all, I am happy for our King because for the first time he will be respected by every Covenant Member, every Yisra°elite, and all the peoples of the Earth. He has earned our respect and this universal recognition of what he has achieved is long overdue.

And while it may mean nothing to anyone else, since I have surmised that one of the reasons Dowd volunteered to fulfill Pesach and Matsah was that, by doing so, he would earn the respect needed to successfully govern the universe, this conclusion has been proven correct. Prior to this, Yahowah and Moseh, indeed, all of the Prophets, had been rebuked and dismissed by the Children of Yisra°el. So this is a momentous achievement.

Everyone remaining alive on Earth, without exception, will have been spared because of what our King has achieved for our benefit. And his Father is proud of His Firstborn. Therefore, as is the Sovereign’s right, God will cede authority to His Son. And nothing will ever alter Yahowah’s devotion and favoritism toward His Beloved.

This revelation has been extraordinary. It has taken us from the Shabuw°ah Harvest through Kipurym and past Sukah to beyond evermore. We have been guided through the Time of Trouble and have witnessed the arrival of the Witnesses. We have met the corporeal manifestation of the Adversary and have been able to date his political arrival and religious decree, even identify him as the worst among us – Donald Trump. And we now have confirmation that he will brutally slaughter the *Adamah Parah. Thereupon, his body will be showered with water and consumed in flames, all to prepare the final remnant of Israel for our King's return.

Throughout this prophecy, Yahowah has been holding His cards close to His chest, revealing just enough for us to eventually figure it out without giving too much away – at least too soon. And yet, here we are on the cusp of the Shabuwa^h Harvest, and even closer to the imposition of a terrorist state gouged out of Israel by this demon-possessed man, such that all of the remaining pieces of the puzzle have fallen into place.

Daniel's subsequent vision ends well, but fair warning, portions of the revelation are horrific. It would have been unsettling for this captive in Babylon, surviving as he was in the womb of the Beast. Human history was going to be red in tooth and claw. It was painful even for the spirit of God to witness...

“The spirit, independent of me, was distressed and disappointed in me, pained and sorrowful regarding me (*karah ruwach *anah anah – She was grieved and dissatisfied about me, and apprehensive, and unhappy with me (in the itpel perfect in Aramaic, the spirit was grieving independent of Dany^{el})).

As for me, Dany^{el} (anah Dany^{el}*), inside of me (ba gaw nidnah – concealed internally as if a sheath for a sword), the revelations (chazuw – the appearance of the visions) in my mind (*re^{sh} anah – my head) were disturbing and troubling to me, terrifying me (*bahal anah – were frightening to me, alarming and dismaying to me).” (Dany^{el} / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 7:15)

It does not appear that the ruwach | spirit liked Daniel very much. And if she was as repulsed by this vestige of Babylon as this confession conveys, then both Gabry^{el} / Dowd and Myka^{el} / Yada concur with her. Up to this point, and well beyond since nothing will change, all Dany^{el} managed to contribute was to serve as a scribe. He never understood anything presented or said to him. And in this way, Daniel represents Israel, as God's people remain deaf, dumb, and blind, completely incapable of appreciating what the Prophets have explained and foretold. To this day, Yahuwdym not only remain mired in Babel, particularly with their Babylonian Talmud, they are clueless. Just as they were during the Exodus, Yisra^el is a disappointment to God, grieving and distressing the Almighty.

This is likely why the ruwach | spirit was presented in the itpel stem, pronouncing her independence. God's disappointment was as much with Dany^el as it was with all that he would see. And one of the reasons we know this to be the case is that the previous revelation concluded magnificently ~ at the happiest moment since Creation.

While not designated here as such for obvious reasons, elsewhere we are told that the Spirit is qodesh | set apart, meaning that the ruwach is a part of Yahowah set apart from Him to serve us. Likewise, the son, Dowd, is also qodesh | distinct and uncommon, different from others, especially as the only man to be a Ra^ah | Shepherd, Mashyach | Anointed Messiah, Melek | King, Ben ^eElohyim | Son of God, Tsemach | Branch, Zarowa^e | Sacrificial lamb, Naby^{}* | Prophet, Bachar | Chosen One, and Bakowr | Firstborn of the Covenant.

I do not know why Dany^el was so terrified by what he had seen, especially since he didn't understand any of it. My response was exactly the opposite, as I found all of this reassuring. And this contrast is particularly remarkable since I'm the guy being bludgeoned to death by Satan. I love knowing where we are headed and understanding how we are going to get from here to there. Nothing surpasses being part of God's story and serving to make happily ever after more enjoyable for everyone.

At this point, it appears as if Myka^el is making another appearance, this time as Yada. If so, Dany^el is hoping that he will be able to explain some of what he has seen...

“I approached (qareb – I came closer) toward the one particular individual (al chad* – in the direction of a certain and unique person) from among those raised up, appointed, and standing (min quwm – out of those assigned, arisen, set up, and established on the scene), and I requested, seeking (wa ba^{ah} – I asked, attempting to discover) from him (min huw^{}*) that which was certain, accurate, and true (wa yatsyb – clarity with certainty, a valid affirmation of the meaning, such that this was all set in the proper place, time, and people) regarding all of this (al kol danah*)."

And so, he said to me (*wa *amar la anah), explaining and interpreting (wa pashar) these things, affairs, and narratives (milah – of these matters, rationally elucidating the words), with Yada trying to help me know, recognize, acknowledge, and understand (*yada^o anah – clarifying the meaning to me so that I would be informed like Yada and could explain (with the hafel stem, Yada is engaging with Daniel such that he becomes more like him in knowledge and understanding, third-person masculine singular energetic nun))." (Dany^{el} / My God Judges / Daniel 7:16)

As we have discovered by jumping ahead to the 12th chapter, there are three individuals who have traveled through time to convey these profoundly important prophecies to the world through this man. They are Gabry^{el} | God's Most Capable and Courageous Man who is Dowd, the Messiah and King, Myka^{el} | One Who is Right about God, also known as Yada | One Who Knows, and eLyah* | Yahowah is God. These men are not only on stage during the fulfilment of Taruw^{ah} and Kipurym, they are the only ones with three lives.

In this case, the one providing elucidating interpretations to Dany^{el} was depicted in the verb, yada^o – which is not only my God-given name, but is also incorporated into every book I've composed in my collaboration with the Almighty ~ Yada Yahowah. Throughout, my purpose has been to present and explain the word of God. And in the process, no one has revealed more profoundly important and previously unknown insights. I most certainly have my faults, but when it comes to explaining and interpreting Yahowah's testimony, buttressed by His Seven Spirits, and steadfastly devoted to the cause, I'm as capable as they come. This should already be abundantly apparent.

Typically, the prophet explains what he has witnessed and then adds his response if appropriate. It is uncommon for the conduits of prophetic narratives to grope for answers – as is Daniel's situation. However, we not only have every reason to perceive him as representing Israel and, therefore, overtly religious and political, he isn't the prophet. Gabry*el, Myka*el, and *ElYah are serving in that role. Dany*el is the scribe. And that was sufficient because this sweeping revelation was broad in scope and complex in its transitions. And it wasn't narrated to be understood until we were ready to reveal the 'Antichrist' in the days, weeks, and months of his betrayal of Israel through the "Two-State Solution." Yahowah always intended for me to figure it out for you at precisely this moment.

On issues fundamental to our relationship with Him, Yahowah is considerably more forthright and transparent, a brilliant, consistent, and thorough communicator. When we shamar towrah | closely examine His guidance and carefully consider His teaching, we move readily from knowing to understanding regarding the Beryth and Mow*edym. But most of what we are discovering here would not have been of benefit to anyone prior to the immediacy of the Shabuw*ah Harvest and the Time of Troubles.

This particular episode is about how the Babylonians influenced the Persians, and how their institutionalized religion and governance metastasized among the Greeks and Romans, and was finally projected through the Catholic Church. And these were not random empires because they would all persecute God's People.

“These great and powerful beasts (ilyn chywah rab* – these extensive animals), which are four in number, represent four (*dy *inuwn *arba °arba °) governments and their leaders*

(melekyn – kings, heads of state, counselors and advisors), which will arise (quwm – which will come into existence, be established, and rise up) from the Earth (*min ara – out of the world).” (Dany^eel / Daniel 7:17)

Thank you, Captain Obvious. The chywah rab | massive beasts are melekyn | large governments and their egotistical and despotic leaders. This known, had this been written in Hebrew, the distinction between erets* | land and then either tebel | world, adamah* | ground, or yam | sea might have provided some additional direction. However, in Aramaic as ara*, it can mean “earth, world, inhabited places, ground, nation, country, or even universe.”

By contrast to human contrivances, especially the biggest and baddest of them...

“However (wa), the Set-Apart Ones (qadysh – the uniquely separated and distinct ones, those who are uncommon and thus not religious or political) of the Most High (elyown* – of God, the Almighty and Uppermost) will receive the honor and distinction, even the gift (qabal – they will be royalty) of the kingdom and of sovereign power (malkuw – of reigning as kings and becoming royalty, with dignity and dominion).

And they will inherit and possess (wa chasan – they will receive a transfer of ownership and benefit from reigning and ruling with royal authority, overcoming to occupy while accepting possession, being empowered and enriched by) the kingdom and reign royalty (malkuw – with dignity and dominion, having sovereign power and authority) throughout eternity, advancing as a result of the Restoring Witness forevermore (ad *alam wa *ad *alam alam).” (Dany^eel / God Judges and Vindicates / Daniel 7:18)

Therefore, this will be a marvelous, indeed, empowering and emancipating, tremendously enriching rendition of a monarchy. Yes, Dowd is king, but we are all royalty. Yes, Dowd is the firstborn, but we, too, will receive an inheritance beyond our imagination. This is Father’s and Son’s gift to the Covenant Family.

It has always been intuitively evident that the Members of the Covenant, as Children of God, are royalty, inheriting everything our Heavenly Father has to offer. As the Creator of the universe and Author of life, in addition to being God Almighty, the rewards are empowering and enriching, to say the least. But here, Yahowah is revealing that, as His sons and daughters, we become akin to kings and queens relative to our rights and responsibilities. We become coregents over the universe. This also means that Dowd as our King is King of the world.

Therefore, while these beasts may seem deadly and intimidating, they are nothing compared to a single Covenant member. They will be less than the dust on our shoes.

For further clarification, Yahowah revealed the identity of His Qadowsh | Set-Apart in His Towrah | Teaching. In Shemowth / Names / Exodus 19:1-6, we find God specifically addressing ha beyth Ya'aqob | the family of Ya'aqob and ha ben Yisra'el | the Children who Engage and Endure with God, and He said...

“During the third month (ba ha chodesh ha shalyshy) of withdrawing (*la yatsa) the Children of Yisra'el (beny Yisra'el) away from (min) the realm of religious and political oppression (erets mitsraym*), in that day (ba ha yowm ha zeh), they entered into (*bow) the place the word is pondered (midbar) of Syny | the Sign held by My Hand (Syny). (Shemowth 19:1)

They set out, moving on (*wa nasa) from Raphydym | Being Comforted and Supported (min Raphydym) and they came to the place to consider the word (wa bow midbar*) of Syny | for the Sign Given to My Children by My Hand (Syny). Then they camped out (wa chanah) to contemplate the word (ba ha midbar). There, Yisra'el set up a campsite (wa chanah sham Yisra'el) before (neged) the mountain (ha har) (Shemowth 19:2) while Moseh | the One who Draws Out (*wa Mosheh) ascended unto (alah el) the Almighty (*ha elohym).

So (wa), Yahowah (YaHoWaH) called out to him, inviting and welcoming him (qara *el huw) from the mountain (min ha har), saying (amar*), ‘This is what you should say (*koh amar) to the Family of Ya•aqob (la beyth Ya•aqob). Tell the Children of Yisra*el (wa), (Shemowth 19:3) “You, yourselves, have witnessed (atem ra*ah*) what, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), I did to (asah la*) Mitsraym | the tyrants within the Crucibles of Political and Religious Oppression (Mitsraym) and how I lifted you up (wa nasa *eth atem) upon the wings of eagles (al kanaph neshar*) and I brought you to Myself (wa bow *eth *atem *el any). (Shemowth 19:4)

And so now (*wa atah), if (im*) you genuinely, consistently, and demonstrably listen to (shama shama) My voice (*ba qowl any) and (wa) closely examine and carefully consider (shamar) that which is associated with (eth*) My Beryth | Family-Oriented Covenant Agreement (*Beyth any), then (wa) you will be (hayah) able to approach Me and be with Me (*la any) as a highly valued, set-apart, protected, and treasured commodity (sagulah), distinct and separated from (min) all other people (*kol ha am) even though (ky) the entire Earth (*kol ha erets) is Mine (*la any). (Shemowth 19:5)

Then you, yourselves, shall actually and continually exist as (*wa atem hayah) a realm of ministerial messengers and counselors (mamlakah kohen), and a people of different ethnicities (wa gowy) who are Qadowsh | Set Apart (qadowsh).

These are (el-eh*) the words and statements (ha dabar) which, to show the way to the benefits of the relationship (asher*), you should continually speak to (*dabar el) Yisra*el | the Children who Engage and Endure with God (*beny Yisra*el*).””” (Shemowth / Names / Exodus 19:6)

The Set Apart represent the Covenant’s Children. Initially, they were almost exclusively the descendants of Ya•aqob and, thus, Yisra*elites. Today, there are Gowy included in their number. However, let there be no mistake, the qadysh in Aramaic and qadowsh in Hebrew are neither “saints,” “Christians,” nor “Haredim” but, instead, Ya^oaqob’s extended family, children who have chosen to engage and endure with God. This becomes possible by listening to Yahowah’s voice and by closely examining and carefully considering the terms and conditions of His Covenant. As Yahowah’s children, we are immortal and perfected sons and daughters of God, enriched and empowered heirs to all that is His to give. And that is why the Almighty’s set-apart ones inherit His Kingdom and are entrusted with royal authority.

While the Covenant’s Children will outlive civilizations, the rise and fall of infamous individuals, maniacal nations, and evil institutions is a meaningful discussion because of the carnage they will have inflicted. They not only shaped the human experience, their religions, militaries, and politics ravaged the Chosen People.

“Then, therefore (adayn*), I wanted (tsabah – I desired) to be certain (la yatsab) regarding (al*) the fourth (raby^oay) monstrous beast (chywah) which was different in the way it changed (dy hawah shanah – was in another class and then transformed) from all of the others (min kol kol). It was awesomely formidable and exceedingly terrifying (yatyr dachal – it was exceptionally dreadful and extraordinarily terrorizing, invoking both respect and fear similar to a venomous, creepy, and threatening snake).

Its teeth (shen hy^{}*) were akin to iron (dy parzel – appear invincible) and its claws (wa taphar hy^{}* – nails which are instruments of destruction) were of bronze (dy nachash – comprised of a composite reddish metal) as it devoured (akal* – as it devastated and consumed) and crushed (daqaq – and smashed, shattering and pulverizing) the rest (sha^{}ar* – the remainder) by violently trampling (raphas – destroying and ruining) with its feet (ba ragal – in its footsteps).” (Dany^eel / God is My Means to Judge / Daniel 7:19)

Rome and its Church would be as Yahowah foretold, Yisra*el's most formidable and terrifying foe. They would prey on Yahuwdym with iron teeth and bronze claws, devouring God's people. As for the rest of the world, they would trample them underfoot as well, imposing its religion as the most vicious, covetous, and deadly force the world would ever see.

Rome and its Church shared much in common with Babylon – while also being markedly different. Both were overtly religious. Both were arrogant and vicious. Both enslaved the Chosen People. Both destroyed the Temple. Both live on, continuing to influence the world in horrible ways.

By contrast, Romans were copy artists; while Babylon was the birthplace of religion, Rome cleverly modified and then institutionalized the Grecian interpretation of Babylon's lies, while the Church distributed the resulting deception around the world. One was deadly for a short time in a reasonably small place, while Rome conquered the Mediterranean and oppressed most of Europe. The subjugation spread worldwide under the crushing force of Roman Catholicism. They would even admit to the scope of their crime: "Catholic," from the Latin catholicus and Greek katholikos, meaning "universal." Therefore, Babylon deceived and damned millions, and Rome billions.

Also different, and important, Babylon was crushed by the Persians, the Persians were conquered by the Greeks, and the Greeks were defeated by the Romans. But there was no fifth Beast because Rome did not die but, instead, evolved into the Roman Catholic Church. And even then, there would be other transformations as the Holy Roman Empire briefly became the Third Reich, only to then evolve from war-torn Europe into the European Union.

As we proceed, while in the Aramaic text, *hy is "she or its" because it refers to the qeren | horn, since we were told previously that this fellow was an old man with weird hair and a foul mouth, I've replaced "its" with "his" throughout.

"And also (wa) concerning (al) the ten horns, these political blowhards and boneheads (ashar qeren) who were in his head in the beginning (*dy ba re*sh hy – which were in his mind), there was another in the end (*wa achoran – then also a different one that came later following that time) who arose and was lifted up (dy salaq – who ascended and got carried away with one’s thoughts and ambitions). And so, they fell (wa naphal – they groveled and bowed) as before (min qodam) these three (hy talath*).

And this horn that had eyes and a mouth (*wa qeren diken wa*ayn la hy* wa pum*), he spoke profusely and arrogantly (malal rab – he conversed powerfully, using many big words in long speeches).

And (wa) by appearances (chazuw), he was greater in status (hy rab* – it was more powerful and far-reaching, claiming a higher status) than his associates who had joined in and formed a league with him (*min chabrah hy – than those who were charmed making a compact with it).” (*Dany*el* / God Judges and Vindicates / Daniel 7:20)

It is a curious thing. Judea was bludgeoned by Rome’s Legions for two centuries. Even after the destruction of their nation, the Yisra*elites would be persecuted by Roman politicians and terrorized by her Church for millennia. But Imperial Rome and the Roman Catholic Church would spawn something worse still: ten nations would arise out of this Beast to torment Yahuwdym again during the Time of Trouble.

Yahowah only speaks of Gowym when Gentiles are influencing Yisra*elites. Otherwise, He is uninterested in Middle Eastern and European politics, wars, and religions. Therefore, not only are Rome and Roman Catholicism to be seen as vicious monsters, in the exceedingly unlikely event that these horns are nations rather than people, then the anti-Semitic top ten emerging from Imperial Rome in Italy, might be: Spain, France, England, Germany, Austria/Hungary, the Balkans, Greece, Turkey, Syria, and Egypt. And if just the Holy Roman Empire is to spawn them, then it is Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Netherlands, Switzerland, Liechtenstein, Italy, France, and Poland.

If addressing ten nations to initially emerge out of Imperial Rome and those Christianized by the reign of Theodosius, when the Empire became the Church, they would include: Italy, Spain, Gaul (France), Britain, Pannoniae (Austria / Hungary), Moesiae (the 8 countries carved out of Yugoslavia), Thrace (Bulgaria and Romania), Asia Minor (Turkey), Syria, and Egypt. Germany has now been excluded because it was not under Roman control. Also, the strip of land was so thin along the Mediterranean Coast of Northern Africa, these territories cannot be ascribed to a country either.

These things considered, I don't think any of it matters. These bone head blowhards are far more likely modern politicians. After all, the same egomaniac horn with the big mouth and odd comb-over goatish hair is presented as a man rising above the others. This being the case, his partners in crime against Israel would include Keir Starmer of the UK, Emmanuel Macron of France, Friedrich Merz of Germany, Giorgia Meloni of Italy, Mark Carney of Canada, Recep Erdogan of Turkey, Mohammad bin Salman of Saudi Arabia, Tamim bin Al Thani of Qatar, even Ahmed al-Sharaa of Syria, and possibly, Mohamed bin Al Nahyan of the UAE since he has invested heavily in Trump and has been remarkably influential.

Since I think that this confab of belligerents will contribute to the imposition of an Islamic State carved out of Israel, there is the possibility of Abdel el-Sisi of Egypt or Pope Leo XIV replacing one or two of the less formidable names on the list. And since this does not specify whether the worst of them as the Devil's Advocate will be one of the ten or another besides them, the Lunatic's League could be comprised of nine or ten others.

Also, the three who fall could be a reference to those who are the most subservient to Trump or those Trump cuts off at the knees. With him, it's always germane to realize that he does not play well with others and is quick to devour anyone who is even perceived to be disloyal. If looking for the three most likely to grovel at Trump's feet for crumbs off his table, consider Macron, Starmer, and Carney. If looking for those most prone to be eaten alive and expendable, you could add al-Sharaa, Mertz, or Maloni to the previous list. I suspect that we will have an even more definitive accounting following the Islamic State Confab headlined by Macron and MBS in New York the last week of July. There, Trump's sponsors on behalf of the betrayal of Israel will be solidified as will be the names of those promoting the Donald, now called "Dad" by the faithful, for his coveted Nobel Prize.

Based on what we have read, the name of the Towrahless One has become obvious. And while it is important that we have identified him at this time, and before he betrays Israel, what matters even more than this is his agenda, which is to make Israel indefensible through the imposition of an Islamic State gouged out of the nation's core. After which time, he will renege on the promises of security because his prime objective is to be worshiped as God. And he will go even further and impose exceedingly harsh penalties upon those who remain critical of his egomaniacal antics.

Once of the reasons that Yahowah sent Gabry^el and Myka^el to meet with Dany^el in Babel is because He wants us to know how and when the events at the commencement and conclusion of the Time of Trouble will play out since so much is at stake – quite literally the fulfillment of His promises, the completion of the Mow^eedym, the restoration of His people, and the return of His Son. Further, by providing all of this detailed information 2600 years in advance, God proves that He is divine and that He inspired the resulting witness. In a world of lies and liars, we can confidently trust and rely upon what Yahowah has proven to be accurate. This means we can learn from His prophetic revelations, capitalizing upon the prolific teaching and guidance recorded within them.

There are still other reasons for this sweeping presentation of history beginning with Babylon and concluding within 99 months of this writing. As a good Father, Yahowah wants His children prepared to face whatever is headed their way – including rebuking the man poised to betray Israel. Had they trusted Him sooner, they would have known that the institutionalizing of religion and its integration into politics, militarism, and the caste system in Babylon would haunt them as these things migrated through Persia and Greece into Imperial and Catholic Rome – into Christianity and Judaism.

Had they paid attention, Yahuwdym would have been forewarned to avoid conflict with Rome. They would have stopped Christianity from emerging by exposing and condemning Paul and the false claims made of ha Mashyach | the Messiah, Dowd. And even now, they would be on the lookout for the blowhards and boneheads who are in the process of turning against them. And they would have been equipped to rebuke the Towrahless One instead of supporting him as most Israelis are presently doing.

Time is running out. This is evil's last hurrah. Yahowah has long been aware that His people's backs are going to have to be pushed up against the wall with threats of another Holocaust before He is going to garner their attention. The religious and political are so distant and defiant, He needs to break through their shrill voices to call the remainder of His people home before it is too late.

“I continued looking (hawah chazah – I remained observant and kept focused so that I might see), and this particular horn and political blowhard (wa qeren diken) was engaged in war (abad qarab* – she (as in the qeren | horn) carried out battles and fought, even profited from and celebrated the conflict, drawing near and approaching) against (im* – in proximity to) the Set-Apart Ones (qadysh – the separated and special, the uncommon and unique, the distinct and neither religious nor political).

And he was prevailing over them (wa yakil la himow – so (the qeren | horn) was overwhelming them and overcoming them) (Dany^{el} 7:21) until the Restoring Witness (ad* – up to the point of the eternal testimony, which is why) who was long in days (*dy athyq yowmym – who was reasonably old) came (athah* – he was fetched, arrived, and succeeded (peal perfect third-person masculine singular)) such that he provided (wa yahab – he gave, offering the gift (peil perfect third-person masculine singular)) judgment and justice (wa dyn – he resolved the dispute, pleading the case for and vindicating) to the Set-Apart Ones (la qadysh – to those who were separated and special, for the uncommon and unique, the distinct and, thus, neither religious nor political) of the Most High (elyown* – the Almighty [note: Yahowah refers to Dowd as the Elyown* upon his return]).

And at the specific appointed time of this occurrence (wa zaman – the set and established point in the appropriate season), he reached out and was extended, approaching and present (*matsa – he was attained and arrived for the express purpose of association and relationship through this meeting) so that (wa) the Set-Apart Ones (qadysh – the uniquely separated and pure who possess Divine attributes) could inherit and become royalty (chasan – could take possession of, and exercise familial authority), with sovereignty and kingship (malkuw – in the kingdom and right to reign, the realm and dominion).” (Dany^{el} / God is My Means to Decide / Daniel 7:22)

The text is continuing to make it apparent that the belligerents are bad people and not rogue nations. The loudest and meanest horn is a demon-possessed madman. And in this case, he is targeting the Set-Apart, which, at this stage would be Yahuwdym and Yisra^{el} elites as opposed to Covenant Members, because it’s the mortal remnant of Israel who will remain and be susceptible, while God’s Family has been protected and removed, with most taken home on Shabuw^{ah} and the last withdrawn from the planet on Taruw^{ah} eve.

During the Time of Ya^aqob’s Troubles, the primary targets of disinformation and desolation will be Jews. It’s going to be as foretold in Ezekiel’s macabre portrayal of 25 ways to kill a Jew. Two of every three will succumb as the promises of protection subside and condemnation ensues.

Trump's wars will not be limited to Al Aqsa Flood 2.0 in Israel, but it will also include escalating battles against Russia and China. The man who lost to the Houthis will double down on defeat, destroying not only Israel, but America with it. But in this case, the victims will have no one but themselves to blame. It has long been obvious that Trump is an unmitigated disaster, and yet both nations revere the man betraying them.

As for this war, Yasha*yah and Yow*el both speak of it. The invading militants are terrorists, and they will flood into Israel in such numbers the hills will crawl with them, looking like waves, with too many jihadists to count. They will invade Jewish homes, crawling through the windows, with the carnage being unmatched in human history ~ far worse than the atrocities perpetrated by Muslims on October 7th, 2023.

The only one standing between Israel and the Hell Trump is bringing upon them is Yahowah's Restoring Witness. He may be long in days, but prior preparation required an enormous investment in learning – all of which takes time. Further, when it comes to drawing His people out from harm's way, God has a propensity for more mature individuals ~ choosing Moseh when he was eighty. At seventy-eight, I'll be done two years before Moseh began.

It is also revealing that the weapon the Restoring Witness wields to protect the mortal remnant of Yisra*el is good judgment. It has always been what Yahuwdym have lacked in their approach to Yahowah. Sound thinking is the cure for all that has ailed the Chosen People. But it begs the question: with an answer this direct and obvious, why does it take a goway to deliver it?

Since God is careful about what He says, there is no chance that the substitution of the vastly less common *elyown was used here at this time and place as opposed to *el or *elohym. And the reason should be obvious. Yahowah uses *elyown to describe

His Son Dowd upon his return with Him as King. This means, that one of the reasons the Restoring Witness's thinking turns out to be healing is that he is aware of God's affinity for His Firstborn. This also means that Dowd's fulfillment of Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym contribute to the salvation of Yisra^{*el} and his return as King protects the remaining remnant.

All of this will transpire at the appointed time, with these occurrences playing out most demonstrably on Taruw^{*ah} and Kipurym in year 6000 Yah / September 23rd through October 2nd in 2033. These two men are presented as gifts from God, Yada here and Dowd elsewhere. And because Myka^{*el} has reunited Yisra^{*el} with Gabry^{*el} the mortal remnant are royalty. With the Adulterous Woman purged of her religious and political guilt, she is betrothed to our returning King, such that we are all co-sovereigns. And since Dowd is Yahowah's Firstborn Son, this comes with the ultimate inheritance.

Indeed, while malkuw can be rendered "kingdom," its primary connotations speak of "sovereignty and kingship," of being "granted the right to reign within the realm." And this distinction is important because, while the kingdom belongs to Dowd, we are being afforded free rein, the opportunity to be coregents, and thus retain our freewill.

“Therefore, this being so (ken – it follows and can be reasonably deduced),’ he said (amar*), ‘for the fourth (*raby^{ay}) beast (chywah – awesome animal; from chaya^{}* – living being) a fourth sovereign power (*raby^{ay} malkuw) will exist (hawah) on the Earth (*ba ^{ara^{}}*), such that, it will be different, especially in its evolution and transformation as it changes from (dy shanah min) all the other sovereign powers (kol malkuw).

It will devour, devastating (*wa ^{akal} – it will consume, feeding upon and corrupting) the entire Earth (*kol ^{ara^{}}*), treading on it and trampling it down, destroying it (wa duwsh hy^{}* – stepping upon and ruining it) while shattering and crushing it (daqaq hy^{}* – breaking and smashing it to pieces, pulverizing it).’” (Dany^eel / God Judges / Daniel 7:23)

In the succession previously given, Babylon morphed into Persia which was incorporated into Greece which was devoured by Rome, making Imperial Rome the fourth beast. But it was different in that it evolved into Roman Catholicism, which in turn tread upon the entire world, devouring its resources and devastating its subjects, particularly Jews. It was even the Third Reich, the Marxist interpretation of the Holy Roman Empire that perpetrated the Holocaust in devoutly Roman Catholic Europe.

As we discovered, the Roman Empire reached its zenith circa 117 CE, an interesting date, because it means that, forty-seven years after Rome razed Yah’s Temple in 70 CE and eighteen years before Roman legions utterly destroyed the Promised Land in 135 CE, they began a decline that could not be arrested. But at its greatest extent, while large, this Beast wasn’t nearly as pervasive as some may think. It stretched around the perimeter of the Mediterranean, barely fifty miles wide along the northern African coast. The thin southern rim of the empire extended from northeastern Morocco and the extreme northern portion of Algeria, Tunisia, and Libya into the northwestern third of modern Egypt. It included most of Israel and Lebanon, neither of which were very large, most of Syria and Turkey, but only a sliver of extreme northern Iraq and none of Iran. Moving west, it ranged from Romania and Bulgaria through the Balkans including Greece, Italy, Spain, Portugal, France, and southeastern Britain but very little beyond – largely because the Germanic tribes liked to fight almost as much as the Romans.

So while that’s much larger than Babylonia or Persia, it’s about the present size of the United States. Unlike the Roman Catholic Church, Imperial Rome was not worldwide. And although it reached much further north and west, it wasn’t much larger than Alexander the Great’s conquests, which pushed east from Macedonia through Bulgaria, Turkey, Syria, Israel, Egypt, Iraq, Iran, Turkmenistan, Tajikistan, Afghanistan, Pakistan, and into India.

But since this is addressing an evolving, worldwide beast, the Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox Churches fit the bill, we can include all of Europe and the Middle East, including Arabia (with over 1.3 million Roman Catholics), along with dominance in the Americas, Southern Africa, Southeast Asia, Japan, and even India and China. Therefore, for the fourth Beast to be destructive on this scale, Yahowah's messenger was describing the monster which would emerge from Imperial Rome to devastate the entire world. And for that, there is but one candidate: Christianity generally and the Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox Church specifically.

This is particularly adroit because there is no other instance in world history where an empire the scale of Rome evolved into something different and bigger rather than die. Moreover, the Roman Catholic Church is the only organization which has tread not only upon the entire world but vehemently so against Jews.

As was the case with the previous explanation, this next statement reveals that the Towrahless One of the Time of Trouble during the last days will emerge from the influence of a place where Roman Catholicism has tread and been influential ~ say like the United States.

With the return to qeren | horns, these boneheaded blowhards, we are back to the cast of troublesome characters menacing Israel today.

“Ten horns, boneheaded blowhards (*wa qeren asar), from this powerful dominion (min hy malkuw* – from this sovereign power), ten government leaders (asar melek*) will arise (quwm – will take a stand).

And another individual (*wa achoran – then during the final days, someone else) will rise up and take his stand (quwm – he will arise, establishing himself (peal imperfect third-person masculine singular)) at the end after them (achary hown* – during the last and final days).

And he, himself, will be different as he changes, transforming himself (wa huw shanah* – he, himself, will be frustrating while evolving defiantly (peal imperfect third-person masculine singular jussive)) from the first in this series (min qadmay – from the initial one mentioned earlier).

So then (wa), three political leaders of nations (tahath melek – three government rulers) will be humiliated and humbled, losing status relative to the others by being put down (shaphal – lowering the status of in relation to himself, thereby abasing them).” (Dany^eel / Daniel 7:24)

In the end, ten boneheaded blowhards will arise from nations influenced by the Roman and Orthodox Churches to menace Jews and exterminate Israel. Recognizing that Donald Trump of the United States is Satan’s Special Stooge, we can now reconsider the names of those most likely to league with him, especially in their advocacy of imposing the Two-State Solution.

This time, I’m going to lead with Mohammad bin Salman of Saudi Arabia followed by Tamim bin Al Thani of Qatar. These men own Trump, having invested tens of billions in their prize.

While I’ve already addressed Saudi Arabia’s 1.3 million Roman Catholics, there is an archaeological record of countless Byzantine churches and monasteries across the peninsula, with Christianity deeply rooted in the northwest and along the Tigris and Euphrates down to the Persian Gulf. And specifically in Qatar, 15% of the population has survived the onslaught of Islam – which is shocking. The Church arrived in the 3rd century CE, with the area known as Beth Qatraye | the House of Qatar being a significant center for the early Christian Church.

Rounding out Trump’s partners in crime against Israel, I would add Emmanuel Macron of France, Keir Starmer of the UK, and Friedrich Merz of Germany. The next three on my list would include Giorgia Meloni of Italy, Mark Carney of Canada, and Recep Erdogan of Turkey. This brings the total to eight.

Since this confab of crazies will contribute to the imposition of an Islamic State carved out of Israel, there is the possibility of Abdel el-Sisi of Egypt and Pope Leo XIV rounding out this list. And this time, since it does specify that the worst of them as the Adversary's Advocate will be in addition to these ten, we should be expecting eleven boneheads in the Lunatic's League.

Should we be looking for potential substitutions, I'm still bullish on the possibility of Ahmed al-Sharaa of Syria and Mohamed bin Al Nahyan of the UAE, with Trump advocating on behalf of al-Jolani's Islamic State and recognizing that the UAE has invested heavily in POTUS. And while Trump has a decent relationship with Hungary's Viktor Orban, he seems too pro-Israel to fit this mold.

And while we are on this subject, due to the likelihood that BRICS will prevail over the G7 economically, I do not think Trump's ego could handle a BRICS member, eliminating Xi, Putin, Modi, or Lula from China, Russia, India, and Brazil.

Therefore, here are twelve to scavenge ten: MBS, al Thani, Macron, Starmer, Merz, Meloni, Carney, Erdogan, Sisi, Pope Leo, al Sharaa, and al Nahyan from Saudi Arabia, Qatar, France, UK, Germany, Italy, Canada, Turkey, Egypt, the RCC, Syria, and UAE. As we watch Trump's emerging confab to curtail Israel at the UN through the establishment of a Palestinian State, this list will solidify, and it may even add a surprising name ~ Benjamin Netanyahu, since he is a formidable accomplice. Although, Netanyahu is on the ropes and may not survive, he's a better fit than the last three on this list since no one is more destructive to Israel today than their Prime Minister.

I have, however, been holding out on you. The 83rd Mizmowr of King Dowd provides a list of ten culprits, all of whom emerge to plague Israel in association with the second half of the Time of Troubles. And while there is some question as to whether he is describing the pedigree of the belligerents who will attack Israel, providing the men and material for the ensuing war, or the boneheaded political blowhards aiding and abetting Trump, there is likely considerable commonality. Therefore, even before we turn to Daniel 8, I'll share Psalm 83. If nothing else, it serves to verify that Dowd knew everything he has shared here 400 years earlier and wrote about it while King.

So now, in addition to knowing that Trump will have a wicked mouth and wild hair and be an old guy with a monstrous ego, as well as a war monger, we are discovering that Trump is evolving, literally transforming himself before our eyes. In this regard, Trump 45 during his first term was a bit of a narcissist, but a long way from a sociopath. There was none of the chaos that flows prolifically from his core today. And at the time, not only was his vitriol in check with the prospect of a second term, Trump was resolutely anti-Islam and pro-Israel then, but not now.

While I've shared this previously, it is apparent that after losing the election, encouraging the insurrection which followed, being relentlessly sued for sexual, ethical, and political crimes, and consistently losing, Trump made a deal with the Devil to return to power and avoid spending the rest of his life bankrupt and in jail. And demon possession has had a transformative influence on the man, radically changing his demeanor, allegiances, and adversaries. His is the most rapid deterioration of decorum and decency I've ever witnessed. He is no longer sane and says some of the stupidest things we have ever heard.

This brings us back to speculating which of the ten politicians Trump will disparage. And that's a tough call because he will slander almost all of them except his benefactors MBS and al Thani. However, if asked to pick those most likely to either confront him, challenge him, and thereby engender his wrath, or just being too wimpy to survive in his presence, we might consider Macron, Starmer, Meloni, Carney, and Sisi in that mix, with Netanyahu being lead among them if included in the Big 10 Conference.

The overt demeaning of three of those originally supporting him is yet another affirmation that the Devil's Advocate is Donald Trump. He got his lawyer, Cohen, thrown in jail, he all but murdered Zelenski who is running his proxy war, and he lambasted Musk, who was his biggest contributor. No one turns allies into enemies or devours them faster or more ruthlessly than Donald Trump. He is the Hannibal Lecter of politics.

And let's not forget, the single most revealing identifier is that the man who betrays Israel by sponsoring the Two-State Solution, winning the Nobel Peace Prize as a result, is our guy. And Trump's Islamic State Confab, which is headlined by Macron and MBS, is scheduled for next week in New York City, which is the last week of July 2025.

Getting down to business while following in Paul's footsteps and fulfilling the prophecies regarding him in Isaiah 14, we read...

“And he will speak, issuing decisions, decrees, and commands (wa milah – he will talk about his endeavors, ambitions, and affairs) in conflict with and in opposition to (la tsad – against while approximating and laid beside, even adjacent to) the Most High (ilay* – the Almighty and Uppermost).

His way of speaking and proclamations (malal – pronouncements and content, his public declarations) will wear down and torment, even oppress and persecute (balah – will demean and degrade, harass and afflict) the Set Apart (wa la qadysh) of the Almighty (elyown*).

Then he will aspire to change, attempting to alter (wa sabar la shanah – he will intend to transform) the set times for the meetings (zaman – the season and occurrence of the established appointments) along with the written and codified prescriptions (wa dath – the edicts, statutes, and decrees, even Law; either an Aramaic reference to the Towrah or an indication that the Towrahless One will refer to it as the Law in an attempt to devalue it).

They will be controlled and influenced by him, as they are claimed under his authority (*wa yahab ba yad huw – acting on his own initiative, and respecting only himself, these things will be entrusted to him (hitpa'el imperfect paragogicum third-person masculine plural)) up to 3½ years (ad *idan wa *idanyn wa palag idan – for a time, times, and half a time [corrected to reflect 4QDan from the DSS]).” (*Dany*el* / God Judges and Vindicates / Daniel 7:25)

There is only one individual of whom the prophets spoke who they foretold would become best known for positioning himself against the Most High. His name is Halal ben Shachar and he is Satan. His profile is presented in *Yasha*yah* / Isaiah 14, which is halfway between the portrait of the Choter in Isaiah 11, who is the one equipped with seven spirits to stand up against him, and Isaiah 17 which frames all of the events foretold here in Daniel 7, putting them in the context of place and time. Therefore, after the completion of our review of *Dany*el* 8 and 9, we'll turn to *Yasha*yah* for further elucidation.

For now, it's germane to derive a proper interpretation of this narrative to realize that the man we are identifying as Donald Trump is in fact the corporeal manifestation of ha Satan | the Adversary. He isn't just demon-possessed, as was the case with Paul and Muhammad, he will be the corporeal manifestation of Satan. Therefore, this will be the ultimate showdown because with the Choter, imbued with the Ruwach of Yahowah and the Denizen of the Devil with the spirit of Satan, this will determine who governs the planet henceforth.

And in this regard, you might be taken aback by the realization that Yahowah prevails in part by having Satan take my mortality. But this is as it must be. A man must be shown willing to serve Yahowah and Yahuw'dym to the extent he will trust God to make an example of his unwavering devotion. There is no greater love than this, which is why Dowd served as the Passover Lamb.

This actually goes back to the test of the Covenant in year

2000 Yah, precisely 4000 years prior to this occurrence. It was then on Mowryah that Yahowah evaluated Abraham's commitment to Him by asking Abraham to offer what was dearest to him – his beloved son. Having made the point, and explaining the purpose of Pesach, our Heavenly Father intervened and said that He would provide the lamb. This meant He would arrange for His Beloved Firstborn Son to offer his basar | body which Dowd did when he fulfilled Passover on Mount Moriah in year 4000 Yah. So, now in year 6000 Yah, the Basar | Herald is being afforded the opportunity to prove that love and life are worth the sacrifice ~ that Yahowah and Yahuwdym are worthy of our respect and trust. And so by trusting God with my soul, I will surrender my body, to affirm the way more powerfully than all of the words I have spoken. And in the process, I will earn the respect of my King and his people such that I will be able to serve one and lead the others.

Before we begin to unpack the insights attributable to the second of four sentences in this proclamation, realize that this initial statement serves as further affirmation that I was correct in my earlier assessment. The Appalling Abomination is nothing less than the Adversary's Apostle claiming that Satan is God. And while he will make countless infuriating pronouncements, when he speaks on the Ides of March in 2030, we will hear Satan say what is encapsulated in "Allahu Akbar – Allah is Greater" than Yahowah.

Also, we should expect that the 'Antichrist' will replicate the tactics deployed by Paul and more crudely by Muhammad. He will misappropriate citations and narratives from the Towrah wa Naby^oym and pervert them for his purposes. And very little is more aggravating to the Almighty than having the religious misquote Him to advance their demonic delusions.

Once again, since Yahowah refers to Yisra^ael as being set-apart unto Him, it is the surviving remnant of Israel whom the Divine Donald will speak against, tormenting and oppressing Jews. God's People will be persecuted by the man they once adored as the Second Coming of Cyrus, as a modern-day

Messiah. Of course, this will largely be their fault as they continue to be wrong about God while placing their trust in all the wrong people. I have been warning all who will listen on X, FB, YT, and Rumble that Trump is the Great Betrayer and that they are embracing far worse than Neville Chamberlain. Just as Satan will rip my heart out on Taruw^{ah}, Trump will do the same to Israel on or before Shabu^{ah}. To a very real extent, Israel will be living out the horrors of Ezekiel, not only with its 25 ways to kill Jews, but also with the abusive and repetitive rape of the Daughters of Tsyown.

And speaking of what Ezekiel portends, the Denizen of the Devil will aspire to alter the set appointments Yahowah codified as His prescriptions for living. Only Passover will remain and it will be repositioned to fit the Roman Holy Week of Easter and coincide with Asherah Day. He will then add All Stupid Day, No Moon Day, and the Feast of the Beast. On the latter he will take the Roman Catholic Eucharist with its insistence on eating the flesh of their Christ and drinking his blood to a new level of cannibalistic barbarism when bludgeoning the Adamah Parah to death with the intent of perpetrating this gruesome ritual – the very one which portends his demise.

Therefore, it appears that my analysis of Ezekiel and the substitute festivals of the Devil's Advocate are being affirmed. His four holidays will begin with the repurposing and retiming of Passover, overlapping it with Easter, Asherah Day, and Imperial Rome's Holy Week. All other Mow^{ed} will be cast aside, particularly Shabu^{ah}, Taruw^{ah}, Kipurym, and Sukah such that he can substitute his own gaudy galas.

This will transpire over the 3½ year period previously specified, commencing on the Ides of March in 2030 and ending on Yowm Taruw^{ah} 2033. The world influenced by Trump and Co. will be on one calendar while the Covenant family remains on another. The fate of souls will hinge in large part upon which they decide to honor.

This brings us to what may be an unexpected twist for many, albeit not for those who understand Satan's style. The Devil, like his Apostle Paul, prevails through clever counterfeits rather than creative ingenuity. A counterfeit is worthless, even illegal, and yet, the best efforts of crooks are remarkably similar to the genuine article making the bogus bill appear valuable. In this way, while the Towrahless One's decrees will be in conflict with and in opposition to Yahowah's Towrah | Guidance, they will be laid beside the truth, forming an effective ruse.

This was Paul's ploy throughout his letters, recognizing that, by misappropriating and misconstruing the word of God, the resulting lies are made to appear divine. After all, the Towrahless One wants people the world over to believe that he is God. As a result, expect religious edicts similar to Christianity, where Divine strokes are out of focus and context, repositioned, truncated, and elongated.

This will be a surprise to many because Christians and Muslims, collectively representing more than half of humanity, have been misled into believing that Devil worship includes Satanic rituals. But that couldn't be further from the truth. The last thing Satan wants is to be seen as the Adversary. He wants to be worshiped as the Most High. And that is why the Lord is the god of religion.

There is also an overture here to Replacement Theology. Rather than celebrating the Towrah, Covenant, and Mow^ed while uplifting Yahowah's name and people, the Towrahless One will be doing the opposite. He will degrade and disparage the things of God while persecuting His people. Much of this will therefore parallel the Christian New Testament.

Paul's letters besmirch the Towrah and demean those who observe it. He spoke so damningly of Yahuwdym in his epistles, they have been persecuted by the Christian Church. Likewise, Paul sought to nullify Yahowah's meeting times, vilifying the Invitations and the Shabat. And so, with Yahowah's Appointed Times discounted, Christians had no issue replacing them with pagan alternatives. In this same way, the Towrahless One of the Time of Trouble will go beyond what Paul began – actually outlawing what the Plague of Death demeaned. Therefore, the religion that was born out of a disdain for the Towrah will die deprived of it.

Dath is an Aramaic word. It draws its meaning from Persian culture. And yet, the Dictionary of Biblical Languages – Aramaic attests that dath represents “the body of writing known today as Torah.” Additionally, the Theological Wordbook of the Old Testament reveals that dath “overlaps the use of towrah, mitswah, mishpat, and choq in Hebrew” when it “appears in the Aramaic sections of Ezra and Daniel.”

This known, since Dany^oel was aware of the title, and could have written Towrah in Aramaic, I suspect that there is a reason behind the use of dath. Just as Paul attacked Yahowah’s Towrah by referring to it as nomos and nomos in Greek, Dany^oel is conveying the terminology the Towrahless One will deploy when denouncing God’s Guidance.

So once again, we have been told that the Adversary will be just like his famed Apostle Paul. He will not only be in opposition to the Towrah and its Appointed Times to Meet with God, outlawing them, he will harass Yahowah’s Set-Apart Ones, just as Paul attacked Dowd’s people. The testimony, actions, ambitions, claims, and strategy of these men will be indistinguishable. If you want to know how this Beast will act and what he will say, read Paul’s letter to the Galatians followed by his ode on behalf of the Romans – Paul’s tribute to this monster.

The concluding part of this statement, “time, times, and half a time” is three and a half years. This means that the Beast will only be allowed to implement his contrarian agenda beginning around Passover in 2030.

And in this regard, I think Satan has been programmed to do as he has done, and that this will continue up and until Taruw^oah in year 6000 Yah. God wanted there to be an alternative to Him that those who preferred faith to knowing and religion to relationship could choose. So, I do not think that there will be any hesitation on Satan's part throughout the process.

In this case, the 6,000-year human experience outside of the protection of the Garden will be drawing to a close, and Yahowah wants everyone still living on Earth to decide if they want to ally with the Lord or God. Therefore, just like Satan was given access to *Eden and its inhabitants, and allowed to convolute Yahowah's message, we are going to witness the same process play out again very soon.

During this three and one-half years, mortal men and women will be afforded one last opportunity to choose to participate in the Covenant in accordance with its terms or reject it should they prefer the options endorsed by the Adversary. This referendum on life, however, cannot linger forever. Just as *Adam and Chawah could not come and go from the *Gan eden, the Millennial Shabat will not have a revolving door.

Similarly, since eternity is forever, there will be no opting out once Yahowah destroys the existing universe and creates a new one. Therefore, God has to be assured that every living soul has made their final decision.

The following statement speaks of a man who will sit in judgment, exercising the authority of the king in rendering justice, continuing to do so well into the future. His first order of business will be to judge and condemn the Towrahless One, in essence throwing Bronze Man and his Lord, Satan, into She*owl.

Bronze Man is a reference from Ezekiel where the Lord's Accomplice in the end is copper colored, like Trump. In fact, fourth only to his goatish hair, big mouth, and decrepit appearance, the exceedingly odd, almost unhuman, copperish-bronze coloration of Donald Trump's face is his most distinguishing feature. And what's particularly revealing about Satan's Bronze Boy in the last quarter of the book is that he is doing what Trump relishes, scheming to build the largest and most imposing, grandiose and gaudy monstrosity bearing his name in the most coveted of all locations. The Bronze Measure Man's fixation on the absurdly gargantuan proportions of the Third Temple as if he was the real estate developer, was Satan's adroit depiction of his Accomplice. And it is Copper Con who replaces Ezekiel in the end, becoming Satan's corporeal manifestation, especially at the time the replacement meetings are instituted. And so now you know why Yahowah insisted that I not only rebuke the Book of Ezekiel, but go one step beyond where anyone has tread and attribute it to ha Satan.

These things known, the subject of these next two sentences is most adroitly identified by recognizing that, when the second verb, adah*, was conveyed using the Aramaic hafeL stem, which is akin to the Hebrew hifil, and in the imperfect conjugation, with the object being "his governmental authority," the otherwise unidentified "he" is the one judging and convicting Copper Con. With this stem, the subject is causing the guilty party to suffer the consequence of his egregious crimes against God's People. And therefore, he is the old guy who intervenes in the 22nd verse to save the remnant of Yisra^{*}el from the Dumpster.

Therefore, the one explaining this to Dany^{}el, who is either Gabry^{}el / Dowd, Myka^{}el / Yada, or EiYah, is fully cognizant of what will transpire next. And he reports...

“Then (wa), he will resolve disputes, sitting in judgment, while retaining the ongoing authority of the king to decide (dyn yatib – he will continually seek justice (piel imperfect third-person masculine singular – this man will actually judge, exercising good judgment and make decisions on an ongoing and unlimited basis)).

So, he will take away, remove, repeal, and annul (adah* – he will abrogate and curtail (hafeL imperfect third-person masculine singular – this same man will cause the authority of the Towrahless One to be taken away forevermore)) his governmental authority and mastery (*wa shalatan huw – his authority and dominion), terminated and eradicated (*la shamad – annihilated and exterminated) so as to vanish, ceasing to exist, perishing (*wa la abad – completely done away with) by the Restoring Witness in the end of time (ad sowpha – by the eternal testimony at the furthestmost boundary in space and time).’” (*Dany*el* / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 7:26)

The judge is the Restoring Witness, the same person the Adversary’s Advocate bludgeoned to death earlier this day. Therefore, Satan’s influence on Earth will be eradicated. This is not only because Yada is exceedingly judgmental and has an ax to grind with the inspiration of Christianity, Judaism, and Islam, it is because he isn’t about to recuse himself even with the lingering bias of having just been hacked to death. So, the Donald is fired. He’s not only out of a job, I get to send him to prison where he has long belonged.

From a broader sense, Dowd’s Basar | Herald is going to be responsible for administering justice, not only at the conclusion of this period, but prior to it and forevermore. It is a job twice delegated, from Yahowah to Dowd and then from Dowd to Yada. I’ve recorded the evidence in God Damn Religion, Twistianity, and Babel and will be adequately prepared. But, so that there are no illusions, those being condemned will not have lawyers, and I will be judge and jury. I will have thousands of *mal*ak* | spiritual messengers delivering all of the evidence required for conviction.

In this case, Satan and his Stooge will be expunged. They are removed, repealed, annulled, abrogated, curtailed, terminated, eradicated, annihilated, and exterminated, vanishing while ceasing to exist in our presence. I will have had more than my fill of the Devil and Dumpster.

Should you be troubled by the idea that a man will be King of everything and forevermore and that his Herald will be the Judge for all of that time, may I remind you that Yahowah has grown fond of and is committed to delegating authority by working through people. It is His management style and he’s not about to change at this late date.

Also, the Towrahless One will only be eliminated from our presence. He will not be so fortunate as to die because he and the Adversary possessing him will be incarcerated in She*owl. God does not take kindly to those who betray His People or who attack His Towrah, Mow*ed, Yisra*el, or Yahuwdym.

The Beast and his associates will fail. Their ability to oppose Yahowah will be terminated. From one moment to the next, the most powerful influence on Earth will be neutered. All traces of his and other religious, political, economic, and militaristic designs will be swept away and eradicated.

Once everyone has been afforded the opportunity to evaluate his or her options pursuant to the Sacrifice of the Red Heifer, it will be time to move on. The Earth will be transformed into the conditions experienced during the Garden of *Eden. It will be populated by the mortals who have been prepared to exist in Yahowah's presence during the Millennial Celebration of Sukah.

Therefore, we read...

“Then sovereignty (wa malkuw – the right to reign unchallenged, express oneself, make decisions, and do as one pleases) and empowerment along with a plethora of rights (wa shalatan – authorization, dominion, and kingship), including the highest status and an increase in magnitude (wa rabuw – tremendous enrichment and comprehensive influence, increasing capability and power) will be for those who will reign (dy malkuw – of the kings and queens and their sovereignty) under the entirety (tachath kol) of the heavens (shamayn – of the universe and spiritual realm).

This will be given (yahab – will be imparted and entrusted) to the Set-Apart Family (am qadysh* – to the separated and uncommon people) of Dowd as the Most High (elyown* – of the Uppermost and Highest).

His kingdom and sovereign power (malkuw – his realm and his reign) will be an everlasting and eternal right to lead (*malkuw alam – is a continually enduring sovereign realm).

And all (wa kol) of those who are empowered and authorized (shalatan – of the sovereign) will respectfully approach and revere him (la huw palach* – they will draw near and show respect by cleaving to him and serving him) while listening (*wa shama).’” (Dany^eel / God is My Means to Judge / Daniel 7:27)

We are being reminded that, even though Dowd is King, we are coregents because we are God’s Children and therefore, royalty. Initially, the mortal remnant of Yisra^eel will gain a plethora of rights, gaining status, pursuant to all others. And then, to inherit the universe, we will have to be substantially enhanced in capability and empowered, so that we can be immortal and transition the great distances. But most of all, we will be Family, Dowd’s brothers and sisters and sons and daughters of God. We know this because upon his return, Yahowah revealed that Dowd will be elyown* | the most elevated among us and akin to God. This is the grand beginning of Happily Ever After.

What’s also important here is that palach serves to validate a conclusion I made several years ago when trying to understand why Dowd would volunteer to serve as the Passover Lamb and then fulfill UnYeasted Bread. He realized that the only way to lead Yisra^eelites would be to earn their respect. And nothing engenders more appreciation than inheriting eternal life and the universe – which Dowd made possible. So, thank you, Sir. Now, if we could only get more people to listen to his Mizmowr.

Since it is a big job, and since Yahowah does not want anyone to work alone, we are encouraged and rewarded for respectfully serving alongside Yahowah’s Beloved. The best way to accomplish this will be to listen to him and show our gratitude for what he has done. Throughout time, no one – including Moseh – has rivaled Dowd’s ability to lead and teach.

Just as Gabry^eel and Myka^eel would tell Dany^eel in the end, at the conclusion of their last encounter, this was not for him to understand. In fact, they told him, and us through him, that no one would understand these prophecies until the Restoring Witness decoded them – and even then, it wouldn't be until right before the Shabuw^oah Harvest and the onset of the Time of Troubles.

“Here, at this time, along with the eternal and Restoring Witness (ad kah* – now at this moment in the testimony), was the conclusion (sowph – was the end) of this communication (dy milah – of this characterization of the word, this matter and affair).

As for me (anah*), Dany^oel | God is My Means to Decide between Vindication and Condemnation (Dany^oel – God Judges and Vindicates), when I thought about everything, contemplating and reasoning to the greatest extent possible (*sagyi^o rayown anah – I focused intently, using all my cognitive capabilities and logic), it alarmed and dismayed me (*bahal anah – it was overwhelming and frightening, anguishing me).

My countenance changed (*wa zyw anah shanah – my attitude, which is normally positive and bright, was now different) while I judged these things for myself and preserved them in my mind and heart (al *anah wa milah ba leb anah natar – because I was in a quandary, unsure how I should proceed beyond remaining observant and judgmental).” (Dany^oel / My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns / Daniel 7:28)

Even here we can learn an applicable lesson. Dany^oel did not go off half-cocked proclaiming what he had seen. Since he did not understand it, there was no benefit in sharing it. I'm not sure he was even a prophet, much less in a position to proselytize. And yet, believers feel the need to promote their religion, acquiring converts. This is mostly because growing popularity and acceptance is the only way to validate their faith. When evidence and reason are counter to one's beliefs, disbelievers must be replaced with believers for the religion to survive.

Yahowah's approach is just the opposite. He routinely tells us to be different, to be set apart and uncommon, which is to be anti-religious and apolitical. Rather than something being validated based on its popularity, common acceptance demonstrates that the many have veered away from the truth.

The reason Towrah means "Teaching" is that Yahowah is providing instruction, equipping those who are eager to listen to engage in His Beryth through the Miqra^ey. Our verification of Yahowah's existence is derived from shamar | closely examining and carefully considering His prophetic testimony. The path to God is cerebral, in our minds by exercising our neshamah | conscience to follow Yahowah's words as if they were the map to the Promised Land.

The proper process is to be perceptive in order to know. Then we must think rationally to understand, making the proper connections between things. And of course, everyone benefits when we share what we have discovered in the most revealing manner.

However, there is no reason to throw Yah's pearls before swine. There was no one around Dany^el who would have benefited from knowing what was going to occur in another two-and-one-half millennia. Sharing this would only have made them angry because God's message, as is the case today, was an affront to their religious and political preferences. It would not even have done Yahuwdym any good – not then anyway. Moreover, no one was listening to Yahowah at the time. So, this was all for us to know and share at this moment.

Asaph ~ Ingathering*

Before we delve deeper into Daniel, let's see what else Dowd had to say about the ten adversaries that would plague Israel. These insights are found in Mizmowr / Psalm 83. Our King begins at the inception of the Time of Trouble with the Shabuw^oah Harvest...

“A song (shyr – lyrics which can be sung to a musical accompaniment) as a lyrical and musical composition (mizmowr – words and melody, with an emphasis on the verbal content, a psalm to sing) concerning (la – regarding the approach of and on account of) the ingathering of the harvest (asaph* / oseph* – the gathering, collecting the produce from the fields and bringing that which is reaped together and into a storeroom designed to preserve and protect the harvest).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83: Introduction)

While there are those who insist this Psalm was written by Asaph*, since there is no indication he was a prophet, and proof abounds that Dowd was the brightest and most articulate of them, I think we should be translating, not transliterating asaph*. Doing so means that this Mizmowr / Psalm pertains to the ingathering and harvest of the Covenant Family rather than to an otherwise unknown musician. In the feminine, asephah* speaks of a gathering and collecting of individuals.

Since Yahowah seldom interferes in human affairs, what follows must be addressing one of those special occurrences. And because there appears to be only one significant intercession set between harvests and in the midst of a time of trouble, and it pertains to the arrival of the Towrahless One and then the two Witnesses., this is, therefore, directly related to the events we have been considering in Dany^oel 7 and 12. Indeed, by the use of domy, we find ourselves near the midpoint of the Time of Ya^oaqob's Troubles.

“God (elohym* – Almighty), at this, the midway point, do not remain silent or inactive (al domy* – please communicate and engage now that we are halfway through). As You approach (*la atah – as You draw near), please do not fail to take action against this evil scheme (al charash* – it is my desire that You do not remain silent or uninvolved because of the ongoing implications of this clandestine plot and veiled sorcery (qal imperfect jussive)). Please do not come in peace (*wa al shaqat – it is my hope that You are not quiet or calm but are instead angry and reactive in the midst of this provocation (qal imperfect jussive)), God (el* – Almighty).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:1)

This time is rapidly approaching. And during it, if Yahowah were to remain inactive, Israel would cease to exist and life on the planet would be extinguished. As a result of this, God cannot return without first ridding the world of its religious and political stench. Just as it was not prevalent in Eden*, it will not exist during the millennial Shabat of Sukah. As a result, Yahowah is not coming in peace, nor for all mankind.

Man has become and remains antagonistic toward God ...

“For behold (ky hineh – because indeed, here and now is the time to be especially observant and pay close attention), Your enemies (oyeb atah – Your foes and adversaries, those who are openly in opposition and hostile to You, those who exhibit animosity and rancor toward You) are expressing their ongoing desires very loudly (hamah – are making an enormous racket, snarling and growling their intentions angrily, screaming in a most distressing manner, they are clamoring, tumultuous, and boisterous in their rage and with their intent (qal imperfect paragogic nun jussive)).

Those who hate You (wa sane atah – those who abhor, detest, and loathe You, those who dislike You intensely, those who shun You even without malice or aforethought, and those who are adversarial to You) have raised (*nasa – have lifted up in a self-exalting manner) their heads (*ro*sh* – their leaders and uttermost objects ruling over them, the foremost things in their lives and in their nature).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:2)

Yah’s religious antagonists are seldom silent. They vociferously promote their Lords, Prophets, Messiahs, and group in overt animosity toward Yahowah and Yisra*el.

This is an interesting point of view. While God never wants His children bowing before Him, raising one’s head above the crowd to lead the masses astray is a condemnable offense. Said another way, those who rise up against God and His people will find themselves bowing down in judgment.

Connecting the previous statement with the next one, it is interesting that the enemies of Yisra*el are also the foes of Yahowah. If you would like proof, bring up Yahowah’s name, His Torah, Israel, or Jews in the company of the overtly religious or political and watch how they respond. They are almost sure to express the kind of hateful reaction they claim to renounce.

“Against (*al – in opposition to) Your family and people (*am *atah), they are crafty and cunning (*aram – they are clever and shrewd in their deliberate and premeditated deceptive schemes (hifil imperfect)).

They confide with one another in their assemblies with regard to their conspiratorial plans (sowd – in their confident attitude toward their reliance on secrecy and deception in their councils and meetings, and within their circle of confidants). They deliberate, plot and scheme, and then in defiance decide to act (wa ya*ats – they determine their course of action based upon the advice of councils (hitpael imperfect – these counselors are acting with respect to themselves in a way which is consistent with what they have done previously)) against (*al) those You treasure (tsaphan *atah – what You value and what You have decided upon).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:3)

This sounds like back channels preceding meetings of those within the Security Council of the United Nations, particularly as they plot their cunning schemes to dissect Israel. Little do they know that there really is a God and He has promised to destroy those who seek to harm His children.

We are likely witnessing the maneuvering behind the international plot to thin Yisra*el at the waist, thinning the nation such that it becomes indefensible. This Mizmowr therefore, was revealed in concert with Yasha*yah 17 and Daniel 9. It was narrated so that the observant would more fully understand the events which will shape our world as it cascades into darkness.

No doubt, men and women are clever. God made us that way so that we could think our way to Him. But the sum of human intelligence is but a paltry pittance of the Almighty's momentary reflection. If you are even the least bit anti-Semitic, you are playing a dangerous game no individual or institution can win.

What follows is what Muslims have wanted and viciously expressed since Muhammad became the Messenger of Satan nearly 1,400 years ago...

“They say (amar* – they exclaim and propose), ‘We want to annihilate (kachad – let us do as we please and wipe out, utterly destroying, effacing and erasing, and desolating (hifil imperfect cohortative)) them (hem) as (min – from being) a nation (gowy – as a country with geographical, religious, cultural, or racial ties) such that (wa – so) the name (shem – the proper designation) of Yisra*el (*Yisra*el* – Individuals who Engage and Endure with God) is no longer remembered (*lo*zakar* – never again mentioned) ever again throughout time (owd* – any longer and forevermore).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:4)

It is the curse of Islam with Marxists having joined their hideous chorus. It is the message behind ‘Free Palestine.’

Should there have been any reluctance to accept the realization that the foes who are seeking to destroy Israel are Muslims we can lay that to rest. While the Romans and Nazis were hell-bent on enslaving and annihilating Jews, only Islam seeks: “From the River to the Sea – Palestine will be Free.” The Nazis wanted to use Jews, to rob them and kill them, but they had no interest in Yisra*el. Muslims want it for no other reason than to demonstrate that their religion and god are superior to Yisra*el and Yahowah.

Hadrian didn’t consult with anyone when he initiated his plan to convert Yaruwshalaim into a playground for his Legions. Moreover, his preference was to enslave Jews rather than kill them, purely for economic reasons. Assyria and Babylon, even Egypt, wanted slaves and booty, too, but had no interest in the nation. The Greeks hardly knew the country existed. But it is Quranic for Muslims to commit their lives to wiping Yisra*el off the face of the Earth while annihilating Yahuwdym.

To be fair, and to place blame where it rightly belongs, it was Rome which replaced the name Yahuwdah with Palestine. But there was no Yisra*el when Rome trashed the temple and land. Yisra*el had been obliterated by the Assyrians circa 600 BCE. So, this does not apply to Rome. Moreover, Hadrian was sneaky and never actually made this claim. But Muslims have, and do...

“For (ky – because) they deliberate, plan, and decide (*ya*ats* – they propose, determine, and plot, consult, conspire, and confer) together with one accord (leb yahdaw – uniformly with one mind, altogether similar motives, alike with a common nature and inclination, with one disposition) to cut (karat – to make, establish, and to separate) a treaty (beryth – a binding oath and agreement, a pledge and a compact, even a covenant and accord) against (al* – in opposition to) You (atah*).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:5)

After renouncing the terms of U.N. Resolution 242 and punctuating their rejection of its implications by attacking Israel three times, on each occasion, trying to obliterate Israel, Muslims now want their reinterpretation of the U.N. Resolution unilaterally imposed. This is the treaty that will thin Israel at the waist and prompt the great jihad. And since it is being sponsored by Trump, the identity of the Great Betrayer is now evident.

What most do not appreciate about U.N. 242 is that the Muslim rejection of the resolution and subsequent demand that it be reimposed is akin to refusing to buy an estate offered under duress at an exceedingly low price, then torching and looting the place, terrorizing and killing its inhabitants in an effort to steal it. Then when that backfires, demand that the tormented sellers ignore all that has transpired and accept the deal the terrorists belligerently refused.

This list of historic people and places seeks to identify those who will be active in the destruction of Yisra*el, either by releasing a flood of enraged jihadists and inundating the nation in Islamic barbarism, or being among those sponsoring this treaty against the nation to make Israel indefensible. The designees commence with *Edowm, Esau's descendants and homeland. Previously, when searching for their modern equivalent, I learned that they were represented by Roman Catholicism and those influenced by the legacy of Rome today, especially the European Union and the Americas. Recognizing that Imperial Rome was founded by the Caesars, which means "hairy," and that the empire was draped in red, we find that upon his birth, Esau was called hairy and red.

"To encourage enlightenment and provide clarity, this is regarding the transitory residents camping out (*ohel / *ahal – to make clear by shining a light upon the tent dwellers, symbolic of the transitory persons and refugees) of:

1) edowm | of Men in Red [the 'Edomites represent the Imperial Romans and Roman Catholics] (*edowm – name ascribed to Esau who was born hairy (Caesar) and red, symbolic of Imperial Rome and by extension, Roman Catholicism, geographically a mountainous tract between the Dead Sea and Gulf of Aqaba in southern Jordan and southern Israel),

2) the Yshma•elym | a Man Hears a God [the

Ishmaelites represent Arabian Suni Muslims] (Yshma^{ee}elym – Individuals Listening to the gods, the progenitor of the Arabians and the forefather of Islam, located in central, western, and northern Arabia into Syria and Iraq, including Mecca and Yathrib),

3) Mow^aab* | Questionable Father [the Moabites represent those of questionable parentage, such as Marxists, MAGAs, and Pauline Christians] (Mow^aab – Who Is Your Daddy, an unthinking, warlike, and multicultural religious and political culture born of incest after being indoctrinated in the amoral morass of Sodom, with shared Hebrew writings which were twisted and intermixed with pagan lore to form Christian and Socialist Secular viewpoints, the place where the Towrah's voice died; from ma – to question the who, what, and why of ab* – the father, related to mowba^a and mow^aal – a path which leads in the opposite direction, located in western Jordan east of the Dead Sea),

4) the Hagry* | Muttering [the Hagarenes are of Egyptian origin and migrated from central Jordan to Mesopotamia] (Hagry – of Hagar and thus either depicting the slaves to Allah in Egypt or Arabians in present day Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, United Arab Emirates, Oman, a nomadic tribe along the Persian Gulf), (Mizmowr 83:6)

5) Gebal* | Borders [representing Byblos and thus the Christian Bible, Lebanon, and those imposing borders on Israel] (Gebal – to set limits and borders (indicative of U.N. Resolutions toward Israel), a Phoenician city near Tyre between Tripoli and Beirut in ancient Byblos (the basis of Bible and thus protestant fundamentalist Christians) located in Lebanon),

6) amown | Pertaining to People and Nations [representing the dimwitted nature of man] (amown* – Related to and Amplifying the Family of Man, and from amam* – to be dimwitted and be eclipsed, located in central Jordan geographically where the so-called “Palestinian refugees” number in the range of 2.1 million, Lowt^s younger daughter named her son Ammon as an expression of the incestuous relationship (indicative of the so-called Abrahamic religions, Judaism, Christianity, and Islam); from am* – people, nation, family, and compatriots and own* – all things pertaining to people),

7) amaleq | Wretched Ones [representing the fearsome and malcontent Muslim militants] (amaleq* – the ruthless and warlike descendants of Esau, so, Romans and Arabians who would become Christians and Muslims; from amel* – to be miserable and inflict misery through wicked work, the grievous travail of perverse toil, located in the Sinai Peninsula), and

8) Palesheth* | the so-called ‘Palestinians’ [representing Muslims in Gaza, Israel, Judea, and Samaria who are Invading Terrorists] (Palesheth – to mourn terrorists; from palatsuth – fearsome and horrible terrorism creating severe distress, palsts – to be unstable, and palash – to roll in dust and ashes (addressing the condition of Gaza), located in Gaza, Israel, Judea, Samaria (‘West Bank’), are in league with (im* – together and with) the Adversary during this Time of Trouble and adversarial influences by those who live to harass and persecute (yashab tsar – those living in this place in league with the Adversary, dwelling like an anguishing flint used to kindle a heated reaction and as a sharp knife used to slash and kill, staying only so as to use their pent-up hostility to oppose and trouble; note: tsar – trouble).” (Mizmowr / Psalm 83:7)

If this list is addressing the locations from which the Islamic jihadists will invade Israel in Al Aqsa 2.0, then it is from all around, from outside in and inside out. Mapping this, the onslaught will come from the Egyptian Sinai, Saudi Arabia, the Persian Gulf states like Qatar and UAE, Jordan, Syria, and Lebanon with the overt support of the nations in Rome’s shadow throughout Europe and those influenced by Roman Catholicism. The culminating belligerents will be the so-called “Palestinians” who will bludgeon Israel from the left, right, and inside out.

To these combatants, based upon the next statement, we must either include direct support from the Shia Muslims in Iraq and Iran, while also doubling down on Syria – which is now the Islamic State of Turkey – or we are being told that this is being orchestrated by the Assyrian, who is the Adversary. There is even a final reference to him being the product of Lowt, which speaks of the same reprehensible dunderhead and sexual pervert we know to be Donald Trump.

It is possible that Tsar is the ninth and final name on the initial list comprising the places Muslims will emerge to deluge Israel with their religious hate. However, it is more likely a word than a name – one we have addressed twice previously. And since Tsor | Tyre no longer exists, we find ourselves readily identifying these culprits as “troublesome foes, anguishing adversaries, and unfavorable flints used to kindle a heated reaction and as a knife to slash and kill among those settling within this place with pent-up hostility.” That would include a lot of people today among Marxists, MAGAs, and Muslims.

As we have come to know, tsar is the word that describes the Time of Ya‘aqob’s / Yisra‘el’s “tsar – Troubles.” It speaks of “adversarial influences and of great tribulation.” These references transport us from Dowd’s day to the last days. But even more revealing, tsar addresses the very event those in opposition to Yahowah and Yisra‘el have been scheming to deploy – “narrowing” Yisra‘el, “crowding and confining” her people such that they can more effectively “harass and terrorize” them.

For those reading along in other books, you are aware that we have determined that the Assyrian was none other than the Adversary, ha Satan. So, this next statement could be addressing the man Satan has possessed ~ President Trump. If not, then there is the other possibility that the reference is to the Shia Muslims now under the footprint of the ancient kingdom of Ashuwr*, today’s Syria, Iraq, and Iran.

“Moreover another is receiving money from them to join in with them, and he is accompanying this association as payback (*gam lawah im hem – then surely in addition, he who is the one in debt, will participate with them), ashuwr | the Assyrian (ashuwr* – Assyria (today's Syria, Iraq, and Iran), the nations of Asherah* (orthodox Christians venerating their Madonna and Child, Mother of God, and Queen of Heaven), those who celebrate Ashura (Shiites), and/or the Adversary).

They exist at this moment as (hayah – they are (qal perfect)) the armed forces and military of what was sown (zarowa^o – the army and seed) by the children (la ben – of the children) of Lowt | of the Inappropriate and Incestuous one, the Sodomite (Lowt – of one who shrouds his true nature, blocking access to his inappropriate relationships; from luwt – that which is wrapped tightly together and obscured). Let's pause now and reflect on all of this (selah – accentuating this point).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:8)

The point here is that the sexually perverted Adversary's Advocate is a Sodomite. And he has been bribed by others in his coalition, such that this massive armed force attacking Israel from outside in and inside out is payback for the billions he has received. Therefore, this adversary betraying God's People is the Copper Con – the rapist, real estate developer, and egomaniac who is emerging from the pages of Satan's autobiography.

If I may summarize by collapsing the gap of time resident in the rhetoric: we have just learned that the Adversary will pummel Israel with the combined forces of edowm* | of Men in Red ~ representing the legacy of Imperial Romans and Roman Catholics, the Yshma^{ee}elym | of a Man Claims to Hear a God ~ representing Arabian Suni Muslims, *Mow*ab* | those of a Questionable Father ~ representing Marxists, MAGAs, and Pauline Christians, the Hagry | Muttering ~ representing Egyptians who migrated from central Jordan to the Persian Gulf, Gebal | Borders ~ representing those of the Byblos | Bible, even the Lebanese and those imposing borders on Israel, the amown* | Pertaining to People and Nations ~ representing the dimwitted nature of man, amaleq* | the Wretched Ones ~ representing fearsome and malcontent Muslim militants, and Palesheth | the so-called ‘Palestinians’ ~ representing murderous Muslims in Gaza, Israel, Judea, and Samaria who are Invading Terrorists. Collectively, these belligerents will be im Tsar* | in league with the Adversary during this Time of Trouble, with each participant living to slash and kill Jews while anguishing and persecuting Israel. Moreover, the ashuwr* | the Assyrian who is leading this charge is receiving money from them, such that he will join in with them as payback, thereby orchestrating the armed forces of the Sons of Sodomites.

While this list was not designed to identify any of the ten horns of Daniel 7, it has done nothing to disqualify any of the previous candidates. They top eight remain: MBS, al Thani, Macron, Starmer, Merz, Meloni, Carney, and Erdogan, from Saudi Arabia, Qatar, France, UK, Germany, Italy, Canada, and Turkey as the leading contenders. To them you can choose two of the following to round out the Big Ten Conference: Sisi, Pope Leo, al Sharaa, and al Nahyan of Egypt, the RCC, Syria, and UAE, in addition to the possibility of Netanyahu of Israel.

This is not only breathtaking in its implications, but there should also be little doubt that this prophecy and the one found in Daniel 7 and Isaiah 17 and 18 depict the same time, people, and events, albeit presented with considerably more detail by Dowd.

One of the many reasons I think this prophetic Mizmowr was scribed by Yahowah’s beloved Son and not a lowly musician is that he may have been the only man close enough to Yahowah to speak in this manner to Him. Moreover, these words reflect Dowd’s temperament as surely as they do Yah’s.

“I would like for You to engage and do (asah* – I’m hoping that You will act, performing and accomplishing (qal imperative)) to them (la hem – approaching them and as a consequence of them) similarly to (ka – as was the case with) Midyan / Midian / the Seductive Enticers and their

Contentious Strife (Midyan – to be judged and to be banished as a result of being seduced into contentious strife, Northwestern Arabians not far from what would become Mecca and Medina who were ravaged twice for having harmed the Children of Yisra*el even after having previously befriended Moseh and providing his wife), as was the case with (ka – in the manner of) Sisera, the sadistic general (*Sisera – the Canaanite military commander who tortured Yisra*elite slaves for twenty years but then was killed by a woman while his warriors were exterminated), like what happened to (ka – as with) Yabyn | Understanding Yah (Yabyn – to understand Yah, the Canaanite King of Hazor whose entire military was wiped out to free his Yisra*elite slaves when Yahowah worked through the prophet and judge Dabarah / Deborah and Barak – the Blessing of the Word) at the River (ba nachal) Qishown | Trapped by Circular Reasoning (Qishown – Kishon, to be lured in and trapped by that which is circuitous, serpentine, and winding), (Mizmowr 83:9) who were decimated (shamad – who were destroyed and exterminated) at (ba) eyN-dowr / Eye of the Generations (eyN-dowr* – Perspective of Time and Human Habitations, the View of Mankind, the town where the Canaanites were defeated by the upstanding prophet and judge Deborah and Barak, and it is also where King Saul met with the necromancer spiritualist), with them becoming (hayah – coming to exist as) dung (domen – feces) for the ground (*la ha adamah – for the earth).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:10)

This is the sign of a brilliant mind. Not only could Dowd recall and properly document these foes, he chose scum who had once befriended Israel and who had a strong woman at the heart of their story. In Bamidbar / Numbers 31:1-53, Yahowah asked Moseh, who was married to a Midianite woman, to hold Midian accountable for having led the Yisra*elites astray at *Ba*al Peowr* / the Lord of the Broad and Open Way. Every Midian man was slain, including their five kings and their *Bala*am* / Lords because they enticed Yah’s children into being religious by worshipping the Lord.

At the time, the women and children were taken captive, but Moseh objected to sparing the women's lives because they were the most responsible for tempting the Yisra^{*}elites. Understanding the gravity of their offense, he ordered the execution of all adult women, allowing only the girls to live.

And yet, even with the gravity of the crime and subsequent penalty for religious behavior so unabashedly presented in the Towrah, three religions irrationally claim that their god inspired it. I understand that Muslims are generally too stupid to understand cause and effect, and that Christians make a game out of pretending that the Towrah does not apply to them, but what is the rabbinic excuse?

Since our Midian investigations have been thorough in other books within the Yada Yahowah series, we know that there was another encounter with the Midyan which explains why they remain on God's "domen – feces" list. That story was told in Shaphat / Decide / Judges 6 and 7. We reviewed it in Observations Volume 4 Chapter 3, aptly named, Day of Midian. There we found Midyan, in concert with ^o*Amleq* | the Amalekites, systematically harassing Yisra^{*}el, robbing and plundering them.

Working with Gidi^oown | Gideon, God and His reluctant troubadour went about the business of demolishing the altars made to Lord Ba^oal and asherah* | the Mother of God. Then with the 300 men who would not prostrate themselves, and equipped only with showphars and torches, Gideon, at Yahowah's direction, put an end to these militant and thieving religious terrorists, chasing them out of the Land. This event is so vital to Israel's future disposition, the prophecy regarding Dowd in Yasha^oyah 9 regarding the Son who is given to us, is introduced by the Day of Midian.

Moving on to the next name on God's "domen – $#!+" list, Sisera^o is a surprisingly fitting candidate. He became overly exuberant in the harassment of Jews. This story opens with Yisra^{*}el becoming so religious that Yahowah, realizing that they no longer had any appreciation for what He had done to free them from Mitsraym, saw to it that they were once again enslaved. This time it would be by the Canaanite king of Hazor, Yabyn. However, the king's commander, Sisera*, went way too far, cruelly oppressing the Yisra*elites for twenty years. So, through the Judge and Prophet, Dabarah | Deborah, Yahowah intervened on behalf of His tormented children, freeing them once again.

While Sisera* survived the ensuing battle, his fate was sealed when all of his 900 iron-clad charioteers were routed during his retreat. Sisera* sought refuge in the tent of a supposed ally, only to have one of its tent pegs thrust through his temple by a woman. It was fitting because it was a woman who inspired the return to God and to courage.

Dowd is asking Yahowah to do to Yisra*el's final foes what He had done to his people's ancient foes. He had no respect for any leader seeking to harm his people, and he was always willing to make an example out of them, turning despicable rulers into "dung for the ground."

That said, Dowd's animosity was directed toward the kings, generals, and priests, not their stooges, even though he realized that those who follow along will also fall. Also, keep in mind that Dowd is projecting the past onto the future in this prophecy to make a point, thereby not only revealing the fate of those who trouble Yisra*el circa 2023 through 2033, but also that Yahowah is consistent. Opposing Yisra*el and Yahuwdym comes at the price of Divine retribution.

"Make (shyth – impose upon and set forth such) their leaders who are inclined (nadyb hem – their rulers, officials, and nobility who incite and are predisposed) like (ka) oreb | the Arabian of Toxic Darkness (oreb / arab – mingling and mixing together to become dark, an interwoven tapestry of mixed people who swarm in like noxious flies; *Oreb was the Midian leader killed by Gideon's advance) and like (wa ka) Ze•eb | the Wolf (Ze•eb – a predatory Midian prince killed

during the Yisra^{*}elite reprisal; used as a compound name in Ba^{}alzebub* and associated with the most predatory Benyamite / Benjamite wolf: Sha^{}uwl* / Paul), and even like (wa ka) Zebach | to Slaughter and Kill (Zebach – to sacrifice, to butcher, and slay, a Midianite king during the time of Gideon) and like (wa ka) Tsalmuna^{*} | Having the Likeness Withheld and Protection Denied (Tsalmuna^{}* – walking in a faltering manner, in the shadow of those who are lame and crippled, slipping and stumbling down, becoming incapacitated, paralyzed, and debilitated (therefore: following in the lame footsteps of Sha^{}uwl* / Paul who was crippled and fell during his conversion experience); from tsel – the likeness, shadow, and protection and mana^{}* – withheld and denied; a Midianite king) – everyone (kol – the totality and each) who exercises authority (nasyk hem – who claims the right to rule, politically, religiously, or militarily, especially those who pour a drink offering (such as during the Roman Catholic Eucharist)).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:11)

Gideon continued to pursue the Midian kings, Zebach and Tsalmuna^{*}, and was so insistent that they be held accountable, he refused to eat until they were under his control. He shared Yahowah’s intense disdain for those who claim and then exercise religious, political, and military authority.

In spite of God’s animosity toward them, in spite of the fact that the final chapter has already been written and all of their plans are foiled, these very thoughts are currently reverberating in the minds of religious and political leaders the world over. And this is now prophetic because of Muslims.

“They are the ones who said (asher amar – to reveal their way, and for their benefit, they professed), ‘We want to steal, have control over, and take possession (yarash – we have chosen to rob and displace by military force, seizing, dispossessing, impoverishing, and destroying the inheritance in the process, usurping authority over the ancestral agreement under false pretenses and deception (qal imperfect cohortative)) for ourselves (*la anachnuw – with regard to, according to, and directed toward ourselves) that which is associated with the pasture and abode (eth nawah* – all that is according to the beautiful and desirable dwelling and lovely homeland, the camp, residence, and home) of God (elohym* – the Almighty).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:12)

Muslims have branded Israel as their own with the Dome of the Rock and Al-Aqsa Mosque. Before and after, they have systematically terrorized the Chosen People. And over the next year, Trump will have taken the lead in promoting the “Two-State Solution” which not only narrows Yisra^{*}el at the waist but also assumes that America has the right to assert its control over God’s home and do with it as they please. The United Nations plots along with them to also impose its authority over Israel, continuing to issue resolutions against Israel, more sanctions against the Jewish State than all other nations combined.

All of this brings us to the word association and visual picture shared between Mizmowr 83 and Yasha ^Yah 17 and 18, making these connections essential to our understanding of the events which will play out during the Time of Trouble.

“My (any*) God (elohym* – Almighty), I want You to initiate the process such that they become (shyth hem – it is my desire that You demand and impose upon them, causing and making them (qal imperative)) like (ka – comparable to) a rolling ball of idolatrous dung spinning like a tumbleweed in a whirlwind (galgal – a dead and dried calyx of a thistle, a whirling chariot wheel as part of a weapon of war or troop transport spinning out of control; from the same root as galal – dung, giluwl – religious idols, golgoleth – skull, gula – a basin, vessel, or bowl, galyl – circuitous, galah – to expose, reveal, and remove, and galal – to roll away), like (ka – akin to) puny dead sticks and stubble bound together (qash – insignificant dried up straw and kindling which has been gathered and lashed into a bundle for having conspired and leagued together) in the approaching (la) presence of (pane^h – appearance and face of) the Spirit (Ruwach – the feminine and maternal manifestation of Yahowah’s nature which has been set apart).” (Mizmowr /

Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:13)

This word picture is so vivid, and it is so similar to the one drawn for us in Yasha'yah 17, we would be wise to see them covering the same swath of history. And since that is the case, the scene has become considerably clearer, with new insights revealing the identity, characteristics, and motives of the perpetrators.

I am seldom cautious, but this is one of those times. There is an aspect of and association with “galgal – a rolling ball of idolatrous dung spinning in a whirlwind,” which is heartbreaking. Thousands of unglazed “gula – pottery vessels” inscribed with Hebrew and Aramaic have been found in Mesopotamia dating to the time the Babylonian Talmud was written and Islam was born. These “incantation bowls” are covered with chants combining magic spells and prophetic statements, divine names and dead spirits.

Many gula have been found with “golgoleth – skulls” inside to frighten off evil spirits and to enlist the help of demons to harm adversaries or to find love or money. They were even decorated, such that there are pictorial representations of the desired spells around the bottom quarter of these gula. Many, if not most, intermingle Towrah and Talmud stories with Babylonian religious myths and Greek Gnosticism.

Sadly, not only is the Babylonian Talmud riddled with similar myths, magic spells, and incantations, this same Talmud has become the principal basis of Judaism. The Talmud contains stories about demonic encounters and of rabbis using magic spells to harm and heal, demonstrating that the words found on these gula were woven into the religious culture at the time the Babylonian Talmud was being codified. The same demons solicited in the Talmud, such as Ashmedai and Lilith, also appear on the “gula – clay vessels.”

This is particularly distressful because these same rabbis are responsible for Islam and the Quran – and, therefore, Islamic terrorism directed at Israel. Had they not sold Talmud stories to Muhammad that he twisted and then attributed to Allah, Islam would not have been perceived as a religion.

Also damning, just as a self-acclaimed rabbi, Sha^{uwl} / Paul, authored the pivotal books of the Christian New Testament, and just as rabbis played the leading role in helping Muhammad create his Quran, the rabbis who created the Talmud wrote magic spells for Zoroastrians by intermixing religious beliefs. There is even one such bowl in which a rabbi spoke of the power of the cross and included a reference to the pagan concept of the Trinity to market a gula to a Christian. The sad truth is that Judaism is as steeped in Babylonian religious lore and Greek Gnosticism, as is Christianity.

Dowd | David, whom I am convinced was the author of this Mizmowr / Psalm, knew better. He wanted no part of religion or the religious...

“Just as (ka – in the way) fire (esh* – burning flames) purges and removes (ba^{ar} – sets ablaze and burns the stupid and combusts and consumes the brutish, destroying and eliminating the foolish) wooded thickets (ya^{ar} – forested underbrush and cultivated groves) and as (wa ka) flames (lehabah – flashes of lightning, raging infernos, and roaring conflagrations) set ablaze (lahat – set afire and scorch, violently devouring) the hills (harym – high places and mountain ranges), (Mizmowr 83:14) so in this same manner (ken – therefore) pursue them (radaph – chase them and drive them away, overwhelm them and astonish the pretentious and prideful) with Your tempest (sa^{ar} ^{atah} – Your scattering storm, Your swirling whirlwind).

And with Your strong and fulfilling wind that brings this to a rightful conclusion (wa suwphah ^{atah} – with Your promise to produce gale-force winds, a storm to end all storms, even hurricanes and tornados; from suwph – to cause what is happening to cease and to bring things to an end, completing and fulfilling promises), bewilder and dismay them (bahal hem – cause them to tremble in fear, anxious and nervous (piel imperfect – subject causes the object to suffer the effect without any constraint on time)).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:15)

This is prophetic of the way Yahowah has promised to incinerate the religious terrorists besieging Israel on Taruw^{ah} in year 6000 Yah. Therefore, this is one of countless citations where we find Yahowah cleaning house before He returns. The religious, political, and militaristic must be purged for life to return to the joy experienced in Eden*.

Unlike God’s children who revere and respect Him, Yahowah’s foes will come to fear Him. And yes, before they are judged and condemned, they will be confronted with the name they denied and sought to obfuscate. Removing Yahowah’s name from His testimony and the common vernacular is the most shameful thing religious and political men have ever done.

“Fill (*male – choose to place upon and make full (piel imperative)) their faces (paneḥ hem – their appearance and presence, their head and mouths) with shame (qalown – with public disgrace and contempt, with dishonor and infamy, with insults and scorn) such that they inquire about (wa baqash – so they attempt to learn something about and request) Your name (*shem ataḥ – Your personal and proper designation), Yahowah (𐤃𐤓𐤕𐤔).” (Mizmowr / Song / Psalm 83:16)

Before it is all over, the religious and political will be acquainted with Yahowah’s name – not for their benefit, but only so that they know who they were conspiring against and who is responsible for their ensuing fate.

“They should be humiliated and ashamed (bowsh – they should be embarrassed and mortified, feeling horribly guilty, as a result of their choices and should sense Your disapproval (qal imperfect jussive)). And (wa) they should be so nervous that they tremble in fear (bahal – they should be terrified, bewildered, and anxious (nifal imperfect jussive)) for all time (ad ad – forever and ever).

So (wa) let them be anxious and confused, disgraced and ashamed (chaphar – let them be dismayed and distressed, confounded and mortified as they dig for something meaningful (qal imperfect jussive)).

And then (wa) lose their whereabouts, causing them to vanish, while allowing them to waste away (abad* – let them destroy themselves, squandering and exterminating their limited value, annihilating all traces of themselves (qal imperfect jussive)).” (Mizmowr / Song / Psalm 83:17)

Life in She*owl will be more about being humiliated and ashamed, embarrassed and even mortified, than anything else. It is about discovering that one has been wrong and has chosen poorly. Even as those incarcerated dig for something meaningful, they will remain anxious and confused forever.

“And then (wa) let them know (*yada – reveal and acknowledge, making them aware (qal imperfect, jussive)) that (ky – surely and truly) You (atah*), whose name (*shem atah – whose proper designation) is Yahowah (𐤆𐤑𐤆𐤃), alone (*la bad atah – for by Yourself, set apart, separate, separated, and unique), are Almighty God (elyown* – are Supreme, the Most High) over all (al kol* – upon the totality of) the earth (*ha erets – the material realm).” (Mizmowr / Song with Lyrics / Psalm 83:18)

With the Lord of the Earth incarcerated on Taruw*ah, and with those who did Satan’s bidding destined for a similar fate, Dowd wants the religious to know that God has a name. It is something exceedingly important to him.

The Messiah’s testimony on behalf of Yahowah, depicting the identity and fate of those seeking the dismemberment and obliteration of Yisra*el, reveals that the King’s inspired conclusions are the same as we have surmised through Yasha*yah and Dany*el. This is another layer of confirmation.

Bel^osha^otsar ~ Lord's King

Opening the 8th chapter, we have returned to Dany^oel communicating in Hebrew, making our study more productive. And as we press ahead, future history is being revealed by explaining what has occurred in our past. History repeats itself because far too few learn its lessons. We will not make that same mistake.

“In the third year (ba shanah shalowsh) of the reign of (la malkuwth – in the rule of) Bel^osha^otsar (Bel^osha^otsar – Bel (the Lord) Protects the King, commonly transliterated Belshazzar, last king of the Neo-Babylonian Empire, 556-539 BCE), the ruler (ha melek – highest governing authority), a communication (dabar – the communication (corrected to reflect the discrepancy between 4QDan and the MT)) appeared (ra^aah – was viewed and revealed) to me (el any).

I (any*), Dany^oel | My God is Judgmental (Dany^oel – My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns), had it shown to me (*ha ra^aah *el any – had it revealed to me) after (achar*) the previous one (ba ha tachilah – the start of the first time).” (Dany^oel / God is My Means to Decide between Vindication and Condemnation / Daniel 8:1)

It is now between 555 and 553 BCE. Dany^oel is still a prisoner in Babylon, although, as a result of his literacy and intellect, he is an advisor to Bel^osha^otsar, a conniving, money-grubbing, and murderous usurper. By this time, however, he knew that Babel's days were numbered. The demise was imminent. The extravagantly adorned city-state was doomed because it had institutionalized religion and integrated it into the government, not unlike the Catholic Church or even Judaism in Israel today. Although in its death, this maggot adorned in butterfly wings would spawn a stream of evil that would flow well beyond the banks of the Great River. The political and religious metamorphoses would transpire over 900 years, with the most diabolical of monsters evolving out of Babel's hideous shadow.

As we have noted, in Dany^{el}'s case, he was principally a reporter. He could not fathom what he had seen. It would be left to us, nearly 2,600 years later, to interpret the images he had observed.

On this occasion, Dany^{el} isn't retiring for the evening, lying on his bed at night, seeing the revelation in his head. He has been taken to the scene of the action and is an eyewitness.

“And (wa) while I was viewing the revelation (ra^{ah} ba ha chazown – I paid attention and realized from viewing), it came to exist (wa ba hayah – it happened) as I was looking (ba ra^{ah} – when I was being shown) that I was in (wa ^{any}ba) the citadel (ha byrah – the fortified capitol, palace, castle, temple, or fort) of Shuwshan (ba Shuwshan – exalted lily or lotus flower, the blue color of a large Egyptian water lily which covered the walls throughout Babel; transliterated Susa, capital of Elam in modern southwest Iran; from suws – to exult), which is in (^{asher}ba) the Province (ha mady nah – the administrative district) of ^EEylam (^{ey}lam – to conceal, set between the Zagros Mountains and the Persian Gulf in modern Iran running parallel to the Gulf, Tigris River, and Iraqi border, beginning adjacent to the Strait of Hormuz to the northeast of Ur at the mouth of the Euphrates).

And then I saw (wa ra^{ah} – then I witnessed) that I, Myself, was (wa ^{any}hayah) in the revelation (ba ha chazown – within the visual communication regarding the future, providing the perspective) at the waterway (^{al} ^{uw}bal – the canal or gateway to the river) of ^UUwlay (^{uw}lay – of those led astray by foolishness; from ^{ew}yl – one who ignorantly and irrationally mocks others when he, himself, is the problem).”
(Dany^{el} / My God Judges, Condemns, and Vindicates / Daniel 8:2)

^EEylam is not well-known today. Referred to as Haltamti by those who lived within the region, it was acknowledged in Sumerian, Akkadian, and Hebrew texts as *Eylam, identifying it with the name of Shem's eldest son who is said to have settled there. Its history spans more than two millennia from 3200 to 539 BCE.

The community grew as a result of three tribes allying in response to a series of invasions by Sumer, the civilization which developed around Ur at the mouth of the Euphrates River. To venerate their gods, they built ziggurats to sun deities and carved statues of the Queen of Heaven replete with fish and serpents. At their zenith, the 'Eylamites successfully raided Babylonia and reconstructed elaborate temples and palaces. Ultimately, the 'Eylamites became like the Romans and destroyed themselves through a series of civil wars, brother fighting brother.

Ashurbanipal initiated the most devastating of these internal conflicts, waging war against his brother, Shamash-Shum-Ukin. After his victory, he described the citadel: "Susa, the great holy city, abode of their gods, seat of their mysteries, I conquered. I entered its palaces, I opened their treasures where silver and gold, goods and wealth were amassed.... I destroyed the ziggurat of Susa. I smashed its shining copper horns. I reduced the temples of Elam to naught; their gods and goddesses I scattered to the winds. The tombs of their ancient and recent kings I devastated, I exposed to the sun, and I carried away their bones toward the land of Ashur. I devastated the provinces of Elam and on their lands I sowed salt." These fellows were nothing if not militant, covetous, and braggadocious ~ Trumpish before their time.

There is an interesting footnote associated with Shuwshan, especially since this prophecy will highlight the rise and fall of the Macedonian Empire while the next will actually detail the circumstances surrounding Alexander the Great's death. It was in Susa circa 323 BCE, prior to Alexander's arrival in Babylon and subsequent death, that his most trusted oracle, the Swami Calanus, committed suicide by self-immolation. Prior to his fiery demise, however, the Hindu sage served as Alexander's spiritual advisor, prophetic forecaster, and intellectual muse.

Brazen during their initial meeting, Calanus actually commanded Alexander to strip naked if he wanted to hear what he had to say, a demand that might have led to his death had the sage not also said that Alexander came from Jupiter and, thus, was a god. An old man at the time, Calanus was more than twice Alexander's age, but that did not stop him from also being the General's favored yoga instructor and conversationalist.

However, Calanus ultimately tired of the travel associated with the Macedonian's conquests. So just before going out in a blaze of glory in Susa upon a pyre constructed by General Ptolemy, Calanus told Alexander, "We shall meet in Babylon." It was considered a prophetic announcement of the location of Alexander's impending demise.

Continuing with the vision Dany'el | Daniel was witnessing in this place, it is helpful to know that it will soon reveal that this ram represents the Medians who became Persians following their conquest of Babylonia...

"Then (wa) I lifted up (nasa*) my eyes (*ayn *any – my gaze) and I was observant (ra*ah – I looked around, viewing the vision), and behold (wa hineh – while paying attention), a large Ram (*ayl rahab – a powerful leader, a formative ruler, or important governor, someone who shepherds a substantial flock; from *ayil – male lamb, upright pillar, doorpost, and leader and *uwl – contemptuous, prominent, and wealthy [corrected to reflect 4QDan]), one (*echad) standing in front of the stream (*amad la paneh ha *uwbal).

And upon him were (wa la huw*) two horns (tsemed qerenym – a couple of powerful people or institutions [updated to reflect 4QDan]). And the horns (wa ha qerenym) were high, haughty, and conceited (gaboah – were of a boastful official seeking power and status who is arrogant and amoral). But the one (wa ha *echad) was more self-exalting and power-craving (gaboah – was more conceited, arrogant, and amoral) than the other (min ha seny). And the more arrogant and domineering one (wa ha qaboah – the loftiest, most haughty and conceited one, the more self-exalting, self-serving, and self-assured, the more power-hungry higher-ranking) ascended (alah* – was lifted up out of) the former at the end (*ba ha acharown – from the previous one subsequently in the last days).” (Dany^eel / Daniel 8:3)

This is a depiction of Media-Persia, and how, working together, they throttled Assyria before conquering Babylonia. But the Median Kingdom was but a candle in the wind compared to Persia under Cyrus the Great. The famed Persian would go on to profoundly influence the known world. Fitting with the prophecy, few characters have been as arrogant and domineering as Cyrus. He would say of himself: “I am Cyrus, king of the world.” Nose in the heavens, he claimed: “I took up my lordly abode in the royal palace amidst rejoicing and happiness. Marduk, the Great Lord, established as his fate for me a magnanimous heart of one who loves Babylon.” (The Cyrus Cylinder, 539 BCE, Babylon)

The Persian military was particularly effective, especially adept horsemen, swordsmen, and archers, justifying the use of “nagah – piercing and goring” in the next statement. Even the depiction of Cyrus as an ayl* | ram seems appropriate because he was a powerful leader, a man who viewed himself as the shepherd of both his people and Yahuwdym. Compared to most, he was upright, prominent, and wealthy. And he served to open the door to Yisra^el’s return.

Also accurate, Cyrus would stretch the borders of the Persian Empire in every direction except toward the east. He expanded southward to the Arabian Sea and Persian Gulf and northward toward the Scythians and into the Caucasus, even encircling the Black Sea. The western edge of his empire included Egypt and much of Libya along the southern edge of the Mediterranean. He would rule over Turkey and most of Macedonia on the northern rim of the Great Sea.

“I saw (ra^aah), accordingly (eth*), the Ram (ha^a ayl – the leader and ruler, a male lamb and upright pillar, the doorway back home, both prominent and wealthy) attacking by goring (nagah – engaging in battle, piercing and destroying, pushing) westward (yam – toward the sea), northward (wa tsaphown – seeking treasure), also to the south (wa negeb – into parched land).

And there was not any beast that could withstand (wa kol chayah lo^a amad – no living being could stand in) his presence (la paneh huw^a). None were spared (wa^a ayn natsal) from his influence (min yad huw^a – from his hand, power, and control). So he acted (wa^a asah – it engaged and did) as he pleased (ka ratsown huw^a – according to his pleasure and strong desires). And he was exalted and became great (wa gadal – and he achieved a high status).” (Dany^oel / God is My Means to Judge / Daniel 8:4)

In the Towrah, sheep follow Yahowah’s shepherds while goats are typically cast into a bad lot and often represent an independent and rebellious, headstrong and aggressive attitude. While Cyrus was belligerent and full of himself, at Yahowah’s request, he was generous toward the Yisra^aelites – especially Yahuwdym who were held captive in Babylon. Of them, he would continue to record on The Cyrus Cylinder, “I have given leave to as many of the Yahuwdym that dwell in my country as please to return to their own country, and to rebuild their city, and to build the Temple of God at Yaruwshalaim on the same place where it was before. I have also sent my treasurer Mithridates, and Zorobabel, the governor of the Yahuwdym, that they may lay the foundations of the temple.... I require also that the expenses for these things may be given out of my revenues. Moreover, I have also sent the vessels which king Nebuchadnezzar pillaged out of the Temple, and have given them to Mithridates, the treasurer, and to Zorobabel, the governor of the Jews, so that they may have them carried to Yaruwshalaim, and may restore them to the Temple of God.”

Perhaps the ignorant and irrational Marxists, who, in forums such as the United Nations, are wont to deny any association between Jews and Judea or the Temple Mount, ceding it to the Muslims who would not even exist for another 1,200 years, should consider Cyrus' history of this place. I assume they can read.

In spite of his rather glaring issues, it is obvious why Yahowah anointed Cyrus such that this gentile would serve a purpose, becoming the means to liberate God's people and fund the rebuilding of Yahowah's House. And as it turned out, unlike most Jews, Cyrus listened to Yahowah and then did as God had requested. There are similar examples among the Chosen People – although they are few and far between.

“And so, as I began to consider and process this (*wa any hayah byn – as I strove to make the connections needed to understand), then behold (wa hineh – take note and pay attention), a young and independent crowned Goat (tsaphyr – a chattering and chirping offshoot who leaves early seeking glory as a bearded and agile male goat wearing a crown to depict his royal lineage) who was headstrong and imposing (*ha ez – who was stubborn and well-fortified, consistently prevailing by using the same tactics, prideful and unwilling to change) coming (*bow – arriving) from the west (*min ha ma*arab* – from a place of mixing and joining together, of early enlightenment and subsequent darkness; from mah – to consider the implications of arab* – to commingle and ally, to grow dark after having been bright, pledging fellowship or adversity) before (al*) the presence (paneh) of the entire region (*kol ha erets) and, yet, not making contact with or striking (*wa *ayn naga – without touching or plaguing, leveling or destroying) the Land (*ba ha erets).

And the young crowned Goat seeking adventure and glory (wa ha tsaphyr – so the chattering and chirping offshoot who left home early seeking to be admired, this bearded yet agile male goat with his crown as a sign of honor and status) had a prominent and conspicuous horn (qeren chazuwth – distinguishing object denoting his power along with an affinity for seers and prophets) between his eyes (byn 'ayn – affecting his vision and understanding).” (Dany'el / My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns / Daniel 8:5)

At the conclusion of this prophecy, Yahowah will reveal that this 'ez | headstrong and imposing, well-fortified and tactically consistent tsaphyr | young and agile crowned Goat seeking adventure and glory would be charging out of Macedonia in the west.

Further affirming the prophecy, there is no contemporaneous evidence that Alexander the Great had any meaningful contact with Yisra'el and, most assuredly, didn't wage war against Yahuwdah or Yaruwshalaim. But by introducing Hellenic culture into neighboring Syria and Egypt, Alexander had more influence on the development of Judaism than any other Gentile. As evidence of this, four hundred years after Alexander ravaged Gaza, and marched through Judea without opposition in 332 BCE, Josephus, one of Judaism's three most notorious voices (along with Rabbi Akiba and Maimonides), told the following story. It was, no doubt, designed to curry favor with those he had abandoned, weaving this fanciful tale to promote the myth that the great general paid homage to the high priests of Judaism. Therefore, four centuries after the fact, the traitor wrote...

“Alexander went to Jerusalem after having taken Gaza. Jaddua, the High Priest, had a warning from God received in a dream, in which he saw himself vested in a purple robe, with his miter (a golden plate on which the name YHWH was engraved) on his head. Accordingly, he went to meet Alexander at Sapha to take in the view of the Temple. Followed by the priests, all clothed in fine linen, and by a multitude of citizens, Jaddua awaited the coming of the king. When Alexander saw the high priest, he revered God (Targum Lev. R. xiii., end), and saluted Jaddua; while the Jews with one voice greeted Alexander.

When Parmenio, the general, gave expression to the army's surprise at Alexander's extraordinary act—that one who ought to be adored by all as king should adore the High Priest of the Jews—Alexander replied: 'I did not adore him, but the God who hath honored him with this High Priesthood; for I saw this very person in a dream, in this very habit, when I was at Dios in Macedonia, who, when I was considering with myself how I might obtain dominion of Asia, exhorted me to make no delay, but boldly to pass over the sea, promising that he would conduct my army, and would give me the dominion over the Persians.' Alexander then gave the high priest his right hand and went into the Temple and 'offered sacrifice to God according to the high priest's direction,' treating the whole priesthood magnificently."

Don't believe a word of it. Josephus lied for a living. While Gaza was pummeled and Judea was not, this conversation never took place. It is standard religious rhetoric, whereby the faithful justify their beliefs and honor their leaders through the endorsements of others.

Now a Roman citizen, Flavius Josephus was a quick study, turning history into propaganda...

"And when the Book of Daniel was shown him [see Dan. VII. 6, VIII. 5-8, 20-22, XI. 3-4], wherein Daniel declared that one of the Greeks should destroy the empire of the Persians, he supposed that he was the person intended, and rejoiced thereat. The following day Alexander asked the people what favors he should grant them; and, at the High Priest's request, he accorded them the right to live in full enjoyment of the laws of their forefathers." (Josephus, Antiquities, XI, 8, pages 4-6)

All this shows is how desperate Jewish leaders became when attempting to justify their exalted positions, their religious laws, and the pervasive Greek influence in Judaism, especially Kabbalah. The Jewish Encyclopedia acknowledges "All the accounts which the Talmud and Midrash give concerning Alexander the Macedonian are of a legendary character."

What is remarkable, however, is that in 555 BCE, before

Greece had risen on the world stage, and 200 years before Alexander was born, Danyʿel described the Macedonian general using a fitting array of terms. Alexander would come to Shuwshan from the West. He was very young, just 20 years old in 336 BCE when he became king and set off seeking adventure and glory. He was headstrong and imposing, well-fortified and consistent, relying upon his phalanx through it all. He was an imposing figure, among the most prominent in history. And there is no doubt he sought fame and fortune, naming more than 70 cities after himself and then glorifying himself as a god. Even the references to each Beast spawning and influencing the next ring true with Alexander who, in the final years of his life, became so Persian his Greek troops nearly abandoned him.

But at this moment, Alexander was obsessed with his white whale – Darius III – King of Persia...

“Then (wa) he came (bowʿ) up to (ʿad) the Ram (ha ʿayl – the leader and central pillar, the doorway back home who was both prominent and wealthy) possessing (baʿal – the owner and master who controls, Baʿal, the Lord of) the two horns (ha qerenym – of status and might, of being in elevated positions) which (ʿasher) I had seen (raʿah) standing (ʿamad) before the presence of (la paneh) the waterway (ha ʿuwbal – canal or stream). And he chased (wa ruwts – he ran hurriedly) after him (ʿal huwʿ) with a vengeance and in hot pursuit (ba chemah – antagonistically enraged, in great hostility and fury) while demonstrating resourceful cunning and talent (koah – in strength and power, showing off his superior capability).” (Danyʿel / Daniel 8:6)

This depicts the Goat chasing after the Ram, revealing that the Macedonians would be the aggressor, pursuing the Persians in this battle – as was the case. Alexander would come after Darius with a vengeance, staying in hot pursuit. And yet, all the while it was obvious that the young Macedonian was more talented and resourceful, having never lost a battle. But also keep in mind, the Persians were resolutely pagan. While Darius and his priests promoted a wide array of false gods, they were principally devoted to the mythology of Bel | the Lord.

For a considerable time, the Persians had menaced the Greeks, taking the battle to them, beating them badly and consistently. They would fight in the midst of the Greek peninsula. And so, there was some lingering animosity.

“And I witnessed him (*wa ra*ah huw – I saw him) approaching and making contact with (*naga*etsel*) the Ram (*ha ayl – the leader and ruler, the male lamb and central pillar, the doorway back home who was both prominent and wealthy). He was embittered and obsessed with him (*wa marar *el huw – he was anguished by him and angry with him, indeed furious). Therefore, he lashed out at the Ram (*wa nakah *eth ha ayl – he struck the leader, defeating and destroying the central pillar of his people), breaking (*wa shabar eth – he shattered) both of his horns (*shanaym qeren huw).

And with the Ram (*wa ba ha ayl), there was insufficient capability, power, and resources (*lo*hayah koach* – there was a lack of strength, might, and vigor) to withstand his presence (*la *amad la paneh huw) so (wa) he was overthrown and humbled as he brought him down (wa shalak huw – he toppled him, throwing him down) to earth (erets – to the ground). He was trampled and tread upon by him as the aggressor (*wa ramas huw – he was bent upon destroying him) so there was no way to spare or rescue (*wa lo*hayah natsal* – it was not possible to deliver or liberate) the Ram (*la ha *ayil ha ayl – the leader and ruler, the male lamb and central pillar, the doorway back home who was both prominent and wealthy) from his influence and ability (*min yad huw – from his hand).” (*Dany*el* / Daniel 8:7)

King Darius III of Persia fought Alexander and his Hellenic League at the location of his choosing, a wide-open plain near ancient Nynowah | Nineveh, not far from Mosul in today’s northern Iraq. Darius, who led the larger force and was fighting close to home, and actually prepared the battleground, flattening the terrain so as to give his war chariots optimal operating conditions.

While we will consider the prelude to this battle in a moment, suffice it to say for now that Alexander had spent the previous year transitioning from warrior to savage, losing all sense of civility while besieging Tyre and Gaza. Then in Egypt, he positioned himself as the Master of the Universe and the living incarnation of Amun.

Darius, on the other hand, just wanted to be left alone. He offered Alexander his kingdom and his treasure to return his kidnapped family and stop pursuing him. Replying to one of the king's offers, the Macedon wrote: "From King Alexander to Darius: If you wish to dispute your throne, stand up and fight for it, and do not run away. Wherever you hide, I will find you."

Alexander was now obsessed. He marched into the heart of the Persian Empire, crossing the Euphrates and Tigris Rivers without opposition. All the while, having given peace a chance, Darius was now building an army of over fifty thousand warriors, with some claiming twice that many soldiers. It is said that half of his troops were on horseback. By comparison, there were forty thousand Greek infantry and seven thousand cavalry.

However, be cautioned. As we have discovered with the Roman propensity to alter the Christian New Testament to serve their agenda, the mythical appeal to revise history was inbred. So, to project Alexander as a god among men, some ancient Greek historians would have us believe that the Persian army numbered into the hundreds of thousands.

Outnumbering his foe by a little or a lot, on his home turf, and on a battlefield, he had prepared to his advantage, Darius offered to cede the western half of the Persian Empire without a fight, and yet, Alexander declined. Parmenion, one of Alexander's generals, said that if he were Alexander he would have accepted the generous offer. To which Alexander, demonstrating his enormous ego, replied, "And I would too, if I were Parmenion."

That evening, Parmenion encouraged Alexander to launch a surprise attack under the cover of darkness in order to negate the enemy's advantage. Alexander declined, expecting Darius to keep his army up all night in anticipation of that very thing. Alexander was so nonplussed by the impending engagement, he overslept the next morning, only to be awakened by his generals who, yanked his chain and claimed that the battle had already been won. And while that would occur, luck, strategy, equipment, and training would all be brought to bear.

The fact is, Darius' troops were inexperienced, poorly trained, and inadequately equipped. By comparison, Alexander's infantry fought in a phalanx with heavy shields and ten-foot spears, while the spears of the Persian Immortals were three feet shorter and their shields were designed for protecting royals from civilians and not soldiers from warriors.

Alexander's troops had followed him through Macedon, Corinth, Trace, and Thessalonica, then Tyre and Gaza. They were battle-tested. By comparison, Darius deployed inferior Scythian scythed chariots, which is why he removed every shrub from the battlefield. He also deployed the ancient world's version of a tank, with fifteen Indian elephants.

Both sides arranged their armies in traditional fashion. The battle commenced with the Macedonian infantry in phalanx formation marching into the center of the Persian line. Alexander's flanks were extended like wings, tilted back at forty-five degrees.

Darius responded by attacking his enemy's left flank which was under the command of the aforementioned Parmenion. But rather than reinforcing his general, Alexander moved in the other direction, toward his right flank, hoping to open up a gap in Darius' line as his infantry pursued him.

Meanwhile, the Scythian scythed chariots were being effectively countered by the discipline and experience of the Macedonian cavalry on Alexander's right. They prevailed by maneuvering their chariots away from the ground that had been previously prepared, rendering them ineffective. Then as Darius countered Alexander's move, his cavalry routed the Greek horsemen in the vicinity of the Macedon general. The more cavalry Alexander engaged, the less favorable the outcome. This is because the Scythian horses were better protected, and their riders were accomplished horsemen. And yet somehow, the Greek auxiliary forces drove the Persians out of their ranks. During their retreat, the Greeks pursued and slaughtered the fleeing Persians.

All the while, Alexander allowed Darius to collapse his wings, a move that would have been fatal if the Macedonian general didn't simultaneously draw his entire army into a wedge formation, pointing the tip directly at the Persian king. In response, Darius fell back, his troops retreating with him. However, Alexander, learning that his left flank under Parmenion was encircled, and was on the verge of being destroyed, elected to save his army rather than strike Darius down.

Upon returning to their encampment, the Greeks found Darius' troops attempting to rob them of provisions and valuables. This was fortuitous for Alexander because, with Darius' soldiers distracted, it evened the odds, allowing for the rescue of Parmenion's trapped soldiers.

Immediately thereafter, Alexander turned the tables and set off with his bodyguards in pursuit of Persian treasure rather than Darius, himself. En route to Susa, they came upon the king's personal baggage, which included a bankroll of over four thousand talents (since each talent represents twenty-six kilograms of silver, each was worth approximately $25,000, valuing the captured treasury at $100 million). But that was inconsequential to what he would later find and would then own. All of Persia and Babylon were now Alexander's for the taking.

I have a sense of what comes next. Immediately after leading an IPO, and raising hundreds of millions for my growing business, I told a reporter, "We are never more vulnerable than we are at the moment of our greatest success.” My expression was offered out of an assessment of history and sober appraisal of personal responsibility. I was aware that, while there are those like Alexander who are known for their extraordinary accomplishments, there are far better men and women pursuing a much more beneficial agenda who were not as lucky. In business and in war, the combatants make hundreds of decisions each day, and only one needs to be wrong to have everything come crashing down. And we are never quite as circumspect or careful when so many are singing our praises.

After Alexander had accomplished his goal of killing his white whale, then what? He tried debauchery and licentiousness, and apparently, he wasn’t very good at either. He drank himself into a stupor, but even when sober, he demeaned his men by ordering them to worship him as a god. Believing he was immortal and no longer subject to human constraints, he discovered that neither was true.

Now surrounded by the swampy waters of Mesopotamia where mosquitoes breed, he contracted malaria. It is something with which I am also familiar. His symptoms mimicked mine. As the disease caused his internal cells to rupture, his fever rose and the pain became debilitating over two-weeks’ time. It is an excruciatingly miserable way to die, which he would do at 32 years of age in 323 BCE.

God not only predicted as much, He asked a man who had experienced both of these imposters to share the results with you...

“The great young and stubborn crowned Goat seeking adventure, supremacy, and glory (wa tsaphyr ha ʿez – the chattering and chirping offshoot who left home early seeking to be admired, this prideful and bearded yet agile male goat with his crown as a sign of honor and status who was exceptionally prideful and yet capable) was empowered, exalted, and enriched as he glorified himself and became exceptionally boastful (gadal – he triumphed and was called great, growing considerably in prestige), exceeding (‘ad – beyond) the greatest extent thought possible (me‘od – the highest point on the scale, vehemently and excessively).

But when he was the strongest and when his empire was enormous (wa ka ‘atsam huw’ – at the peak of his power and following his greatest accomplishment), the great Horn (ha gadowl ha qeren – this intense, important, and distinguished) was broken, the membranes of his body rupturing (shabar – he was internally destroyed, shattered and crushed, suffering physical harm).

Then four (wa ‘arba’) conspicuously appeared (chasuwth – became prominent consistent with the prophecy), rising up (alah* – ascending) in its place (tachath hy’ – succeeding it by rising up from beneath the horn), extending toward (la) the four winds (arba’ ruwach*) of the sky (shamaym).” (Dany‘el / Daniel 8:8)

Upon Alexander’s death, his top four generals, Ptolemy, Seleucus, Lysimachus, and Cassander, divided his empire and ruled in his place. History played out exactly as God revealed. And since this prophecy was conveyed 200 years prior to these events playing out in the lives of Babylonians, Persians, and Greeks, this presentation serves to affirm that we can rely upon those which were foretold to guide us through our future.

As we did in the midst of the previous revelation, out of the ashes of history long ago, we find ourselves confronted with our immediate future. The Beast of the Time of Trouble will eventually emerge out of this story as will his comrades. And from there, his influence will stretch southeast toward the Promised Land.

“Then from one of them (wa min ha ‘echad min hem – so out of the singular and unique among them and because of each one of them), was withdrawn (*yatsa – he came out and came forth, emerging) one horn (*qeren echad – a single empowered political and religious leader), less significant, although perhaps the youngest, smallest, or lowliest (min tsaʿyr – the youngest member of the family).

And a remnant or the rest grew, becoming greater (wa gadal yeter – and a remainder became abundant and valuable, powerful and important) toward the south (el ha negeb* – in the direction of the parched Negeb), to the east (*wa el ha mizrach – toward the rising sun), and toward the desirable and beautiful (*wa el ha tsaby – the attractive, highly valued, and glorified, even the most highly decorated and adorned; may serve as a metaphor for Yisraʿel).” (Danyʿel / Daniel 8:9)

While we will consider the possibilities, the most obvious choice for the one among many, who was initially less significant early on, but grew in power over time, particularly as his influence spread to the south and east, including the promised land, would be Seleucus. He was initially the least prominent of those who rose to power and acclaim following Alexander’s death. He was a secondary player as the commander of an infantry unit. He cast his lot initially under Perdiccas, who he later betrayed and assassinated during the Diadochi Wars in Egypt. For his treachery, Seleucus was appointed Satrap of Babylon under the regency of Alexander’s retarded brother, Antipater. Not up to the level of rival Antigonos, Seleucus fled Babylon, only to return with Ptolemy’s support. But from that point, Seleucus became the most ruthless of Alexander’s former generals, conquering a resurgence of the Persian and Median empires, reclaiming Babylon in the process. As a result, the Seleucid Empire and dynasty ruled over everything from Asia Minor in today’s Turkey, south to Syria and Judea, and east to Mesopotamia and today’s Iraq and Iran.

Beyond the obvious choice, this situation is complicated because Alexander had no plans to die and did not discuss succession. Disagreements ensued between generals and put the empire into crisis. The main factions included Meleager, who supported Alexander's half-brother, Arrhidaeus – who, as I have mentioned, was mentally retarded, and Perdiccas, the leading cavalry commander who strategically championed Alexander's yet unborn son. A compromise ensued when the mentally incapacitated Arrhidaeus become coregent under the name Philip III alongside Alexander's infant son. Since that was absurd, Perdiccas designated himself as the coregent of the empire. And to keep peace in the army, Meleager became his second in command. However, Perdiccas had Meleager and the other leaders who had opposed him, murdered.

Thereafter, the generals supporting Perdiccas were made satraps of the empire. Ptolemy, of course, became the first Greek pharaoh of Egypt which at times included Judea. Laomedon received and lost Syria, which included Phoenicia. Philotas was assigned Cilicia, Peithon was offered Media, Antigonos was given Phrygia along with Lycia and Pamphylia, but wanted more. Casander received Caria. Also in the mix, Menander became king of Lydia, Lysimachus came to own Thrace, and Leonnatus would rule over Hellespontine Phrygia. Neoptolemus was assigned Armenia. Macedonia and the rest of Greece became Antipater's prize. Taxiles and Porus shared portions of India. Alexander's father-in-law, Oxyartes, received Gandara. Sibyrtius was given Arachosia while Philip ruled Bactria. Phrataphernes became king of Parthia and Hyrcania, with Peucestas governing Persis. Tlepolemus was placed in charge of Carmania, with Atropates governing northern Media. The royal plum of Babylon was given to Archon while Arcesilas became chief in charge of northern Mesopotamia.

While this is a word salad of names, it was nothing a few wars wouldn't resolve. In 322 BCE, Antipater, Craterus, and Antigonos united against Perdiccas. Antipater's army, under the command of Craterus, entered Asia Minor that fall. Adding to the intrigue, Ptolemy stole Alexander's body on its way back to Macedonia and then joined the coalition. However, even with four against one, the confederates defeated Craterus at Hellespont. But all was not good in hate and war because, after winning, Perdiccas was murdered by his own generals, namely, Peithon, Antigenes, and the aforementioned Seleucus, for having lost too many men during a contested crossing of the Nile when invading Egypt.

Ptolemy rewarded Perdiccas' murderers by making Peithon and Arrhidaeus coregents and later, giving Seleucus Babylon, even though he would have to fight for that right. Thereafter, a new agreement was forged with Antipater called the Treaty of Triparadisus, wherein Antipater was made Regent of the Empire and moved to Macedon. Antigonus came to own most of Asia, while remaining in control of Phrygia, Lycia, and Pamphylia, in addition to Lycaonia. Ptolemy retained Egypt, Lysimachus kept Thrace, and Perdiccas' assassins – Seleucus, Peithon, and Antigenes – were rewarded with Babylon, Media, and Susiana.

All of this was being set up for Roman control, as the beastliest empire would capture what Alexander had fought to control. And thereafter, Yahowah's world would be tread upon by Paul, Vespasian, Titus, Akiba, and Hadrian, then Constantine, Theodosius, and Muhammad, all pointing to the Stalin and Hitler to come – one miserable individual known as Trump.

Before we move on, I'd like to share a little more about Alexander since he is another prototypical despot. Growing up, he never knew the loving embrace of a mother and father. At an early age, the young boy was raised by Lanike and Leonidas, both strict disciplinarians. He was schooled in war by Lysimachus, one of Philip's generals. At thirteen, Alexander was tutored by Aristotle, a relationship which continued until the age of sixteen. His boarding school was the Temple of the Nymphs at Mieza. The only reason Aristotle consented to such duty was because Philip agreed to rebuild the philosopher's hometown of Stageira, which the king had razed, while also freeing those he had enslaved.

Classmates at the time included Ptolemy, Hephaestion, and Cassander, Alexander's future generals. While the young student loved Homer's Odyssey, he carried the Iliad with him on his conquests as if he was reliving it.

At age sixteen, Alexander's formal education was concluded. His father was at war with Thrace and he left his son in charge of Macedon as his regent. During Philip's absence, the heir apparent had the opportunity to prove his mettle when the Thracians revolted. He successfully exiled them, colonizing their territory with Greeks while founding the first of seventy cities bearing his name – Alexandropolis.

Shortly thereafter, Philip sent the teenage Alexander off with troops to quell revolts in southern Thrace, which was due east of Macedon and, thus, north of the Bosphorus Strait toward the Black Sea. While initially successful, he was quickly recalled by Philip to subdue Amphissa, a farming community thirty miles west of Athens. The Greeks living there had the audacity to cultivate Apollo's sacred land near Delphi and thus had to be punished. But while in pursuit, Alexander was met by an Illyria invasion into Macedonia which he repulsed.

In 338 BCE, when Alexander was eighteen, he joined his father on a march through Thermopylae where they suppressed Theban resistance. However, while en route to Athens, the Athenians voted to league with Thebes against Macedon. The battle for control of the Peloponnese commenced in Chaeronea, just two days' march from Athens. Philip prevailed by feigning retreat, thereby breaking the Athenian lines as they rushed into the fray. In the ensuing chaos, the Athenians were routed, making the isolated Thebans easy prey.

Every Greek city-state except Sparta capitulated, acknowledging Philip as their king. Rather than fighting, however, Sparta negotiated a Hellenic Alliance in Corinth whereby they agreed to name Philip Hegemon | Supreme Allied Commander because the stated purpose of the League of Corinth was to attack the Persian Empire.

Their sights were set but there were some glitches on the way to war. Back in Pella, Philip married Cleopatra Eurydice, a child who was the niece of General Attalus. Since she was a purebred noblewoman, even as Philip's seventh wife, her children's claim to the throne would supersede Alexander's.

The historian, Plutarch, describes the sordid affair: "At the wedding of Cleopatra, whom Philip fell in love with and married, she being much too young for him, her uncle Attalus in his drink desired the Macedonians would implore the gods to give them a lawful successor to the kingdom by his niece.

This so irritated Alexander, that throwing one of the cups at his head, 'You villain,' said he, 'what, am I then a bastard?' Then Philip, taking Attalus' part, rose up and would have run his son through; but by good fortune for them both, either his over-hasty rage, or the wine he had drunk, made his foot slip, so that he fell down on the floor. At which Alexander reproachfully insulted over him: 'See there,' said he, 'the man who makes preparations to pass out of Europe into Asia, overturned in passing from one seat to another.'"

Not as courageous as he is made out to be, our Goat fled Macedon with his mother, dropping her off in Dodona, the capital of the Molossians. This kingdom, along the Aegean Sea in northwestern Greece, is most noted for its misfortune. A century and a half from this date, vengeful Romans would enslave 150,000 Molossians in the process of annexing their land. But on this day, Alexander continued north into Illyria, which wasn't the brightest move since he had fought against them the previous year.

Illyria was also Hellenistic, which made them unreliable – as likely to be allied with fellow Greeks as they were antagonistic toward their brethren. At the time, this kingdom bordered the Adriatic Sea in the Balkans, stretching from present-day Albania to Croatia and including Montenegro, Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Without intervening conflict or conquest, the Goat in Dany^{el}'s prophecy was now age twenty. Just two years after his strategic retreat, he scampered back to the fold and to his father in Macedonia.

But all was not well. This was not Camelot. The Persian governor of Caria, Pixodarus, had just offered his eldest daughter to Alexander's half-brother, Philip Arrhidaeus. This favoritism caused Olympias to suspect that Philip was seeking to bypass her son once again. So, she had Alexander propose to the blushing bride, hoping that he would marry her before his brother could consummate the affair. Getting wind of this, Philip squashed their wedding plans, simultaneously exiling almost all of Alexander's allies, while scolding his son. This turned out to be the wrong approach because his son didn't take criticism well and his fourth wife wasn't to be toyed with.

Immediately thereafter, Philip was assassinated by the captain of his bodyguards, Pausanias, while attending another wedding. And while there is no contemporary account of the coup, the most rational explanation is that it was inspired by Olympias and Alexander. The lone report of this intrigue was provided by Diodorus two centuries thereafter, but I won't bore you with the sordid details. However, whatever the motivation or perpetrators, dead men would tell no tales. Moments after Philip's assassination, as Pausanias was making his escape, Alexander's men came upon him and killed him, crucifying his corpse for public sympathy.

Alexander was proclaimed king by the aristocracy and army. Then in the manner of the Greeks, and later Romans, he commenced his reign by eliminating potential rivals, executing his next of kin. Olympias also participated, having Cleopatra Eurydice and her daughter, Europa, burned alive. The Greeks were such nice people.

Alexander spared Arrhidaeus because he was mentally disabled as a result of being poisoned by Olympias. But he did not spare General Attalus, because he had insulted him. So Attalus was executed.

News of the king's death roused Thebes, Athens, Thessaly, and Thrace to rebel – opting out of the treaty they had fashioned with Philip. With his newly inherited empire crumbling, Alexander rode off to war. He led three thousand Macedonian cavalry to Thessaly which was located in central Greece along the shores of the Aegean.

Finding the Thessalian army stretched out in a pass between Mount Olympus and Mount Ossa, he surprised them, forcing their surrender, by maneuvering his cavalry to their unprotected rear. Adding their cavalry to his own, the Goat strode south toward the Peloponnese. At Thermopylae, he negotiated an alliance before riding on to Corinth, where he was afforded the same Supreme Allied Commander title once bequeathed to his dearly departed daddy. Thereafter, Athens pleaded for peace.

Alexander's next move was north. In 335 BCE, he marched into Thrace, which is present-day Bulgaria and Romania. There, he defeated the Thracian forces just north of the Macedonian border.

The agile Goat, now on the move, would fight the Triballi and Getae next, defeating them in the Balkans along the Danube. This would have put the Arrogant One a hundred miles north of Macedonia. It would be as far in that direction that he would venture away from home. From there, Alexander roamed west, returning to Illyria, bordering the Aegean Sea north of Greece. Once he defeated his previously hospitable host, the young general turned toward the rising sun. His expedition in Illyria was as westerly as Alexander would march. With the northern and western frontier of Macedon secure, his every move would be south and east.

Immediately thereafter, Alexander sought to suppress yet another Greek rebellion, this one perpetrated by Thebes and, to a lesser degree, by Athens. The Goat razed the city, distributing its land among its neighbors and, in the process, prompting Athens to capitulate. It was an especially vicious tactic, one which Alexander would deploy repeatedly. Fear was always the Macedon's preferred tactic.

With Greece secure, Alexander set off in pursuit of his ultimate prize – his white whale – Darius. He would cross Hellespont (known as the Dardanelles today) in 334 BCE with just shy of fifty thousand soldiers aboard one hundred twenty ships. His army was comprised mostly of men from Macedon and other Greek city-states. Although a significant number of mercenaries and feudally conscripted men and boys from Thrace, Paionia, and Illyria were included among his warriors.

In his first largely symbolic act, the Macedon king threw a spear into Asian soil, declaring that it was his, a gift from the gods. His initial contact against an actual foe that could return his volley occurred at Granicus, near the site of ancient Troy. The battle would be waged in the shadows of the Iliad and on the Aegean Sea just south of the Dardanelles. Alexander was portraying the leading character in Homer's story.

This battle was notable for many reasons. A substantial portion of the opposing force, including their leader, Memnon, were Greek mercenaries. Also interesting, Alexander received a debilitating blow inflicted by a Persian nobleman as the battle began and only survived because one of his men intervened to save him. As I have shared, good fortune is often the difference between fame and ignominy.

Nonetheless, by driving his cavalry into the heart of the Persian line, the Macedonians caused it to buckle, killing the opposing officers in the process. This prompted a Persian retreat, wherein four thousand troops were killed, Immortals among them. This left the Greek mercenaries vulnerable. So, they tried to surrender, laying down their arms, but Alexander would have none of it. He ordered his infantry to systematically murder eighteen thousand unarmed Greeks, sending two thousand back home as slaves to do hard labor in Macedon. Along with the slaves, the king sent three hundred sets of Persian officer armor to the Parthenon as an oblation to Athena. It was hardly heroic.

At this point, Alexander accepted the surrender of the Persian provincial capital in Sardis, some one hundred fifty miles south of the battlefield, confiscating its treasury. Proceeding along the Ionian coast, he successfully besieged and captured Halicarnassus. From there, he marched further south, securing the Aegean coast of Persia. This course of action cut the kingdom off from Aegean and Mediterranean ports and, thus, from resupply. Equally important, it negated the value of the vastly superior Persian fleet.

Now traveling east along the southern Turkish coast in what was Asia Minor, Alexander was able to convince the academic city of Termessos to surrender without a fight. Thereafter, in the ancient Phrygian capital of Gordium, the Goat demonstrated his cunning, “resolving” the heretofore unsolvable Gordian Knot. It would burnish his legend. However, in reality, Alexander made no attempt to solve the puzzle. Rather than unravel it, all he did was hack the knot apart with his sword.

In Tarsus, Paul’s hometown, Alexander learned that Darius was amassing a large army in Babylon. So, recognizing that his prey would seek to deploy the Persian fleet to supply and equip his troops, he dispatched General Parmenion with part of his army to the Gulf of Issus, the one remaining Persian port in the Mediterranean. It is located just above the modern border between Turkey and Syria. At the same time, Darius was fast approaching from the southwest.

Meeting up with Parmenion south of Issus, Alexander positioned his troops in the Pass of Jonah, which Darius circumnavigated, fooling the Macedon king. Arriving in Issus unopposed, Darius promptly cut off the hands of those Alexander had left at the port. Darius also recognized that, by bypassing his foe’s trap, he had maneuvered his superior army to the Macedon rear, effectively blocking their supply lines.

Thereupon, Darius moved south and Alexander north, meeting at the Pinarus River – a battlefield far too small to accommodate the Persian army, which consisted of seventy thousand Peltasts and ten thousand each Immortals, Greek mercenaries, and cavalry. The Macedon army was half that size.

Advancing through the Pillar of Jonah, Alexander led his Companion cavalry. The Thessalian cavalry was on the left of his Phalanx with Parmenion in command.

In response, Persian horsemen crossed the river and charged directly into Parmenion's troops, attacking the enemy's right flank as they had near Troy. And again, Alexander, rather than reinforcing his outmanned comrade, charged into the center of the Persian line, causing Darius to flee.

However, rather than pursuing and finishing off his rival, Alexander returned to rescue the portions of his army that were now vulnerable. He accomplished this by flanking the opposing Greek mercenaries. The remaining Persian troops, noticing that their king had retreated, abandoned their positions and were slaughtered as they fled. The Greek cavalry pursued them until dark, killing untold thousands.

As the battle concluded, Alexander captured Darius' wife, his daughters, one of which he "married," his mother, and the Persian war chest with untold riches. Distraught, Darius immediately offered Alexander a treaty which would have ceded the territory the Persians had already lost to the Goat along with a ransom of ten thousand talents ($250 million) for his family. But the Macedon king replied by saying that he was now king of Asia, and he alone decided territorial divisions.

The Siege of Tyre followed. As an island city off the Phoenician coast, it was impervious to his army. So, after squandering seven months pursuing a blockade, and sacrificing his own men, the self-proclaimed king of Asia built a causeway that enabled his army to breach the city's fortifications. In the process, the Goat squandered so much time seeking the treasure of the city, they were bankrupt by the time his troops could loot them. Frustrated, Alexander massacred eight thousand men and boys, crucifying two thousand more on the beach. He then enslaved the remaining thirty thousand residents, mostly women and children. He would sell them off in chains as if they were his property. Charming fellow.

Now an egomaniacal savage, Alexander was out of control. Even when Darius offered to surrender unconditionally, the Macedon refused, preferring to hunt him down and ridicule him. Darius would offer Alexander all of Persia west of the Euphrates River and a ransom of thirty thousand talents ($750 million) for his family, excluding his eldest daughter, whom he ceded to his rival. But it wasn't enough. Nothing would satisfy the man who would be god ~ the man who is exemplifying the attitude of Satan's Advocate.

The Goat proceeded to take Syria and Phoenicia next. After the horror of Tyre, most every city, community, and town en route to Egypt surrendered without a fight – with the exception of Gaza. The topography and fortifications caused the Macedonian engineers to tell Alexander that the Egyptian outpost was unassailable. But Alexander, believing that he was a god, anticipated a miracle. Three assaults later and at the loss of many men, the Greeks succeeded. And as in Tyre, every man was systematically exterminated while every woman and child was sold into slavery. It wasn't much of a legacy for the leader of a nation considered the birthplace of democracy, of political freedom, and philosophy.

With advanced billing, the Greek killing machine proceeded into Egypt in late 332 BCE. Hearing what had happened to their compatriots next door in Gaza, the Egyptians hailed Alexander as the “Master of the Universe.” He was proclaimed: “Son of Amun.” So thrilled was he with his new identity, Alexander promoted the myth for the remainder of his life. The Goat was a god, the son of Ammon. He even adorned himself with horns as a symbol of his divinity, while minting coins which portrayed the killer and enslaver of men as divine.

Leaving Egypt in 331 BCE, the murderous Goat scampered northeast toward Mesopotamia where he would defeat Darius a final time. And since we have already reviewed the prelude, tactics, and aftermath of this battle, let's pick up the story with what happened next. Just as Yahowah's prophecy commenced in Susa, that is where Alexander headed after vanquishing his adversary. It is in Susa that the Goat, who insisted that he was a god, captured sufficient treasure – billions in today's dollars – to justify Yahowah's prophetic reference to the wealth that would be of no benefit to him.

But it wasn't enough. Alexander raced to Persepolis, where he allowed his troops to loot the city while he luxuriated in the Palace of Xerxes. Once again, he would count the talents in the city's treasury as his own. Thereafter, he had his men burn what they could not carry away.

It was only then that Alexander decided to resume the pursuit of his reluctant foe. So, the Goat chased the Ram into Media and then throughout Parthia. It was then that Darius, in the midst of trying to stir his surviving troops, was murdered by Bessus, one of his generals, depriving the Macedon of the life he most wanted to take.

Legend has it that Bessus stabbed Darius just as Alexander strode across the horizon. The reason for the myth is that Alexander would have us believe that, with his dying breath, Darius named him to be his successor to the Persian Achaemenid Empire.

Since he was now Darius' successor, the Macedonian general gave his rival a regal and royal funeral. He did so to make the coward look heroic, thereby magnifying his own accomplishment. And there was the matter of Darius' daughters, wife, and mother, all of whom were now part of the Goat's flock.

With Darius dead and buried, Alexander decided to toy with Bessus. Leading his army on a grand tour of central Asia, Alexander founded a succession of new cities along the way, naming them "Alexandria," including Kandahar, Afghanistan.

Stubborn to a fault, and overly fixated on imposing his will on others, the fleeting moments of Alexander's life were spent chasing his foes over the mountains and through the valleys of Parthia and Scythia – traversing the inhospitable realms to no avail. He neither conquered the region nor confronted a new rival.

Impressed with himself, he began using the Persian title, Shah-an-shah | King of Kings. He changed from Greek to Persian attire. Those who sought an audience with him were required to kiss his ring and prostrate themselves to the ground in his presence.

Alexander turned on his own. He executed one of his senior officers for failing to disclose a potential conspiracy. He even murdered the general's father to preclude him from seeking revenge. Then he assassinated the man who saved his life during his first encounter with the Persians near ancient Troy. Evidently, Cleitus the Black did not believe that Alexander was God.

Murdering his own men grew wearisome, and so the Goat kicked up his heels and locked horns with his final foe. Alexander wanted to conquer India. He began by demanding that the chieftains of Gandhara in today's Pakistan submit to his authority. Some complied while others refused. Never a fan of freewill, Alexander led his forces against those tribes which were unwilling to submit, encountering them in the Swat Valley.

While the Goat was wounded in the shoulder by an arrow, his troops prevailed. After days of bloody fighting, he moved on to the Fort of Massaga, where he was wounded yet again, this time in the ankle. Aggravated, Alexander slaughtered the entire population. After which, he buried the city. It has never been found.

Gimpy and limpy, the Macedon scuffled one final time. He fought against King Porus of the Hindu Paurava Kingdom in the Punjab. Porus was simply in the way, but removing him rather than going around would prove costly. Alexander lost more men confronting the Hindu Paurava than in any other battle – and for nothing. While he was able to annex the Punjab into Persia, he didn't. Instead, he gave Porus some of Persia because he liked the way he fought.

In this regard, it is interesting to note that Porus challenged Alexander to lone combat. But when Alexander took the bait and charged, the Goat fell off his horse in the ensuing duel. Then cheating the intent, the Macedon's bodyguards intervened, rescuing their fallen leader while capturing Porus. Thereupon, the Pakistanis surrendered in the middle of a battlefield of twenty-four thousand dead and dying combatants. Both of Porus' sons were killed that day and nine thousand men were captured and enslaved. As a man-god, he was a disingenuous and immoral one.

Alexander renamed several cities in the region after himself, but then uncharacteristically being magnanimous, he named one after his horse, Bucephalus. Yet another was bequeathed as "Nicaea," naming it after the Greek Goddess of Victory, Nike. While this is a different Nicaea than the one celebrated by Christians, they were both named after the same Greek god, providing a telling perspective on the Nicaean Creed.

Weary of the carnage, and disgusted by Alexander's antics, the Goat's army rebelled shortly thereafter. The prospect of giving the booty to a defeated foe rather than distributing the spoils among the victors may also have played into the insurrection. Ultimately, the war-weary troops may also have surmised that the multitudes of Indians now facing them across the Ganges River were far too numerous to fight. But either way, as they glared across the river, Alexander's army mutinied in Bangladesh.

On their long day's journey through hell, Alexander lost a substantial portion of his army in the Gedrosian Desert in southern Iran before returning to Susa. Along the way, to keep morale up, the Goat assassinated anyone who complained. It must not have worked, because his troops mutinied again in Opis. Alexander appointed Persians in their place. When the Greeks begged for his forgiveness, the King of Kings proposed a drunken orgy where Macedonian men were coupled with Persian women.

Thereafter, Alexander returned to Ecbatana to retrieve the billion-dollar Persian treasure he had stashed there for safekeeping. But all the money in the world couldn't mend his broken heart. Alexander's lover, Hephaestion, died, devastating the bisexual warrior. He issued a public decree, insisting that everyone join him in mourning, as if anyone else cared that his boyfriend was no longer available.

Leaving Susa for Babylon, Alexander began envisioning new conquests. Unaware that there was nothing there but snakes, camels, and sand, Arabia was high on his list. Perhaps it would be immersion therapy for his men. Since they had cowered at the Ganges River at the sight of too many combatants, there wasn't so much as a stream or horde in the most foreboding of deserts.

But it would be for naught. The Goat would die in Nebuchadnezzar's Palace at thirty-two years of age. However, dead was not forgotten. This murderous egomaniac would not leave this world unscathed. He had established Greek colonists which disseminated his worldview, his philosophy, tactics, politics, and religion, leaving a miserable legacy.

On our journey of discovery into what Dany^{el} was shown, we have reached an otherworldly transition. The subject is no longer men running amuck but, instead, the spirit driving the worst of men to madness. I suspect that this is the case because Alexander the Great was a consummate foil through whom we can view the Great Betrayer of the Time of Troubles.

Obviously, the corporeal manifestation of Satan will be devilish ~ notoriously egotistical and infamously ruthless, having no empathy for anyone other than himself. He will be merciless and murderous as he claims Heaven and Earth as his own. Therefore, while the horrid image of Alexander and his henchmen are seared in our brain, God can use this opportunity to introduce the most ruthless villain to ever prey upon His people.

Navigating our tour from our past into our future, we are confronted with something Yahowah revealed in the midst of His preeminent declaration regarding Satan. That presentation in Yasha^{yah} / Isaiah 14, when compared to what we are about to read here in Dany^{el} / Daniel 8, affirms that this Goat who drew his last breath in Babylon was the exemplar for Satan's Corporeal Manifestation in the Last Days. Indeed, the Beast that took root within the walls of Babylon by commingling religion and politics, which then enticed Persia, and lured in the Greeks, would then be personified in Rome, developing into the Christian Church. And through it all, its god was none other than the Snake in the Garden. This realization regarding the Towrahless One is so essential to understanding his nature, purpose, and identity, we will turn to Yasha^{yah} 14 and allow the great prophet to explain it to us momentarily.

The spirit now manifested in this monstrous Beast, like Alexander who served as a role model, exalted himself above the Most High. Also consistent with what we are told in Yasha^oyah, Hallel ben Shachar does not fall alone but takes a considerable number of the heavenly host with him. Similarly, the Great Betrayer of Israel in the Last Days will have a cadre of enablers. They are currently called his Administration.

One final note, ruwach | spirits in Hebrew are feminine even though we consider Satan, who is one of them, to be masculine. So, when speaking of this wayward spirit, I have chosen to use “it.”

“And it was exalted as great (wa gadal – it was magnified in importance, while insolent and arrogant, promoted, praised, and elevated), well beyond (ad* – well past the point of) the host of the heavens or even a lofty army (*tsaba*ha shamaym* – vast array of implements and messengers of the spiritual realm or sky; from *tsaba – to go forth, willing to battle on behalf of and serve).

But then it was brought down (wa naphal – it fell from a higher place to a diminished position (hifil imperfect)) to the Earth (erets* – to the material realm) as part of the host of the spiritual realm (*min ha tsaba – of the vast array of envoys and messengers deployed by God), along with some of the brightest luminaries and heavenly powers (wa min ha kowkab – as well as those in the highest and loftiest places).

And it tread upon them and trampled them as the aggressor among them (wa ramas hem – it was in control of them, trampling them down).” (Dany^oel / Daniel 8:10)

Satan was apparently the most exalted of the heavenly host. And as such, he was selected and dispatched to the Earth to serve as the adversary – which is the alternative to God. But he did not come alone but, instead, with an unspecified number of mal^oakym | spiritual beings. These would include some of the best and brightest among the vast array of incorporeal messengers. And in conclusion, it also appears that Satan was like Trump, in that he did not play well with others. He would be a bully.

The reason for these insights at this time is because, just as the corporeal manifestation of the Adversary has been exalted as the Lord of religion, Alexander was the prototype for men being perceived as gods. His name was almost always followed by “the Great.” In this way, the Macedonian tyrant who slaughtered his way to infamy and sought to be worshiped as a god, serves as an exemplar for the ‘Antichrist.’

No mortal man will ever have autonomy over Yahowah’s *tsaba | vast array of spiritual implements. Therefore, the inference here is that the Beast who came down to Earth with these *mal*ak* was one of them – and likely the karuwb in the Garden. Recognizing this, our determination of the identity of the individual who is possessed by Satan is enhanced by realizing that they will share many traits in common. And this is one of the many reasons we will turn to Yasha ʿyah / Isaiah 14 in a moment.

And when we do, we will also find a reference to kowkab | those considered stars in this time of darkness, the seemingly best and brightest, the most illustrious and empowered. They too will naphal | be sent down. Satan will not go quietly or alone into the night.

Most English Bible translations, slavishly parroting the familiar phrasing of the King James Version, present the impossible, that the Beast “waxed so great” that his ego brought “the stars to the earth.” What they fail to consider is not only that spiritual beings are comprised of light, we have long used stars as a metaphor to describe the best and brightest among us, the most famous and influential.

With this revelation, we know that neither Satan nor the Towrahless One operate alone. As was the case with Alexander and then Rome, Paul and his Church, these beastly blowhards are aided and abetted by demons ~ both literal and figurative.

Before we go back in time to understand what lies before us, I’d like to share a couple of additional thoughts. The reason Yahowah has described the Beast’s legacy of institutionalized religion beginning in Babylon, and then explained how it was used to inspire the leaders governing empires evolving from it, is so that we would appreciate how Satan expresses himself in the psyche of those who lead nations. The vestige of horrible behavior we chronicled in the life of Alexander and then Rome demonstrates why we are best served to forego religion and politics, patriotism and militarism. The history of these Beasts is the story of civilization, the consequence of man pursuing Satan's agenda ~ to plunder, enslave, deceive, and kill.

Second, many, if not most, of the leaders we have chronicled sought to be worshiped as if they were gods. And so, in their murderous deeds and egocentric ambitions, we find a microcosm of Satan's persona and cravings and come to know the Towrahless One of our day better.

With two men in particular, Paul and Muhammad, we come face-to-face with the characteristics that define this great abuser of men. They were admittedly demon-possessed, and devoted their lives to advancing Satan's agenda, confusing billions. As the Devil's Advocate, they were deceitful, conniving, egotistical, manipulative, and sexually perverted.

The Goat was a particularly telling exemplar of the Beast. He proclaimed himself the "Son of Amun," the "King of Kings," and "Master of the Universe." He was an absolute dictator who sought to control the world through force. Those who sought to defy his wishes or rebel against his influence were enslaved or exterminated. Death and destruction were his constant companions. His family was conniving, paranoid, and dysfunctional. And in his world, the military, government, and religion, even caste system economic scheme were indistinguishable, inseparable, and imposed. And let's not forget the condescending ego. In modern times, Trump would be his lone rival as an imposing narcissist and relentless psychopath.

Just as the previous statement leveraged the past to address the future arrival of the corporeal manifestation of ha Satan during the Time of Trouble, so too is what follows...

“And up until a point (wa ʿad – to an extent), the empowered leader (sar – the ruler who will reign, govern, and lead) of this host of spiritual beings (*ha tsaba – the vast array of heavenly envoys and God’s messengers who serve) will be exalted and glorified, honored and considered great (gadal – he will seek status and acclaim, growing ever more insolent and arrogant (hifil perfect third-person masculine singular)).

So, because of him (*wa min huw – out of or away from him), the constant and enduring (ha tamyd – the continuous and unceasing, the uninterrupted and lasting; from an unused root meaning to stretch or reach out) will be forcefully lifted up and caused to be raised (ruwm – will be demonstrably and irrevocably elevated at that moment (hofal perfect)).

Then (wa), the site and establishment (makown – the location, foundation, place, and basis; from my – to ponder the implications of kuwn – to set up and establish) of his consecration and sanctification, and also his sanctuary, shrine, and temple (*miqdash huw – his place to ponder what it means to be one of a kind; from my – to question qadash – consecration, sanctification, dedication, and holiness) will be forcibly overthrown and tossed away, compelled to be cast off and hurled into oblivion (wa shalak – will be thrown away at that time (hofal perfect)).” (Danyʿel / God is My Means to Judge / Daniel 8:11)

Like so many words in the Hebrew lexicon, ʿad, sar, *tsaba, and gadal can be positive, neutral, or negative, making context the determining factor. So, while I could say that the juxtaposition of ʿad and sar indicate that the rise of the ‘Antichrist’ figure will be thwarted by the Restoring Witness serving the king, I think that this statement, like the previous one, is purely Satanic.

It is the Ruwach of Satan which has been gadal | exalted and magnified as the god of Christianity, Judaism, and Islam. He is the Lord of the Earth and worshiped as Jesus, Hashem, and Allah. And he, and his fellow fallen *mal*ak* were among the brightest in Shamaym. But in their duplicitous role, they are pushing everyone down, including their own. The only silver lining here is that his glorification was written in the perfect conjugation, telling us that it will come to an end.

In this prophetic pronouncement, the first of the three statements seems to indicate that Satan's corporeal manifestation will declare that he is God. So, to spare the Covenant Family from this outrage, once again we find Yahowah removing His Children. In the previous use of hā tamyd | the constant and enduring were to be suwr | taken away and removed. This time, they are ruwm | lifted up and raised. This is our Heavenly Father honoring His promise to protect His Family on Shabuw^{ah} | the Promise of Seven Shabats. The timing is important because this is when the Towrahless One is slated to eviscerate Isreal, making the nation indefensible.

With the third sentence within this prophecy, we are brought forward in time to Taruw^{ah} | the Day of the Herald when the dreams of the Devil and his Denizen are squashed. All that they sought to establish with their gaudy and grandiose shrine to their egos, this Sanctuary to Satan, will be overthrown and they will be cast off into oblivion.

Therefore, God is revealing that the spirit of Satan within the Towrahless One will be esteemed by the preponderance of people. To a greater extent than Germans venerated Hitler, he will be glorified and worshiped because he will be perceived to be the ultimate warrior and peacemaker, Savior and God. His status among men and his acclaim among nations will be unbridled and unrestrained up to the moment it will not.

Once again, it would be inappropriate to extrapolate to the extent of English Bible translations. They render tamyd as if "the continuation of the offerings and sacrifices" will be "taken away." This not only implies that sacrifices will have resumed, which will not be the case, but it also takes our attention away from Yahowah's Miqra^{ey}, which the Towrahless One, along with Christians, Muslims, and Jews, have long since disavowed.

As an interesting aside, rabbis and pastors alike are all atwitter over finding and sacrificing red heifers in accordance with the discussion in Bamidbar / Numbers 19. But they don't know that the Red Heifer is a man or that he willingly offers his life on Taruw°ah to restore the mortal remnant of Yisra°el before the return of Father and Son. Fact is, they don't know what Taruw°ah represents, much less the Towrah from which this prescription for living is made on behalf of the Adulterous Woman and resolving the Waters of Marybah in Numbers 5 and 20.

These things known, when we rely upon the primary definitions of each word, Dany°el wrote...

“And it was exalted as great and magnified in importance (wa gadal), well beyond (°ad) the host of the heavens (tsaba° ha shamaym). But then it was brought down (wa naphal) to the Earth (°erets) as part of the host of the spiritual realm (min ha tsaba°), along with some of the brightest luminaries and heavenly powers (wa min ha kowkab). And it tread upon them and trampled them as the aggressor among them (wa ramas hem). (Dany°el 8:10)

And up until a point (wa °ad), the empowered leader (sar) of this host of spiritual beings (ha tsaba°) will be exalted and glorified, honored and considered great (gadal). So, because of him (wa min huw°), the constant and unceasing who are continuously enduring (ha tamyd) will be lifted up and raised (ruwm).

Then (wa), the site, establishment, and implications of (makown) what he is consecrating and sanctifying, even his sanctuary, shrine, and temple (miqdash huw°) will be forcibly overthrown and tossed away, compelled to be cast off and hurled into oblivion (wa shalak).” (Dany°el 8:11)

This known, I'm at a loss to explain why the King James Version, the New American Standard Bible, and the New Living Translation proposed that wa min huw° ha tamyd ruwm somehow conveys: “by him the daily sacrifice was taken away,”

“and by it removed the regular sacrifice from Him,” or “by canceling the daily sacrifices offered to him.”

I do not mean to wear you out with these explanations but, instead, to equip you to conduct your own analysis. It is important for you to know that there are often many options available to us and, therefore, different renderings are permissible. And in this case, the word patterns are deliberately challenging so that these prophecies would remain unsolved over the centuries.

In this light, we have the next riddle to unravel. By way of introduction, the last three verbs – gadal | exalted, ruwm | rise and shalak | overthrown – were all scribed in the third-person masculine singular, which is “he.” And of the preceding nouns – *tsaba, shamaym, erets*, kowkab, sar, tamyd, makown, and miqdash – all but erets* | land are masculine. Curiously, however, each of the verbs in the next statement – nathan | give, shalak | cast, asah* | act, and tsalach | empowered – were written in the third-person feminine singular, which is “she.” Therefore, neither the tamyd | enduring nor the *tsaba | host can serve as the feminine subject of these verbs – nor can *pesha | revolt. This leaves an unidentified feminine subject such as the Ruwach | Spirit, or either emeth* | truth or erets* | land.

Adding to the complexity, in the nifal stem, where the subject carries out and receives this gift, nathan can be rendered “she will give” or “she will be given.” These things known, here is my interpretation...

“She will give (nathan – She will promote this offering, being presented and bestowed (nifal imperfect – she will pursue and receive this gift with ongoing consequences throughout time)) over to the continually persistent and enduring (al ha tamyd* – to those who are constant and unrelenting (masculine)) a host of spiritual implements (*tsaba – a vast array of envoys and messengers now engaged in the battle (masculine)) because of the rebellion (*ba pesha – through this defiance and revolt (masculine)).

And She will cast (wa shalak – so She will throw out (hifil imperfect – where she will cause truth to serve as a reflection or extension of herself into perpetuity)) that which is trustworthy and reliable (emeth* – that which is honest and true, dependable and verifiable, firmly established and enduring, upholding and right (feminine)) to the Land (erets* – to the Earth in the material realm (feminine)).

And she will respond, acting and engaging (*wa asah – she will do what is required to profit from and celebrate (qal perfect)), and she will succeed, be empowered, and prosper (wa tsalach – she will be victorious and useful (hifil perfect)).” (Dany•el / Daniel 8:12)

Given the choice, I have decided to capitalize “She” such that She is Yahowah’s Ruwach | Spirit giving the tamyd | enduring a *tsaba | host of spiritual messengers as a result of the *pesha | rebellion. This makes sense to me for a number of reasons. First, Covenant Family Members will be inheriting the responsibility of guiding the mortal remnant of Yisra•el into and through the millennial celebration of Sukah. We will need their help.

Second, there will be a countless array of *pesha | defiant and revolting souls to judge, convict, and sentence, and the *mal*ak* are perfectly suited to collect the perpetrators, keep their souls restrained, present the evidence against them, carry out the appropriate punishments, and then take them to She*owl.

And third, as the Covenant’s Children grow and become ever more like our Father, it’s only right that He trust us with the *mal*ak* as we carry out our responsibilities and explore the possibilities throughout the universe.

While I would have preferred that Daniel chose a verb more in keeping with the process than shalak | cast, especially since the object is emeth* | truth, we are best served to perceive “She” as the Ruwach | Spirit again. This is because, in the hifil imperfect, the truth becomes an extension of Herself into perpetuity. And as we learned with Yasha•yah’s portrayal of the Seven Spirits of Yahowah associated with the Choter, the Ruwach is Truth personified. Also, since the *mal*ak* are Yahowah's spiritual messengers, it's only natural that a tsaba | host of them would flood the erets | Land and Earth with that which is verifiable and true.

At this point, it makes sense to perceive that the erets*, which is recipient of the emeth*, will then respond appropriately, making the "she" associated with asah* | engaging people of the Earth. The remnant of the Land then becomes the subject of tsalach | enrichment and empowerment.

Therefore, I think that these assessments are fitting because of the transition from Dany^oel 10 which is demonic to Dany^oel 11 which is a blend of good guys and bad guys. Under this scenario, it makes sense for Dany^oel 11 to be a celebration of happily ever after.

This known, we must remain aware that at the present, Halal ben Shachar, as he is introduced to us in Yasha^oyah 14, is in control over a rebellious *tsaba | host of spiritual beings. And while misled, they will continue to misappropriate and twist Yahowah's Towrah wa Naby^oym in order to support Satan's agenda – which is to be worshiped as the god of religion.

To appreciate Satan's approach, we must go back in time and consider how he seduced Chawah because it is the same ploy Paul deployed in the Christian New Testament. Rabbis like Akiba and Maimonides have rehashed it to author the Talmud. It is the approach Yahowah denounced throughout Yasha^oyah | Isaiah, explaining the consequence of it to us with the expectation that we would use the resulting insights to avoid satanic entanglements – i.e., religion and politics, patriotism and conspiracy, militarism and the caste system.

After Satan misquoted something Yahowah had conveyed, Chawah took the poisonous bait and ran with it, adding her own interpretations and embellishments. Their intent was to invert reality and elevate the created such that people and *mal*ak* were perceived as gods.

But why? God is on record offering us everything we could possibly desire. He has provided the means to perfect us and make us immortal. He has promised to adopt us, enriching, empowering, and enlightening us to the extent that we become infinitely superior to any and every god mankind has ever conceived.

As the Covenant's children, we will inherit the material and spiritual realms – which is everything that exists, and then for good measure, Yahowah will teach us how to create a new universe of our own making. So, even if it were possible for us to become divine, and it is not, nothing would be gained by becoming a rival god. Furthermore, being God is the most difficult job in the universe. And it is largely disappointing as a result of His creation continually disavowing Him – even worshiping human constructs instead of engaging in a familial relationship.

Satan, to his credit, has been very good at being bad. Up to this point, relatively few have chosen Yahowah over Satan. If it were a popularity contest, the Adversary has won by a Trumpian landslide. And that is likely as God intended, indeed, the very reason for creating and deploying the Serpent. Yahowah wants a Family of intelligent and thoughtful, loyal and rational children, not a religion or empire.

Driving this point home, Satan misleads through babel | confounding people by intermixing truth and deception and commingling religion and politics. He prevails through misappropriating, misconstruing, and misquoting the Towrah and Prophets, twisting and perverting God's message to serve his agenda. Rather than conjuring up an original paradigm, he uses half-truths and counterfeits. Satan's methodology is similar to an Escher print, with an infinite metamorphosis twisting reality to pervert our perspective. Right becomes left, and up is down, as reality is spun around and inverted with clever reproductions of familiar patterns.

The Adversary's favorite medium is religion, although he is also surprisingly effective in academia, philosophy, conspiracy, patriotism, politics, restrictive economic schemes, and within the military. His most vocal advocates up to this point have been Paul and Muhammad, Titus and Hadrian, Akiba and Maimonides, Constantine and Eusebius, then Theodosius and, more recently, Marx, Hitler, Stalin, and now Trump. Satan's minions are summoned by the titles of pope and prime minister, rabbi and imam, pastor and priest, as well as Mr. President.

In this next pronouncement, the echad Qadowsh* | One Set Apart must be Elyah*, who is one of Yahowah's two Witnesses during the Time of Trouble. He is asking a man identified as the Palmowny | One who Intervenes and Delivers Salvation in an Exceptional Way to address a series of issues. He wants him to explain the duration and extent of this vision pertaining to the constant and enduring as well as this devastating and desolating rebellion, particularly as it prompts the Set Apart and Heavenly Host to ponder the implications of worldwide oppression.

Therefore, the Palmowny is either Dowd or Yada. They are the only two individuals uniquely prepared to intercede and deliver humankind from their guilt and harm's way. They are both confident and judgmental. And their most distinguishing contribution is their sacrifice, Dowd on Pesach and Yada on Taruw^{ah}. They are used by Yahowah in miraculous ways to save His people. And while Dowd is obviously the greater between them, it is Yada's sacrifice that God uses to resolve the current crisis of rebellion.

“Then I chose to listen intently and I heard (wa shama – of my own freewill, I decided to pay very close attention to what was being said because of the genuine and ongoing implications of what I heard (qal imperfect paragogic he cohortative – genuinely and literally, passionately and continually, choosing to hear)) echad Qadowsh | One who is Set Apart (echad qadowsh* – one who is special and distinct, prepared and devoted) speaking (dabar – communicating using words and language (piel participle masculine singular – the object is influenced by the dramatic and impassioned nature of the message being conveyed by this individual)).

The Set-Apart One (echad qadowsh* – the first one prepared and devoted, special and unique) asked (amar* – he queried (qal imperfect – speaking in a matter of fact and consistent manner)) the Palmowny | One who Intervenes and Delivers Salvation in an Exceptional Way (la ha Palmowny – to the one uniquely prepared to intercede and save, in whom we can be confident in considering; from palal – to intervene and intercede judgmentally, palah – to be distinct, separated, distinguished, and set apart, palet – to safely deliver and save, bringing security, *pela – in an uniquely exceptional and miraculous way, mah – pondering these implications, own* – of all things pertaining to this, and any* – our), to speak (ha dabar – communicate what was required (piel participle singular masculine)) as a restoring Witness (ad*) to explain the extent and duration (matay – for how long is the time and scope) of this prophecy to be perceived (chazown – this vision provided to behold the communication which allows the intelligent to be perceptive; from chazah – to see, perceive, and behold the prophecy) pertaining to the unrelenting overall continuance and duration (ha tamyd – of those who are persistent) of the destructive and revolting rebellion of deadly and devastating criminal defiance (wa ha pesha • shamem – this punishable religious and political transgression which is appallingly offensive, completely contrarian, ravaging and desolating (qal participle)), and of this causing (wa nathan – of this making (qal infinitive)) the Set Apart (wa qodesh – those who are separated and uncommon) and Heavenly Host (*wa tsaba – the many spiritual envoys) to ponder the implications of those trampled by oppression, subjugation, and persecution (mirmas – questioning being tread upon; from my – to consider ramas – being trampled).” (Danyel / God Judges and Vindicates / Daniel 8:13)

The realization that the Palmowny | One who Intervenes and Delivers Salvation in an Exceptional Way is being addressed as a fellow Witness, he is Yada, not Dowd. And he is being asked to quantify the duration and extent of the period that the unrelenting will endure this revolting devastation so horrendous it causes even the Set Apart and Heavenly Host to question the implications of the persecution.

Before we ponder the Palmowny's answer, let's clear up some misconceptions. As we have now come to expect, my translation differs substantially from those found in English Bibles. Most fail to distinguish between echad qadowsh* | one set apart and the Palmowny which, as we know from exploring every possible root, designates the one, singular, and specific individual who is uniquely set apart to intervene and save, doing so in a miraculous way. Unwilling to do the same research, religious publications are wont to infer that a "saint" was overheard chatting with another "saint," when there are no saints and one phrase is clearly distinct from the other.

Also troubling, once again, the preponderance of English Bibles render ha tamyd as either "the daily sacrifice" or "the regular sacrifice," even though tamyd doesn't speak of "daily," "regular," or "sacrifice." Therefore, I've chosen to render it in accordance with its full and complete etymology.

Additionally, there is a material difference between the way the KJV, NASB, NLT, and JPS render qadowsh. While the word in its various forms (qadash is the verbal root and qodesh is a noun) means "to be set apart, separated and special, uncommon and distinct," theologians prefer to convey it using religious terms such as "holy," "saints" or "sanctuary." This is a critical mistake because there are very few things as important to our relationship with God than understanding the implications of being qodesh | set apart. When we are qodesh, we are separated from the norm, which means that we are not religious, political, or conspiratorial. We are qodesh | separated from mankind's musings and then set apart unto Yahowah – special and distinct.

Further, when this instructive term is mischaracterized, becoming religious, it is turned into a false prophecy. There will be no restored "sanctuary" to "give over to the host," tossing the faithful into the quicksand of religious toxicity. If we want to know the truth and be counted among the enduring and set apart, we need to know what the words God is using actually mean.

These things known, *ElYah wants his fellow Witness to explain to those who are being tormented by this appalling cast of characters to realize that their ordeal will be resolved. And since we jumped ahead and considered Dowd's answer as it is presented in the 12th chapter of Dany^{el}, we recognize that the Time of Trouble either commences on the Shabu^wah, of May 22nd, 2026, making this horrid experience last 7 years and four months, or June 11th, 2027, such that it is 6 years and 3 months long. It concludes on Taru^wah, September 24, 2033, when the mortal remnant of Yisra^{el} will return and be purged. At that time, we discovered that the Towrahless One will arrive to pursue his political objectives on January 29th, 2030, and will announce his religious decree on March 15th, 45 days later. Thirty-three days after that, the two witnesses will arrive on Passover, April 18th, 2030.

This time, however, the question was framed differently. This is describing the entire duration of the Time of Trouble because the “Palmowny | One who Intervenes and Delivers Salvation in an Exceptional Way as an Ad | Restoring Witness has been asked to quantify and explain the extent and duration of this prophecy to be properly perceived and intelligently beheld pertaining to the unrelenting overall continuance and duration of the destructive and revolting religious rebellion of deadly and devastating political and criminal defiance which is so offensive and contrarian, and of this causing the Set Apart and Heavenly Host to ponder the implications of those trampled by oppression, subjugation, and persecution.”

Therefore, this would be the duration of the Time of Trouble, from the horrendous beginning to the glorious conclusion. And based upon Yasha^{yah}'s declaration in the 17th chapter of Isaiah, it must commence upon the fulfillment of Shabu^wah. So now, based upon the answer in the next statement, we know which Promise of the Shabat is the one that will begin the Time of Trouble.

This will reveal the last possible date that the so-called Two-State Solution can be imposed on Israel. This narrowing of the nation at the waist between Gaza and what is errantly referred to as the “occupied territories of the West Bank,” will make Israel vulnerable and indefensible. So, while the Devil’s Advocate will rise to international prominence based upon his role in brokering this deal, it will immediately trigger war – with millions of combatants flooding into what remains of Israel, trampling God’s land and people underfoot. The intent of this Marxist – Muslim Coalition will be to turn the Two-State Solution into the Final Solution to what they view as the Jewish Problem.

This is the answer we have been waiting for...

“And he said to me (*wa *amar *el any – so he answered me and explained with ongoing implications for me (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular)), ‘For the duration of (ad*) 2,300 (elephym wa shalosh me*ah*) ensuing periods of darkness in the evening (ereb* – nights of noxious foreigners, including Arabians and the gloom resulting from weaving many threads together) with the dawn of a new day, the time of enlightenment to reflect and be contemplative in the morning (boqer – times of increasing light, new tomorrows to consider what can be observed at the end of darkness).

Then the Set Apart (wa qodesh) will be vindicated as right (tsadaq – will be acquitted for being correct).” (*Dany*el* / God Judges and Vindicates / Daniel 8:14)

These will be exceptionally long days and nights, the worst in Yisra*el’s history of abuse and persecution. A swarm of Arabs and other noxious Muslims will invade Israel and terrorize God’s People prior to the dawn of a new day where enlightenment and contemplation prevail. Bloody sunsets will become glorious sunrises.

By counting mornings and evenings, we are alerted to the fact that the opening and closing Mow◊edym of the Time of Trouble, Shabuw◊ah and Taruw◊ah, comprise full days. And will unfold on that schedule wherever you may live.

This being so, the full duration of time Israel's testing at 2,300 days represents six years (the number of man), three months (the number of bimillennial epics), two weeks (the number of Witnesses for the beginning and ending two Mow◊edym), and four days (representing the sequence of 40 Yowbel).

I have done the math and will share it with you now. Working backwards from Taruw◊ah on the 24th of September 2033, we must count 267 days in 2033, which is the year leading up to it. The intervening years of 2028 through 2032 include two leap days, which adds another 1,827 sunsets and sunrises to the total. An additional 204 days brings us to Shabuw◊ah, the Shabat of June 11th, 2027.

At 2,298 days, this is two days shy of the total of 2,300. Therefore, with the references to mornings and evenings, we have four options to account for this residual 48 hours.

First, a full revolution of our planet, making the reference to sunrises and sunsets applicable to everyone around the world, plays out over 24 hours. Since the commencement and conclusion are worldwide events, affecting everyone on Earth, we have a perfectly viable explanation of the additional 48 hours, such that everyone can participate.

Second, there is so much going on during Taruw◊ah that I would not be surprised if it played out over three days. On Friday evening, we will celebrate the fulfillment of the final ingathering, a gleanings of olives from the uppermost and lower branches which have been cut away. Since this will likely occur at sunset at the beginning of the Day of the Herald, it means that the Black, White, and Dappled Spiritual Chariots will begin their worldwide journey at this time to collect and reject Yisra*elites while assessing Gowym, bringing the anti-religious and apolitical to Yaruwshalaim.

Once there, the recently returned will not only have to be properly positioned to view the sacrifice of the *Adamah Parah, we must also make room for the survivors who have been in Jerusalem all the while. Both groups will have to be arranged to benefit from the cleansing waters without being singed by the searing flames.

Not only will this be the Greatest Show on Earth, there are some other logistics which have to be resolved. For example, the remaining religious and defiantly political among the surviving remnant in Yaruwshalaim must be removed and discarded. Then *ElYah must serve as Master of Ceremonies to explain what everyone is witnessing in addition to preparing the audience to benefit from what is occurring.

All the while, every assailant who came to plunder, rape, abduct, and kill Jews must be eliminated, not only in Jerusalem, but throughout Israel. They will be incinerated, along with the remaining overtly political and religious worldwide. And if that were not enough, Yahowah will be restoring Yahuwdah and then the planet to the conditions experienced in Eden, which will require burying the political, religious, and military residue while terraforming the Earth.

And even then, the mission of Taruw^{ah} isn't complete because the Witnesses and Covenant Family will be immediately put to work to educate the purged and restored remnant such that they are prepared for Dowd's return. And if this all plays out over the most active 48 hours in our planet's history, then we will have eight days remaining to prepare for the Homecoming and Wedding on Kipurym. And eight just happens to be symbolic of eternity.

Third, should the imposition of an Islamic State gouged out of the heart of Israel occur during the year prior to Shabuw^{ah} in 2027, say by Shabuw^{ah} in 2026, then the brutal siege foretold as Al Aqsa 2.0 in Yow^{el} and Yasha^{yah} may commence on June 9th, 2027.

And fourth, this timeline was offered when a year was comprised of twelve 29.5 lunar-day months which resulted in a 354 to 360 day year. This pronouncement was five centuries before the Julian calendar and 2,200 years before the Gregorian calendar I used for these calculations. Therefore, to be accurate to within 48 hours 2,500 years in advance and through three calendar iterations is pretty spectacular.

Therefore, with the miniscule difference between 2,298 vs. 2,300 days explained and resolved by any one or combination of the preceding, we are afforded two options regarding the timing of the Shabuw•ah Harvest. It will either occur on May 22nd, 2026 with the realization that the Time of Trouble then begins the following year, or we can expect this Qatsyr to actually serve as the beginning of a 2,300-day period of anguish for Israel and the world. If the former, then the flood of Islamic terrorists described in Yasha•yah and Yow•el will commence a year after the Harvest. If the latter, it's a simultaneous event occurring with exacting prophetic documentation.

Since we have received very specific pronouncements from Gabry•el, Myka•el, and now the Palmowny as another descriptive title for the Witnesses, regarding the arrival of Satan's corporeal manifestation, of his pronouncement that he is God, and of the day the Witnesses begin their mission against him, there is no reason for us to treat this documentation differently. Further, when we consider the specificity of Gabry•el's attestation of the day he would arrive in Jerusalem to fulfill Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym in 33 CE, there is every reason to respect the accuracy of these numbers. Therefore, while we can disagree on the conclusions, I'm expecting the Shabuw•ah Qatsar to occur on the 11th of June, 2027. And I'm thrilled to have more time to accomplish this mission as a result.

Since there is an additional insight provided by Gabry•el regarding this time, let's jump ahead momentarily and consider it now...

“The many promises associated with Shabuw•ah and

the Shabat, along with the vows pertaining to the things Seven represents, even seventy sevens (shabuwa^{ym} shib^{iy}m) are determined and decreed (chathak) on behalf of your people, the extended family (al *am atah) and upon your set-apart city and its distinctly uncommon inhabitants (*wa *al *iy^r qodesh atah) to bring an end to the religious rebellion, eliminating the revolting communal defiance and contrarian views (la kalah ha pesha^o – for the abolition and complete removal of revolting opposition by being guilty as contrarians who have defected from the relationship), to affix the signature which seals up the guilt associated with having missed the way, precluding being wrong again (wa la chatham chata^{ow}th – to affirming the authenticity of that which constrains and prevents everything associated with going astray), to provide reconciliation for religious error, purging the perverse corruptions and twisted perversions (*wa la kaphar awon – to cover over by atoning, ransoming and annulling distortions), to arrive with and bring that which is eternally right, always correct, forever accurate and honest, thereby attaining everlasting deliverance and vindication (*wa la bow^tsedeq owlam – to come with perpetual justice and deliverance, innocence and prosperity, returning to pursue enduring righteousness), to provide a personal seal and signature to revelation, confirming and completing these communications (wa la chatham chazown wa naby^{}*) and to prophecy (wa naby^{}*), while also anointing the Most Set Apart (wa la mashach qodesh qodesh). (Dany^oel / Daniel 9:24)

Therefore (wa), know (yada^o – it is beneficial for you to be aware by coming to possess the information required to recognize Yada) and gain the insights to understand (wa sakal – realizing that the best option is for you to be prudent after learning, succeeding by being attentive, properly educated, intelligent, and wise, perceiving) that from (min) the going forth of the word (mowtsa^odabar – the stage being set to begin the process in accord with the message) to return to restore (shuwb), rebuilding (wa la banah) Yaruwshalaim (Yaruwshalaim – the Source of Teaching and Guidance on Reconciliation), until the restoring testimony and eternal witness (ʿad) of the Son of the Sovereign who is conspicuously making this known, and who is providing the leadership and counsel (nagyd – of the one who has officially obtained the status of being properly appointed, and who has expounded upon, announced, and proclaimed the message) of the Mashyach | the anointed Messiah (mashyach – the one who is set apart, anointed, and prepared to serve as authorized) are seven sevens, and thus seven promises and fulfilled vows (shabuwa ʿym shiba ʿah – contractual oaths fulfilled in harmony with the promises of Shabuw ʿah over seven periods of seven weeks).

Therefore (wa), in sixty-two weeks (shabuwa ʿym sheshym wa shanaym), she will be restored (shuwb), and rebuilt to reestablish and fortify (wa ban ah) the way to grow and expand (rachob) by being diligent and decisive (wa charuwts) in a troubled time of oppression (wa ba tsowq ha ʿets – during a period of anguishing subjugation, restrictions, constraints, and persecution, being harassed and pushed into a corner). (Daniel / Daniel 9:25)

Then after (wa ʿachar) the sixty-two weeks (ha shabuwa ʿym sheshym wa shanaym), the Anointed Messiah (Mashyach) will be cut off and separated (karath) but not for himself (wa ʿayn la huwʿ).

And therefore (wa), he, as an exceedingly influential, self-aggrandizing, and overbearing person will vault himself into prominence by arrogantly confirming and imposing (gabar) a treaty, a covenant agreement and arrangement (beryth – an international contractual compact and binding pledge) with a great many, including plenty of rabbis, the preponderance of people, especially the elitists (la ha rabym – the preponderance of the populous, and with numerous among the elite) for one week based upon a single promise during a particular Shabuw ʿah (ʿechad shabuwa ʿ). (Dany ʿel / Daniel 9:27)

And halfway through the week (wa chatsy shabuwa ♫), he will stop the observance of the Shabat and seek to forestall the benefit of the sacrifice which had been freely offered as a gift (shabath zebach wa minchah). The most extreme aspect (*wa al kanaph) of this vile and abhorrent act of repulsive religious idolatry (shiquwtsym) will devastate, desolate, and incapacitate (shamem) up to the very end, bringing destruction and annihilation, along with the conclusion of the restoring Witness (*wa ad kalah).

It will occur quickly and decisively, with determination and decrees (wa charats) profusely poured out (natak) upon the deserted, desolated, and destroyed who are astonished and stupefied and who will perish because they are too stunned to respond (al shamem*).” (*Dany*el* / Daniel 9:27)

This statement by Dowd as Gabry*el serves as an absolute affirmation of Shabuw*ah as the starting point of the Time of Trouble. But it also speaks of the great abomination occurring halfway through a week. And that cannot be precise with either a seven year and four-month Time of Trouble or one at six years and three- and one-half months. Therefore, both dates remain in play with the June 11th fulfillment of Shabuw*ah being the more likely due to the precision of 2,300 days versus halfway through a week.

Digging a bit deeper, since the Palmowny only stated that the Time of Trouble would last 2,300 days, and did not mention Shabuw*ah, just as Gabry*el didn't mention Taruw*ah as the concluding date, we are required to do our own reconnaissance. And for that, we should also turn to *Yasha*yah* / Isaiah.

“And it will actually come to pass in that day that the size of Israel will be decreased to the point of no longer being sustainable. Then, the most important place at the midsection of his body will be leaned, shrinking in size, sacrificed in a counterproductive and unsustainable manner as part of the hidden agenda of diseased dignitaries. (*Yasha*yah* / Isaiah 17:4)

It shall become like the gathering in and receiving of a harvest at the proper time toward the end which must be cut short due to the extent of man's provocation and anger, reaping the standing grain from the chaff in season, cutting it away so as to remove it from a vexing time of grief, thereby establishing and validating the prominent and mature grain.

Also, His Zarowa • | the One who Sows and Cultivates His Seeds will produce a Harvest. It shall be as one would conduct a gleaning, a secondary harvest of FirstFruits in the Valley of Rapha*ym in the midst of those destined to die who were too set in their ways and too apathetic to exert the effort required to prevail. (Yasha Yyah 17:5)

In him [in Ya•aqob, Israel, and the Covenant], there will be those souls who will be spared and survive, in addition to the physical bodies of those who will be left behind, gleanings of those purposely left on the vine, and in going around at the right time of year to remove them from a threatening and dangerous situation, encompassing and striking them [with a branch] as a means of harvesting an olive tree. There will be two or three ripe olives in the top uppermost branch [Yahuwdym], four or five on its fruitful and productive branches which were separated and cut away [Yisra*elites],’ prophetically declares Yahowah, the God of Yisra*el.” (Yasha Yyah / Isaiah 17:6)

There is also...

“This is an announcement and a warning to everyone who thirsts: choose to walk toward the water, toward the source of cleansing and life. Then, let the one who wants to enjoy the benefits of the relationship do so without cost because the path to walk to get the most enjoyment out of life does not require anyone to pay anything.

You have been given the opportunity to go about acquiring food, choosing to procure and obtain what is needed and is nourishing, and wine without any money and milk without remuneration or compensation. (Yasha Yyah /

Isaiah 55:1)

So please explain: why do you spend, continually paying out money, for that which is not actually nourishing such that your labor is not satisfying and produces nothing of lasting value?

Listen diligently to Me and be nourished by that which is good, by that which is useful and beneficial, productive and valuable, pleasurable and enjoyable, with these being the most desirable and beneficial options for your soul. (Yasha ʿyah / Isaiah 55:2)

Incline your ear, doing so of your own volition, and choose to walk to Me. Decide to actually listen so that your soul may continue to exist. Then I will cut you into, establishing for you, the everlasting Beryth | Covenant which was affirmed and verified with unremitting love and unfailing devotion by Dowd. (Yasha ʿyah / Isaiah 55:3)

Now, presently, therefore, an ʿEd | Enduring Witness with restoring testimony regarding the means to return who will be providing evidence regarding eternity for as long as time permits to people of every ethnicity and culture being gathered, to the community being brought together and assembled for this reason, I will bestow, offering him as a gift, bringing him forward at this time and devoting him to this purpose, as an authorized counterpart and a prince publicly promoting the truth, a conspicuous messenger announcing what needs to be said and known, and as a leader of the royal family, and as an instructor and teacher providing direction who is appointed, ordained, and in charge whose authority is not questioned for an archaic and misled world of people from every ethnicity and culture who are now gathered for a common cause. (Yasha ʿyah / Isaiah 55:4)

Therefore, presently (hen), a lone Gowy | Non-Yisra*elite whom you do not know as Yada, and of whom you have consistently failed to recognize or appreciate, who you should read and recite, welcome and greet. In addition, this lone Gowy, who is not understood or respected by you as Yada, and who possesses information you fail to comprehend, will be quickly brought to you and will waste no time in his intense and consistent focus on you as he pursues you on behalf of Yahowah, your God, and the Set-Apart One of Yisra*el.

For indeed, he is reaffirming your status, lifting you up by shaking the tree to knock off the fruit so that you can be gleaned, preparing you for the harvest by recognizing and respecting your value.” (Yasha • yah / Isaiah 55:5)

In this case, the reference to standing grain depicts Shabuw*ah while the gleaning of olives speaks of Taruw*ah. And so, by recognizing these final Mow*edym at the commencement and conclusion of the Time of Trouble, we have established the bookends of this fateful time.

Everything is set into motion. Those who survive following the fulfillment of Shabuw*ah will witness the rise of Satan to international prominence with the Two-State Solution, the beginning of the Time of Ya*aqob’s Troubles, a flooding of Islamic jihadists into the land and ensuing terror, the return of the Witnesses, and the Great Abomination whereby all things Qodesh | Set Apart and important to Yahowah are replaced with Satan’s preferences as he announces that he is God.

When we recognize God’s cast of characters, we know who to trust and who to avoid. So, without further ado, this is Yahowah’s ongoing story as reported by *Dany*el* | Daniel who is serving as a scribe...

“While I, Dany*el, was seeing and considering (*wa hayah ba ra*ah *any Dany*el* – then it came to be while I was being shown that My God is Judgmental, vindicating and condemning, and as I observed) the revelation (eth ha chazown* – the visual and audible communication), I desired and sought (wa baqas – I wanted to be responsible, to inquire about, investigate, and seek out (piel imperfect paragogic)) insights and understanding (bynah – discernment derived from making perceptive connections between the things which have been observed while exercising good judgment regarding what has been revealed leading to comprehension).

Then, behold (wa hineh – look closely, paying attention), present and standing before me (amad la neged any) was someone who appeared like (*ka mara*ah* – someone whose appearance was consistent with; from mah – to ponder the implications of *ra*ah* – seeing, inspecting, perceiving, and observing) a confident and courageous man (geber – an especially capable and confrontational individual of character who confirms the message, a human being who is strengthened, enabled, and empowered to prevail, and who is an authorized and aggressive defender of God’s people; from gabar – overwhelmingly confident and assured, exceptionally capable, constantly confirming male who is strengthened and empowered).” (*Dany*el* / Daniel 8:15)

Geber | Confident and Courageous Man serves as the basis of *Gabry*el* | God’s Most Courageous and Confident Man. By using it here prior to introducing *Gabry*el* by name, the observant are alerted to the fact that *Gabry*el* is neither a *mal*ak* | spiritual messenger nor an archangel. He is not only a man, as geber affirms, he is the leading man in God’s story ~ His beloved Son, Dowd / David.

This is one of the most essential realizations to be found anywhere in the prophets because it means that Dowd was speaking for himself as the Messiah here and in the 9th chapter where he addressed when and what he would accomplish. And this means that the upcoming prophecy in Daniel 9 is foretelling the second coming of Dowd in 33 CE when he was crucified fulfilling Passover.

Please consider the implications of this because this realization negates the Christian claim to the lone prophetic revelation regarding the future arrival of a Messiah, and thus, a Mr. Christ. Even better, it replaces the now obvious fraud with the affirmation that the actual Son of God and Messiah who served as our Savior is Dowd ~ the former and returning King of Yisra^{el}.

As our King, Dowd did not travel alone on this occasion. He was accompanied by Yada | One who Knows, his Basar | Herald, the Final Witness to the Fall Mow^{edym}...

“Then I heard the voice (wa shama^{} qowl* – I listened to the sound of verbal communication) of a man (adam* – of the descendant of Adam* and, thus, human being) providing understanding by making connections associated with (bayn – bringing it all together to reveal rational insights which lead to discernment and good judgment) uwlay* | My Enriching Adventure (uwlay* – my empowering choice; from uwl* – to be prominent by being empowered and enriched, ow* – the preferred choice, any* – I am, and uwlay* – an initial adventure).

He called out to (wa qara^{}* – he summoned and welcomed) Gabry^{el}* | I Am God’s Most Confident and Capable, Courageous and Combative Man (wa Gabry^{el} – the Almighty’s exceptionally proficient and powerful defender, an exemplar of character who confirms the truth; a compound of any* – I am a geber / gibowr – particularly strong and resolute human being, a capable and authorized individual, an aggressive and confrontational person, a fighter, defender, and protector who prevails with el* – Almighty God; from gabar – exceptionally proficient, absolutely assured, resolutely corroborative, tremendously powerful and great), and he said (*wa amar – and he (the geber | confident man) requested), ‘Explain the relationships to this one which lead to understanding regarding this revelation (*byn la halaz eth ha mar^{eh} – provide the insights and connections to comprehend this vision to this individual over yonder).’” (Dany^{el} / Daniel 8:16)

Yada knows his King. And while Dowd was brought forward in time and Yada back in time to provide these prophetic insights, neither is difficult for Yahowah who exists outside of the constraints of time. Even as I struggle with this, we would be hypocrites to think that God is capable of bringing a soul forward in time to reveal future history, but not back in time to explain it.

“So, he arrived (wa bow – he (Gabry^eel) came*), positioning himself right beside me (omed *etsel any).

But when he approached (wa ba bow huw* – so when he arrived*), I was overwhelmed (ba^eath – I was startled and surprised, anxious and trembling). And so, I chose to fall on my face (*wa naphal *al panah any – I wanted to drop down, diminishing my presence (qal imperfect cohortative)).

Then he said to me (*wa *amar *el any – he (Gabry^eel) spoke to me), ‘Descendant of *Adam (*ben adam – child of man), you should choose to use your ability to make the necessary connections to understand, learning how to closely examine and carefully consider the evidence while being discerning (byn – of your own volition, be observant and discriminating, deriving wisdom and insights through intelligent associations, then choose to study and teach in this manner) because, indeed (ky – surely and as a matter of emphasis, it is truthful, correct, and certain), the prophetic revelation (ha chazown – the communication) is for the end of time (*la eth gets – is for things which will occur near the completion of this period).’” (Dany^eel / Daniel 8:17)

As a slave in Babel, witnessing King Dowd approach in all of his majesty and glory would be overwhelming ~ particularly without the prior preparation. And in this way, having Yada introduce Dowd here serves to explain why he will do so in the end. Homecomings, Family Reunions, and Weddings are always better when the invited guests avoid doing face plants while groveling in the dirt.

Up to this point, God has used our past, Daniel’s future, to explain what we are going to experience. And yet, all the while, the emphasis has been on the events pursuant to the Time of Trouble. And in this regard, the only way to transition from knowing to understanding is by byn | making the necessary connections to comprehend. This is the reason I pepper these translations with commentary.

“So, when he was speaking with me (wa ba dabar huw°im °any – while he was sharing his words with me (piel infinitive)), I fell into a deep sleep (radam – I lost awareness of my surroundings and situation (nifal perfect – Dany°el was responsible for falling asleep and was affected by his unconscious state at this time)) while my face was on the ground (°al paneh °any °erets).

And yet, he continued to reach out through me (wa naga°ba °any – he made contact with me, striking and slapping me (qal imperfect)) such that he propped me up and caused me to be upright (wa °amad °any – he encouraged and assisted me so that I could be present and accounted for in the future (hifil imperfect – he enabled Dany°el to be more like him, functioning as an understudy, participating in the ongoing process of taking a stand)), upon my assigned post (°al °omed °any – with me in the proper position).” (Dany°el / Daniel 8:18)

I’m not surprised Daniel fell asleep. Both Dowd and I can be a little long winded. There is no detail pertaining to God that we don’t cherish and share. So, if you are listening, pour yourself another cup of coffee.

In this case, I was asked to wake Daniel up with a sound slap to the face and then prop him up so that he would be able to write down what he was witnessing or it all would have been for naught. Thereupon, Dowd, as Gabry°el,...

“He said (wa °amar), ‘Pay close attention to me (hineh °any – behold, be alert and observant because of who I am).

Yada will make this known to you so that it can be understood (yada° °atah – Yada will reveal what you should perceive, engaging to make you familiar with and acknowledge what you have observed so that it can be more broadly known (hifil participle masculine singular – Yada° will engage on behalf of your revelation in a demonstrable and active pursuit of knowledge)).

As the final witness to the eternal testimony regarding the restoring appointments of the Mow^{ed} (ky la Mow^{ed} qets – indeed, as an eyewitness to the concluding Mow^{ed} | Appointed Meetings in the end, explaining the designated schedule of the assemblies to gather together and celebrate the agreement; from mow – this pertains to ed – the eternal and restoring witness), he will literally and without hesitation or interruption convey (hayah – he will constantly make available (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular)) the way to receive the benefits of the relationship (eth asher – revealing the proper and narrow path to walk to get the most enjoyment out of life) in the distant future, during the last days, on behalf of the indignant remnant (*ba acharyth ha za^{am} – at the end of time, when most are enraged, and on behalf of the final, displeasing, denounced, and defiant descendants).” (Dany^{el} / My God Judges / Daniel 8:19)

We are being shown what Yasha^{yah} foretold, with Yada serving as the voice revealing what Dowd has done while telling the world to prepare for his return. Time is like putty in Yahowah’s hands. So, here is a man from the 21st century addressing Dany^{el} 2,600 years ago, discussing what I’m doing at this very moment.

Sure, that is a lot to wrap one’s head around, and yet it pales by comparison to the realization that Dowd, the Son of God and Messiah, the Prophet and King, the Shepherd and the Lamb, is Gabry^{el} | God’s Most Confident and Capable, Courageous and Confrontational Man. On the occasion of his return, he is addressing what the remnant of Yisra^{el} must know to survive.

In the end, there will be two Witnesses heralding our King. Opposing them, there will be countless millions of delusional religious fanatics, disingenuous political aspirants, and crazed conspiratorialists – all serving the Beast. It’s hardly a fair fight – but nonetheless they try. And while Team Satan will make a mess of things, after annihilating one another to the point of extinction, Yahowah has scheduled His version of the Great Reset.

More completely and adroitly than anywhere in human history, this Geber is credited for the first time doing something no one considered prior to the Yada Yahowah series and these translations. He *qara | is the lone voice calling out to welcome someone exceptional – Gabry•el | God's Most Acclaimed Leader.

The lesser geber is prepared to tell the great gibowr's entire story. It begins when a shepherd boy was chosen and anointed 3,000 years ago. He would grow to become a great prophet and king, unite Yisra*el and build Yaruwshalaim. And it was during this time that the Messiah earned the greatest accolade of all when he was called the Bakowr | Firstborn *Ben Elohym | Son of God.

One thousand years thereafter, and now nearly 2,000 years ago, for sound reasons, the Son of God and Messiah volunteered to serve as the Pesach *Ayil. He fulfilled Matsah and Bikuwrym in year 4000 Yah – following the precise timeline he, himself, will soon reveal. After allowing the very Beast of Rome to brutalize him as the Passover Lamb, Dowd sacrificed his mortal body, releasing his soul so that it could carry our guilt into She*owl on Matsah, and he left it there. Then on Bikuwrym, as the first rays of light streaked past the summit of Mowryah, Dowd's soul, still protected by the Spirit, revealed why he was called the Firstborn Son of Almighty God when he returned to Shamaym.

While heroic and benevolent, that was not the end of Dowd's story. Soon he will return with Yahowah on Kipurym. As his first order of business, we will witness him anointing the Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant, sprinkling it with the blood of the Bull and Goat. The King of Kings will then reign righteously and respected over the universe and forevermore. It's a laudable resume.

If you are wondering, since this is Dowd, why his name was not used, that question has been asked and answered. No one was supposed to know until now. And that is mostly because the realization that Dowd was speaking of himself in what is recorded in Daniel 9 is so profoundly important to God's people, it could not be shared until they were ready to hear it and it could be proven beyond any doubt – something that has now been achieved in Volume 4 of Coming Home.

Logically, the voice calling out and announcing Dowd's sacrifice and glorious return recognizes that the most qualified prophet to explain who is going to do what to whom, why and when, is the one who has been assigned the responsibility of saving Yisra^{*el}. So, Yada asks Dowd to *byn la halaz *eth ha mar^{eh} | to provide the insights and connections needed to understand this revelation. After all, the answers are found throughout his Mizmowr | Psalms – many of which pertain to his return during the last days.

In the Mizmowr, we discover that the Third Coming of Dowd will be “as elyown* | Almighty God,” as “brilliant as the sun.” Therefore, as the King of Yisra^{*el} approached, Dany^{*el} did a faceplant. In his own words, *ba^{ath} | he was overwhelmed. And so, to preclude this from happening to you, when time permits, prepare for his arrival by reading Coming Home, volumes 1, 2, 3, and now 4.

Speaking to us, the Messiah said, “Children of Adam* (*ben adam), you should choose to use your ability to make the necessary connections to understand, learning how to closely examine and carefully consider the evidence while being discerning (byn).” Nothing is more enriching or enlightening.

Our Shepherd reminds us that this prophetic revelation is for the end of time – our time! It was not for Dany^{*el}'s time, which may be why he fell asleep in the middle of Dowd's declaration. It was not for him to know, but for us.

Then...“He said (*wa amar), ‘Pay close attention to me and behold who I am (hineh °any). Yada, as the final witness to the eternal testimony regarding the restoring appointments of the final Mow°ed (ky la Mow°ed qets), will make this known to you so that it will be understood (yada° °atah). He will literally and consistently convey (hayah) the way to receive the benefits of the relationship (°eth °asher), doing so in the distant future, during the last days, on behalf of the indignant remnant (ba °acharyth ha za°am).”

The more we are attuned to Gabry°el | God’s Most Confident and Capable, Courageous and Confrontational Leader, the more we will be like him. And by following in Dowd’s footsteps, we will live productive lives, please our God, and endure forever at His side. When we listen to Dowd, we will bask in his brilliance and earn his respect – a noble idea since he was our savior and will be our king.

Should you be curious, other than in Dany°el 8 and 9, there is no mention of Gabry°el anywhere else in the Towrah, Prophets, and Psalms. The only other Hebrew book to speak of him is Enoch, where he plays a starring role alongside Michael. Unfortunately for the myth, Enoch is about as credible as Harry Potter and Bilbo Baggins.

Also, since Gabry°el is addressing the gibowr of °el, it is worth noting that he makes an appearance in Ezekiel. Upon Satan’s arrival in Jerusalem, the gibowr, and his two witnesses are featured on the menu and served during the Lord’s Feast of the Beast. The celebrants will be dining on their flesh and blood. This, as we now know, pertains to the sacrifice of the °Adamah Parah on Taruw°ah.

Since the erroneous projections of the titles Christ and Christian were derived from a misappropriation of Dany°el 9, we should not be surprised that an “angel” named “Gabriel” is said to have conveyed “blessings” upon the mythical “Mary.” This fanciful notion is responsible for the fables of the virgin birth, of a baby god being born, of Christmas, of visiting wise men from Babylon, and devotion to the Mother of God and Queen of Heaven. And so, now that we know that Gabry*el is a man, “Jesus” is suddenly nothing more than a myth dressed up to appear divine.

And speaking of myths, Luke took the bait and ran with it, having “Gabriel” meet with the “Virgin Mary” in addition to “Zechariah,” who was allegedly the father of the imaginary “John the Baptist.” It was another desperate attempt to turn “Jesus” into the Christian god. The entire episode as recorded in the 1st chapter of Luke has less credibility than the Odyssey.

And while that is incriminating for Christianity, the problem is considerably worse for Islam. In order to elicit some pretense of credibility for what is clearly the worst book ever written, Muhammad would claim that it was dictated in its entirety by Gabriel. Oops.

Mormons, the laughingstocks of Christendom, claim that Gabriel and Noah were one and the same, and that he was a prophet in addition to a seafaring captain. Worse, Michael, whom Joseph Smith often confused with *Adam, supposedly met with him and them, teaching *Adam and Eve about the spurious “Jesus Christ” during their days in the Garden – even baptizing them.

Though they should have known better, the rabbis have a Gabriel problem too. He has a prominent role as an archangel throughout Kabbalistic literature.

All the while, the association between Gabry*el and Dowd was obvious because geber is directly related to and defined similarly as gibowr. All one has to do to verify the connection with is to read an accurate translation of Yasha ʿyah / Isaiah 9.

Qerenym ~ Blowhards

As we move further into this portrayal of time, we learn more about the identity of the Ram and the Goat as well as their respective Horns. And while that is important, in that it reveals the evolution of evil, so long as we capitalize upon what we have just observed, the wiles of man will be kept at bay.

Much of what has been revealed occurred long ago, including the horrible history of Babylon, Persia, Greece, and Rome. And yet, it will be reprised, tormenting the world once again during the last days. And that makes everything we have learned about these Beasts relevant, with history poised to repeat itself. It is no doubt why Donald Dumpter was told to declare his supposed divinity on the Ides of March.

With an eye to the past to envision our future, we read...

“The Ram (ha ayl – the leader of his flock, the dominant ruler; from ayil* – male lamb, upright pillar, doorpost, and leader who is uwl* – contemptuous, prominent, and wealthy) which you saw (asher ra*ah* – that you observed) acting like a Lord while possessing (*ba*al* – the controlling owner of) the two horns (ha qerenym – the flashy boneheaded blowhards trumpeting their call to war) are the kings (melek – the rulers) of Maday | Media (Maday – Middle Land, a relatively small kingdom northwest of Persia, southwest of the Caspian Sea, and east of Assyria and Armenia) and (wa) Paras | Persia (wa Paras – Pure, located in today’s southwest Iran).” (*Dany*el* / My God Judges, Condemns, and Vindicates / Daniel 8:20)

Before we reflect upon Median and Persian history, keep in mind that this prophecy was witnessed by Dany*el in 555 BCE in Babylon. The Assyrians had been conquered by his captors 57 years prior to this date – which is why that former superpower wasn’t included in this prophecy.

As for the Medes, their kingdom was born out of the Assyrian defeat. And at this time, they were still a formidable influence within the region. However, within five years, Persia would conquer Media and within sixteen years, they would control Babylonia.

After the fall of the Assyrian Empire, between 616 and 609 BCE, the first Median State was formed. Along with Babylonia and Lydia, Media briefly became a power broker within Mesopotamia. It grew by annexing considerable territory, much of it coming as a result of its role in the capture of Nineveh.

As is often the case, Media couldn't handle prosperity. The kingdom was conquered in 550 BCE by Cyrus the Great, establishing the Persian Achaemenid Empire. Interestingly, however, during their brief flirtation with fame and fortune, the Medes, like the Roman Legions nearly a millennium later, marched to Mithras – the Unconquerable Sun.

Under Cyrus, who reigned from 559 to 530 BCE, the Persians defeated Lydia in 547 and Babylonia in 539. After moving his capital to the city of Babylon, Cyrus expanded his empire to rule over significant portions of the ancient world.

By 500 BCE, and following the conquest of Egypt in 525 BCE, Persia stretched from the Indus Valley (running through today's India, Pakistan, and China) to Thrace (comprised of portions of today's Bulgaria, northwestern Turkey, and northeastern Greece), and from Macedonia in the west (which at the time stretched from the Adriatic to the Aegean and across the Balkans) to Libya, Egypt, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon, Syria, and all of Turkey along the Mediterranean Sea. Cyrus controlled all of present-day Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, Armenia, Georgia, Azerbaijan, Afghanistan, the northern rim of Arabia, Oman, the United Arab Emirates, as well as much of the Caucasus region around the Caspian Sea. The Persians ruled over two million square miles and forty million people – nearly half of the world's population at the time.

Persia would be noted for its antagonism toward the Greek city-states, its emancipation of Jewish slaves from Babylon, and its insistence on an official language, in their case, Aramaic. As we have learned, Persia was ultimately defeated by Alexander the Great following the Macedonian's invasion in 334 BCE. The kingdom, which was then under the dominion of Darius III, was divided into the Ptolemaic Kingdom and the Seleucid Empire following Alexander's death.

As was the case with Rome incorporating Greek philosophy, architecture, and religion after conquering them, Babylonia would leave its imprint on Persia. The Persians absorbed a host of Babylonian customs, similar to the way the Persians later inspired the Greeks. As surely as Babylon was born anew in Persia, and Persian culture spread throughout Greece, Greece affected Rome as surely as Rome evolved into Christianity.

Remembering that this prophecy was revealed two hundred years before these events transpired, we find Yahowah identifying the Goat as Greece. And to tell its story, we must begin with the rise of Alexander the Great, circa 356 to 323 BCE.

“And the young and independent crowned Goat (wa ha tsaphyr – a chattering and chirping offshoot who leaves early seeking glory as a bearded and agile male goat wearing a crown to depict his royal lineage), the shaggy-haired, tempestuous, and devilish male (ha sa ʿyr – this demon-possessed satyr who stormed in and stormed away), is the king (melek – is the ruler of the government and kingdom) of Yowan | Ionian Greece (Yowan – Imbibe Wine, transliterated Ionian and, thus, Greece).” (Dany^{el} / God is My Means to Judge / Daniel 8:21)

The Assyrians referred to Greece as Yowanu, from which we get Ionians. Similarly, the Egyptians called Greece, Yawana. Greece was known to the Greeks as “Ἰῶβαν – Ioean” and “Ἑλλάς – Ellas,” further affirming the identity of this nation and leader.

Yowan | Javan is the grandson of Noach | Noah through Yapheth | Japeth, and as such, he is initially listed in Bare^{syth} /

Genesis 10:2. He is presented along with some rather tawdry characters, including Gomer, Magog, Madai, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras.

Yowan is associated with Greece in Yasha'yah / Isaiah 66:19. At the conclusion of the final chapter of the great prophet, Yahowah says that it is among the defiant nations which have remained unaware of His name and renown – and so history will end poorly for the Christians in Greece.

In Zakaryah / Zechariah 9, Yahowah is shown in direct opposition to Yowan | Greece. In context, the arrogant bastard children parading around as if they were “Palestinians” to rob Jews of their inheritance will be uprooted. This bloody abomination will be removed so that Yahowah can camp out with His son, Dowd, in their home. Yes, descendants of Tsyown and Yaruwshalaim rejoice because your oppressors are gone, and your rightful king is returning as your savior! And at this time, Yahuwdah and *Ephraym will rise up against the descendants of Yowan | Greece, and they will be the sword of the gibowr | mightiest of men – Dowd.

The ultimate demise of Greece is important to Yahowah because of the role the Greeks within Roman Byzantium played in the transition from the most tyrannical and destructive empire to the most anti-Semitic and damning religion. Call it recompense for Replacement Theology.

Now addressing how the death of Alexander led not to succession but, instead, to infighting among the generals who had served under him, we find yet another reference to this controversial man's death...

“The great horn (wa ha qeren ha gadawl – and the most important leader), which is positioned between (asher byn*) its eyes (ayn huw), was the initial and foremost (huw ha ri*shown*) king (ha melek) (*Dany*el* 8:21) who suffered and died by the rupturing of internal membranes (wa ha shabar – who was afflicted, broken, and shattered, suffering physically while ceasing to exist; the same three letters can be vocalized sheber – crippling injury which destroys human tissues, creating fissures by fracturing, disfiguring, and breaking apart).

And then four arose and appointed themselves (wa ʿamad ʿarbaʿ – four stood up, establishing themselves in charge) in his place (tachath huwʾ – instead of him after being under him (note: the pronoun is actually feminine because it is addressing the qeren – horn / leader)).

Four (ʿarbaʿ) empires (malkuwth – kingdoms, realms, and monarchical or dictatorial governments) will be appointed (ʿamad – will be assigned) from this gowy (min gowy – out of this Gentile, his culture, religion, and nation) but not with (wa loʿba) his authorization or power (koach huwʾ – his authority, ability, qualifications, might, status, or influence).” (Danyʿel / God is My Means to Decide between Vindication and Condemnation / Daniel 8:22)

And this is exactly how it happened, right down to the subtle details which describe the cause of death. The empire was divided without his authorization into four kingdoms. Each was comprised of people from many different races and places, but all were dictatorially ruled by men who had served under the Goat.

The young man who was educated by Aristotle at twelve, who first led troops into battle at sixteen, who ascended to the throne at twenty after his father’s assassination, died in Babylon at thirty-two following a drunken stupor. In the process of conquering Persia, he had forged an empire from the eastern Mediterranean to India – the largest in the world. While he never lost a battle, he lost control of himself and his army. They mutinied because they were repulsed that he had adopted Persian customs and was pretending to be a god and that he held human life in such low regard. And perhaps lost in the mythos of his own claims to divinity, he thought he could cheat death and failed to designate a successor. So, within a year of his demise, his empire was shattered into four pieces.

The events leading to Alexander’s death are shrouded in mystery, but nonetheless, there are some clues available for consideration. We know that, in February 324 BCE, Alexander faced a mutiny at the Ganges River. He responded by ordering his men to march through the desert toward Babylon. After crossing the Tigris River, the Macedonian was met by Babylonian priests who advised him not to enter the city directly because their deity, Bel (meaning “Lord”), had warned them that to do so would be fatal. The Babylonian clerics also advised him against continuing to march westward, because by doing so, he would have to look into the setting sun, an indication of a god’s decline. As a result, the Lord’s priests manipulated the Goat into circumnavigating the city and entering Babylon via the Royal Gate in the western wall, where he would be facing east.

Following this clerical advice likely killed Alexander. The religious route required navigating swampy terrain, where it is probable that Alexander contracted malaria, and if not that, then typhoid fever, both of which were common in the swamps surrounding Babylon. The evidence suggests that, several weeks prior to his death, Alexander contracted a deadly pathogen sailing through the stagnant and unsanitary waters which were rife with human waste and were breeding grounds for disease.

According to a University of Maryland School of Medicine report published in 1998, Alexander likely died of typhoid fever, which, along with malaria, was the leading cause of death in ancient Babylon. In the week before his demise, historical accounts mention chills, sweats, exhaustion, and high fever, typical symptoms of both infectious diseases. The Medical Center’s report states that Alexander suffered “severe abdominal pain, causing him to cry out in agony.”

The reason this is interesting is because both diseases effect the specific symptoms depicted by “shabar – injury caused by membranes rupturing and breaking apart.” And since “breaking and rupturing” is a strange way to depict a man’s death, and especially one who had never lost a battle and who was at the height of his power, an investigation into why shabar was chosen to describe his passing is intriguing— especially since he would have contracted this deadly pathogen by following the counsel of clerics promoting the Babylonian religion.

Malaria is a mosquito-borne disease, and thus common to wet environments where there is stagnant water. Sporozoites in the saliva of female mosquitoes enter the circulatory system and travel to the victim's liver to reproduce. After a brief dormant period, cells begin to burst. Ruptured host cells literally break out of the liver to invade the victim's red blood cells.

While a person's spleen is designed to destroy such infections, in the case of malaria, the parasite circumvents the immune system through adhesive proteins. The body is ravaged, with the bitten individual suffering excruciating physical pain, especially in the joints, and fever so high it tricks the body into thinking it's cold, prompting shivering convulsions, which all too often lead to coma and death.

I know this all too well because I contracted this disease attempting to study the Falasha, African Jews, in Gondar, Ethiopia. They had claimed to have found and pirated away the Ark of the Covenant. And while that proved false, I can attest that the joint pain and freezing fever from Malaria were so debilitating that my body contorted into a fetal position. I was unable to move, even to speak. I was in such agony, I wasn't sure if I wanted to live or die.

Typhoid, on the other hand, is transmitted by the ingestion of water or food contaminated with Salmonella typhi bacteria. Untreated, the fever follows four stages to death. In the first week, body temperature rises slowly. The victim is drained of energy, suffers excruciating headaches, and can develop an annoying cough. White blood cells diminish, further exhausting the individual. In the second week, the fever rises, often peaking around 104°F, followed by an agitated delirium that could easily be mistaken for a drunken stupor. Especially nauseous smelling, pea-soup green diarrhea follows, emaciating the victim. In the third phase, the intestines burst, causing internal hemorrhaging. This internal breaking apart of the digestive system leads to dehydration and death in the fourth stage.

With these depictions in mind, God's use of "shabar – injury caused by membranes rupturing and breaking apart" to describe the death of Alexander seems appropriate. And it is telling because, just as Christianity is rife with Babylonian influences, it was the priestly advice which led to the Goat's demise. He died prematurely because those serving the Lord in the Babylonian religion gave him deadly counsel. Rather than walking away from Babylon, as Yahowah requires of His children so that they might live, this arrogant man walked into Babylon and died. In this way, the Greek Alexander, like the Roman Paul, serves as a prototype for the Beastly Horn who will rise to lead mankind away from the Towrah.

This axis of evil is advanced in this next statement. But as we consider what follows, it is important to note that *ba acharyth is most accurately translated as "in the end," although it can also be rendered as "afterward." The primary connotation would take us to our future with the Christian Church falling under the dominion of the Towrahless One. The secondary definition would take us to 197 BCE when the Legions of the Roman Republic, under General Flamininus, defeated Philip V of Macedon.

Also intriguing, rather than stating that the four kingdoms claimed by Alexander's generals would end, malkuwth hem | their empire is singular while hem is plural. Further, ha pasha° | the Rebellious and Defiant Ones is plural while the verb, amad* | he will present himself, was written in the third-person masculine singular. The resulting melek | leader is also singular.

Considering these factors, and what follows, we would be wise to recognize that the transition among Beasts from Imperial Rome to Roman Catholicism occurred in Constantinople. Further, the Church's authority will be usurped in the end by the Final Horn. And representing Satan and himself, he will manifest the duality we find in his title...

"Then in the end (*wa ba acharyth – during the last days), their empire (malkuwth hem – as the realms over which they reigned) of the Rebellious and Defiant Ones (ha pasha^o – the ones leading the revolt, those in opposition who hold a grudge against the ultimate authority, the transgressors (qal participle form following the definite article indicates that the verb is being used as a descriptive title)) will be finished (ka tamam – ended).

The authorized embodiment of political, religious, and military power (melek – the royal ruler, the head of the government, the ultimate and unchallenged authority) will arise and he will present himself (amad* – he will take a stand, take charge, and make accusations (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular)) with a fortified and empowered (az* – with a fierce and forceful) presence and face (paneħ – appearance).

Then, one will come to understand (wa byn – one will distinguish between right and wrong, truth and fiction, by making the proper connections to thoughtfully resolve (hifil participle masculine singular)) riddles and enigmas, asking the hard questions needed to solve the most challenging mysteries and intriguing analogies (chydah – wisely resolving the most perplexing ambiguities while taunting the sources of ignorance and intrigue (participle substantive – verbal noun describing a person)).” (Dany^oel / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 8:23)

By jumping from Alexander’s death, and the division of his empire, to its conclusion as it is caught up in the rise of the Defiant Ones, we are witnessing something not heretofore disclosed. Satan, as the final Beast, will claim Alexander’s legacy as his own, becoming great in his own eyes in addition to divine. There are even hints here of the Roman Church rising from the fallen empire, which should not be surprising since it is the world’s largest organization, and Satan has been its god since the beginning.

The empowerment of the fortified duality provides another affirmation that we were right to consider the parallel account of the Satanic Beast in Yasha ʿyah / Isaiah 14. As was the case with Paul and Muhammad, the extent of the demon possession will fundamentally change the world.

It is apparent that the initial two lines address the rise of the Towrahless One as no one will ever be as Pasha* | Rebellious or Defiant. But fortunately, his claim to fame will fail in the end. Nevertheless, during his climb to glory he will aspire to possess all manner of political, religious, and military power, presenting himself as the King of Kings. His will be the fierce and confabulated face of Satan.

Fortunately, he will be upended by one who will embrace byn and come to understand the riddles that have escaped so many. In fact, the one with the Spirit of Byn will be the first to recognize Trump as the Devil's Advocate ~ or in Christian parlance, as the Antichrist.

Therefore, becoming prominent at this time is someone who finally solves this riddle. He will byn | distinguish the truth by finding the common denominators and by making reasoned associations. He will chydah | resolve these puzzling enigmas by asking the right questions. He will challenge conventional thinking to peel back the layers, ultimately exposing the picture as it was meant to be seen. And it sure sounds like he is going to channel his inner Elyah* while doing it, mocking and taunting those who have obscured reality and led God's people astray.

As we approach this next installment of relevant information regarding the human incarnation of Satan, we find him either atsam* or etsem* depending upon how the three Hebrew letters are vocalized. atsam* speaks of becoming "increasingly powerful and of gaining influence over vast numbers of places and people." It depicts the "deployment of an enormously oppressive, crushing, and destructive force." But it also conveys the idea of "closing people's eyes so tightly that they are blinded and can no longer see light." atsam* can even be used to convey "breaking bones."

This is because etsem*, which is a noun rather than a verb, actually means “bones.” It is deployed to describe the “human skeleton and backbone.” etsem* is found addressing the “essential essence of something which is vital to life.”

Beyond the rich palette of possibilities painted by the verb, atsam / etsem, koach also conveys a wide array of meanings. That which is koach has the “potential to exert an imposing force, to exercise vast authority, and to deploy massive resources and wealth.” The koach “shout loudly” and have the “capacity to perform miracles.”

The secondary connotations are tangentially related, and they are germane in the context of describing an adversarial Beast. A koach is an “unclean and cold-blooded animal” and, in particular, a “serpentine reptile.” It can depict anything from a “powerful crocodile with its forceful bite” to a “venomous snake with debilitating poison.” It can be used to describe a “monitor lizard” which kills by wounding and infecting its victim or a “chameleon” which changes its color to blend into its environment.

Also relevant, koach is the root of kachad, which tells us that Satan wants to “conceal” his true identity and agenda, “keeping others from knowing” that he is the power behind the Beast – at least up to the point when the guises will be lifted. In this way, he can “destroy” the means to know God and “trash” the Towrah's credibility, while “annihilating” as many souls as possible.

Each nuance of koach appears chosen to vividly describe one of the most anxiously expected and infamous figures in human history – albeit future history. With koach deployed twice in the next pronouncement, we are being encouraged to consider the full palette of potential meanings which is why it is better to convey too many of these possibilities rather than too few. And in this regard, with this prophetic portrait of the Towrahless One, it is rather obvious that we were correct regarding our assessments concerning the timing of the previous statements.

The arrival of the one who is now resolving these riddles, does not preclude Satan and his stooge from corrupting a preponderance of people or of annihilating billions. His purpose is to make it possible for some to survive the onslaught in anticipation that they will be receptive to the alternative approach to life and liberty. Therefore, of the demon-possessed Copper Con, we learn...

“So his controlling authoritarianism will exude a crushing and powerful influence as he will exhibit the propensity to be a real bone breaker (*wa *atsam huw – he will exert considerable influence to pulverize his opposition and impose his authority over a vast area and countless people, with multitudes so blinded he is able to rob them of their essential nature and backbone, all while enriching and empowering himself (qal perfect third-person masculine singular – he will actually possess this capacity but it will be short-lived)) as a constricting snake (koach – as a creepy serpent and chameleon, concealing his serpentine and reptilian nature to hide his identity), but not through his own serpentine capability nor his own authority, accomplishments, or snakish qualifications (wa lo ba koach huw – but not of his own accord or credentials, or by his resourcefulness and ingenuity, as he will conceal his relationship with the serpent, keeping the source of his might hidden like a chameleon).

So it will be astonishingly and astounding, awesomely amazing in its miraculous and supernatural fulfillment, unlike anything prior (*wa pala – it will be extraordinary, unsuspectingly surpassing the norms of what seems humanly feasible, even incredible, especially unbelievable, (nifal participle feminine plural – its duplicitous nature will be demonstrably distinguishing and incomprehensible)) as he will be exceedingly corrupt and destructive, debauched and depraved (shachath – grossly immoral, slimy, and putrid, spoiled and perverted (hifil imperfect third-person masculine singular)).

He will be in a rush to appear successful, claiming to be victorious at this time by feigning prosperity as he pushes his agenda forward, being forceful and overbearing (wa tsalach – he will seem to accomplish his goals and achieve the desired position and influence he sought, appearing effective, progressing and prospering rapidly, immediately claiming success (hifil perfect third-person masculine singular)).

But his actions (*wa asah – however what he engages in and does, what he affects, produces, and brings about (qal perfect third-person masculine singular)) will be depraved, corrupting, and destructive, annihilating and exterminating (wa shachath – he will be a deviant to an astounding degree, digging a deadly hole to cast off and bury (hifil perfect third-person masculine singular)) great multitudes, including the strongest, most accomplished, and powerful (atsuwm* – great throngs of people, countless individuals; from atsam* - the vast preponderance of those who eyes are shut) in addition to (wa) the set-apart people (am qadowsh* – the most special and separated individuals).” (Dany^eel / My God Judges, Condemns, and Vindicates / Daniel 8:24)

Ever since it became apparent that Donald Trump was the grandiose real estate developer orchestrating the planned construction of the monstrous temple to his ego as the orangish cohort of Satan presented within Ezekiel, I have been concerned that he's too old for the job. Afterall, he is portrayed by his Lord plotting all manner of mass murders and rapes, and yet, he's already showing signs of vascular disease and dementia. Nevertheless, I accepted the prophecies presented here at face value since we were told that the man with the strange goatish hair would be really old.

But there was no reason for concern based upon this prophetic assessment. Bronze Boy will remain a controlling authoritarian continuing to act like a bone-breaking cannibal pulverizing those who dare oppose him. The world at large will continue to be blinded by him, even as he robs them while enriching himself. This snake of a man with a wee reptilian brain will constrict the life out of the planet because most will remain oblivious, even as this chameleon channels his inner Paul to feign being all things to all people.

All of this is possible because Satan will be the power within him, continuing to animate this vile and perverted creature. The Adversary's Advocate will be afforded his serpentine authority and acclaim through his demon possession. It is even evident now, here in the summer of 2025. There has never been a more duplicitous man in charge of a nation.

We are witnessing in the White House the inception of the 'Antichrist,' with this hideous blend of decaying human and despotic demon. It is only going to get worse. The resulting integration of Satan into the man's psyche is going to deliver a supernatural fulfillment of this prophecy. The Copper Con will supersede the norms of human decency. He will devolve to become unlike anything we have seen previously, incredible and unbelievable to be sure.

Affirming that we have tabbed the right guy, the Palmowny bluntly states that the Dumpster is debauched and sexually depraved, corrupt beyond measure. He is a spoiled brat long after normal men grow out of being so grossly immoral.

As has been the case with Trump 47 from the beginning, he is in a rush to appear successful, tripping over his tongue to claim victory no matter how horrendous the defeat. Feigning results in his overbearing style has been the catalyst of his appeal among political and religious devotees. Even when it is patently obvious that his schemes are counterproductive and destructive, he remains effective at cowing the opposition and convincing devotees such that he thrives in the realm of confabulation.

All the while, the world is becoming unhinged, on the precipice of war, as the anarchy of economic collapse lurks around the next corner. The strong are being devoured so that the weak can be exterminated. Billions will succumb, with millions of Jews counted among them.

The Palmowny has brought us forward in time to the last days, between 5993 and 6000 Yah, and prior to Taruw^oah in 2033 when this is all resolved. For a time, the ha Pasha^o | Rebellious One is ruling the world as the human incarnation of Satan – an individual so overwhelmingly demon-possessed that man and spirit will be indistinguishable – as they are even on this day. Trump will become more authoritarian and deadly than the collective menace of Paul, Titus, Akiba, Hadrian, Muhammad, Stalin, Hitler, and Mao.

This Beast Trump will accomplish what has heretofore been unthinkable and untenable – sucking the life out of the planet. He will do so through subterfuge, with the epitome of evil pretending to be a force for good.

He will prevail through the pretense of prosperity – using copious amounts of worthless currency to build an economic house of cards as part of the Great Reset. He will capitalize upon people's ignorance, selfishness, and greed, such that they become beholden to and dependent upon his schemes. And yet, with each handout, the recipients will be robbed of their independence, sense of personal responsibility, and integrity, becoming as worthless as the currency being used to bribe them into submission.

We should expect Trump to propose a new, international currency bearing his image which is principally electronic, whereby every transaction can be monitored and controlled. And to lure the masses into accepting it and then embracing his economic alternative, he will forgive all debts, personal, corporate, and national. It will cost him nothing, in that they don't owe him the money. It will, however, destroy the banking industry, giving him absolute financial control. It will also entice the governments of the EU to align with him because they are hopelessly in debt. In addition, I suspect that he will confiscate the savings of the rich, using their deposits as the backing for his currency. In the process, the Copper Con will eliminate all potential rivals while gaining absolute control over the populous.

Also insightful, for a while, during his rise to power, the Devil's Denizen will be a wolf in sheep's clothing. That is until Satan is ready to stop hiding behind Jesus Christ and Allah, because he will on the Ides of March in 2030 declare himself the Lord God of all. And for most, it will be too late to protest. He will own almost everyone by then.

While we are not told how powerful the ruwach of ha Satan can be, I have some personal experience to share which may be helpful. As a result of the 91st Mizmowr | Psalm, Yahowah has assigned His spiritual representatives to protect me, my home, and my family so that I can complete this mission. And that is no easy task because, after writing Prophet of Doom, which is now God Damn Religion, and sharing my findings on many thousands of talk radio programs, I received countless death threats. And yet, I never cowered, hid, or ducked. Moreover, for the past eight years, I've lived in hurricane alley in the central Caribbean. I have watched as storms were sheared, miraculously dissipated, or dramatically altered course and strengthened only after passing. And this follows what occurred with Hurricane Dorian, a Category 5 storm which, when I was living in Fort Lauderdale, made a 90-degree right turn rather than rip my home apart.

Beyond this, according to Yasha Yah | Isaiah, I have been afforded the counsel and encouragement of the seven most vital effects of Yahowah's Spirit, enabling an otherwise ordinary individual to understand prophecies such as these, translate His words, and share the resulting insights. Therefore, while Yahowah's ruwach are enabling, and His mal'ak are protective, ha Satan will be overwhelmingly destructive, controlling, and destabilizing.

God does not show off – He does not need to do so. Satan will. There will be signs and wonders to astound the unsuspecting. But, it will all lead to the virtual annihilation of the human race. What extermination camps, natural disasters, and nuclear wars fail to achieve in depopulating the Earth, the preponderance of those who remain will be so corrupt God will put them out of their misery. When all of the killing is over, there will be thousands where there were once billions.

As we will discover in Yasha Yah | Isaiah 14, Satan has successfully positioned himself as the god of the world's major religions, specifically those which haunt the Chosen People – Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. As a unifier seeking acceptance, Satan will initially capitalize on the popularity of religion to confuse the masses, commingling Christianity with Islam.

There are three ways Satan can play his hand. He will either claim to be Yahowah, continue on as the Lord, or he will superimpose his given name, Halal ben Shachar, over all others. Whichever way, what is certain is that he will continue to be averse to the derogatory and devaluing implications of his ha Satan | the Adversary depiction and title.

The inclusion of am qadowsh* at the end of this declaration reveals that God's people will not be immune from attack. Since these will be Yisra*elites apart from the Covenant, it is sad but inevitable because they remain vulnerable. It is consistent with other proclamations, whereby God tells us that two out of every three Yisra*elites will die during the Time of Troubles.

Since every word Yahowah inspired to forewarn us is a lesson in and of itself, let's review them before we move on. Class begins with God telling us that ha Satan will impose his will over the world: atsam koach huw – this controlling authoritarian will become exceedingly powerful. He will exert considerable influence to crush his opposition and impose his authority over a vast area and countless people, with multitudes so blinded he is able to rob them of their essential nature and backbone. And he will enrich and empower himself while concealing his serpentine nature, altering his appearance until his toxicity has incapacitated his victims. And in the qal perfect, he will actually possess this capacity, but it will be short-lived.

The Rebellious Beast will be an amalgamation of spirit and man, the human incarnation of Satan, because: lo ba koach* *huw – it will not be through his own ability or authority, neither by his accomplishments nor his power that he will prevail. They are called the Defiant Ones because it will not be of this man's own accord or qualifications, nor of his resourcefulness and ingenuity, that he will succeed. And initially, he will conceal his relationship with the Serpent, keeping the source of his might hidden.

Smoke and mirrors will be the order of the day as we peer behind the curtain to witness the wizard manipulating the levers promoting his illusions: *pala shachath – he will be astonishingly corrupt and awesomely destructive while appearing miraculous, performing well beyond the limits of his own power. Donald Trump will continue to be exceptionally perverted while astounding the unsuspecting with a daily dose of chaos. A comatose world will see him surpassing the norms of what seems humanly possible.

As we have learned, Satan is successful in advancing his agenda: tsalach – he will succeed for a while, claiming to be victorious at this time and advancing his purpose by granting a transient illusion of prosperity while exacerbating the underlying problem. The Adversary's Apostle will accomplish his goals and achieve the position and influence he sought – which is to be seen as God while he depopulates the planet. There will even be an apparition of peace and prosperity – at least for the moment.

However, it will turn out poorly for those who believe Trump because asah shachath* – everything the Copper Con acts upon and engages in will be corrupting and destructive. What he affects and produces will be death on a massive scale. Those he does not devour, he will annihilate, digging holes to bury the world in his duplicity.

Devilish Donald will bring down: atsuwm* – great multitudes, including the strongest, most accomplished, and powerful. His focus, however, will be to also harass and threaten the am qadowsh* – set-apart people.

Staying on theme, Yahowah leaves everyone without excuse. After revealing that the Chosen People will succumb, they are further forewarned. But we are already forewarned because Trump is already the king of confabulated superlatives, confounding through chaos, with the worst claiming to be the best.

“And by way of his cunning interpretations and sly explanations (*wa *al sekel huw – so through his craftiness and cleverness), he will become a powerful and influential force for deceit and deception, deliberately and successfully misleading and betraying (wa tsalach mirmah – he will rush to prosper, even thrive by being treacherous and dishonest, providing a false impression along with a beguiling perspective, using subtility to delude and disillusion).

With his actions (*ba yad huw – through his hand, power, influence, and deeds) and in his inclinations (*wa ba lebab huw – according to his perceptions of himself, his motivations and judgment), he will boast that he is praiseworthy, the greatest ever (gadal – he will claim an extraordinarily high status, he will triumph and be glorified, while promoting himself as the best ever).

Through complacency and with surprisingly little effort and no empathy (wa ba shalwah – by being careless, without thought or compassion without any concern or emotion), he will manipulate, morally incapacitate, corrupt and destroy countless individuals (shachath rabym – he will ravage and pervert the masses, destroying multitudes in a humiliating fashion, ensnaring, entrapping, and burying vast numbers of people (hifil imperfect)).

He will present himself as superior to and take a stand against (*wa *al amad – he will position and appoint himself above by making accusations against (qal imperfect)) the King’s foremost representative (sar sarym – the prince of princes, the highest-ranking authority of the foremost of leaders).

But in the end (*wa ba epesh – however, since this cannot continue it will finally be brought to naught because), he and his influence will be broken, and his hand will be crushed (yad shabar – his actions will be curtailed).” (Dany^eel / God is My Means to Judge / Daniel 8:25)

We are obviously not seeing the full scope of this union between Donald Trump and Halal ben Shachar because the feeble-minded POTUS seems far less intelligent than a developmentally disabled bully in the third-grade sandbox. He can barely complete a sentence without tripping on his tongue and is wrong far more often than he is right. His grasp on reality is tenuous at best.

Further, when compared to Satan’s most infamous projects – Paul and Muhammad – the Copper Con is no brighter than the dumbest among us. And so, Satan is going to have to up his game to project any semblance of cunning or craftiness.

As for deceit and deception, Satan found the perfect patsy. There is essentially no correlation between what comes out of Trump’s mouth and reality. No one has ever been better at misdirecting. But it is in betrayal that he will leave his mark. The Messiah of Maga is the next Neville Chamberlain, betraying Israel as if the world learned nothing from trying to appease the Nazis by sacrificing Czechoslovakia. And while I’m tempted to say that his treachery will deliver the same result, that’s not entirely fair since this time the casualties will be numbered in the billions, not millions.

Never, and I say this acknowledging the arrogance of Paul and Muhammad, the Caesars and Kings, even der Fuhrer, has there been a narcissist of Trump’s caliber. He is crappy at everything except this one thing. In his mind, and in those of his true believers, the Copper Con is the Greatest – ever.

And so how does a man this obviously incompetent and dishonest rise to a place where he can be so destructive and deadly ~ complacency. Too few people are thoughtful, moral, or care. Apathy breeds ignorance, and Yahowah stated through Howsha^o: “My people are destroyed for a lack of knowing.” While that explains the victim’s plight, as is the case with all narcissists and psychopaths, the perpetrator lacks empathy.

Apathy for what should have been seen as concerning 10 years in advance and from ten-thousand miles away, will lead to total moral incapacitation among the masses worldwide. And this is my dilemma in social media because far too few people are informed, rational, and motivated.

Since this is the Palmowny speaking, he is revealing something I have long known. As Yahowah’s Choter and Dowd’s Herald, I am the adversary of the Adversary. And while I will allow him to bludgeon my body on Taruw^oah as the *Adamah Parah per Yahowah’s instructions, it will be Satan’s undoing. In so doing, I will rise and he will fall. Thereby, I will purge the Adulterous Woman that is the remnant of Yisra^oel so that Yahuwdym are prepared for Yahowah’s return, and as a result, the Devil is done. You can put a fork in him, so to speak.

Between now and then, Satan will remain a paradox. While his title means Adversary, he seeks to be worshiped as if he were God. While he is intelligent, the religious and conspiratorial have him squandering his time manipulating the meaningless lives of those who are particularly stupid. He is light, albeit surrounded by darkness. He is immortal, and yet, no one is deadlier. Knowing the truth, he is programed to deal in deception.

Here, Yahowah reminds us that the Adversary can be a brilliant strategist. While he shows no signs of it in the Quran, and while he committed all manner or logical fallacies in the New Testament, Satan was once described as crafty and cunning. He’s been sufficiently clever such that the average schmo, having been dumbed down by political jargon, religious rhetoric, tantalizing tweets, and conspiratorial theories, is easily mesmerized by him. At a time fraught with disinformation, errant reporting, liberal nonsense, and academic, political, and religious indoctrination, he will outwit the world before most climb out of bed. It is so bad that those who accuse others of serving Satan are actually worshiping him.

Halal ben Shachar, embodied within the bellicose and duplicitous Trump, will put on quite a show. He will continue to confuse and comically mislead many, taking them further away from God by pretending to be God. Promising to save them, he will damn them. He will embroider evil in velvet threads.

And yet, Trump ought not be able to beguile and betray anyone since his ambitions are so clearly stated and unambiguously outlined by Yahowah through Yasha*yah and Dany*el, even with his own hand through Ezekiel. And yet, the world will continue to lap up his lies as if they were lemonade – up to the point that his toxins debilitate and kill them.

The great betrayer will claim to be the world's savior. And while speaking of life, he will exterminate and annihilate friend and foe in an orgy of death. Claiming that God spared his life when the bullet grazed his ear and claimed another, we now know that it was Satan's doing. As proof, imagine promoting that moment as Trump does with his fisted salute, knowing that it cost two men their lives? Clearly, narcissists have no empathy.

For Satan, even during his most glorious and goriest moment atop the Mount, nothing will be sufficient or satisfying. Without concern or compassion, he will destroy countless lives while corrupting and curtailing human existence, all as Satan seeks to obliterate what God cherishes most.

In the end, it will be a referendum on Replacement Theology. Which God is real? Which people matter? Who is the Messiah and King? Whose universe is it anyway?

The answer for a depopulated world in rubble is that the hand of the Adversary's Apostle will be broken, and his influence will cease. The Sar Sarym | Prince to the Greatest of Kings will have done his job. Taruw*ah will enable Kipurym so that we can celebrate Sukah.

We have God's stamp of approval on all of this...

“And the vision (wa mare^{ah} – the sight, the ability to see, the clear patterns presented in a comprehensible manner) of the ensuing period of darkness in the evening (ha ^{ereb} – of the night of noxious foreigners, including Arabians and the gloom resulting from weaving many threads together) and of the dawn of a new day, this time of enlightenment to reflect and be contemplative (wa ha boqer – the morning of increasing light, a new tomorrow to consider what can be observed at the end of darkness) which, for the benefit of the relationship (^{asher} – to reveal the proper, narrow, restrictive, and correct path to walk to get the most out of life), he has declared and promised (^{amar} – he has spoken about and proclaimed) is reliable and true about him and you and it will be fulfilled (^{emeth huw^{}}* wa ^{atah} – is trustworthy and dependable, honest, certain and enduring regarding him and you).

Seal by disguising (satham – choose to shut and conceal, making unrecognizable and indiscernible by camouflaging (qal imperative)) the revelation (ha chazown – the prophetic communication from God) for a long time (ky la yowmym rabym – for a great many days).” (Dany^{el} / My God Judges, Vindicates, and Condemns / Daniel 8:26)

The ensuing darkness would ooze out of Babylon, the land of integrated and institutionalized religion and governance. Its toxicity would be consumed by the Persians who swallowed them. And then it would be spread far and wide through war as the Macedon king imposed his will by brute force.

Interestingly enough, this rendition of the sweeping prophecy bypasses the lightless soul of Imperial Rome and her Church and transitions directly to the dark heart of the final Beast – the corporeal manifestation of Satan’s spirit. Subtly, perhaps, this may suggest that some of those who terrorize the world in the Time of Trouble will emerge from Byzantium and the Eastern Orthodox Church. After all, it was through the villainy of Constanine, Eusebius, and Theodosius that Imperial Rome became the Roman Church.

While there will be a long night of noxious foreign usurpers acting badly, a new day will dawn. The Light will return for the benefit of the relationship. And in the presence of light, there is no darkness. That is how and why the Revolting One will meet his demise in the flames Yahowah ignites surrounding the *Adamah Parah.

It is unlikely that Jews would have benefited from these insights as they dealt with the Babylonians, Persians, Greeks, Romans, and their Churches, even if they could make sense of them. I say this because they remain estranged from Yah. Therefore, they were sealed for our time. And even then, it would take 24 years of diligently studying the Towrah and prophets before we beheld enough of God's overall plan to see how these exacting, but camouflaged pieces complete the picture God has painted for us. And so, now, on the cusp of Dowd's return with Yahowah, we are finally prepared to solve the puzzle.

Therefore, Gabry*el, or his Basar, Myka*el, instructed Dany*el to disguise what he had seen such that the resulting imagery would be unrecognizable for a very long time. It would not be until the king's representative was equipped after one-hundred thousand hours of study and 25,000 pages of insights to solve the mystery that has long eluded the religious.

Should you wonder why it wasn't until after 24 years and 35 books that I have finally sought to fulfill this mandate, and refine the timeline, the answer is that it was not until I came to fully appreciate the wide-ranging implications of Taruw*ah and of Dowd's three lives, that I knew enough to resolve the conundrum of stilted language and bizarre imagery. And even then, this has been an enormous challenge with some unexpected twists and turns along the way.

Before one is prepared to translate and explain such enigmas, he or she must first become familiar with mankind's history, how empires and institutions have conspired to harass Jews, the nasty consequence of religion, and the ambitions of Satan. To understand Daniel, we must be guided by Isaiah. And even then, to fully appreciate what Satan is trying to achieve, and with whom, the demons lurking in the dark shadows of Ezekiel must be exorcized. We must also become familiar with the long tapestry of God's story, and appreciate how it is developed up to this point, especially cognizant as to how it ends.

Prophecy pertaining to this period in time is alluring, indeed, tantalizing, such that it will entice an audience. But why draw someone in before you have something meaningful to offer? And the only thing worth offering is an accurate introduction to Yahowah along with the things which matter: His Guidance, Covenant, Invitations, People, and Son.

As a general rule, I've found that there is less teaching associated with future predictions than past assessments. God reveals His purpose, nature, and plan throughout the prophetic landscape, but less so with those associated with the last days. The reason, I suspect, is that the only hope for those attempting to outlive the Beast is to return to the basics, becoming fluent in the Towrah, Covenant, and Invitations. Yahowah's core message is more vital than the benefit of recognizing the Adversary.

There is, however, an inference here worth considering. Most of what Dany^{el} saw dealt with the rise and fall of empires and institutions which are relatively easy for us to study and assess – particularly the Greeks, Romans, and their Church. By contemplating the commonality among them and associating these affinities with the ambition of the Adversary, we discover why Yahowah has asked us to disassociate from religion and politics before engaging in the Covenant. By recognizing that which God says is bad for us and avoiding those things, we live longer and more fulfilling lives.

Today, as we approach the impending demise of the world as we know it, and near the Time of Trouble, there are very few years left to awaken a sufficient number of Yahuwdym to properly greet Yahowah and Dowd upon their return. I do not want Yisra^{}el to disappoint God. So, the best way to ensure that this does not happen is to encourage God's people to listen before it is too late. Unraveling Dany^oel after nearly 2,600 years may be sufficient to garner their attention – especially when acknowledging that Dowd is speaking of himself as Gabry^{}el throughout Dany^oel 9 when addressing ha Mashyach. That, in and of itself, is an alluring prize.

With all of the lies swirling about the “Magog War,” “Armageddon,” the “Antichrist,” and the “Apocalypse,” even the myth of a “Third Temple,” among Christians and Conspiratorialists, even Messianic Jews, such nonsense will drown out the truth to the degree that those who need it most won't listen. And now in retrospect, this assessment of Dany^oel | Daniel would have been premature if I had not completed azab* | Separation and its prophecies regarding Yahowah's long intermission away from His people and how it began in the Towrah, especially as chronicled in Numbers 11, 12, and 20. All good things in their time.

Between now and Yah's return, while the darkness will continue to be depressing, God's light remains available to those who seek Him. What we have witnessed and will experience is appalling, and yet, we are fast approaching the time of enlightenment.

Man apart from God is a miserable being, and the more men gather together, the worse they become. This is the story of civilization. But there is a remedy – Yahowah. So, no matter how bleak the circumstance, we are called to stand up and make a difference by sharing His revelation.

“Then (wa), I (*any), Dany^oel (Dany^oel – My God Judges, Condemns, and Vindicates), had experienced too much and grew faint (hayah wa chalah – I endured so much that I became grieved and afflicted) for days (yowmym).

Then, when (wa) I arose and stood up (quwm – as I was restored and reestablished), I engaged in and contributed to (*wa *asah eth – and I acted upon) the spiritual endeavors of the heavenly messenger (*mala*kah* – the service of the *mal*ak*; feminine of *mal*ak* – spiritual messenger and heavenly representative) of the Head of the Kingdom (ha melek – of the King and the Ultimate Authority).

But I was appalled (wa shamem – I was dismayed, discouraged, and horrified) by the vision (al ha mare*ah* – as a result of the patterns and appearances in the revelation), even though I did not understand (*wa ayn byn – although I was unable to figure it out and comprehend how the various things I had seen all fit together).” (*Dany*el* / Daniel 8:27)

Dany*el had seen more than he could endure, much less process or understand. And he was sickened by it all – even as everything is resolved so favorably in the end.

Alexander was disgusting, a mass-murdering egomaniac and ruthless psychopath. He was the protégé in these ways of Trump. Even then, after a litany of abominable behavior, the worst was yet to come. Satan would embody a man, claim supreme authority, bankrupt nations, kill billions, and claim to be God. If only Fred Trump had used a condom.

Dany*el was markedly different than other individuals privileged to see visions of the future because he never understood what he was witnessing. This was somewhat due to the fact that he was not supposed to comprehend or explain these symbols. He was a reporter, not a prophet. But it was also a function of the Babylonian effect. Until a person leaves Babylon, walking away from religion and politics, there is no way to know or approach God. And maybe that is the most powerful lesson in the Book.

The most comprehensive explanation of what we have just read regarding Satan's ambition and methodology is presented in Yasha ʿyah / Isaiah 14. Two hundred years prior to Dany^{el}'s prophecy, God revealed the connection between Satan and Babel | Babylon which provides us with the relevant history and pertinent future of this Adversary. Few things are as vital as appreciating Satan's involvement in religion.

God's assessment of the ensuing darkness opens with Him assuring His people that He still loves them, even while it is unreciprocated. This is important because the Adversary isn't just genocidal, He especially hates Yahuwdym, which is why Ezekiel features twenty-five ways to kill them. Therefore, God's assessment of Satan begins by putting the differences between them into perspective. The competition is for souls – especially Jewish ones.

“By contrast (ky – it is certain), Yahowah (Yahowah) will show compassion and love, demonstrating favoritism (racham) toward (eth*) Yaʿaqob (Yaʿaqob). He will once again choose (*wa bachar owd) to be with (ba) Yisraʿel (Yisraʿel). Furthermore (wa), He will restore them within (nuwach hem ba) their own Land (adamah hem*).” (Yasha ʿyah / Isaiah 14:1)

Yahowah is setting the stage for His return to reconcile His relationship with Yisraʿel. This occasion is so important that there is a parallel account of this day in Yirma ʿyah / Jeremiah 31. Both prophecies are slated to be fulfilled in the Promised Land on behalf of the Chosen People during the Last Days.

So of this we can be certain: God loves Yahuwdym | Jews most of all – and that will never change, irrespective of the spurious and anti-Semitic rhetoric of the New Testament and Quran. His preference is so extreme in this regard that a remnant of Gowym whose forefathers persecuted His people, restricted even then to the least religious of them, will enter the Millennial Kingdom as servants. Although, considering that the alternative would have been death and the Earth will be transformed into the Garden of Eden, it's actually a distinct honor and reward.

“Foreigners from different cultural and ethnic groups (wa ha ger – newcomers who are associating with Jews) will accompany them (*lawah al hem – will join them) because (wa) they will be chosen by and appointed to (*saphach al - - they will be gathered alongside and associated with, in close proximity to) the house (beyth) of Ya•aqob (Ya•aqob), (Yasha•yah 14:1) and (wa) the greatest of the people and many others among the family (am rab* – numerous among the most esteemed individuals [rab is from 1QIsa]) who will select and receive them (wa laqach – who will collect and accept them).

They will arrive, bringing them (wa bow hem*) to their region and to their dwelling places (el *erets wa el maqowm hem – to their land, homes, and offices [from 1QIsa]).

The household and family (wa beyth) of Yisra*el | Individuals who Engage and Endure with God (*Yisra*el*) will, without any coercion or other controlling influence, receive them as an inheritance (nachal hem – without the use of compulsion or manipulation accept them (hitpa'el perfect)) upon (al*) Yahowah's (Yahowah) world as a result of the adamah* | Bloody Red Man of the Earth (adamah*) as (la) male workers, serving as laborers (ebed*), and as (wa la) female staff, servants, mistresses, maids, and slaves (shiphchah).

So it will come to be that (wa hayah) those who had been their captives (la shabah hem) will take them under their control (shabah), and (wa) they will rule over and direct (radah) those who had oppressed and exploited them (ba nagas hem).” (Yasha•yah / Isaiah 14:2)

While this may sound somewhat arcane, and perhaps even a little unfair, consider what happens when those who deliberately abuse innocent people are forgiven and there is no accountability. Then contemplate the Christian, Muslim, and Marxists cultures these individuals are being removed from and the prevalence of rampant antisemitism and overt persecution. Look what is being said and done to Jews around the world, even now before the worst of the Time of Trouble begins. Should you be unaware, spend a day with me on X. The prevailing sentiment among today's youth is to rid the world of Jews. There must be a clear and unequivocal demarcation between right and wrong, and who is family and who is not, as we return to the Garden.

Beyond this, ponder the alternative, which would be to die. They are outsiders from hostile places at a time when peace must prevail. They are being given a reprieve. And should they not want it, if they lack the attitude and aptitude for it, well then, there is the other option.

Also, they are being assigned to work for the best among us and in paradise. They will be chosen and appreciated. And you no doubt noted, there will be no compulsion of any kind. This is the opportunity of a lifetime for them which is why there is no coercion. It is a reprieve, one which reveals God's sense of justice and His love for life and compassion for His people.

It also sets this prophecy into the future and the end of time as we know it because this has not previously occurred. And that is interesting because one of the constant themes of anti-Semitic conspiracies is accusing Jews of seeking to control and enslave gentiles. Throughout history, it has been gentiles who have routinely done this to God's people.

Mark your calendars for sunrise on the Shabat of Taruw^{ah}, September 24th, 2033 when Yahowah will rid the world of religious and political oppression and then restore His relationship with Yahuwdym so that they are prepared for His return. No one will ever torment them again – including rabbis, who have been among the most punitive. And, of course, after Taruw^oah we will celebrate the Kipurym Homecoming on the Day of Reconciliations in anticipation of Camping Out together during Sukah.

“It will come to pass (wa hayah), in that day (ba yowm), Yahowah (Yahowah) will restore you and provide a favorable, restful, spiritual alliance (*niwach la atah) from your religious suffering and agony, from the ordeal of worshiping (*min *otseb atah – out of the hard work of your religious burdens), from this political turmoil, terrorizing anxiety, and raucous trouble you’re experiencing (*wa min rogez atah – your tremendous agitation, trepidation, and relentless commotion), as well as from the harsh, forced labor and cruel slavery (*wa min abodah ha qasheh) in which (asher*) they had you to serve (abad ba atah).” (*Yasha yah / Isaiah 14:3)

The deteriorating conditions Jews will endure as we venture deeper into the Time of Trouble will become increasingly horrific. It will be an amalgamation of October 7th Islamic terrorism, antisemitic Marxists pogroms, a global Holocaust, and the Catholic Inquisition, combined with rabbinic abuse. The conclusion on Taruw^oah will provide a much-needed respite.

With the date set, the dividing lines drawn, the outcome certain, we are afforded the means to be on the right side when all of this comes crashing down upon a world in turmoil.

“In that day (wa ba ha yowm), you should lift up (*nasa) this particular Mashal | Comparative Word Picture and Proverb which illustrates an ethical point to provide guidance and build character while equipping you to exercise good judgment regarding authority figures, political leaders, and governments (ha Mashal ha zeh) against (al*) the one who reigned and ruled over, thereby influencing (melek) Babel | the Confounding Confusion of Commingling which occurred in Babylon with the Lord and through the Bible (Babel).

And you may ask (*wa amar) how it is in the midst of these extraordinary circumstances that (*ek) the oppressor promoting this onslaught of persecution through the systematic and boisterous promotion of mistaken beliefs (nagas madhebah – the subjugating tyrant and ongoing assault) will subside and cease so as to observe the Shabat (shabat)?

Yet in this way, even in the midst of this (*ek), the exploitation, manipulation, and corruption, as well as the overt desire to control and tax (nagas), will be abated (shabat – will cease [this sentence replaces the one in the MT and is from 1QIsa]).” (Yasha ʿyah / Isaiah 14:4)

The best way to avert the onslaught of religious corruption which has streamed out of Babylon over the years is to lift up Yahowah’s testimony. By reading what Yashaʿyah and others have written, we are properly guided and equipped to exercise good judgment about how Satan uses religion to promote mistaken beliefs and oppress the preponderance of people.

Babel is about confusing the faithful by intermixing truth and lies throughout the Bible – all with the Lord’s blessing. This is the birthplace of institutionalized religion and where gods and kings served one another to the detriment of all others. It is from Babel that Yahowah asked *Abraham to walk away before engaging in the Covenant, making this a prerequisite for being part of God’s eternal family. And it is from Babel that God’s people are asked to leave before He returns – demonstrating that its religious ways are still afflicting them.

This is the world at war, with the Lord of Babel stirring the pot. In that Satan despises people, killing will be his specialty. And he will systematically annihilate humankind in the arrogant and callous style of Alexander and of the Caesars, but with an even more conceited and sadistic Muslim flair.

“Yahowah (Yahowah) will break, shattering and crushing (shabar) the staff and club of religious wickedness and political oppression (*mateh rasha) – these proverbial quotes and edicts used by rulers to control people and nations (*shebet masha*l), (Yasha ʿyah 14:5) who struck and beat, afflicting and killing (nakah) people (am*) arrogantly and insolently, enraged and furious without reason or cause (*ba ebrahim) with ongoing and unceasing (bilthy sarah) slaughtering blows, vicious attacks, and devastating plagues (makah).

As gentiles, they sought to subdue and control, ruling over and governing by imposing their authority and trampling down freewill to dominate the nations (radah gowym), grievously (aph*) and systematically depriving people of their rights while persecuting them (murdap) without relief or restraint (bely chasak).” (Yasha Yah / Isaiah 14:6)

Once ignited by Trump, and for no reason other than he’s a psychotic narcissist and exceedingly mean spirited, there will be no end to the slaughter. Life will be cheap. There will be no restraint. Well, that is until Yahowah intervenes on Taruw^{ah} and stops the carnage by obliterating the staff of religious wickedness and club of political oppression.

Holding people accountable for the mortal harm they have inflicted upon others is the only way to be moral, just, and compassionate. Loving parents protect their families. Any other response would be unconscionable.

As a result of doing the right thing...

“The entire (kol) Earth (erets*) will be a home at rest spiritually (nuwach), at peace and reconciled (shaqat), restored, liberated, and bursting forth (patsach) in song, shouting for joy (rinah).” (Yasha Yah / Isaiah 14:7)

This is Sukah! For the first time since Yahowah and Adam* camped out in the Garden together six thousand years ago, God will call Earth home. We will explore the planet together, learn from one another, and sing uplifting songs. The Earth is now at rest, enjoying a thousand-year Shabat.

And for our camping experience with our Father in Eden to be enjoyable, Satan and his Advocate will be sent off to

She*owl...

“*She*owl* | Hell and *Sha*owl* | Paul (*She*owl*), as the least desirable and most depressing alternative (min tachath), are anxious in anticipation, indeed, excited (rogez) to summon and meet you, announcing your arrival (*la atah la qara bow* atah).

They have been alerted and are aroused to crush (uwr la atah) all of the departed souls (*kol repha*ym*) of those who have been leaders and rulers (atuwd*) of the Earth (erets*).

The leaders of every nation and institution, the most powerful and important individuals influencing every society religiously, militarily, and politically (kol melek) of the gentiles and nations (gowym) have established (quwm) their thrones and positions of power (min kise hem*).”
(*Yasha*yah* / Isaiah 14:9)

The souls of world leaders, whether they claimed religious, political, or military authority, are either currently incarcerated in She*owl or headed in that direction. And that makes this among the most polarizing statements presented by God. The most esteemed will be the first to bow in judgment and be incarcerated. This not only affirms that *Sha*owl* | Paul lied when he wrote that all governments were established by God and should be obeyed in his overture to the Romans, it unravels the entire fabric of human history.

There is no getting around this decree; no reprieve for Babylon, Persia, Greece, Rome, or the Church. Their leaders are all going to *She*owl* | Hell. All means “all,” that is all, “all” means.

With a parade of tyrants headed to She*owl to meet Sha*owl, the man who was paramount in establishing the union between religion and government, and who lied regarding God’s position on these things, there will be justice. And should you question the fairness of this conclusion, read what Paul wrote in the 13th chapter of Romans.

Those who tried to upend the natural order of things, venerating creation over the Creator, will not find their diminished status and new accommodations to their liking. But given their preference for altering reality, perhaps they will redecorate Hell. After all, the most acclaimed real estate developer will be available to expand the presidential wing.

The inmates were overheard chatting with one another regarding this turn of events...

“All of them (kol hem) will respond (anah*) and say to you (*wa *amar *el atah), ‘Have you also become weak and afflicted, riddled with anxiety (*gam atah chalah), similar to us (*ka *anachnuw *el anachnuw), becoming like the proverb (mashal)?’” (*Yasha*yah* 14:10)

Welcome to Hell... But what makes this especially unnerving is that the inmates are questioning Satan in a place appropriately named *She*owl* | Question Him.

“Your arrogance, unwarranted status, and desire to rise above others, your lack of morality, propensity to blow smoke, and agitating self-glorification (*ga*own atah – your pride, conceit, and immoral narcissism) have brought you down (yarad) to *She*owl* and to *Sha*owl* (*She*owl / Sha*owl*).

And at the boisterous and disquieting sound (wa ha hemyah) of your disgraceful and foolish implements (*nebel atah), maggots (rimah) will be spread out as a bed (*yatsa) and (wa) a crimson grub (*towle*ah*) shall become your covers (*makaseh atah).” (*Yasha*yah* / Isaiah 14:11)

Satan has a type. His spirit is most comfortable and effective in like-minded tyrants. In this regard, Paul, Muhammad, and Trump are exceedingly arrogant. And yet, as will be the case with Satan, the unwarranted status of these self-aggrandizing and immoral men will be their undoing. What goes up, will come down.

The reason that *She*owl* exists is that ruwach are immortal. Since they never die, they must be eternally separated.

Therefore, She*owl is akin to a black hole, a lightless realm that exists only in the dimension of time.

While this is an apt depiction of religious and political leaders, worms and maggots are metaphors for decomposition and, therefore, Yahowah's way of showing His disregard and disrespect. The elegantly attired in life will look less attractive in the hereafter.

There is an interesting scarlet creature placed among the maggots, and that is because the *towle*ah* | crimson grub is used symbolically to associate Dowd's Pesach sacrifice with Yada's fulfillment of Taruw*ah. In particular, as the *Adamah Parah, Yada is the Bloody Red Bull who is Productive in this way. Similarly, as the Man from Edom, he is depicted dressed in red. It is the color of blood and it is symbolic of life and death.

We have arrived at the place we had anticipated in our quest to better understand Satan and the scoundrel he will possess. Out of Heaven, through Babylon, and now among Gentiles, we are introduced to Hylel ben Shachar – more commonly known as Satan. He has been cast out of the spiritual realm for having estranged souls and spirits from God by lording over them such that they bow down in submission to him.

In that every nuance we can glean from this depiction is vital to our understanding, we will capitalize on the benefits of amplification henceforth...

“Oh how (ek* – this is the degree and explains how) you have fallen and have been cast down (naphal – you have gone from a higher position to a lower one as a result of your contempt, allotted to the earth below, falling prostrate in worship for having failed, banished from the association as part of a miscarriage (qal perfect)) from (min) the spiritual realm of Heaven (ha shamaym) Hylel ben Shachar | Flashy, Shining, and Boastful Spawn of the Eastern Dawn (Hylel ben Shachar – Brightly Shining Son of Artifice, flashy, swarthy, and boastful beginning of a new age where the truth is concealed, an early light-bearing child of the east with overtly zealous desires, conjuring and shimmering son of blackness using trickery and illusions, ostentatious show of light predisposed to mislead and make others appear foolish as a descendant of a black and gloomy place in the east predicated upon the rising sun, crescent moon, and morning star, more commonly known as Lucifer; from Halal – to shine, to be flashy, to boast, and to arrogantly seek praise, slanderous, insane, foolish, and furious, ben – son, child, and offspring, and Shachar – early on to seek to cloud over and obscure in darkness during the dawn of a new day, relying on artifice and illusions).

You have been disassociated and cut off, cut down and cast away (*gada – for having estranged many, you have been felled and have fallen, severed for what has been done, and will be silenced while subjected to enormous pressures, sent down (nifal perfect – having severed others from God over a finite period, Satan will suffer the effect of being cast down for a while then be entirely disassociated)) to the Earth (*la ha erets) for having weakened and then overwhelmed, conquering through religious and political prostrations, thereby lording (chalash – for having overcome, controlling by depriving many of the capacity to avoid dying, disabling the weakened who bow down) over (al* – among, before, and in association with) people, and specifically Gentiles, their nations and institutions (gowym – foreign and estranged ethnic, religious, and geopolitical groups apart from Yisra*el, pagan peoples acting as if they were animals, the walking dead; from gawah – arrogantly exalting humans, especially their flesh and bones, while pridefully lifting up those who have turned their backs and are walking away, the corpse and carcass of the dead).” (*Yasha yah / Isaiah 14:12)

Yahowah is revealing the ek* | circumstances behind why ha Satan | the Adversary was cast out of Heaven and down to Earth. In the initial verb, we discover that the Devil was not only naphal | cast out and banished, he was naphal | diminished and put into an inferior position. His association with God was over.

There are two additional insights worth considering regarding naphal. First, those God drowned in the flood were Naphylm, the plural of naphal. This suggests that Satan played a role in corrupting them, thereby causing their demise. And second, there are overt religious connotations with naphal because it speaks of believers bowing down and prostrating themselves. Religion has always been Satan's most formidable ploy.

Mankind's exposure, therefore, to the Arrogant Son of Darkness would intensify as a result of Yahowah dispatching him to Earth. This combined with the Yisra*elites telling God to shut up and go away, left the planet particularly vulnerable.

Hylel, based as it is on Halal, is to be flashy and boastful, things God is not. It is to foolishly seek praise – something God disdains. In addition, halal is to be slanderous, insane, and foolish – unbecoming traits that make him the Adversary.

The reason Yahowah never asks us to praise or worship Him is because doing so would degrade God while foreclosing on the familial relationship He desires. A superior being who would create an inferior lifeform to worship him, would make him as narcissistic and pathetic as Satan. Bowing down to loved ones destroys reciprocity and is caustic to volition, both of which are needed to develop a mutually enjoyable and beneficial relationships.

The desire to be worshiped, as reflected within Hylel's name, is one of many things which differentiate Satan from Yahowah. This is the disparity between religion and relationship. It is also manifest in the distinction between lord and father.

Ben Shachar | the Spawn of a Dark Dawn is an unappealing moniker, which is why Satan's preference is to be known as the Lord. In this name, we find the Devil using artifice and delusions to conjure a false impression. During this shachar | dawning of a new age, he has sought to conceal his jealous desires to be perceived as heavenly when his ultimate destination is the darkness of a black hole. Shachar | has arisen out of the east, ascending from Babylon to plague the civilized world. All the while, he has been worshiped under the guise of the rising sun, a crescent moon, and a morning star – symbols which permeate the Babylonian, Persian, Greek, and Roman religions, Astrology, Christianity, Islam, and Judaism.

Hylel ben Shachar is a Hellish name. And by analyzing it, we know why the Devil prefers to be called the Lord, God, HaShem, Jesus Christ, and Allah. As ha Satan | the Adversary, he isn't going to fool anyone into worshiping him as God, which is why he goes to great lengths to disparage the Satanic title he despises.

In the nifal perfect, *gada reveals that, as a result of having severed others from God over a finite period of time, Satan will be cast down and then be disassociated in the place of eternal estrangement. So Yahowah has differentiated habitats. God lives in Shamaym | the Spiritual Realm of Heaven. Hylel ben Shachar's current abode is erets* | the Earth – although, as we have seen, there is a timeshare arranged for him in She*owl.

According to Yahowah, Satan is guilty of having chalash al gowym* | weakened and then overwhelmed gentiles, conquering them through religious and political prostrations, thereby lording over the nations. To chalash is to control others, depriving them of the capacity to live. The chalash are disabled and debilitated as a result of bowing down in submission. This is akin to Donald Trump climbing to power by demeaning and denouncing friends and foes. No one is immune.

The Devil's playground has been mostly among the gowym | those foreign to Yisra*el and estranged ethnically, religiously, and geopolitically from Yahuwdym. As pagan people, they have acted as if they were animals, many as zombies, as the walking dead. This is as Yahowah forewarned when He asked His people to avoid emulating them.

Recognizing that gowy is from gawah, we discover that God sees Gentiles as tending to behave arrogantly. Deprived of a functioning neshamah | conscience, they are often the sum of their flesh and bones. In gawah we also find them pridefully lifting up those who have turned their backs on and are walking away from God. Other synonyms include corpse and carcass, which bode poorly when set against the desire to live forever.

While this is particularly bad news for Gentiles, recognizing that Satan is hanging out in their midst, integrated into their governments and institutions, it is about to get far worse. The Adversary isn't lurking in the shadows, maneuvering behind the scenes, or hanging out waiting for the next séance. Come to find out, the Devil has positioned himself as their god.

“Because (wa – and) you (atah*), yourself, said (amar* – you claimed and declared, expressed in words and intended (qal perfect)) in your judgment and based upon your inclinations (*ba lebab atah – from your perspective and reflecting your ambitions, in your thinking you have taken to heart and are resolved and determined based upon your desires; from labab – to ravish, overwhelm, and overpower, even the intelligence to encourage an emotional response), ‘I will ascend, rise up, and be continuously exalted (alah* – I will rise above and be lifted up, I will be presented as superior and worshiped, even seen as a deity (qal imperfect)) in the spiritual realm of heaven (ha shamaym – among the stars in the sky and the abode of God), over and above (min ma^{al} – ascending upward beyond, greater than, as the highest part of, and because of) the stars, the most luminous in the highest places, and the best and brightest (la kowkab – the heavenly powers and great luminaries which are worshiped) of God (el* – of the Almighty).

I will lift up and exalt, increasing (ruwm – I will place on high, elevating and magnifying in defiance (hifil imperfect)) my throne (kise^{} any – my seat of power and honor, my place to influence and rule by expressing my authority; from kasah – to conceal one's true identity, hiding the information needed to understand, covering over and clothing oneself in a way which is misleading).

I will establish and inhabit a dwelling place (wa yashab

– I will approach and settle upon, abiding and remaining, creating a place for people to meet (qal imperfect)) on the Mount of the Eternal Witness to the Restoring Appointments (ba har mow^{ed} – in conjunction with the mountains and ridgeline of the designated and authorized times to meet for the celebratory feasts and continuing testimony, to gather together and observe the agreement; from mow – this pertains to and ^{ed} – the eternal and restoring witness, everlasting testimony, and enduring evidence, and ya^{ad} – to appoint and designate, to set and fix, to gather for a betrothal ceremony) in association with (ba) the distant boundaries, from the depths below to the summit above (yarekah – the remote border and extent of the space, the furthest extremities; from yarek – base of generative and procreative power) to be concealed among that which is treasured in the north (tsaphown – the left-hand side when facing east; from tsaphan – to lurk and hide one’s actual value from discovery).” (Yasha^{yah} / Isaiah 14:13)

Those who seek acclaim don’t deserve it and would be better off without having drawn undue attention to themselves. Arrogance is the product of insecurity, and of hiding it by pretending otherwise. Those who are comfortable in their own skin, and confident in what they know and they are doing, shun this burden to the extent possible. Even when it is God-given, acclaim puts a target on the recipient, making them susceptible to attack.

I know this all too well because I’ve lived my life in and out of the spotlight. And if it were not from Yahowah referring to the role He has asked me to play as the Lesser Luminary reflecting His Son’s brilliance, as the Nakar | Observant Foreigner, even the Choter | Stem from the Main Branch, I would have preferred to be an anonymous Yada. Had that been the case, however, I would not have perceived this pronouncement as Satan’s desire to bring Dowd and I down, knowing that by doing so, nothing would stand in the way of him achieving his agenda.

The throne Satan covets is King Dowd's, which explains why in Christianity, the demon-possessed Paul robs him of it. Without Dowd, there is no means to eternal life, perfection, or adoption into the Covenant. Without it, Kipurym is unfulfilled and the planet is destroyed. So, the battle lines are drawn.

And up to this point, Satan has won almost every battle. His biggest score occurred when he had Muslims build shrines to him on Yahowah's Temple Mount. And as we discovered in Ezekiel, Satan's ultimate agenda is to collaborate with the Copper Con to build the ultimate monstrosity to his ego on the Mount of the Mow^ed. The Adversary has no boundaries.

As a result of his starring role in Christianity and Islam and his influence over Marxism, Satan has achieved what he sought. He is the god of almost everyone.

“I will ascend and be continuously exalted, presented as superior to and be worshiped (alah* – I will rise above and be lifted up (qal imperfect)) above (al* – over) the heights (bamah – elevated places of worship, the lofty shrines and cultic platforms of pagan religious devotion) of the clouds (ab* – of obscuring phenomenon which conceals heavenly objects from view and of that which projects beyond that which has been established).

I will on my own initiative make myself appear as if I were (damah – I will do whatever is necessary to be considered as, correspond to, and be the equivalent of, I will consistently resemble and be comparable to, such that on an ongoing basis I will be seen in the likeness of (hitpa^el imperfect – without support, assistance, or interference, on my own initiative and based solely on my ability and actions, I intend to tell a story such that I continually imply that I am)) the Most High (*la elyown – I am all things pertaining to the uppermost, the very approach of the one true God, the supreme being, greater and higher than the Almighty, rising above even God; from el* – God, alah* – to rise above, own* – all things pertaining to, and any* – I am).” (Yasha^yah / Salvation is from Yahowah / Isaiah

The use of •Elyown | Hand of Almighty God is telling because Yahowah used the title to describe His Son, King Dowd, upon his return in the 89th Mizmowr. And so, in this prophecy, we see Satan creating Christianity going beyond robbing the Son of God and Messiah, so as to replace him. He's jealous, and wants the notoriety and acclaim of being Yahowah's Beloved and Anointed.

Christianity is, therefore, the result of Satan's jealousy. The Devil is envious of Dowd. And he hates me because my job is to expose the Jesus deception while pointing to Dowd. So to add insult to injury, the Christian symbol is a Dead God on a Stick, mocking Dowd.

We also see aspects of the counterfeit of Islam through •Elyown because Allah seeks to be "Akbar – Greater" than our Messiah and King. With religion, it is all about counterfeiting and appearances. Further, the symbol of Islam is a sliver of a moon, thereby demeaning Dowd's Herald ~ the Lesser Luminary who is depicted as the moon reflecting the sun's lights during the darkest hours. Moreover, Taruw[•]ah, the Day of the Herald, is the only Miqra[•] that occurs upon the initial sighting of renewing light on the surface of the moon.

This candid declaration is among the most revealing and relevant statements ever made. It explains how Satan operates and where we should expect to find him – which is impersonating God – and thus the object of religious devotion.

What we have just read is the opposite of what mankind has been led to believe. Satan seeks to be worshiped as if he were God – which is likely why the Jesus caricature was given the divine attributes of Dionysus. And no matter the object of his covetousness, the Devil does not want to be perceived as the Adversary.

This being correct, the god of religion is Satan. He is the Lord, Jesus Christ, Allah, and HaShem. Churches, mosques, and synagogues have been erected in his honor and for his glorification. And in them, he gets to rail against the Satanic moniker he despises, further confusing his target audience.

And as Dowd's Adversary, Satan is the religious alternative to Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym. He must oppose Shabuw^oah, Taruw^oah, and Kipurym. Up until the end, he will not care what flavor of faith a dupe believes, what name they ascribe to him, or what holidays they substitute, so long as they are not these.

This battle comes to the fore on the Ides of March 2030 when the mask is removed and the Mow^oedym are perverted beyond recognition and banned. That is when Donald Dumpster as the corporeal manifestation of ha Satan will claim the Temple Mount to proclaim that he is God.

For Satan to be seen as God, everything which would otherwise lead the observant individual to Yahowah must be obfuscated beneath a growing pile of deceptions. This means Satan prevails when Jesus replaces Dowd and Allah's shrines are place upon the Temple Mount.

As for that which is treasured to the north of Jerusalem, we find Europe and America as well as the Catholic Church and its Vatican – the most pervasive Beasts. We also find Damascus, which was the seat of power during the Golden Years of Islam. Then, there is the Ukraine and the emergence of Hasidic Judaism. And let us not forget, Berlin was the home of the Third Reich, the birthplace of the Final Solution, and the land of the Holocaust. And it is out of these ashes that the Copper Con will initiate the Fourth Reich.

The second to last line is subtle but interesting. Yahowah had to obscure His brilliance in a cloud during the *Yatsa | Exodus to keep from incinerating His people. But Satan isn't so bright and will dispense with the clouds. He will be lifted up as a meteor set within the walls of the Ka'aba or as a god on a stick, obscured only by religious imagery.

We know that Satan achieved his ambition because Yahowah has already passed judgment. He had a long run. Some 6,000 years after deceiving Chawah into believing that she could be like God if she would defy God, Satan will make his final debut as if he were God during the Time of Troubles. He will be eliciting mankind's devotion between years 5993 and 6000 Yah. But alas, for the Evil One, upon Yahowah's return, there will be no bit players. The role of false god will have been written out of the script.

“Surely (ak* – indeed, as a matter of emphasis, immediately after the conclusion of an upcoming and subsequent period of time) to (el* – toward, in the direction of, and into) She*owl* | Hell (*She*owl* – place of exile, abandonment, punishment, and questioning, the abode of no return, the void; from *sha*al* – to question and to be questioned, to beg and to be given what has been requested and is required, indistinguishable from *Sha*owl*, the failed king Saul and false prophet Paul), you are being forced down (yarad – you are brought, compelled and having no say in the matter, descending not of your own accord (hofal imperfect – Hylel ben Shachar is being acted upon, is devoid of freewill, and is compelled by force to descend just as the object, *She*owl*, is obligated to receive him forevermore)) to (el* – unto and toward) the remote depths (yarekah – the distant border of space and time, to the far extremity and the innermost recesses) of the prison (bowr – of the dungeon of depression, the hole; from buwr – to make clear, to declare, explain, and to be given proof).” (*Yasha*Yah* / Freedom is from Yahowah / Isaiah 14:15)

No one will have ever fallen so far. From the heights of Heaven to the innermost recesses of Hell, he became the most popular, praised, and worshiped being in history. No one has amassed more devotees or followers. No one can boast his level of carnage ~ as hundreds of millions becomes billions. Countless religious edifices have been erected in his honor. Thousands of armies have marched to his cadence. And hundreds of governments have sworn an oath of allegiance to him. His influence is unsurpassed. His scriptures have sculpted our world. And in the end, people have chosen him over Yahowah by a million to one.

She*owl is a prison designed to incarcerate spiritual beings comprised of light. It is remote and depressing, a dark dungeon from which there will be no escape. The closest analog to She*owl is a Black Hole, a place where light is trapped forever and never escapes.

Satan will be unmasked, and his luminosity will be dimmed, then extinguished. The spirit who sought to be God will be unmasked as the Adversary. She*owl will be his eternal home...

“Those who look at you (*ra*ah *atah *el atah – those who see you and those who are shown who you are) will stare (shagah – will look intently, observing closely so as to become better informed (hifil imperfect)) in your direction (el atah – at you), trying to understand (byn – seeking to make the connections needed to comprehend, apprehending the information to consider (hitpoel imperfect)) how this individual (*zeh ha ysh) caused the Earth to tremble, astonished, agitated, and angry (*ragaz ha erets – shook up, provoked, and anguished the material realm, creating instability and turmoil, invoking fear (hifil participle)), by invoking fear within (*ra*ash* – by creating discord and rattling, creating commotion and chaos, thereby ruining and destroying) empires and governments (mamlakah – kingdoms and geopolitical realms, world leaders, those who claim the authority to rule). (*Yasha yah 14:16)

How (ha – why) was the world (tebel – was the planet, the expanse of the Earth, the habitats of humankind) caused to be (ha sym – set to be and made (qal perfect participle)) a lifeless place without the word (midbar – a barren wasteland and uninhabited wilderness where the declaration and promises are not considered; a compound of mah – to seek answers by asking who, what, where, why, when, and how questions about dabar – the word)?

Its cities (iyir huw – its inhabitants, villages, and towns, its shrines and temples, its anguished and anxious, and even its male asses) he left in ruins (haras – he caused the downfall and demolished (qal perfect)). His captives (asyr huw – those bound to him, his prisoners, those who are tied and obligated to him and who have sworn an oath to him; from asar* – to be imprisoned and bound as a result of one’s vows, allegiances, and obligations) he never released to go (lo pathach* – he did not free, nor even respond by providing an opening to return (qal perfect)) home (beyth – the family).” (Yasha Yah / Isaiah 14:17)

Equipped with God’s testimony, the identity of the man Satan’s spirit has possessed is now obvious to us. He is the most chaotic of confabulators, the most duplicitous of deceivers, and the most destructive and damning of politicians. This disingenuous egomaniacal con is akin to the reincarnation of Paul and Muhammad. Satan has a type.

Love him or hate him, Donald J. Trump has taken the world by storm. But this tempest of tantrums is bringing the planet to its knees – literally – as the Earth is poised to become desolate. Recently, on July 16th and 17th, 2025, Trump transferred an arsenal of B61-12 thermonuclear bombs from Kirkland Air Force Base in New Mexico to RAF Lakenheath in Suffolk, UK aboard C-17 Globemaster transports which were tracked worldwide. These weapons, which now comprise the backbone of the US thermonuclear stockpile, can be deployed by the F-35 stealth fighters, squadrons which are based at RAF Lakenheath.

Then, in response to a tweet, the maniacal president directed two Ohio-class nuclear submarines to approach the Russian coastline, all while giving Russia ultimatums in a war the US is losing. Between these purveyors of death, there are 48 3-stage Trident ballistic missiles, each with 12 independently targetable warheads, collectively projecting 2,000 times the destructive blast of what the US dropped on Hiroshima.

Recognizing that the US could not be trusted, Russia has developed and deployed the “Dead Hand” which assures the complete destruction of the United States should it launch a nuclear strike against Russia, targeting its leadership and command and control centers. But men like Trump, without empathy, constraint, or judgment, who believe they can threaten everyone into compliance, won't be fazed by the loss of a billion lives in the exchange, so long as he escapes the onslaught he inspired. In fact, this may be the reason Trump leaves Washington D.C. for Jerusalem, as the US capitol will be in ruins.

By possessing the Copper Confabulator known as the Towrahless One, Hylel / Halal ben Shachar will become the kind of god the religious have become accustomed to believing, worshipping, and fearing. In human form, Satan will be like Ba'al, Asherah, and Tammuz, Zeus, Athena, and Dionysus, Jupiter, Venus, and Bacchus, especially like Jesus Christ. Moreover, the Christian Jesus and the Islamic Allah are indistinguishable from their apostle and messenger, the alter ego of Paul and Muhammad. Mix in a little Nero, Caligula, and Hadrian, some Akiba, Rashbi, and Maimonides, Hitler, Stalin, and Mao, add a demonic dash of the Donald, and you will have your Towrahless One.

By contrast, God is only interested in His people and in those who are harassing them. Satan, however, is presented destroying the tebel | world – turning the planet into a lifeless realm where nothing survives his caustic influence. He will sway governments around the globe, invoking fear across geopolitical boundaries.

While Babylon, Persia, Greece, and Rome subjugated great swaths of real estate, it wasn't until the Beast metastasized from Imperial Rome to Roman Catholicism that the entire planet was plagued by its totalitarianism, anti-Semitism, and persecution. So, based upon what was revealed here in Yasha'yah, and also in Danyel, Yahowah is providing more information about the same individual and timing. Donald Trump, while apparently human, will be demon-possessed beyond what the world witnessed in Paul or Muhammad, Stalin or Hitler. Satan will wear the Confabulator like a skin.

Moreover, while this will be a worldwide phenomenon, this Beast of a Man will set his sights on Israel, Judea, Jerusalem, the Temple Mount, Jews, and their God, Yahowah, His Towrah, Miqra^eey, and Beryth. And while his knowledge will be anemic, his influence will be catastrophic. If not countered by the Witnesses, and then constrained by God, the planet would become lifeless – a barren and uninhabited wilderness.

And as a result of this prophetic profession, we can be assured that Donald Trump will instigate World War III, and it will include nuclear holocaust. We are getting closer every day with the way Trump continues threatening Russia, China, India, and Iran. What was once prophetic, is now inevitable.

Even though he will go down in flames and be exposed as the Great Betrayer, there will be no release for the spirits and souls who will have foolishly pledged their allegiance to him. There will be no additional chances, no begging for forgiveness, and no changing sides at the eleventh hour. This close to the end, everyone will be seen as friend or foe, with Yahowah or against Him.

With everything in ruins, there will be no going home for those who have chosen poorly. And that is why we are working diligently now to encourage Yahuwdym to answer Yahowah's final offer to return before it is too late.

“Each of (kol – all of) the political leaders (melek – the heads of state, rulers of governments, and military authority figures) of the gentiles and their nations (gowym – of the ethnicities distinct and estranged from Yisra^eel, the geopolitical associations of people who act on their animal and religious instincts), all of them (kol hem), have been laid to rest (shakab – are horizontal, laying down), each individual (ʿysh) in splendor and majesty (ba kabowd – attributed status and surrounded by their possessions) in his own household temple and tomb (ba beyth huw^e – within his own family lineage).”
(Yasha ʿyah / Isaiah 14:18)

This says “all,” and all is all “all” means. Turns out, God isn't a fan of politics.

Nations build elaborate tombs, with some like America erecting shrines, to their fallen leaders. Mitsraym | Egypt set the standard for this rite of passage. But no matter the size of the memorial, even if as massive as a great pyramid, the former Head of State is dead. And that is the point.

Surely, the Donald covets seeing his name on tall buildings, but through it all, he is destined to be buried beneath the last of them as he and his name are bulldozed from memory.

Sadly, the most crazed today when it comes to venerating their deceased are none other than the masters of religious malfeasance – rabbis. They orchestrate great pilgrimages each year to honor those who deceived them – even if it requires risking their constituents' lives by sending them off to a war zone. Stupid is as stupid does. They even wear black outfits to observe the anniversary of their funerals.

Speaking to the god of religion, Hylel / Halal ben Shachar and to his protégé, the Copper Con, while moving past the dearly departed who leagued with him in the Big 10 Conference, and are now dead and buried, Yahowah says...

“And you (*wa atah), yourself, will be forcibly cast out (shalak – you will be thrown out in compulsory fashion, and with no say in the matter hurled away (hofal perfect – the rejection will be intense and obligatory at this moment)) from (min) your burial site, your sepulcher and tomb, even from dying (*qeber atah – your grave, burial, and death) like (ka – similar to and in the manner of) a loathed, abhorred, and repulsive, completely rejected (*ta*ab* – a hated and despised, vile and nauseating, abominable and desecrated) offshoot to be guarded against, a dangerous scion and branch (netser – secondary or tertiary shoot, stick, twig, or graft implement), clothed in and wearing (labuwsh – adorned and covered with) the slain and slaughtered (harag – those intentionally murdered and viciously killed), those pierced (*ta*an* – those struck and thrust through) by war, cut and severed by the sword (chereb – severed by that inscribed in the place the Towrah was revealed), descending (yarad – bowing down prostrate while going down) to (el* – toward) the depressed prison (bowr – the hole, dungeon, shaft, and pit [ebenym* / stones isn't translated here is because it is not found in 1QIsa]) akin to (ka – like) a corpse (peger – a carcass, a dead corporeal body or lifeless idol) which is rejected (buws – kicked out and forbidden).” (Yasha ʿyah / Isaiah 14:19)

Let's be clear since God was. The Bronze Betrayer isn't coming back from the dead. Instead, his soul will not be allowed to die. Trump, as the 'Antichrist,' will be rejected by the Earth and spewed out of his grave to endure recompense for all of those who have died under his command. He will be abhorred as repulsive, as he is seen as nauseating and vile. Satan's stupid scion will be adorned in the residue of those he has slaughtered, something beyond tormenting for a notorious germaphobe. The Copper Confabulator is being held accountable for the last world war. Only then will this sorry soul and the sadistic spirit possessing him be cast into the depressed prison known as She*owl – eternally rejected and forbidden.

With this statement, Yahowah is reinforcing the fact that He is not going to forgive and forget. The Adversary and his religious, political, and military accomplices are seen as so vile, even the Earth will reject them, spewing their bodies out of the ground. They will not be granted a reprieve in death but will, instead, be sent off to an eternity in She*owl.

As we consider Yah's next pronouncement regarding Satan's fate, and that of the multitudes he beguiled, God is revealing that Hylel / Halal ben Shachar and his Stooge will be treated differently in the end. As I have long suspected, there are some who have done so much damage, they deserve special consideration. And so, those Satan has possessed in pursuit of religious and political apartheid and genocide, especially against His people, will be on a Least Wanted List.

There is yet another warning in this concluding statement, and it is particularly appropriate. Just as Yasha^oyah will warn in the 18th chapter, the Great Betrayer of Yisra^oel is the United States and Trump. So here, Isaiah goes one step further and concludes that the egomaniacal busybody who has projected himself into everyone's business, economically, diplomatically, and militarily, and who will have led the world to war, will end up obliterating his own country. America will cease to exist.

“You will not be like them (lo^{}yachad eth hem – you will not be together with them) in burial (ba qabuwrah – where the dead are interned) because (ky – for the reason that) you have corrupted and destroyed (shachath – you have perverted, sullied, spoiled, and ruined, confounded and devastated, turning it into a slime pit, a putrid swamp of decay, a cesspool for the decomposing) your land (erets atah – your world, region, and realm).

Your compatriots and followers (am atah – your people and nations, your countries and armies), you have intentionally slaughtered and viciously slain (hereg – you have murdered).

The offspring (zera^o – descendants and progenies, children and posterity) of evil (ra^oa – of deliberately misleading and harmful shepherds, of displeasing and noxious individuals, of the injurious and wrong) will never be invited or called out, remaining unwelcome (lo^{} qara^{} – will not be received or acknowledged, encountered or mentioned) for all eternity (*la owlam – forevermore, for an unlimited duration of time).”
(Yasha^oyah / Freedom is from Yahowah / Isaiah 14:20)

Satan has had a long run ~ some 6,000 years of belittling and betraying humankind. He stands convicted and condemned. And by the time this nightmarish scenario ends, billions of souls will have paid the ultimate price. They will have succumbed as a result of not recognizing that they were being played for fools. The god that Christians, Jews, and Muslims believed would save them, condemned them.

Zera^o | seed speaks of many even when reported in the singular form. And in this case, the offspring of what Satan has sown by impersonating God will eternally preclude the religious from entering Heaven. Those beguiled by the Lord will remain persona non grata relative to the Covenant, permanently estranged from Yahowah. And based upon this warning in Yasha'yah | Isaiah, the most widely published and recognized of all prophets, while there are many to blame, those headed to Hell are without excuse.

The myth that God wants to save everyone has been shattered. Moreover, we now know that She'owl | Hell will be a very crowded, popular, and overtly religious experience.

We came to this prophecy to better understand the parallel presentation of ha Satan's egomaniacal host in Dany^{el}. And clearly, Yasha'yah has delivered. We have seen that Satan inspired the religious appeal of Babel / Babylon by abetting the Confusing Intermixing within the Lord's Bible. His religious deceptions would be passed on through Persia, Greece, Rome, and her Church. Halal ben Shachar | the Flashy Spawn of Dawn prevailed from the Garden and will continue to do so right up to the precipice of our return to Eden when he will be sent packing. Humanity, having been preyed upon in its ignorance, will find the cure in the Tree of Knowledge.

A word's-eye view of human civilization, from Babylon to Persia, from Greece to Rome, and from their Churches to the Copper Con's arrival during the Time of Trouble has been foretold. And while there will be many more notes to this sad song, for humanity to fulfill our purpose and reach our potential, there will be a stirring crescendo.

Such is the story of Dany^{el} 9. Yahowah would ask His most beloved and brilliant lyricist to present the circumstances surrounding his quiet arrival and stirring return. It is the most amazing story ever told. And although it was boldly proclaimed by Dowd and faithfully recorded in Daniel 9, the same text has been misappropriated to ineptly portray the rise of the world's most dishonest religion – one that is based entirely on plundering Dowd and Yisra^{el} of what is rightfully theirs through identity theft and counterfeit.

The implications of this prophecy are far-reaching, and they resonate throughout the topics we have pursued in our approach to Yahowah along the path He has provided. But more than this, the testimony found in Dany^{el} 9 destroys Judaism, Christianity, and Islam while identifying the beating heart of the true Messiah.

The notion of a Christ vanishes without Daniel 9 predicting the arrival of Jesus. But he's not mentioned, this isn't about him, and there is no other prophecy which speaks of someone using ha Mashyach | the Messiah title to redeem anyone. Therefore, since the prophecy delivered by Gabry^{el} | God's Most Capable and Courageous Man addresses the prophet conveying it, there is no justification for the antisemitic religion known as Christianity, for Christians, a Christ, or the Roman Catholic Church. There can be no Jesus, making the New Testament a contrived fraud – or from the Jewish perspective – a nightmare.

That is just the beginning because without Jesus Christ and Christianity, there is no Rabbi Akiba or Rabbinic Judaism to counter the demonization of Jews emanating from the emerging conspiracy. And when Gabry*el is properly identified, Islam is without its Quran which Muhammad attributed to him.

With so much at stake, the souls of God's people and the renunciation of the religions bent on replacing them, all hanging in the balance, we are going to translate and then contemplate this misunderstood prophecy which has been misconstrued to create the world's most damning religions.

There is no denying that up to this point, the Book of Daniel has been a troubling tome at times – particularly when the troubled stenographer speaks on his own account. The flashes of brilliance have come from Gabry*el, Myka*el, and *Elyah, with them providing some of the most detailed prophetic portrayal in what would otherwise be a dark and twisted tale. Apart from the 7th, 8th, 9th, and 12th chapters, the book's author suffers from the Babylonian Effect, in which babel | truth and lies are intermixed and commingled to confound and confuse.

And to some degree, it continues. For example, the 9th chapter opens with several errors in fact. A dunderhead on his own recognizance, Daniel claims to have written it in “the first year of Darius, the son of Xerxes, a descendant of Maday who ruled over the Chaldeans.” Unfortunately for *Dany*el's* credibility, Darius I was not king of Babylon but, instead, the fourth king of Persia. He did not kill Belshazzar, the last king of Babylon, to usurp his throne as Daniel had alleged in the 6th chapter. He was the son of Hystaspes, the satrap of Bactria, and not a Mede. It was Cyrus, the first king of Persia, who was from Maday. Xerxes was Darius' son not his father. Further, these undeniable errors in fact are not an anomaly because they permeate the book and are found in every chapter.

Since Daniel made four errors of fact in the opening stanza of his first sentence of the 9th chapter, we must disavow Daniel as a prophet. Fortunately, he was visited by prophets with proven credentials, and we do not have to reject him as a scribe to all that he was shown and told.

What is surprising to many, Daniel is the only book in the Tanakh in which the person whose name appears on the cover isn't the one delivering the prophecies contained within it. In his case, he was visited by three men, the first of whom was Gabry^{el} | the Competent, Courageous, and Combative Man of God – better known as Dowd | David. The second person was unnamed, but all indications are that he was EiYah*, commonly known as Elijah. The third individual to have met with Daniel was called Myka^{el} | the One Who is Truthful and Right About God. Like the first two, he didn't much like Beltasha^{tsar} | May the Lord Bel Protect the King, which was how Dany^{el} referred to himself. And yet like Dowd and EiYah*, both of whom were prophets, Myka^{el}, who is Yada, contributed a host of prophetic insights while also serving as the Herald for his King.

The prophecies Gabry^{el} / Dowd, Myka^{el} / Yada, and EiYah* / Elijah revealed have been proven correct, and they are, therefore, worthy of our consideration, especially as the One Who is Truthful and Right About God is explaining them to you now. And fortunately, the second half of Daniel 9, which is where the aforementioned prophecy regarding the arrival of ha Mashyach appears, was conveyed by Dowd – the prophet, king, Messiah, and Son of God ~ who was speaking of himself.

Recognizing that Yahuwdym were in Babylon because they had stopped listening to Yahowah, God would, nonetheless, come up with a way to speak to them. He did so by dispatching the souls of the three men who would shape the future, collectively orchestrating a concerto of fabulous prophecies. Among the most melodious of them is found in the lyrics we are about to review. Through these refrains, Dowd explains how his fulfillment of the Spring Miqra^{ey} in year 4000 Yah would resolve the guilt of his people and reconcile their relationship with Yahowah.

Unfortunately, Yahuwdym would remain blind and deaf, woefully unaware of what Father and Son have done for them. We will not make that same mistake. If nothing else, my job is to point the world's attention to Dowd ~ the one at the epicenter of what we are about to read.

Up to this point, however, Yisra*el's collective ignorance and belligerence remains unconscionable. Through His prophets, Yahowah announced who, what, why, when, and where, even how, He and His Son would do as they had promised. Quietly and then loudly, unpretentiously and then gloriously, our Heavenly Father would arrange for His Son to return to Yaruwshalaim on Mount Mowryah on behalf of Yahuwdym – not once more, but twice. This message resonates throughout His Towrah, *Naby, wa Mizmowr. One would have to be deliberately ignorant, or just willfully recalcitrant, to miss the majesty of what has been accomplished by King Dowd's fulfillment of Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym in 33 CE. This is one of many reasons God despises the rabbis and Judaism (Christianity, Islam, and Progressives, too, but that is another matter) for concealing and corrupting the most profoundly important truth ever revealed.

The King gave his people the opportunity to calculate the exact day the process of fulfilling Chag Matsah would transpire, revealing that 40 Yowbel after the Covenant was confirmed with *Abraham, he would serve as the Passover Lamb. He even identified himself as the *Ayil.

The means to restore the fractured Covenant relationship was ingenious and compassionate. At Dowd's request, and with Yahowah's consent, God's most Beloved redeemed his people during Chag Matsah in the Yowbel year of 4000 Yah. After his nondescript and bludgeoned body fulfilled the sacrifice as the *Pesach ayil, the Ruwach escorted and protected Dowd's nepesh in *She*owl*, while he was burdened with Yisra*el's guilt, which he deposited there. During Matsah, he would magnanimously endure the penalty of separation which would otherwise have befallen his people for their religious defiance. Then released from *She*owl*, Dowd became as was foretold – the Firstborn of Bikuwrym – demonstrating the power and appeal of the Beryth.

As a result of what Father and Son have done, the Covenant's children became immortal and perfected, redeemed from the corruption of religious and political institutions. We are now prepared to enter our Father's home as His children. Even better, through the fulfillment of these Mow^eed, we are emancipated and enlightened, enriched and empowered during Shabuw^eah – uniquely capable of doing as God intended.

By serving as the Pesach Lamb, the physical body Dowd's soul had occupied was used to open the Door to God's Home, making us immortal. With his soul on its way to She^eowl, the place of separation on Matsah, the pervasive fungus of religion would be expunged, making us appear perfect in God's eyes. Then on Bikuwrym, Dowd's soul and Yah's Spirit returned home to Heaven, providing a tangible demonstration of our potential for transformation from mere mortals to light in God's Covenant family.

Gabry^el, whom we now know is God's Son, our Messiah and King, Dowd | David, told Dany^eel | Daniel when Yahowah would deploy his nepesh | consciousness to fulfill the first three Migra^eey. He also revealed when Father and Son would return to enable the promises associated with the final three Mow^eedym. This prophecy provides us with a comprehensive perspective relative to Yahowah's timing. And that is why it is presented in this portrayal of future history. While mankind is engaged in its worst behavior, God has a plan to do something wonderful to save us from ourselves.

As a captive in the heart of the Beast, in the most corrupt place on earth, in the birthplace of institutionalized religion and its amalgamation into governance, in the very nation Abraham* left so that he could participate in the Covenant, in Babel | Babylon, three of the more interesting characters in Yahowah's story revealed a series of prophecies which unlock the mystery of time. In one, Dowd pinpoints the very date that he, as the Messiah and Son of God, would fulfill Chag Matsah in Yaruwshalaim to deliver the Towrah's promise. He also foretells Yahowah's return to reconcile His relationship with His estranged family.

Unfortunately, we begin with a sour note. As I have mentioned, Darius I was the fourth king of Persia seventeen years after Belshazzar's death. He was the son of Hystaspes, the satrap of Bactria, as he became the spear bearer of Cyrus' son Cambyses II. Xerxes was actually Darius I's child, not his father. Further, while Xerxes would rule Persia from 485 to 465 BCE, and had a son named Darius, he was murdered by Artabanus so that Xerxes' third son, Arses, could claim the throne, ruling as Artaxerxes beginning in 464 BCE.

In addition, Cyrus was a descendant of Maday, as was the interloping Magi, Gaumata, but not Darius. But more on this in a moment. Here is the opening which caused us to rethink why this book was written as it was...

“In the first year of (*ba shanah echad la) Darius (Daryawesh – a Babylonian name implying that he was good), the son of (ben) Xerxes (achashwerowsh* – proclaiming that he was a hero among rulers), a descendant of (*min zera – from the seed of) Maday (Maday – a foreign name meaning Middle Land, encouraging us to mah – question whether it was day – sufficient in Hebrew), who (asher*) reigned as king over (*malak al malkuwth) the Chaldeans (Kasdym – those who break the earth; a synonym for Babel | Babylon), (Dany^{el} 9:1) in the first year of his reign (*ba shanah echad la malak huw), I (any), Dany^{el} (Dany^{el} – God Judges and Vindicates), by being perceptive and discriminating, came to understand (byn – through careful observation, separating fact from fiction, came to realize and comprehend by making reasonable connections) in (ba) the written scrolls (ha sepher – the inscribed books) that the number of years (misphar ha shanah – the written accounting of the times of renewal) which will transpire (asher hayah*) in the Word (dabar) of Yahowah (Yahowah) to (el*) the Prophet (*naby) Yirma^{yah} (Yirma^{yah} – Yah Uplifts) for the destruction (la charbah – for the depopulation) of Yaruwshalaim (Yaruwshalaim – the Source of Guidance regarding Reconciliation) to be fulfilled and completed (*la male – to be finished and satisfied) was seventy years (shibiym shanah – was based upon the promise of seven).” (Danyel / My God Judges / Daniel 9:2)

Initially, I wanted to run from this, but we cannot. As I have shared, Darius was never king of Babylon. Darius I (the Great) ruled over Persia eight years and two kings following Cyrus the Great, who was actually the grandson of a Median king. Cyrus ruled from 550 to 530 BCE, conquering Babylon in 539 BCE.

On The Cyrus Cylinder, the king claims to have taken Babylon’s king, Nabonidus, Belshazzar’s father, prisoner. And that means that Belshazzar was still ruling over Babylon as his father’s coregent upon Cyrus’ arrival. Therefore, Cyrus the Great is responsible for ending the reign of Belshazzar.

Cambyses II, Cyrus’ son, would follow in his father’s footsteps and rule from 530 to 522 BCE. While some say it was an accident and others an assassination, Cambyses died en route to Persia to suppress a rebellion attributed to his brother, Bardiya, but actually led by a Median Magi named Gaumata.

It didn’t last. Seven Persian noblemen, including Darius, murdered the Magi. Thereupon, Darius won the ensuing contest by tricking his horse and became king of Persia in 522 BCE.

Further, as noted, Xerxes I was Darius’ son, not his father. He was king from 485 to 465 BCE. He was particularly ruthless in his suppression of revolts in Egypt and Babylon before torching Athens.

Artaxerxes I followed after having his elder brother, another Darius, killed. He ruled from 464 to 424 BCE – facts that were apparent to Yahowah’s prophets and instrumental to what follows pertaining to the decree to rebuild Jerusalem.

Also interesting, when we realize that Darius’ father wasn’t a king, and by referring to Xerxes as ‘Achashweowsh, the Book of Esther is brought into question, and with it, the basis of Purim.

It isn't historically valid, either ~ much less prophetic.

Darius, Xerxes, and Cyrus are infamous. And so, it is obvious that reversing their relationship to one another was deliberate, God's way of telling us that we would have to reverse the order of Dany^oel to understand it. Chapters 7, 8, and most of 9 are predictive of the rise of Judaism and Christianity, exemplified by the religiosity of Daniel throughout chapters 1 through 6.

Now as we enter the 9th chapter, with the exception of the historical reversal, Dany^oel is conveying the rest of this message as I have, as one who studies the prophets. And this realization that Daniel was a witness, and not a prophet, is the key to unraveling the Babylonian Effect – the consequence of confusing by commingling fiction and fact.

As a participant in the events occurring within the environment in which he was enmeshed, he was stained by the stigma of his captors. He was babel | confused and confounded most of the time. However, as is the case with his reporting on Jeremiah, when it came to the prophets, Dany^oel became a credible witness. He accurately communicated what they had written. And he was adept at determining what was relevant to his people at this place and time – correctly interpreting the prophet's intent. Based upon what he read and heard, he adroitly positioned his people, showing them the reason God would act while revealing where they fit within His unfolding plan.

Therefore, with Daniel, we do not have to apply the test Moseh provided to determine whether or not he was inspired to speak for Yahowah because Dany^oel was not acting in the role of a naby^{} | prophet. He was a character lost in his own story turned witness who was visited by prophets, notably Dowd, Yada^o, and ^{}EIYah – and their credentials are of the highest order.

Had Daniel discovered what we have learned, he would have appreciated the common denominator which unlocks the mystery of time: – shaba^{*} | the promise of seven. There would be three 40-Yowbel epochs between *Adam's expulsion from *Eden in year 0 Yah (3968 BCE) and our return to the Garden in year 6000 Yah (2033 CE), followed by a 1,000-year celebration of Sukah. The intervening dates in years 2000 and 4000 Yah, 1968 BCE and 33 CE, would be distinguished by the confirmation of the Covenant with *Abraham and Yahowah's commitment to delivering its prescribed benefits.

It is not as if any of this is hidden. The reason Yahuwdym | Jews were confined in Babylon was painstakingly portrayed in the 25th chapter of Yirma'yah | Jeremiah – which was written well in advance of their arrival. And therein, Yahowah plainly states how long they would remain...

“The Word (ha dabar) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), came to be present with (*hayah al) Yirma'yah | Yahowah Uplifts Me | Jeremiah (Yirma'yah) concerning all of the people (al kol am) of Yahuwdah | Beloved of Yah | Judah (Yahuwdah)...during the first year (ha shanah ha re'shown) of Nabuwkadne'tsarsar | Nebo Protects the Crown | Nebuchadnezzar (la Nabuwkadne'tsarsar), king (melek) of Babel | Confounding Integration | Babylon (Babel). (Yirma'yah / Jeremiah 25:1)

Beneficially, to show the way to get the most out of life (asher*), Yirma'yah (Yirma'yah), the prophet (*ha naby), spoke to (dabar) the entire family (al kol am) of Yahuwdah (Yahuwdah) and to all of the inhabitants (*wa el kol yashab) of Yaruwshalaim | Source of Guidance on Reconciliation | Jerusalem (Yaruwshalaim), saying (*la amar), (Yirma'yah 25:2)

‘From the thirteenth year (*min shalowsh esreh shanah) of Yo'shyah | Yahowah Heals (Yo'shyah), son of amown* | Supportive (*ben amown), king of Yahuwdah (melek Yahuwdah), and to this day (*wa ad ha yowm ha zeh), for twenty-three years (*shalowsh wa esrym shanah), the Word (dabar) of Yahowah (Yahowah) has been with me (*hayah la any). I have spoken (wa dabar) to you (el atem) early on, repetitively, and persistently conveying the word (shakam wa dabar), but you have not listened (*wa lo*shama). (Yirma'yah 25:3)

Yahowah (Yahowah) has sent to you (*wa shalach *el atem) all of His associates and coworkers, the prophets (el *atem *eth kol ebed huw ha naby), sending them from the beginning (shakam wa shalach).

And yet, you have not listened (*wa lo*shama) nor have you so much as extended your ear to hear (*wa lo*natah *eth *ozen *atem la shama) (Yirma'yah 25:4) them saying (*la amar), “Of your own initiative, please return now (shuwb na), each individual (iysh) from going the wrong way (min derek huw ha ra) and from your immoral and improper practices (wa min roa atem).

Then you can choose to live and remain (wa yashab) upon this ground (al ha adamah) which, to enjoy the benefits of the relationship (asher*), Yahowah (Yahowah) has given to you (*nathan la atem) and to your fathers (*wa la *aby atem) of old (*la min owlam) as a restoring witness forevermore (*wa *ad owlam). (Yirma'yah 25:5)

Therefore (wa), you should not continually chase after (al halak achar) other gods (elohym acher), serving them (*la abad hem), neither bowing down and worshipping them nor speaking for them (la chawah la hem). Do not habitually provoke and grieve Me (*wa lo*ka*as *eth any) with the product (*ba ma*aseh*) of your hands (*yad atem). Then I will not distress you nor trouble you (*wa lo*ra*a* la atem). (Yirma'yah 25:6)

However, you have not listened to Me (*wa lo*shama* *el any),” declares (*na*um*) Yahowah (Yahowah), “so, therefore (*la ma*an*), you have provoked Me (*ka*as any) with the work of your hands (*ba ma*aseh yad atem), doing so to your own detriment, bringing misery upon yourselves (la ra la atem).””” (Yirma'yah 25:7)

“And so, this entire Land (*wa kol ha *erets ha zo*th*) will become (hayah) depopulated and deserted (la charbah), wasting away (la shamah). And because of what they have become (*wa ha *eleh eth), they will be reduced to servitude (abad*) by Gowy Melek Babel | the Gentile King of Confusion (gowy melek Babel) for seventy years (sheba shanah*).””
(*Yirma*yah* / Yahowah Lifts Me Up / Jeremiah 25:11)

The approach Dany*el took to understanding is actually much easier for us today. We have access to vastly superior tools, from interlinears and lexicons to dictionaries and internet searches. We also benefit from a much broader perspective, now aware of how many of these events played out in our distant past. And since the answer Dany*el sought was clearly articulated, we have a lot less to work out. For him, it was all yet to occur, while for us, only the events of the Last Days remain.

The information at Dany*el’s disposal may have included Dowd’s eyewitness accounts of his fulfillment of the first three Mow*ed, especially as they are presented in Mizmowr 22 and 88, as well as marvelous portrayals of his return – as found in the 2nd and 89th Psalms. He could have used Howsha* and Shamuw*el as steppingstones, connecting the past with the future pursuant to Dowd and Yisra*el, just as we have done. And clearly, he should have been a student of the Towrah, which would have enabled him to connect the dots between the initiation of the Miqra*ey and their fulfillments as chronicled in Yasha*yah as well as in the aforementioned Yirma*yah.

Also, by contemplating the genealogies presented in the Towrah, combined with the history of the Yisra*elite kings, it is possible to ascertain when the exit from *Eden occurred, when *Abraham and Yahowah affirmed the Beryth, the timing of the *Yatsa, and when Dowd unified Yisra*el. From there, it is an easy extrapolation to years 4000 and 6000 Yah.

Using the information presented in this chapter by *Gabry*el* | God’s Most Confident and Capable, Courageous and Combative Man, we can readily determine that the Pesach *Ayil was scheduled to walk into Yaruwshalaim four days before Passover in year 4000 Yah, 33 CE. But why stop there in the process? This also means that 2033 coincides with year 6000 Yah, the time of Yahowah's return with Dowd. So, all one has to do to know the exact moment for these much-anticipated events is to consider the timing of Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym in 33 CE because that defines the resulting timing of Taruw'ah, Kipurym, and Sukah in 2033. It even gets us to one of two dates for the fulfillment of Shabuw'ah – either May 22, 2026 or more likely, June 11, 2027, approximately seven years prior to our Messiah's return.

Looking back in time to year 4000 Yah in 33 CE, Passover was observed beginning at sunset, Thursday, April 3rd on the Julian calendar. Dowd's return will, therefore, be on Sunday at sundown, 6:22 PM in Yaruwshalaim on the 2nd of October. Five days later, we will celebrate the Millennial Shabat which will commence on a Shabat at sunset, Friday, October 7th, 2033.

The Islamic terrorist raid into Israel on October 7th, 2023 set the stage for what will become the Time of Ya'aqob's | Israel's Troubles. Although this was just the start of the birth pangs, so you'll be ready and not surprised, the situation will deteriorate further as we approach Shabuw'ah in 2026 and 2027. Then the worst of it will commence between January 29th and March 15th, 2030 prior to the arrival of the two Witnesses on Pesach | Passover, April 18th in 2030.

Based upon what we have already discerned from Dowd's revelations, as well as current events, the "Peace Accord" which catapults the Devil's Advocate to worldwide fame will be affirmed by the Great Betrayal Demonic Donald over the next two years. Immediately thereafter, Israel's situation will worsen and continue to be horrendous over the next 2,300 days. Then, in the midst of that time, on March 15th, 2030, the Great Abomination will be pronounced with Satan's Stooze seeking to be worshiped as if he were God in Jerusalem.

It appears as if Dany'el wanted to know what issues could be resolved and what battles were worth fighting. To find the answers, he would have to listen to God's prophets in the most Godless place on earth – observing the written Word. It is the same for us today in an equally hostile environment.

“I offered myself (*wa nathan *eth paneh any – I chose to give myself, placing my entire presence and persona (qal imperfect paragodic he cohortative)) to the Almighty, my Lord and Upright One (edon *any ha elohym), to request (la baqash – to search for and to secure, to be responsible in the procurement of information and in the diligence required to properly investigate) either intervention and intercession through communication and contemplation or the desire to be set apart as discriminating (taphilah – either mediation and reasoning developed through the proper assessment, if from palal – to intervene, meditate, and arbitrate, assess, reason, and contemplate, and *ta*ab* – to desire, or if from palah – to be set apart as special, unique, devoted, and uncommon) while longing for a favorable outcome (wa tachanuwn – desiring sympathy and compassion, mercy and kindness, longing to express genuine love; from *ta*ab* – to desire and chanan – forgiveness and empathy, loving and merciful generosity) while abstaining from food in coarse common clothing (ba tsowm wa saq) and ashes (epher* – as being insignificant and worthless).” (*Dany*el* / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 9:3)

The religious, by seizing upon the concluding portion of Dany*el's statement and removing it from its context, will claim that God favored this man because he fasted. But what the statement actually conveys is that Daniel was religious about his diet.

Also noteworthy, taphilah is the Hebrew word most often mistranslated as “prayer” – a concept which isn't found in the Towrah. God never instructs us to pray to Him. And therefore, prayer cannot be among the requirements for participation in the Covenant. Prayer is so irrelevant that there is no mention of it in the two tablets Yahowah carved with His own hand. God does not ask us to pray, and that is profound. Further, in Dabarym 18, Yahowah goes beyond this to attest that those who insist on prayer are an abomination to Him.

That said, as the exemplar of Rabbinic Judaism and Roman Christianity, Dany^eel was likely praying. Even worse, he was addressing God using Satan's title, my Lord. It is as irritating as it is wrong. But it exists and is repeated to drive this point home – one Dowd will make on God's behalf.

What Yahowah wants is for us to observe and then respond, listen and then speak. This also means that Paul's "pray without ceasing" is in complete discord with Yahowah's instructions, as are the minions of Haredim bobbing their heads against the Western Wall. Further, the "sinner's prayer" promoted by evangelicals as the basis of one's salvation isn't endorsed by God. There is no Divine mandate for beginning or ending a meeting or meal with prayer.

In this context, the traditional concept of prayer is awkward. Dany^eel would not have "baqash – sought and requested, searched for or secured" permission to pray. He prayed so often, he was religious about it. This is not to say that we should not talk to God. *Adam did, as did Noach, *Abraham, Moseh, and Dowd, as well as all of the prophets. But each of them listened to God first.

The second most commonly translated word for "prayer" is palal – a term used in this next statement. And while it is found eight times in the Towrah, on each occasion the act was initiated by men without direction or comment from God.

Beyond this, it is actually more likely that taphilah | to be discriminating regarding the benefit of being set apart is a compound of ta^eab | to desire and palah | to be set apart as special and unique, distinct and devoted, distinguished and uncommon. This known, palal | to think before intervening is the opening verb in the next statement...

"So I chose to assess the situation and contemplate the implications because I sought a way to intervene that could be justified (wa palal – I wanted to develop the proper understanding of the agreement through open communication before requesting assistance and asking for help, meditating before deciding or adjudicating, wanting to make a sound argument and a proper declaration, cognizant of the circumstances and contingencies, all prior to intervening (hitpael imperfect paragogic he cohortative – independently, of my own recognizance, wholly disassociated from any religious or political influence, consistently aware of the ongoing implications, I chose as a matter of great importance to appreciate how future events would unfold before making any presumptions)) concerning and approaching (la – on behalf of and to draw near) Yahowah (YaHoWaH – an accurate presentation of the name of elowah* – God as guided by His towrah – instructions regarding His hayah – existence), my God (elohym any).

And I expressed my appreciation, acknowledging my familiarity with Yada, while attributing influential factors associated with knowing (yadah – I was thankful for the opportunity to know; from *yada – to know, recognize, acknowledge, and understand and yad – hand and influence).

I said (*wa amar), ‘I think that it is vital that You respond (ana – in response please provide an answer; from na – please and anah – to reply and answer), my Lord and Upright One (edon any – my Pillar and Support), as the Almighty (*ha el), regarding the immensely relevant, especially intense, and influential man (ha gadawl – of the most significant contributor and effective individual), who is respected (*wa ha yare – who is revered for his status, authority, and dignity) for having closely examined and carefully considered (shamar – for exploring and evaluating, observing and studying (qal participle)) the Covenant (ha beryth – the family-oriented relationship agreement), and who demonstrates loyal love and devotion (wa ha chesed – who shows affection for the relationship, granting favors, being kind, and providing benefits) to those who appreciate and prefer

I have witnessed it so many times that I’m glad to have this message reinforced. Going off half-cocked, ready to change the world with just enough information to be dangerous, is counterproductive. Moreover, even when we have invested the time required to be properly prepared, we have to know which battles are worth fighting and which are not. For example, there is no benefit in debating the religious or engaging with the overtly political. No amount of evidence or reason is going to change their beliefs, so just leave them alone.

We would all be wise to palal | rationally assess the situation and contemplate the implications to determine if intervention can be justified. And all the while, we should yadah | express our appreciation, thankful for the opportunity to know.

It is possible that Dany*el was singing praises to his Lord in this statement. But if so, why? God did not inspire His prophets to tell Him that He is wonderful. It is like saying that the sun is bright. It’s true, but what’s the point? If you want to demonstrate your appreciation, accept the conditions of the Covenant and attend the Miqra*ey.

For example, if you were to write that you think I’m praiseworthy for having provided these books, I’m going to immediately deflect the accolade because I’m uncomfortable with it. But if you were to tell me that you met my son and that you were impressed by his character and intellect, as well as his decision to become a member of the Covenant, I'd be thrilled. The same is true with our Heavenly Father and His son.

I embraced this approach to Father and Son in the way I translated *yada | to know and gadawl | a highly capable individual and rendered it as if Dany*el was speaking of Yada*s recognition of Gabry*el, who we know is Dowd. I am confident that Yahowah would be much happier with us when acknowledging His great love. Moreover, the 9th chapter is all about the Messiah. And now that we know what Dowd has done for us in this regard, it is particularly important for us to appreciate his gift of life.

It was, indeed, vital that Yahowah respond to the fallen state of His people if there was going to be an opportunity for reconciliation. And by having read Yirma*yah, Yasha*yah, and the Mizmowr, Dany*el would have known, as do we, that the means to restore the Beryth | Covenant would be through ha gadawl | the immensely important, especially intense, courageous, capable, and combative man who *ha yare | is the one who should be respected and admired for having chesed | demonstrated his love and devotion to his people, those who *la *achab huw | would come to appreciate and prefer him for what he would accomplish. Through this gadawl – the Messiah Dowd – the shamar | observant would be reconciled by *mitswah huw | the instructive conditions pertaining to what he has offered and expects in return.

Rendering gadawl in this way is consistent with Yasha*yah 9, which takes precedence over Dany*el 9. While both men recorded prophetic events, one was a prophet and the other was not. It is like comparing Haggai with Moseh. Moreover, Dowd was a student of the Towrah and its Beryth and, thus, observed what Yahowah created.

As God will demonstrate, Dowd is the exemplar of the Covenant and the man we should respect as our Messiah, the Shepherd and Lamb, as well as our most deserving King. Dowd, whose name means “Beloved,” also embodies the devotion to the relationship Yahowah cherishes. So, whether he knew it or not, he had written a marvelous introduction for Gabry^el’s arrival later within this chapter, setting us up to properly consider what his announcement was intended to accomplish. And in these ways, as Daniel is insinuating, to know Yada is to know Dowd. One points to the other and reflects the King’s brilliance.

Although, I may be reading into this what Yahowah intended even if the man ensnarled in Babylon remained unaware. With the wayward scribe representing the ill effects of Judaism, he must be approached cautiously. We have read things from him that those who know Yahowah would not say.

The fact remains, until this chapter, and only after seeing it repeatedly used in Yirma^eyah, Dany^el had not mentioned Yahowah’s name. He inappropriately referred to God as “my Lord.” He is more preoccupied with his personal situation than the actual prophets who wrote and spoke from Yisra^el.

Until this admission, where he read the answer, the man incarcerated in Babel did not comprehend anything he had seen. Affirming his confused perspective, his is the only book partially written in another language, in his case, Aramaic. Rather than being a prophet, Dany^el was visited by them. And that was not until after stumbling through the debacle of Daniel chapters 1 through 6 where an unidentified narrator wrote inappropriate things about him. Nevertheless, when the prophets arrive beginning in Daniel 7 through 12, based upon what they have revealed, they pass the Dabarym tests for authenticity.

As for what follows, Dany^el’s reporting was correct. This issue was pervasive and deliberate. Acting in the role of a court reporter, after having heard the evidence found in Yirma^eyah, Yasha^eyah, Howsha^e, and throughout Dowd’s Mizmowr, he was appropriately attesting to their message, telling us what we need to know...

“We have missed the way (chata^{} – we have erred and forfeited the opportunity) and we are guilty of perverse corruptions and distortions (awah – of twisting and perverting). We have violated the standard (wa rasa^o – we are especially evil, wicked, and unjust, immoral, unethical, inconsiderate, and invalid) because (wa) we have rebelled (marad – we have resisted and opposed this advice).

We have turned away from (wa suwr min – we have rejected and removed) the terms and conditions of Your relationship agreement (*mitswah atah – what You are offering and expecting in return) and also from (wa min) Your means to make informed and rational decisions regarding the way to justly resolve disputes (*mishpat atah – to exercise good judgment about You).” (Dany^oel / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 9:5)

We..., we..., we..., we..., and We..., indeed. Daniel was one of them – as corrupt and guilty as any. He was them. And that is the message of the first six chapters and the lingering effect of them.

Dowd, errantly known to most as David, wrote the definitive text on how to properly observe the Towrah in his 119th Mizmowr | Psalm. Throughout his lyrics, he drew our attention to the “mitswah – terms and conditions of the relationship” and the “mishpat – means used to resolve disputes.” It is, therefore, apparent that Dany^oel was familiar with Gabry^{*}el’s song – even though he had not applied its message.

As it relates to the mitswah which lead to the mishpat, there are five conditions which must be accepted to enter our Heavenly Father’s home. First, we must walk away from politics and religion, from patriotism and conspiracy, as well as from societal customs and traditions – from babel – the corruptions born and bred in Babylon. That is what “chata^{}awah – missing the way as a result of corruptions and distortions” is communicating in this self-assessment. Dany^oel recognized the importance of doing so but he had not yet taken this vital step to the extent necessary for him to have served as an actual prophet.

Should you protest this assessment and claim that God would not use a man whose beliefs, testimony, and deeds were opposed to Him, think again. He specifically said that He was using Nebuchadnezzar and that He anointed Cyrus to do as they have done – and both men have earned a trip to *She*owl* | Hell. Yahowah created evil, and He uses it as He must as a filter for freewill.

Second, we must come to trust and rely upon Yahowah. This necessitates knowing Him and coming to understand what He is offering – both of which can only be achieved by observing His Towrah. And neither of which is possible prior to walking away from religion and politics.

Third, Yahowah asks us to walk to Him and become perfected. This process is facilitated by our response to His Mow^ed Miqra^eey – the seven-step path which begins with Pesach and ends with Sukah – but particularly Dowd's fulfillment of Chag Matsah. This serves as the basis for our mishpat | decision on the means Father and Son deployed to resolve religious corruption.

Fourth, we are instructed to shamar beryth: to focus on the terms and conditions of the Covenant. Therefore, our participation is facilitated by closely examining and carefully considering the Towrah because it is the only place that these “mitswah – terms of the relationship” are delineated. And, of course, this brings us back to the Son because he wrote the definitive text on how to properly observe the Guidance his Father was providing in the 119th Mizmowr / Psalm.

And fifth, to be included within the Covenant, as parents, we are encouraged to circumcise our sons, showing our commitment to fulfill our most important mission in life. Our Heavenly Father wants us to raise our children to become His children.

Sadly, the religious seldom accept the Towrah | Teaching.

They prefer the deceptive and self-serving witness of religious and political men. Echoing the sentiments of Yahowah and His prophets, Dany^oel admits that he was also part of the problem...

“We have not listened to (wa lo^{} shama^{} *el) Your coworkers (*ebed atah – Your associates and servants), the prophets (ha naby^{}), who, to show the way to receive the benefits of the relationship (*asher), communicated the Word (dabar) in Your name (ba shem *atah) to our leaders (melek *anachnuw – to our clerics and kings), to our societal, military, and economic elite (sar *anachnuw – to our highest-ranking rulers and their subordinates), to our forefathers (*ab *anachnuw), and also to all (wa *el kol) the people (*am) of the Land (ha *erets – of the region and Earth).” (Dany^oel / My God Judges, Condemns, and Vindicates / Daniel 9:6)

We do our fellow man a great service when we accurately convey what Yahowah has revealed through His naby^{} | prophets – as Dany^oel has done on this occasion. And in this regard, it is important to note that Daniel was reporting what ha naby^{} | the prophets like Moseh, Dowd, Yasha^oyah, and Yirma^oyah had been inspired to convey to us. He was not claiming to be one of them.

We are all responsible for listening to Yahowah’s prophets and then applying what we learn by sharing their message in a manner which resonates with God’s people. Therefore, when Dany^oel admits that he is among those guilty of not listening to Yahowah’s coworkers and prophets, he is admitting that he should not be counted among them.

Moments ago, I mentioned that Dany^oel has used Yahowah’s name more sparingly than anyone who claimed to speak for Him. And yet, here, he acknowledges something which, had they been listening, would have been devastating for Judaism. Since their exile in Babylon, and continuing through the composition of the Babylonian Talmud and beyond, religious Jews have never spoken Yahowah’s name. It is not included within their writings. Therefore, no one should be listening to them.

I realize that Christians, Muslims, and Progressives are similarly misled, but it isn't the same. God did not cut His Covenant with them, liberate them, or address them through prophets of similar ethnicity, in their language, or for one thousand years.

The path to God is correctly deduced in the manner Dany^{el} finally came to understand – by reading what Yahowah's prophets had written for our benefit...

“Approaching You (*la atah) are those who are right (ha tsadaqah – are those who are honest, trustworthy, loyal, and correct, the upright and moral), but for us (*wa la anachnuw) is the presence of confusion and shame (bosheth ha paneh – is personal humiliation).

It is the same to this day (ka ha yowm ha zeh) for the people of Yahuwdah (*la iysh Yahuwdah) and the inhabitants of Yaruwshalaim (wa la yashab Yaruwshalaim), even for all Yisra^{el} (wa la kol Yisra^{el}), those who are nearby (ha qarowb) and those who are far away (wa ha rachowq) in all of the places (*ba kol ha erets) which You have scattered them (nadach hem sham) due to their disloyalty and their fraudulent claims (ba ma^{al} hem – their treacherous propensity to lie, overstepping their bounds while acting like they were above it all).

This makes them untrustworthy and unreliable, as well as in violation of the agreement (asher ma^{al}*) with You (*ba atah). (Dany^{el} 9:7)

Yahowah (Yahowah), on us (*la anachnuw) is the presence (paneh – the face and prevalence) of confusion, humiliation, and shame as a result of our improper attitude (bosheth ha paneh), from our political and religious authorities (*melek anachnuw – clerics and kings) to our leaders' representatives (*wa la sar anachnuw – our highest-ranking officials, authorized subordinates, and spokesmen), as well as our forefathers (*la *ab anachnuw), because we have erred, missing the way (asher chata – because we are guilty and bear the loss, having forfeited the benefits of the agreement) to approach You (*la atah).” (Dany^eel / God Judges and Vindicates / Daniel 9:8)

There were those who were right, but you’ll notice that Dany^eel did not consider himself among them. Rather than being correct about Yahowah, he explicitly listed himself among those who were confused. And with the natural tendency to read right past this admission, it was repeated.

Having studied the prophets, beginning with Moseh, we know that this had been the case during the *Yatsa | Exodus and has remained so, no matter the place or time. Yisra^eel has been ma^eal | disloyal. God’s people have developed a propensity for ma^eal | fraudulent claims which metastasized in Babylon and remained malignant for another two thousand years, continuing to do so throughout the Babylonian Talmud.

In times past, most societies were corrupted from the top-down. The masses were typically illiterate and, thus, easy to influence and manipulate. That is what was occurring here. And it was exacerbated in ancient times because of the prevalence of caste systems.

It is shameful that governmental, religious, military, and economic leaders deliberately confuse the people so that they can take advantage of them. This approach began in Babel | Babylon. The king owned everything. He was both general and god. Religion and politics, the military and economics, were integrated and institutionalized under one man’s dominion.

This same level of confusion is inherent among Jews on the cusp of Yahowah’s return. In Israeli politics, there is no separation between synagogue and state. Rabbis are overwhelmingly political and the political are often overtly religious. Of the many things which have made Benjamin Netanyahu bad for Israel, his willingness to bribe the Haredim for their political support is among the most devastating. That said, the more Progressive, Yair Lapid, may be worse for having endorsed the “Two-State Solution” and then divided Yisra*el over judicial reform so that he could reclaim power. In this battle between religious and political narcissists, the people are being played for fools.

And speaking of them, by including those dwelling in Jerusalem and Israel in this condemnation, this statement is intended to address today’s inhabitants. This is evident because Yaruwshalaim had been depopulated by Babylon and Yisra*el by Assyria.

Having suffered so many centuries of rampant disloyalty and fraudulent claims, Yahowah naturally sees His people as untrustworthy and unreliable – even as disappointing, sometimes disgusting. This problem runs from the top-down and includes the secular and the religious.

While it was unfortunate that *Beltasha*tsar* | May the Lord Bel Protect the King referred to God as “my Lord,” the rest of what follows is readily discerned by reading the *naby of Yahowah, particularly Moseh, Dowd, Yasha*yah, and Yirma*yah. Therefore, after proving that he wasn’t one, Daniel demonstrated the value of reading what they had written...

“According to (la) my Lord and Upright One (*adony / *edown *any – my master or my base, foundation, and pillar), our God (*elohym anachnuw), the exceedingly merciful (ha rachamym – the compassionate), compassionate, and forgiving (wa ha rachamym – the one who pardons), indeed (ky), we have rebelled (marad – we have engaged in premeditated opposition) against Him (ba huw).” (Dany*el / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 9:9)

God has a plan to pardon His people, and He wants to forgive them. Unfortunately, the likes of those Dany*el represents have chosen to ignore, even reject, what Father and Son have done. They have vehemently attacked the Passover Lamb, nullifying the benefit of Dowd’s sacrifice. They do not even acknowledge what his nepesh | soul accomplished during Matsah by depositing our guilt in She*owl. And therein is the reason Yahowah went outside the tribe in the end to redirect His people's attention before it was too late.

Judaism has incorporated matsah into Passover as an ingredient. They are clueless regarding Bikuwrym and Shabu*ah, and they have replaced Taruw*ah with a Babylonian holiday. Especially frustrating for Father and Son, they have inverted the purpose of Kipurym, turning the Day of Reconciliations into a time of affliction. It is as if they never want to see or hear Yahowah again. Making matters worse, they have ignored the role their Shepherd, Messiah, and King has played in their redemption – irritating Father and Son and traumatizing themselves to no end.

Knowing that there will be some who return, it dawned upon me today while celebrating Yowm Kipurym, that it is Yahowah and Dowd's gift to their people. Having watched them reject and then deny what they accomplished together by fulfilling Chag Matsah on their behalf in year 4000 Yah, providing the benefits of the Covenant through Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym, Father and Son are offering their people another opportunity to reconcile their relationship during *Taruw*ah* prior to Kipurym.

The Day of the Herald is, therefore, Yahowah and Dowd's final offer to apply the benefits of Chag Matsah to those who failed to capitalize. *Taruw*ah* is even similar to Pesach and Matsah because it is a sacrifice and, thus, an enormously painful experience that leads to the Kipurym celebration, a time to enjoy the return of wayward sons and daughters.

Foremost among those not listening was the one speaking...

“In addition (wa), we have not listened to (lo shama) Yahowah's (Yahowah – as directed in His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence), our God's (elohym anachnuw), voice (ba qowl) by having our steps guided by (la halak ba – walking in) His Towrah | Teaching and Instructions, His Guidance and Directions (Towrah huw), which, to reveal the benefits of the relationship (asher – to show the way to get the most out of life), He provided (nathan – He offered and gave as a gift) in our presence (*la paneh anachnuw – before us) through the hand (ba yad) of His servants (ebed* – His associates and coworkers), the prophets (*ha naby).” (*Dany*el* / My God Judges, Condemns, and Vindicates / Daniel 9:10)

He held the answer in his hands. He had read it, but he was unable to apply its lessons. In this way, *Dany*el* continues to represent the Haredim – the masters of duplicitous delusion.

Nothing has changed since these words were written nearly 2,600 years ago. The source of man’s problems remains singular: ignorance of Yahowah’s Towrah | Teachings and Instructions, His Guidance and Directions. Rather than listen to God, believers prefer to place their faith in the likes of Akiba and Maimonides, Peter and Paul, and Allah and Muhammad. And having searched Chabad and Christian websites for their explanations of the narratives throughout the first six chapters of Daniel and the inversion of reality found in the opening statement of the 9th, they venerate *Dany*el*’s religiosity.

That’s inexcusable since the religious founders previously mentioned all failed to present their own history accurately. None could foretell the future – universally failing the test of a prophet. And by contrast, every word in the prophetic portions of this book spoken by actual prophets came true as predicted, proving that the visions of the future were orchestrated by God. For that reason alone, an individual has to be either ignorant or irrational to value such men over the God they sought to replace.

It is relevant to know that Yahowah’s towrah | teaching isn’t limited to the first five or six books which comprise His witness. His towrah | guidance permeates what He revealed through His prophets. Everything Yahowah revealed from *Bare*syth* / Genesis to *Mal*aky* / Malachi is both prophetic and contains God’s towrah | instructions on how to live a fulfilling life. It all exists so that we might avail ourselves of His mercy and enjoy

His love – so that we know how to become adopted into His Covenant family.

Driving the point home, this remains true for Jews who overwhelmingly prefer their Babylonian Talmud. Their problem runs so deep, they not only lie by claiming it was first given by G-d along with the written Towrah, they actually call this book of rabbinical drool, Torah.

“All (wa kol) of Yisra*el (*Yisra*el* – Individuals who Strive Against and Oppose God) has passed over (abar* – has arrogantly meddled, and with intense personal feelings acted upon unjustified opinions of themselves to repeal and transgress) Your Towrah | Teaching and Directions (eth Towrah atah – source from which Your instruction and guidance flow) and have turned away (wa suwr – have continually, actually, and demonstrably removed themselves, rejecting and cutting off (qal infinitive)), refusing to listen (*la bilty shama) to the sound of Your voice (*ba qowl atah).

As a result (wa), the curse of Allah (alah* – an incompetent and dishonest oath by which people are harmed when swearing to Allah) will be poured out (nathak – will be brought forth (qal imperfect)) upon us (al anachnuw) in addition to (wa) the sworn promise (*ha shabuwa – the truthful and contractual oath associated with seven and the shabat) which (asher*) was written (kathab – inscribed using letters and words) in the Towrah (ba Towrah – in the instructions and directions, teaching and guidance) of Moseh (Mosheh – one who draws out), the one working with (ebed*) the Almighty (*ha elohym), because (ky) we have been wrong and have missed the way (*chata – we have erred and forfeited the opportunity) according to Him (*la huw).” (*Dany*el* / My God Judges / Daniel 9:11)

Throughout the Towrah and Prophets, the message is the same. Yisra*elites and Yahuwdym are told that they have brought a curse upon themselves and that they are estranged from God because they prefer their jaundiced rhetoric to Yahowah's teaching and guidance. With this assessment indisputable, why do so many Jews remain unaware that Yahowah hates their religion?

Since Moseh, Yahowsha^o, Shamuw^{el}, Dowd, Yasha^oyah, Howsha^o, Yirma^oyah, *ElYah, Zakaryah, and Mal^oaky were all inspired by God to condemn the Jewish religion, we would be wise to view Yahowah as decidedly anti-religious. While Yahowah is merciful and forgiving, He is also discriminating. And He will reject the religious for having rejected Him.

Moments ago, I made a distinction between the rabbinical Talmud and Yahowah's Towrah, a point which is underscored in this statement. It is Yahowah's Towrah which is being neglected, and there is only one – not two. Even when the Towrah is associated with Yahowah's coworker, Moseh, it remains singular as well as written, not oral. This is the problem which, as much as any other, separates Yahowah from Yahuwdaym. And it can only be resolved by tossing one and clinging to the other.

“He confirmed (wa quwm – He took a stand to establish and substantiate) with (eth*) the words He revealed (*dabar huw), and which He spoke against us (asher dabar *al anachnuw), in opposition to our judgment regarding our political and religious leaders (*wa *al shaphat anachnuw), who (asher*) have ruled over us (*shaphat anachnuw – which governed us and shaped our thinking), to bring (*la bow) great (gadowl – tremendous and unmitigated) misery and suffering (*ra*ah* – disaster and distress, wickedness and harm, calamity and misfortune) upon us (al anachnuw) which has not occurred (asher lo* asah) in any other place under (tachath) the whole of the heavens (kol ha shamaym) similar to what has and will occur (*ka *asher asah) in Yaruwshalaim (ba Yaruwshalaim).” (Dany^{el} / God Judges / Daniel 9:12)

I am trumpeting this point because it has been missed over the past 25 or so centuries. “He spoke against us in opposition to our judgment regarding our political and religious leaders ~ which is the source of Jewish suffering. It is long past time Jews acknowledge this embittering reality. The religious are not only part of the problem; they are the living embodiment of it.

In this case, Yahuwdym have no one to blame other than themselves. No people have been offered as much. No people have suffered as much. No place has been more contested.

“Consistent with what is written (*ka asher kathab) in the Towrah (ba Towrah – source of teaching and instructions, directions and guidance) of Moseh (Mosheh), all of this suffering and misfortune (*kol *eth ra*ah ha zo*th* – the entirety of this misery with so many negative consequences) has and will continue to come upon us (bow *al anachnuw). And yet, we neither request nor seek (wa lo chalah* – we have made no effort to acquire the favor of nor do we grieve over the loss of) the presence of Yahowah, our God (eth paneh Yahowah *elohym anachnuw).

We cannot return because we have not changed (lo shuwb* – without turning around we cannot be restored) from (min) our depravity and corruptions (aown / *awon anachnuw – the wickedness we have committed by twisting, bending, perverting, and distorting), and that is because it affects our ability to be prudent and thus understand (wa la sakal – forestalls the insights needed to succeed and prosper, capitalizing upon) the breadth of Your support and verifications of Your reliability (*ba *emeth atah – Your affirmations of what is correct and dependable).” (*Dany*el / God Judges / Daniel 9:13*)

This is Dany*el’s confession, his admission that we have correctly interpreted the first six chapters as predictive of the politicization of depravity as the religious perversions inherent in Roman Christianity and Rabbinic Judaism took root and spread, choking out the truth with the prevalence of their distortions. The 9th chapter began with an inverted reality to highlight the consequence of twisting the truth.

In light of this recital on observing the Towrah, listening to the Towrah, and benefiting from the Towrah, even returning to Yahowah through the Towrah, how is it that Christians are so desperate for validation of the misnomer “Jesus,” that they have discarded the Towrah while pulling one statement regarding anointing out of context to claim that Daniel 9 was predictive of their “Christ” dying for them? Are they nutz?

This is a monumental problem because Christianity’s fate hangs upon what follows. There is no other place anywhere in the Towrah or Prophets in which the title Mashyach | Messiah can be attributed to the one making the sacrifice. If Daniel 9 doesn’t point to their guy, then they are fully leavened and burnt toast.

This is also a serious issue for Jews because it affirms that they have estranged themselves from Yahowah. They were enslaved and suffered as a consequence of the preference for their Halakhah and Talmud over the Towrah’s | Guidance. And it has been the Jewish failure to comprehend the implications of Daniel 9, to recognize their Messiah’s role in the fulfillment of this prophecy, that has cost them more dearly than even the negating of Yahowah’s name.

It is pretty basic: the cornerstone of the Towrah is the Beryth | Covenant. The centerpiece of the Beryth is *Abraham leading to Ya’aqob and embodied by Dowd. The means to it is through the Miqra’ey. And because the Covenant is a family affair, they were brought to us by Father and Son – Yahowah and Dowd. By developing an appreciation of how they were fulfilled, when, why, and by whom, we are in a position to capitalize upon them.

In His Towrah, Yahowah introduced Himself to humankind so that we would have the opportunity to know Him. He explained how we could enjoy a personal relationship with Him. His instructions were beneficial, His teaching was enlightening, His offer remains wonderful, His promises are trustworthy, and His plan is generous. By listening to His Guidance and following His Directions, we become His children and live in His home. Through the Towrah we become immortal, perfected, adopted, empowered, and enriched. All we have to do is accept. It is easier than believing and more reliable as well.

God does not require much in return. He asked us to get to know Him, to listen to Him, and to consider His directions. He encourages us to respect Him, embrace His name, and trust Him. All of which are beneficial for everyone involved.

No one has done more to estrange souls from God than Akiba or Maimonides, Paul or Muhammad. And yet they remain among the most respected and quoted. We have been given a choice, and most have made the wrong one. As a result, Yahowah's advice could not be entirely positive. As is the case with proper parenting, God not only told His children what would happen if they followed His advice, He told them what would occur if they didn't listen. They would suffer the consequences. Unfortunately, they would not learn from their mistakes and have continued to be religious.

Without His Towrah's | Guidance, God's people would be estranged from Father and Son and, thus, be excluded from the Covenant and kept out of Heaven. And they would be like the rest of humankind and endure misfortune and misery here on Earth. The corruption of His message would open the floodgates of confusion and despair...

“And so (wa), Yahowah (Yahowah – the proper pronunciation of YaHoWaH, our elowah* – God as directed in His ToWRaH – teaching regarding His HaYaH – existence and our ShaLoWM – restoration) was vigilant and He did not hesitate (shaqad – having paid attention He was prepared) to bring these difficult circumstances and consequences upon us (al ha ra*ah wa bow*hy*al anachnuw).

Obviously (ky – it is clear) Yahowah (Yahowah), our God (elohym anachnuw), is right (tsadyq – is correct in His judgment, fair, just, and moral) in everything He does (al kol ma*aseh huw – in all He accomplishes and works on) as well as what He acts upon when engaging for the benefit of the relationship (asher asah). Therefore, it is we who have not listened to Him speaking to us (*wa lo*shama*ba qowl huw).”

(*Dany*el* / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 9:14)

This is an early example of tough love, of recognizing that sometimes we must allow our children to suffer the consequences of their choices. Often, it is the only way young people learn and grow. When we overcome, it is how we develop character and confidence.

There is a debilitating misconception that love is never hurtful or hateful. And yet, for love to be real, for it to be beneficial, the loving must not only oppose that which is contrary to the interests of those they love, they must allow them to learn by making mistakes.

With this preamble to the prophecy regarding the arrival of a Messiah who will be cut down and separated, but not for himself, we find the problem that fulfilling Chag Matsah was designed to resolve. Yisra*el was estranged from Yahowah because the people were not listening to His Towrah. This being true, the Messiah would offer to bring them back to it and not away from as would be the case with the Christian Christ.

For ten centuries, from circa 1450 BCE to 450 BCE, this had been the consistent message of Yahowah’s prophets. Beginning with the first, Moseh, to the last, Mal*aky, and every one in between, God pleaded with His people to stop being religious and come back home. However, with few exceptions, no one has listened.

This realization serves as the ideal introduction to Yahowah’s response. It is why He sent Dowd in the guise of *Gabry*el* | the Great Gibowr of God to announce what ha Mashyach would accomplish. The fulfillment of Chag Matsah opened the door to resolve Yisra*el’s rebellion and restore the people’s relationship with God. It is also why we are approaching the prophecy announcing ha Mashyach’s arrival from this perspective.

There are also underlying threads of the *Yatsa | Exodus from Mitsraym | Religious and Political Subjugation which reverberate throughout the Mow^{ed} Miqra^{ey}. This begins with Moseh explaining them and Dowd enduring them. On three occasions between these great Zarowa^o | Strong Arms Sowing the Seeds of our Redemption, Yahowah would intervene to provide the benefits of the Covenant relationship while liberating His children from the controlling and oppressive influence of religion and government.

“Then (wa atah*) wanting to provide the benefits of the relationship (asher*), our God (elohym anachnuw) descended to withdraw (yatsa^{}* – brought out) your people (eth am atah) from the land of subjugation by religious and political tyrants (min erets Mitsraym – from the crucibles of oppression) with a firm and unyielding, resolute and uncompromising hand (ba yad chazaq – with an unrelenting influence).*

Since then (wa), you have made (asah* – you have engaged and acted to create) a reputation for yourself (la atah shem) which is similar to today (ka ha yowm ha zeh). We have been mistaken and have gone astray (chata^{}* – we have erred and forfeited the opportunity), having condemned ourselves (rasha^o – and are guilty of being wrong).” (Dany^oel / My God Judges / Daniel 9:15)

This has been Israel’s problem from the beginning and it is unyielding. The people shunned Yahowah early during the Exodus and then renounced Him. Nothing has changed since that time. We are still living in the midst of a divorce.

This is an interesting transition in pronouns in mid-sentence from “our” to “your.” It is telling because it indicates that Dany^oel didn’t make the connection between being withdrawn from Mitsraym and then Babel. As proof of this, he claims that “you” have made a reputation for “yourselves,” excluding himself from their company. And yet, it was actually the reputation that he had made for himself that became the driving force of Daniel 1 through 6 and is still bleeding into these pages.

Yes, we know that the Children of Yisra*el were often mistaken along the way, but the issue now is that the problem had grown worse, not better.

And to his credit, Dany*el acknowledges that “we have been mistaken and have gone astray, thereby condemning ourselves.” It was true.

Yahowah liberated His children, removing them from the caustic influence of political, religious, and economic oppression. But once set free, they regressed along the way home ~ going from bad to worse. So, He had to let them go. And ever since, they have made a reputation for themselves. Having returned to religion, having yearned to be political, they have marched right back into a crucible of their own design. Judaism is now condemning God’s people and keeping them in Babel.

“O my Lord and Upright One (*edown *any / *adowny), in a manner consistent with all of what makes You worthy and right (ka kol tsadaqah atah – according to Your righteousness and integrity, and by Your will to acquit and vindicate), please turn away from and withhold (shuwb na) Your frustration (*aph *atah – Your resentment and disappointment) and Your extreme displeasure and antagonism (wa chemah *atah – Your righteous indignation) toward Your city, Jerusalem (min *iy atah Yaruwshalaim), Your Set-Apart Mountain (har qodesh har), even (ky) toward our offenses (ba chete anachnuw – our propensity to be wrong and go astray) and toward our guilt (wa ba cheta *anachnuw), in addition to the misdeeds and religious perversity (wa ba *awon) of our ancestors (*ab *anachnuw).

Yaruwshalaim | Jerusalem (Yaruwshalaim) and Your people (wa *am *atah – those who are related to You) are dishonored and seen as contemptible (la cherpah – are shameful and have become a disgrace) among all who surround us (la kol sabyb *anachnuw).” (Dany*el / God Judges / Daniel 9:16)

Having read about them, and realizing they had acted out in this way, Dany^{el} knew that Yahowah was disgusted with Yisra^{el}. He not only had every reason to be disappointed, God's frustration was not going to change for a very long time.

That said, Dany^{el} had this backward. Jews would have to discard their antagonism toward Yahowah before God could relinquish His against them. They had picked this ill-fated fight by being religious, and God could not and would not accept them until they changed.

Yahowah does not withhold His righteous indignation, nor should He. Instead, He provides a remedy. He would accomplish this through His beloved Son, our Messiah and King. The man who would acquire Yaruwshalaim and then build his home and city on Mount Mowryah would return not once, but twice, to resolve the guilt of the nation he unified.

Therefore, God would respond to Dany^{el}'s request by sending the man who would provide resolution. As mistaken and misspoken as he was at times, Dany^{el} was the only representative of his people in this place and time who was willing to listen, and who understood the nature of the problem by having had at least read the Prophets. Well that, and he could write.

“This being so (wa atah*), our God (elohym anachnuw), please choose to listen and be receptive (shama – let it be Your will to hear, being favorably inclined (qal imperative)) to this plea for intercession and desire to be set apart as discriminating (el taphilah – either a prayer for intervention or a longing to be distinct and different, uncommon and unique; from ta^{ab} – to desire and palah – being set apart as special) made by Your servant (ebed atah – of Your coworker and associate), along with his longing for mercy and compassion (wa el tachanuwn huw – his desire for kindness, favoritism, love, and generosity; from ta^{ab} – to desire and chanan – forgiveness and empathy, loving and merciful generosity), for the light of Your presence to shine (wa owr paneh atah) upon Your Set-Apart people and place (al miqdash atah – over that which is distinctly different; from my – to consider the implications of qadash – to be set apart as special and separated from that which is common, to be prepared, dedicated, and devoted) for the benefit of the deserted (la ma'an shamem – for the destitute and devastated), my Lord and Upright One (edown any).” (Danyel / God Judges / Daniel 9:17)

We should not be asking God to listen to us. We need to listen to Him. Daniel’s approach epitomizes religion, and it is wrong. And while he’s at it, it is well past time to stop referring to our ab* | Father as the adown* | lord.

The Hebrew lexicons which seek to define words based on their roots typically link taphilah with “palal – to intervene and intercede, to meditate and arbitrate.” By so doing, they can render taphilah as “prayer” – and that may well have been the intent in this case since Danyel has religious propensities. However, taphilah is more correctly derived from “palah – to be distinct, separated, and distinguished, set apart and uncommon.” Palah also speaks of “being marked out as special,” even of “being discriminating.”

If there is no one listening to Yahowah, there is no hope, but where there is one, there is the chance there will be two, then three or more. This is movement in the right direction, and it begins where it must, with someone encouraging people to be distinctly different as a result of being discriminating.

My journey to Yahowah, which commenced on Taruw^{ah} in 2001, began the same way. And has led to the same result. There were none before there was one. And as a result of one, there are now many. Again, no...

“My God (elohym any), incline Your ear (*natah *ozen atah) and listen (*wa shama). Open Your eyes (*paqach *any atah) and see (*wa ra*ah*) our ravaged and deserted places (*shamem anachnuw) and the city (*wa ha iyr) which (asher*), invite and call out (*qara – summons and proclaims) in Your name (*shem *atah *ah hy – in Your proper and personal designation to her).

However (ky), not upon our righteousness (*al tsadaqah *anachnuw – not on our merit) because we would fail (naphal – we are inferior and without standing). Our plea for mercy (tachanuwn *anachnuw – our desire for favoritism and kindness) in Your presence (la paneh *atah – upon Your appearance) is indeed because of (ky *al) Your compassion (rachamym *atah – Your love and devotion) which is great (harab).” (Dany^el / My God Judges / Daniel 9:18)

Daniel is demonstrating why God despises religion. There was absolutely nothing Yahowah wanted to hear from this man other than for him to stop begging and start listening. Yisra^el was deserted because Jews did not invite Yahowah into their lives, did not welcome Him into their hearts, or even mention His name.

Mercy is afforded to those who pay attention to Yahowah and who observe His testimony as prescribed in His Towrah, *Naby, wa Mizmowr. He guides those who do so through the Beryth and Miqra^eey to His Beyth. Along the way, we find His chanan and racham.

There are times when I’m hesitant to translate a passage, and this is one of those occasions. The previous three times though this material, I ignored it, moving past it to the next statement. I am uncomfortable with Dany^el’s incessant pleading and unsolicited praise. Further, his use of adony* | my Lord is inappropriate and disturbing. Nonetheless, here is what he said next...

“My Lord (adony – my master), I am emphatic in wanting You to listen (shama – as an expression of my will, I choose for You to hear what I want to say (qal imperative paragogic he cohortative, energetic second-person masculine singular – I am emphatic and emotional in choosing for You to urgently listen)). My Lord (*adony – my master), I am insistent and emotional in my appeal for You to choose to remove the guilt and forgive (salach – it is my desire for You to want to pardon the wrongdoing (qal imperative paragogic he cohortative energic)). My Lord (*adony – my master), on my own initiative, I believe that it is imperative that You pay attention and become responsive (qashab – You need to choose to be alert and attentive to what I want (hifil imperative paragogic he cohortative energic)) because it is necessary and vital for You to act (wa *asah – You must engage (qal imperative)).

Do not remain inactive, be hesitant, or delay (*al *achar – do not linger, hesitate, or wait any longer by doing something different (piel imperfect jussive)) for Your own sake (la ma *an *atah – on Your account), O my God (*elohym *any), because indeed (ky), Your name (shem atah) is called (qara – he is summoned and invited, proclaimed and welcomed, read and recited) over and above Your city (*al *iyr *atah) and upon Your people (wa *al *am *atah).” (Dany^eel / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 9:19)

You can make of that what you will. As for me, I’m glad that it was written in the cohortative, thereby expressing Dany^eel’s agenda and mindset, not Yahowah’s. Begging for forgiveness is a complete waste of time. Instead, listen to Yahowah and act accordingly. He will do the rest.

We do not need to tell Yahowah when, where, why, or how to respond. It is best when we learn these things from Him. Further, it is disrespectful. Working through Moseh, God revealed when and why He would act and, through Dowd, how and where.

Therefore, to ask the Almighty to repeat Himself is akin to rudely sleeping through a professor’s lecture, losing his textbook, and then demanding he provide a special session just for you. Accommodating this would not only reward bad behavior; it would be counterproductive.

One of the reasons witnesses are credible is because our presentations of God’s testimony are readily validated. By citing publicly disseminated and proven prophetic sources rather than private revelations, our conclusions can be tested and affirmed.

To the extent Dany^oel correctly deduced the message conveyed by Yahowah's prophets, the previous statements have provided a revealing backdrop for what follows. However, not a word of what we have read thus far, the entire 9th chapter of Dany^oel up to this point, has been prophetic. While the scene is going to change, it will not be until the 24th verse that we will hear Gabry^oel | God's Most Confident and Capable Man reveal what is going to occur. So, all we have now is that without Yahowah's Towrah, we are lost.

Babel | Being with the Lord was a 70-year time out for bad behavior. Serving as a harbinger of She^{*}owl, we find affirmation of what life will be like for those who continue to reject Yahowah and His Towrah | Guidance.

For those of you who are reading these words and are still contemplating your fate as we near the Time of Trouble, you can move in one of three directions: 1) Toward Shamaym | Heaven by accepting the conditions of the Beryth | Covenant relationship with Yah, which is possible for those who observe His Towrah | Teaching and attend His Miqra^oey | Invitations to be Called Out and Meet. 2) Stay in Babylon by remaining religious and flirt with She^{*}owl. Or 3) Go nowhere, and dissipate into nothingness by opting to ignore the voices on both sides.

It is ignorant and irrational to claim that this somehow justifies the creation of a new religion at odds with the Towrah and in opposition to the very people God is trying to save. The benefits of the Beryth are enjoyed exclusively by the Towrah observant.

Gabry^{el} ~ God's Courageous Man

The preceding portion of Dany^{el} was not couched in mystery, although it was doused in religion. It was not conveyed using metaphors or symbols but, instead, religious verbiage. It was a straightforward and readily verified confession, easily corroborated, because Dany^{el} was adlibbing what Moseh and the prophets had written.

While Daniel's religiosity was irritating, his Towrah citations are important because, apart from this preamble, the following prophecy is readily misappropriated and misunderstood. There are two days being predicted and they both pertain to fulfilling the Miqra^{ey} – days which are meaningful when guided by the Towrah. But since with the Towrah and its Covenant there can be no quarter for religion, should a rabbi or priest ascertain the timing, they would lose their faith in the process.

This compound prophecy was conveyed by Dowd in 538 BCE – 570 years prior to his fulfillment of Chag Matsah in 33 CE and 2,570 years before he would return to claim the promises of Yowm Kipurym in 6000 Yah in 2033. The timeline for God's redemptive plan hinges upon what occurred on Passover, UnYeasted Bread, and Firstborn Children in Year 4000 Yah to make Shabu^wah, Taru^wah, Kipurym, and Sukah possible some forty Yowbel thereafter.

“Then (wa), I was continually communicating and conversing (owd any dabar – when I was speaking well beyond normal expectations), pondering questions and contemplating their answers (wa palal – making inquiries regarding the justification to persuade, seeking intervention, arbitration, and intercession, and also thinking about and foreseeing future contingencies and events), (wa) expressing gratitude over casting aside (yadah – appreciation and thankfulness for being able to admit and toss away) my pardonable offenses for having missed the way (*chata*ah* any* – the consequence and punishment for me having gone astray, my iniquity and guilt associated with me wandering away from the right path) and the consequence of my people, Yisra*el, going astray (*wa chata*ah* am* any* *Yisra*el* – in addition to the wrongful nature of my lost family, those who strive against and struggle with God), presenting (naphal – settling upon, offering, and letting go of) my earnest request for the favor (tachinah – my petition and plea for kind, generous, and favorable treatment) of being able to approach the presence of (la paneh – to come face-to-face with) Yahowah (YaHoWaH – an accurate presentation of the name of elowah* – God as guided by His towrah – instructions regarding His hayah – existence), my God (elohy*), on (al* – upon) the set-apart (qodesh – separating, consecrating, preparing, dedicating, purifying and cleansing) mountain (har) of my God (elohy*),...” (*Dany*el* / God is My Means to Decide between Vindication and Condemnation / Daniel 9:20)

The words change but not the message and that is because Dany*el continually struggled with the realization that his role was to listen to what the prophets conveyed and then reaffirm that message. But at least, this was better. There were no “my Lords” and no demands. He spoke of searching for answers and of a desire to approach Yahowah, knowing that he had missed the way.

As we approach Dowd’s appearance and a return to sanity, Dany*el clearly wanted to benefit from what he was witnessing. Having lived a life foreshadowing the ill effects of the rabbis, he needed what God and His Messiah would be providing through Chag Matsah. If our reporter is in Heaven, it is proof positive that the Towrah can pardon the offense of having missed the way.

Having studied the Towrah | Teaching, we know that the *Miqra of Pesach opens the door to eternal life by resolving the consequence of religion which is death. And we realize that the *Miqra of Matsah resolves the penalty associated with religious guilt, which is separation from God. Bikuwrym and Shabuw^{ah} are the result and benefit, enabling God's children to live in our Father's Home, as part of His Family, as He enriches and enlightens, emancipates and empowers us.

Taking this statement out of context, Roman Catholics have errantly stated that their confessionals resolve sin. But all Dany^{el} did was privately and directly (with no intermediary involved) show his appreciation for the provisions Yahowah had provided in His Towrah to resolve the consequence and penalty of having been religious and political – and this man, of all men, was grateful.

This known, had Dany^{el} been a prophet rather than a reporter, he would have been more confident. There is no reason to request what God has already offered. There is nothing to be gained by trying to negotiate with Him or plead one's case on a matter that has already been decided. The means to vindication has been decided upon, duly presented, and paid for, so Yahowah is not going to make a special accommodation for anyone. Through the Beryth and Miqra^{ey}, He is going to do exactly as He has promised.

Dany^{el} was struggling to leave Babylon – something God requires of us. This chapter in his life, when compared to the others, shows that he was trying, but there was still too much babel in him.

The dichotomy between Dany^{el} and the likes of Moseh and Dowd or Yirma^{yah} and Yasha^{yah} is enormous. His rhetoric is so divergent, it warrants full and constant disclosure. For example, we are encouraged to read the Towrah and Prophets, listen to what Yahowah has to say, think about it, and then share what we have learned. Dany^{el} was incessantly conveying his preferences – which were consistently inappropriate, and at best, irrelevant.

We ought not place Yahowah on a pedestal because He is more comfortable interacting with us as our Father. We are encouraged to relate to God as our friend and as someone who we realize is committed to supporting what we are achieving together. He wants us to be successful. He is committed to empowering and enabling us so that we become more like Him. This is the happier ever after result.

I ask very little of God while Dany^{el} is constantly pleading for one thing and then another. I recognize that Yahowah is here to help, and I know that He wants us to understand so that we can more effectively share His message with His people. His prime objective is to reconcile the relationship with Yisra^{el} and be merciful. There is no need to ask God to do what He is already committed to accomplishing. Moreover, Yahowah has told us exactly how we need to respond if we want to benefit. The first step in that direction is to be the antithesis of what we have witnessed thus far in this man.

Daniel became the recipient of these prophecies because he was willing to read the revelations of the prophets and apply the lessons, because he could write, because of where he was at the time, and because there wasn't a better option. This was, however, enough for us to become beneficiaries. We have been offered a brief history of the world, the story of the succession of Beasts, and now we are about to witness the final solution to mankind's errant ways.

“While I was continuing to communicate (*wa *owd any dabar) with the intent of being distinct and different (el taphilah* – either praying or desirous of being set apart as discriminating and special; from ta^{ab} – to desire and palah – pleading to be set apart as special while thinking about the future, asking questions and contemplating the answers), then (wa) Gabry^{el} | God’s Most Confident and Capable, Courageous and Combative Man (wa Gabry^{el} – the Almighty’s exceptionally proficient and powerful defender, an exemplar of character who confirms the truth; a compound of any* – I am a geber – particularly strong and resolute human being, a capable and authorized individual, an aggressive and confrontational person, a fighter, defender, and protector who prevails with el* – Almighty God; from gabar – exceptionally proficient, absolutely assured, resolutely corroborative, tremendously powerful and great), the individual (*ha iysh – the person and human being who is a champion, supporter, and defender), whom, to reveal the proper path (asher* – to show the benefits of the relationship), I had seen (*ra*ah* – I had witnessed, observed, perceived, inspected, and considered) during the initial prophetic revelation (ba ha chazown ba ha tachilah – in the earlier communication during the beginning vision of the future which I was able to see), when fatigued to the point of exhaustion (*ya*aph ba ya*aph* – listless and tired (if Daniel) or caused by the occasion of flying in to be wearied and exasperated (if Gabry^{el}) (hofal passive participle masculine singular)), reached out to make contact with me (*naga^o *el any – extended himself to reach out to me (qal participle masculine singular)) around the time of the evening (*ka *eth ereb – according to the right season of the year at sunset) offering (minchah – apportionment which is bestowed as a present or gift).” (Dany^{el} / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 9:21)

Thank God for Dowd.

Previously in Dany^{el} 8:15 and 16, another geber | confident and confrontational man heralded the arrival of Gabry^{el} | God's Most Capable Person. The final Witness, whom Dany^{el} introduces as Myka^{el} | One Who is Truthful and Right About God at the beginning of the 12th chapter, *qara | summoned Dowd, knowing that he plays the starring role in this drama. Upon his arrival, and after encouraging Dany^{el} to start thinking, and to stand up and be accountable, the Messiah and King told Dany^{el} to listen to his Sar | Princely Representative and Herald, Yada | the One Who Will Make this Known so that you will understand.

Then, speaking to Dany^{el} about Yada (Daniel 8:19), Dowd said, “As the final Witness to the eternal testimony regarding the restoring appointments of the Mow^{ed}, he will convey the way to receive the benefits of the relationship, doing so in the distant future, during the last days, and on behalf of the indignant remnant.”

Not only was Gabry*el correctly identified as an iysh* | man, a human male, the identity of el* | God’s gibowr is readily verified as Dowd from *Yasha yah / Isaiah 9 where, as a son, he was given to us. The Messiah is the lone individual who fits this title. And there is no better news than this, because apart from Yahowah, no one in Heaven or on Earth knew as much about the events he was going to address. He had predicted them, describing them in excruciating detail, and he, himself, would fulfill them. Moreover, with Dany*el failing to meet the standard of a prophet, Dowd was the most prolific of them – the gold standard.

In addition, Dowd, as the man destined to live three lives spanning these eras, was the ideal prophet to provide the sweeping prophetic history of the world. Moreover, he was now in Babel | Babylon, the birthplace of the Beast – the realm from which Satan would arise. Whether as a prophet or from his perch in Shamaym, he would witness Babylon become Persia and then watch as the Greeks prevailed over them. The bestiality of Rome was no secret to him as he would experience their savage brutality personally. Additionally, Dowd would have been familiar with his mortal enemy – the final Beast – the Roman Catholic Church – which grew out of Imperial Rome to obfuscate the heroic sacrifices he would make on behalf of his people while persecuting them.

No one has been better at providing advice. And no one surpassed Dowd in the destruction of Yisra*el’s foes, having never lost a battle. Further, Dowd’s greatest gift to his people was offering to endure the long night of Matsah in the darkness of She*owl.

The evidence is overwhelming that this iysh* | individual man, this gibowr of el* | competent and courageous combatant of God, was His Son, our Messiah and King Dowd | David. The alternative, that he was an archangel, is contrary to the evidence which has been provided as well as in conflict with God’s previous and future interactions with humankind.

Now that Gabry^{el} | God's Most Competent Man, Dowd, has returned, some would say that he has been ya^{aph} ba ya^{aph} | caused by the occasion of flying in to be wearied and exasperated, if, this is addressing Gabry^{el}. More likely, if describing Dany^{el} during their initial meeting, he is admitting that he was “fatigued to the point of exhaustion” by it. And since we will soon discover that Dowd was frustrated to the point of exasperation with Dany^{el}'s pleading, it makes far more sense to recognize that our scribe has already confessed to this state of affairs. So, perhaps he is suggesting that he's more alert the second time around.

That is not to say that Dowd won't be exceedingly busy at this time. His first order of business will be to anoint the Kaporeth | Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant so that Yahowah can reconcile His relationship with Yisra^{el}. Then he will be the groom at the ultimate wedding, signifying reconciliation with Yisra^{el}. However, Yahowah will already have defended *Yahuw*dym from those who have come to annihilate them by incinerating the trash. So, all that is left for our Shepherd and Counselor, Messiah and King, is to settle into the role.

We must also deal with the realization that ha Mashyach | the Messiah has not yet carried out his essential responsibilities by fulfilling Chag Matsah because this meeting is taking place 570 years prior to his arrival in Jerusalem to serve as the lamb on Passover in 33 CE and is a total of 2,570 years before he returns to claim his throne on Yowm Kipurym in 6000 Yah. So, our King has a lot on his plate, two days of which will be horrific. And it is those days that he is here to discuss.

Therefore, considering the source of these insights, labeling “Jesus,” the “Christ,” rather than acknowledging Dowd, is short-sighted to the point of being blind. And it is thievery, indeed, identity theft and counterfeiting. Dowd | David is a Prophet and Counselor, Shepherd and Lamb, Messiah and High Priest, Son of God and King. He is the exemplar of the Covenant, the embodiment of Yisra*el, and the Son who fulfilled the Spring Invitations to Meet with God.

Before we move on, there is no *ka *eth ereb minchah | evening offering prescribed in the Towrah. However, in his defense, there is an evening apportionment which is bestowed as a gift – Chag Matsah | the Feast of UnYeasted Bread, beginning with Pesach | Passover – which is celebrated at sundown. Addressing Passover in this instance is both relevant and helpful considering what follows. And should the Pesach sacrifice be the intended reference, then I applaud Yahowah’s attention to detail. Dowd was here on the date he would serve.

That said, should you think it inappropriate to associate something as generic as *ka *eth ereb minchah with the magnificence of Yahowah’s Passover sacrifice, you’d have a valid point. But there is nothing wrong with considering every reasonable possibility. While being as accurate and consistent as possible, we are committed to going where these words lead while making intelligent connections.

God works through curious souls because He realizes that those who question everything find resolution and this leads to understanding. They not only grow up and mature with God, in the process, they gain confidence. I suspect that Yahowah chose His final messenger with this in mind, recognizing His son’s appreciation of how *yada would result in byn...

“So (wa) he made the connections to encourage understanding (byn – he pursued comprehension by being discriminating and perceptive to facilitate discernment through careful consideration). He spoke with me (wa dabar *im *any – then he communicated using words to me), and he said (wa *amar), ‘Dany*el (Dany*el – My God Judges, Condemns, and Vindicates; from dyn – to decide with *el – God), now at this time (atah – so then in the sequence of things), I have come forth (yatsa – I have descended to extend) to provide insights and instruction which, if you are circumspect and considerate, will promote (*la sakal atah – to teach the prudent to pay attention, and you through contemplation to gain) understanding through discernment (bynah – enabling comprehension through diligence and reason).” (Dany^{el} / God Judges / Daniel 9:22)

My favorites: byn | making the connections to understand dabar | words which have *yatsa | been brought forth to sakal | make us circumspect and considerate so we would be bynah | discerning and comprehend. Dowd is a master linguist.

Gabry^{el} | God's Most Competent and Confrontational Man, Dowd | the Beloved, is the living embodiment of byn | understanding the dabar | word of God. This is his atah* | time when he will receive his people after their final *yatsa | exodus. And this time, they will come out of Babel | Being Confused by the Lord. By listening to Dowd throughout his Mizmowr and Mashal, we revel in his sakal | insights and grow in bynah | understanding. This is why Yahowah so loved his son and then supported his desire to fulfill these roles so that we could learn from his example.

It is wonderful to see God's Son, our Messiah and King, speak to Dany^{el}. This is encouraging for the rest of us, especially when we consider the difference between Dowd's intellect and standing with God relative to our own. Last time they met, even as I was introducing them, Dany^{el} had done a nose plant. So now by asking him to think it through, Dowd forestalled more of the same. He is brilliant after all...

“In the beginning, the sickening and inappropriate (ba tachilah – initially, while common to the point of being profane; from chalah – to be a sorrowful and sickening beggar, a wearisome infected and diseased malcontent and chahal – to profane and desecrate through common and defiling religious practices) matter (dabar – the message and word) of your desire for favors and your pleading for mercy (*tachanuwn atah – your longing for love and compassion, your constant petitions; from a compound of ta^{ab} | to desire and ta^{ah} | to point out, with chanan | mercy, kindness, forgiveness, and favor) was brought up (*yatsa – it came out).

So, I, myself, have returned (*wa *any bow – therefore, I have arrived, having come) to conspicuously report an informative announcement and make this known (la nagad – to provide the message in a straightforward fashion, making this declaration) because (ky) you are so needy (*chamadowth atah – you delight in and value such things).

Therefore (wa), you will want to be considerate and strive to understand, being diligent and systematic in your evaluation (byn – by choosing to be perceptive, discerning, and discriminating, you will comprehend (qal imperative)) of this message (ba ha dabar – through this statement), choosing to make the connections needed to comprehend (wa byn – by being perceptive and circumspect to understand (hifil imperative)), what is being revealed (*ba ha mar*eh* – what is being witnessed).” (*Dany*el* / My God Judges / Daniel 9:23)

While true, this was a slap in the face to a man who needed it. With all of his pleading, Dany*el had become irritating. As I expected while reading through this, God does not want us begging Him to do as He has already promised or to request what He will never provide. We cannot go wrong when listening to God and are often wrong when pleading with Him.

As a compound word based upon chalah | to be a sickening and sorrowful beggar, a wearisome and diseased malcontent, tachilah presents Daniel as we have cast him. Frankly, it was obvious – which was the point and the reason for Dowd’s astute assessment.

Moreover, since tachilah is also shaded by chalal, which addresses the commonality and profanity of religious and political corruption, Dany*el is exactly as I had surmised. He is prophetic of politicized religion. He is being used as a foil upon which to expose and condemn the emergence and spread of the weeds we know as Rabbinic Judaism and Roman Christianity.

After listening to him, I want to thank our Messiah and Shepherd for confirming that this radically different interpretation of Daniel is accurate. Never once during the nearly 2,600 years which have transpired since the book was written, has anyone dared to present this man from this perspective. And now that we are here, and have done so, boldly sharing Yahowah's disdain for religion and politics, we find God's Anointed affirming these perceptions.

The narrative found within the first six chapters of Daniel is as irritating as it is insightful, while symbolically presenting the disgusting consequence of religious and political indoctrination. The stench is sickening and debilitating to mankind and irritating to God. The opening chapters serve as an exposé on why God hates Babylon and why men and women must leave its toxic influence to be with Him.

Try as he might to distance himself from this horrible stain on his soul and stigma on his life, Dany^oel was still plagued by his childhood programming and by being indoctrinated at the height of Babylon's deplorable culture. It did not matter what he ate or said, because he had swallowed the poison and it had profaned and corrupted him. His contribution to this story is that he could write. Beyond that, he is the embodiment of all that is wrong with Babel, of associating with the Lord, and of integrating religion and politics. Dany^oel is a spawn of the Beast and represents the emergence of Judaism and Christianity.

For his sake, I hope he figured it out before it was too late. It is certain that he was afforded enough information to resolve this problem. After all, that is the message Dowd will soon convey. If he starts listening and comes to understand, he can still capitalize upon what Father and Son are offering. But between now and that time, let's keep it real, as Dowd has done, and not be afraid to denounce all that is wrong while celebrating the realization that the Towrah can perfect even the most imperfect.

The pronouncement, any bow | I, myself, have come, having returned, affirms that the man being identified as Gabry*el has been here previously and that we should be able to readily identify him. Further, he plays an essential role in helping us understand God's message.

Now that Gabry*el has been properly introduced, and the purpose of this revelation has been established, it is time to consider the prophecy. What follows provides the blueprint for redemption and adoption, reconciliation and everlasting life. And you'll note that it is focused upon "your people" and "your city" – Yahuwdym and Yaruwshalaim. Sorry, Twistians, but this pronouncement does not apply to you. And for Jews, please pay attention...

"The many promises associated with Shabuw*ah and the Shabat, along with the vows pertaining to the things Seven represents, even seventy sevens (*shabuwa*ym shib*iyim*) are determined and decreed (chathak – He has planned, divided out, and marked) on behalf of your people, the extended family (al *am atah – for your kin) and upon your set-apart city and its distinctly uncommon inhabitants (*wa *al *iyr qodesh atah – over your special and separated population center, including those who are separated and distinct and, thus, not religious) to bring an end to the religious rebellion, eliminating the revolting communal defiance and contrarian views (*la kalah ha pesha – for the abolition and complete purging of revolting opposition, of pervasive transgression, of being at fault, guilty of being contrarians who have defected from the relationship), to affix the signature which seals up the guilt associated with having missed the way, precluding ever being wrong again (*wa la chatham chata*owth* – to affirming the authenticity of that which constrains and prevents everything associated with going astray), to provide reconciliation for religious error, purging the perverse corruptions and twisted perversions (*wa la kaphar awon – to cover over by atoning, ransoming and annulling distortions), to arrive with and bring that which is eternally right, always correct, forever accurate and honest, thereby attaining everlasting deliverance and vindication (wa la bow tsedeq owlam – to come with ongoing and perpetual justice and deliverance, innocence and prosperity, returning to pursue enduring righteousness), to provide a personal seal and signature to revelation, confirming and completing these communications (*wa la chatham chazown wa naby – to confirm and complete the visual communication from God about the future) and to prophecy (*wa naby – to the prophet), while also anointing the Most Set Apart (wa la mashach qodesh qodesh – and to consecrate, dedicate, and prepare the separated, special, distinctly different, and uniquely uncommon).” (Dany^{el} / My God Judges / Daniel 9:24)

This is Dowd's story, explaining why he was willing and able to fulfill the decree Yahowah had made to his people through the seven Miqra^{ey} | Invitations. With his arrival in Yaruwshalaim in advance of Passover and then again on Kipurym, he has and will bring an end to the consequence of religious rebellion and contrarian views. With him serving as our lamb and our shepherd, God's people will never stray again. With our souls perfected and the relationship reconciled on these occasions, Yisra^{el} will be right forevermore, becoming eternally vindicated. This is the summation of all prophecy. The fruition of God's promises occurs as Dowd anoints the Mercy Seat of the Covenant within the Qodesh Qodesh of God's Home on Yowm Kipurym so that we can celebrate Sukah.

This pronouncement pertains to the Shabat and to the promises associated with Shabuw^{ah} and Taruw^{ah}. It is for Dany^{el}'s people and extended family and, thus, for Jews, and his city, which is Jerusalem. So, since it is all designed to eliminate their guilt, one would have to be foolish to believe any of this pertained to a gentile religion which was vehemently opposed to all of this. As such, this prophecy cannot be predictive of the Christian Christ.

The reason that I included, but did not lead with, the customary “seventy sevens” rendering of shabuwa^{ym} shib^{iyim} in this context is that we were not given a starting point, and when one is provided in the next statement, the timeline becomes 7 plus 62 weeks. Also, since Dowd is the focus of all seven Miqra^{ey}, including being the one who made it possible for the Covenant Family to be enriched and empowered by Shabuw^{ah}, shabuwa^{ym} shib^{iy}m is communicating something considerably more important.

This insight is fostered by the recognition that Shabuw^{ah} follows Bikuwrym | Firstborn Children by seven weeks. It serves to reward and protect God's family – especially the beneficiaries of what the Bakowr | Firstborn – Dowd accomplished by fulfilling the Spring Miqra^{ey}. As such, Shabuw^{ah} is a celebration of how his sacrifices during Chag Matsah conceive and benefit the Covenant relationship and enable God's Children to come Home.

With Shabuw^{ah} focused upon enlightening the minds and enriching the lives of the beneficiaries of Chag Matsah, and with the Ingathering of God's Family, explaining when, why, and through whom this would occur, understanding its position within Yahowah's overall plan is instrumental to appreciating how we got to this place and where we go from here. Therefore, when we account for the generations from *Adam to *Abraham, we find that forty Yowbel, or 2000 years, separate them. Additionally, another forty Yowbel transpire from *Abraham's experience on Mount Mowryah to Dowd's Passover sacrifice in this same place. And that means that a pattern has emerged.

Two thousand years after *Adam and Chawah's expulsion from the Garden of *Eden, God confirmed the Covenant in 1968 BCE (year 2000 Yah) with *Abraham, Sarah, and Yitschaq for us to return home. Then to provide the resulting rewards, including immortality, perfection, adoption, enrichment, and empowerment, God's attention would return to Mowryah forty Yowbel thereafter in year 4000 Yah (33 CE), with His Son walking out of the pages of the Towrah to fulfill Passover, UnYeasted Bread, and Firstborn Children.

But that would not be the end of God's story. Bikuwrym would enable the Shabu^{ah} Harvest, celebrated on the Shabat of June 11, 2027 ~ a date we have already affirmed. Then after enduring the Time of Ya^{aqob}'s Troubles, Yisra^{el}'s problems will be resolved on Taru^{ah}, the Shabat of September 24th, 2033 in year 6000 Yah. The mortal remnant of Yisra^{el} will be purged and prepared for the Messiah's return on Yowm Kipurym, at sunset on October 2nd, 2033.

King Dowd | David is the only person whom Yahowah anointed three times as His Messiah and also announced three times that he was His Son. To claim this of another calls God a liar. To not claim it of Dowd, is to estrange oneself from God.

As a result, on the Miqra^o of Kipurym in year 6000 Yah, Father and Son will return and the Covenant will be restored with Yisra^{el} and Yahuwdym. At the same time, Yahowah will integrate the Towrah into our lives. Five days later as we celebrate Sukah | Shelters, we will enjoy the final thousand years of human history on this planet – camping out with our Heavenly Father, and brother, through year 7000 Yah.

Along these lines, the seven days of Creation, the depiction of the Shabat, the number of Invitations to be Called Out and Meet and, indeed, the history of humankind estranged from God, even the number of Ruwach devoted to facilitating this analysis of Daniel, are predicated upon the formula of six plus one equates to seven. As such, nearly six thousand years of man separated from Yahowah have transpired since humankind was expelled from ^{*}Eden. We are, therefore, on the cusp of the one-thousand-year celebration of living together again. In this light, shabuwa^{ym} shib^{iy}m defines the passage of time from the beginning to the conclusion of God's story.

Also interesting, when we add the 7 weeks of years between the edict to return and the restoration of Yaruwshalaim, to the 62 weeks of years between that time and the fulfillment of the first four Miqra^{ey}, we are left 1 week of years shy of 70. If that 7-year difference is attributed to the Time of Trouble, the inference is that nothing of merit occurred between year 4000

Yah in 33 CE when the first three Miqra^{ey} were fulfilled and year 5993 Yah in 2026 or 5994 in 2027 – six to seven years prior to Yah’s return during the Shabu^wah Harvest.

Considering all that he said would be accomplished, by offering these numbers and describing the results, Dowd is directing us to his fulfillment of Chag Matsah and to his return on Yowm Kipurym. He wants his people to be aware of how different the last seven years will be compared to everything else they have previously endured. And from this perspective, by providing the date he will fulfill Chag Matsah and then jumping ahead 1,993 years to the 7 years preceding his return to fulfill Yowm Kipurym, he is bypassing the era of the rabbis and the Church Age. It suggests that they are counter to the objectives which have been delineated or superfluous to them. And this realization precludes the proposition of a different Messiah and competing testimonials being part of God’s plan.

Since Dowd will go on to present the day and year he will fulfill the Mow^{ed} Miqra^{ey} of Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym, there are aspects of these Invitations to Meet which are germane to the prophecy. By fulfilling Passover and UnYeasted Bread, God’s children become immortal and are perfected, thereby forever resolving the consequence of pesha^o, chata^{ah}, and awon*, while ushering in an owlam* celebration of everything which is tsedeq. Therefore, this statement from Dowd was spoken to unfurl the entire canvas of time and the towrah. It is God’s tapestry from the first strand to the final knot.

From the perspective of time, shabuwa^ym shibⁱym is seventy sevens or, potentially, $70 \times 7 = 490$ prophetic years. Elsewhere, when Dany^{el} wants to convey a week of seven days, he spells it out just that way. For example, in Dany^{el} 10:2, the prophet reveals that he was in mourning for “three weeks of days.”

It isn’t until Dowd’s next statement that he pinpoints the exact day in the Yowbel year of 4000 Yah when the first three Mow^{ed} Miqra^{ey} would be, and now have been, fulfilled.

From there, we can readily deduce Yahowah and Dowd's return on Yowm Kipurym in year 6000 Yah, to the minute, hour, day, and year.

We can also turn back the clock 40 Yowbel from year 4000 Yah to ascertain when the Beryth | Covenant was ratified between Yahowah, *Abraham, Sarah, and Yitschaq. Another 40 Yowbel back in time takes us to the day *Adam and Chawah were exiled from the Garden, establishing the year Yahowah's 7,000-year calendar began to unfold.

It is also interesting to travel in time to the midway point between *Adam and *Abraham – 20 Yowbel from each – because we arrive at Noah's birth in advance of the flood. Similarly, by splitting the difference between *Abraham and Dowd's sacrifice as the Pesach *Ayil, we are directed to the year the cornerstone was laid in year 3000 Yah.

Digging deeper, there are some interesting subtleties associated with chathak | determined and decreed which we should consider. It is a precise computation of time. God has a plan. It has been marked out for us in the Towrah wa Naby*. It will play out on His schedule – on the very days He has determined.

Time, from Yah's perspective, is divided and segmented, with each event separated from the next by an exacting measure. And God is resolute in His resolve to see His plan through. There will be no hesitation, equivocation, or delay.

Also relevant, since the dates of the Mow^ed are determined every year, with Passover, UnYeasted Bread, and Firstborn Children celebrated on the 14th, 15th, and 16th days of the first month, we should expect that Dowd's revelation will lead us directly to Pesach in the Yowbel Shanah of 4000 Yah. If so, God assuredly knows when and where He is going to fulfill His promises. And since He provided us with the means to determine these dates, we are privy to what He knows.

There is no justification or excuse for the random dating

Maimonides thrust upon an ignorant and unsuspecting audience. Here in the summer of 2025, as we approach Taruw^{ah}, it is year 5992 Yah – with just 8 years remaining before Yahowah’s return on Yowm Kipurym in year 6000 Yah – sunset in Jerusalem, 6:22 PM local time, on October 2nd, 2033.

The Rambam was wrong on all accounts. Creation occurred 14 billion years ago, not in 3759 BCE as he claimed. Further, the expulsion from *Gan eden, demarking year 0 Yah, transpired in 3968 BCE. A new year begins on the 1st of abyb*, in the Spring, not when the Babylonians observed Rosh Hashanah. But since the rabbi was more impressed with his own calculations than the genealogies established in the Towrah for this purpose, his Sanctification of the Moon scheme has led Jews astray for over 800 years. His calendar, based upon the Islamic magic number of 19, remains 197 years off the mark.

When Yahowah inspires one of His prophets to say am anah | for your people, He is almost always addressing Yisra^{el} and Yahuwdym. Not only is this affirmed by the constant references to am* throughout the Towrah, am* also means “family.” Therefore, the plan Yahowah is unfurling would be designed in support of the Covenant He established with Yisra^{el} beginning with Abraham* and Sarah.

Yahowah’s focus is on Yaruwshalaim | the Source of Guidance on Reconciliation. The iyr qodesh* | set-apart city, therefore, not only denotes the location where these prophecies would be fulfilled but, also, for whom. It is the most qodesh | set-apart place on Earth. It is in Jerusalem that Yahowah made it possible for us to be separated from the pesha^o, chata^{ah}, and awon* of man and be tsedeq regarding Him.

Qodesh is among the most revealing and least understood terms in the Hebrew lexicon. It means “to be set apart.” It affirms that God wants us to be like Him, distinct from the ways of man and, thus, uncommon. So, when we consider the two most pervasive and popular human agencies, to be qodesh means that we should not be religious or political. To be set apart unto Yahowah is to be separated from such things.

Everything that is important to Yahowah is qodesh, including the Ruwach Qodesh | Set-Apart Spirit. Yisra^{el}, Yahuwdah, Yaruwshalaim, and Mowryah are qodesh, as are Yahowah's Shem, His Towrah, Beryth, Miqra^{ey}, and Shabat, including His Ben | Son and Am* | Family.

Within its third iteration, there will be a Qodesh Qodesh | Most Set-Apart Place. It will model the location where Yahowah was seen and heard above the Ark of the Covenant. And it will be here that Dowd, as the Qodesh Qodesh, will mashach | anoint the Kaporeth | Mercy Seat as the first order of business upon his return on Yowm Kipurym, doing so within the Beyth | Home he and his Father will erect with their words.

Therefore, when theologians mistranslate Yahowah's revelation using religious terminology like "holy," the faithful are played for fools. They are stupefied into believing that religion is the cure rather than the disease. In truth, *She*owl* | Hell is set apart from God while Shamaym | Heaven is set apart from religion.

Now that Gabry^{el} | Dowd has revealed when, for whom, and where he is going to act pursuant to this prophecy, let's consider through whom and why he is committed to accomplishing this list of six things. The first is *la kalah ha pesha | to bring an end to the revolting religious rebellion. According to God, Yisra^{el}ites have engaged in communal insubordination and mass defection, showing solidarity in their contrarian positions. And while this means that Judaism has been toxic to Jews, it is just a more targeted disease than are Christianity, Islam, and Marxism. Wrong comes in many flavors.

What's worse: replacing the Shabat with Sunday or imposing a thousand meaningless restrictions upon the seventh day, supplanting the Towrah with the New Testament or the Talmud, believing that "Jesus Christ" is the Son of God and the Messiah or repressing the realization that Dowd served as the Passover Lamb and that he is the Son of God and Messiah?

What's worse: believing that there is no God or establishing the Lord as God? Do you think Yahowah is bothered more by those who claim He does not exist or by those who confuse Him for Satan? What do you suppose He finds more offensive: being identified with a star or the image of a dead god on a stick? Is the Jewish corruption of Pesach and Matsah worse than the Christian opposition to them?

Kalah reveals that Yahowah is promising to put an end to the communal defiance and religious rebellion of His people – eliminating these things. For God to enjoy our company, for the Earth to become like *Eden, and for heaven to be joyful, there must be a place and time where the choice to rebel and to be revolting no longer exists.

In context, the fulfillments of the first three Mow^ed in 33 CE laid the foundation for this result. They provide a second chance for God's people. And that makes Taruw^eah the final opportunity for eternal life, perfection, adoption, and enrichment for Yahuw^dym. Through Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuw^rym, it is now possible to reconcile the relationship on Shabu^wah and Taruw^eah and enjoy Kipu^rym.

There is no Kipu^rym without the prior fulfillment of Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuw^rym, or the ongoing contribution of Shabu^wah and Taruw^eah. They must be fulfilled for this to resonate sufficiently to draw an audience. The six resolutions on Dowd's initial list will become manifest over time, commencing in year 4000 Yah with Chag Matsah. They will conclude with Taruw^eah, Kipu^rym, and Sukah in 6000 Yah. And this means that the one being anointed a fourth time will be Dowd. Both King and the Mercy Seat represent the final anointing.

Pesha^e serves to demonstrate a crucial aspect of human nature. It is "punishment which fits the crime," especially in association with "institutional, societal, and national guilt born of rebellion." This axiom undergirds most justice systems: commit a crime, do the time. Consequence and responsibility are the underpinnings of morality. And what is true in the here and now is also viable in the hereafter, although the consequences are more enduring. Yahowah is fair, so there will be recompense. Those who have misled His people, harming them, will be held accountable while those who are vindicated will find favor during Pesach, Matsah, Bikuwrym, Shabuw^{ah}, and Taruw^{ah}. Therefore, Yahowah's return on Yowm Kipurym to celebrate Sukah will be more than a Day of Reconciliations and time to Camp Out, because 45 days of Judgment will follow – thereby bringing an end to religious rebellion.

The second statement of purpose has been and will continue to be fulfilled in increments. It began with the Towrah serving as the la chatam chata^{ah} | signed document which seals up the guilt associated with being wrong and missing the way. Through the benefits of the Covenant and by acting to fulfill Passover, UnYeasted Bread, and Firstborn Children, Father and Son have attested to the authenticity of the Towrah.

However, as was the case with the first of these six statements of purpose, while the groundwork was laid to remedy the persistent encroachment of religion and politics upon Yisra^{el} in year 4000 Yah with the fulfillment of the first three Miqra^{ey}, this prophecy will be fulfilled in stages with the final acts occurring on Shabuw^{ah} and Taruw^{ah}, resulting in the Day of Reconciliations in year 6000 Yah so that we can Camp Out together forevermore. That is when Yahowah will place His Towrah inside of the Covenant's children while writing His name on our hearts.

Chata^{ah} is typically translated as either “sin” or “guilt.” However, since it is derived from chata^{ah}, it is more accurately depicted as “missing the way” or “going astray.” To be chata^{ah} is to be “misled” and “wrong” about God. As such, chata^{ah} is caused by religion – the lone institution responsible for mass deception regarding the Almighty.

This brings us to the third statement of purpose, one which also directs our attention to Yowm Kipurym in year 6000 Yah.

God promised la kaphar awon | to provide reconciliation for the perverse distortions associated with religious corruptions. Relative to Yisra*el, kaphar | restoration of the relationship is the prime objective. This is the verb which explains the purpose of the Day of Reconciliations. Kaphar also sits at the heart of the Kaporeth | Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant. And both the Mercy Seat and this *Miqra are irrevocably linked to Dowd's return with his Father.

The Covenant was broken by Yisra*el, so for God's people to return to fellowship, the relationship must be reconciled – which is to be made harmonious again. The wrongs will have to be pardoned and forgiven, atoned and annulled.

The interesting thing about Kipurym is that unlike the other six *Mow*ed which serve Yahuwdym and Gowym – the Day of Reconciliations is intended for Yisra*el ~ as is *Taruw*ah before it. They denote the days when God's people are reunited with one another and with Yahowah. A remnant will recognize Yahowah at long last and greet Him by name as He returns to Yaruwshalaim.

Therefore, *Yowm Taruw*ah and Kipurym meet all of the previous criteria: they will occur on a predetermined date, they are for God's people, they will materialize in Jerusalem, they will bring an end to religious rebellion, and they will make it possible for Yahowah to place His towrah | guidance and name within His people such that they will never again go astray or wander away from Him. And this means that the Messiah is speaking of the events which enable his arrival as Messiah and King.

Yisra*el broke the Beryth by promoting “awon – perverse corruptions” of the truth. They went from right to wrong, liberated to servitude, enriched to impoverished, life to death, vindicated to condemned. Awon depicts a precipitous fall because there is nothing more damaging to our relationship with God than trafficking in that which is inaccurate and untrustworthy. Far worse than ignoring Yahowah's testimony is corrupting and perverting it, bending and twisting it, because doing so conceals the truth and provides false hope.

If you open a lexicon to kaphar, the first thing you are likely to read would be “to make atonement.” But that is a religious term, meaning “to make reparation to atone for sin.” As noted earlier, God has no interest in us begging for forgiveness because He has already facilitated our reconciliation – ending the prolonged divorce.

There is a secondary connotation to kaphar which begins to make sense when viewed in association with the work of the Ruwach Qodesh. On four occasions, including the Miqra^{*} of Kipurym, we are invited to approach the Spiritual manifestation of Yah's light – the Ruwach Qodesh. The intent is to “kaphar – cover us” in a Garment of Light, reflecting the benefits achieved during Matsah.

In this way, kaphar is similar to being anointed, which also means “to coat or cover.” This correlation is significant because Dowd | David, as the exemplar of the Covenant, was anointed both with oil and by the Ruwach, symbolically demonstrating what God has planned for His children.

Moving to the fourth of six prophetic promises offered in association with seventy sevens, Yahowah stands ready to correct the consequence of pesha^{*}, chata^{*}ah, and awon* by la bow^{*} tsedeq owlam* | arriving with and bringing that which is eternally right, correct, accurate, and honest, thereby attaining everlasting vindication. Now that the relationship has been reconciled, Our Heavenly Father wants to surround us with that which is accurate and true, honest and reliable. He wants our relationship to be perfect and enduring. And for this to occur, He is committed to writing His Towrah | Guidance inside of us. We will have perfect and unencumbered access to the truth forevermore.

As we move past the first three promises to the fourth, we transition from Yahowah righting wrongs to wanting us to be right. Having rid the world of religion, He is celebrating our perfection. Having returned to *Eden, all is good again between God and man.

The fifth statement of purpose is one that the religious can neither fathom nor accept. There were only five prophets after this pronouncement – Zakaryah, Yow*el, and Mal*aky – then after the passage of 2,500 years, the return of Myka*el and *ElYah as the final Witnesses. Therefore, *Gabry*el* | God’s Most Capable and Confident Individual revealed that all of this would *la chatam chazown wa naby | provide a personal seal and signature to the documentation and authenticity which curtails the flow of communication from God through the prophets.

Should you be curious, there is very little if anything useful or new in Revelation. The parts which are reliable are paraphrases of the actual prophets such as Dany*el, Yasha*yah, Yirma*yah, and Zakaryah. Revelation, itself, like the “Gospel of John,” fails Yahowah’s Towrah test regarding His inspiration. Moreover, there are some 38 citations from Ezekiel in Revelations – one of which would be sufficient to condemn the book.

The continuous flow of revelations from Yahowah through His prophets, beginning with Moseh circa 1450 BCE would begin a long intermission 1000 years thereafter following Mal*aky circa 450 BCE. There would be no more until the return of Myka*el and *ElYah.

However, Father and Son were not done fulfilling prophecy. They would act in year 4000 Yah to enable the promises relative to the first three Miqra*ey and then intervene again in human affairs, bringing the Family Home on Shabuw*ah on the Shabat of June 11th, 2027. And then in year 6000 Yah, beginning on Taruw*ah, we will experience the Greatest Show on Earth to deliver the benefits of the final three Mow*edym. In so doing, they provided the final seal attesting to the validity of their witness.

The sixth provision is intriguing. *Gabry*el* | God’s Most Effective Man and His Anointed said, “wa la mashach qodesh qodesh – and to anoint the Most Set Apart.” He was speaking of himself and of the Mercy Seat within Yahowah’s Home. Mashach conveys the idea of “dedicating a person or object for service, setting him or it apart through the process of anointing.” To “anoint” addresses “covering the person or object with olive oil” – although sometimes it can be symbolically accomplished with water or blood depending upon the occasion, object, and purpose. This liquid can be applied in a variety of ways, from “spreading to smearing, from rubbing to sprinkling.”

Also, when it comes to la mashach qodesh qodesh, it is helpful to know that Messiah is from Mashyach, a derivative of mashach. So, if we were to consider the man most set apart unto Yahowah, the man most anointed by Yahowah, the man who is irrefutably ha Mashyach | the Messiah, our attention is drawn to Dowd | David.

This insight becomes especially relevant because there is a place which is also qodesh qodesh | most set apart – and that is the innermost chamber of Yahowah’s Home. This is the location of the Kaporeth | Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant. And as we discovered in Mow^ed | Appointments volume of Yada Yahowah, when ha Mashyach Dowd returns with Yahowah, he will anoint the Mercy Seat with a smattering of blood, honoring the Towrah’s prescription for reconciliation during Yowm Kipurym.

The most qodesh of the Miqra^ey is actually Chag Matsah. Inclusive of Pesach and Bikuwrym, it was also the most difficult and painful to fulfill. It would necessitate Dowd serving as the Lamb, then his soul being sent to the place of separation from Yahowah as the redeeming sacrifice. Throughout, the Ruwach Qodesh | Set-Apart Spirit would serve as the prime facilitator, conveying Dowd’s nepesh to and from She^eowl during Matsah. These aspects of qodesh | being set apart at work during the fulfillment of Chag Matsah may warrant the dual application of qodesh qodesh.

However, Kipurym is also qodesh, as is Dowd who will also be fulfilling it. And therefore, collectively, they are the qodesh qodesh | the most set apart. This will be especially so upon Dowd's return. During Kipurym, the Mashyach will reestablish Yahowah's Home with his words, placing it above the current location of the original Ark of the Covenant. Then Dowd will enter the Qodesh Qodesh and mashach | anoint the Kaporeth | Mercy Seat, facilitating the Towrah's promise to restore Yahowah's Family.

This will be the King's crowning achievement. He will fulfill the final chathak | decree made on behalf of God's people, doing so within his city. Poetically, profoundly, and prophetically, this will all occur in concert with shabuwa^{ym} shib^{ym} | the promise of a second enriching and empowering, emancipating and enlightening Shabuw^{ah} for the original beneficiaries of Chag Matsah and then again for the remnant at Taruw^{ah} and Kipurym.

Every promise Yahowah has made to Yisra^{el} through the seven Miqra^{ey} will be fulfilled as God's reunified family stands beside the King after He has rid the Earth of Yisra^{el}'s foes. Simultaneously, Yahowah will have restored the planet so that we can Sukah | Camp Out together. The seven days of Shelters will then lead us into the final Shabat – the seventh millennium. Chag Matsah and Taruw^{ah} will work in harmony to produce the ultimate Shabuw^{ah} | Promise of the Shabat as Yisra^{el}ites are emancipated, enriched, empowered, and enlightened – the vow of seven sevens fulfilled.

In this way, everything qodesh will be tsedeq | right again, including the Am* of Yisra^{el}, Yahuwdah and Yaruwshalaim, occurring al Mowryah* with the restoration of the Beyth for the Beryth through the Towrah and Miqra^{ey} so that we can enjoy the Shabat as never before.

Before we move on to the next statement, I'd like for Gabry^{el} | God's Most Capable and Courageous Man to have the opportunity to be heard yet again. He said...

“The many promises associated with Shabuw^{ah} and

the Shabat, along with the vows pertaining to the things Seven represents, even seventy sevens (shabuwa^{ym} shib^{iy}m), are determined and decreed, divided out and planned (chathak) on behalf of your people, the extended family (al *am atah), and upon your set-apart city and its distinctly uncommon inhabitants (*wa *al *iyr qodesh atah) to bring an end to the religious rebellion, eliminating the revolting communal defiance and contrarian views (la kalah ha pesha^o), to affix the signature which seals up the guilt associated with having missed the way, precluding ever being wrong again (wa la chatham chata^{ow}th), to provide reconciliation for religious error, purging the perverse corruptions and twisted perversions (wa la kaphar^{aw}on), to arrive with and bring that which is eternally right, always correct, forever accurate and honest, thereby attaining everlasting deliverance and vindication (wa la bow^{} tsedeq^{owlam}*), to provide a personal seal and signature to revelation, confirming and completing these communications (wa la chatham chazown wa naby^{}*), and to prophecy (wa naby^{}*— to the prophet), while also anointing the Most Set Apart (wa la mashach qodesh qodesh).” (Dany^{el} / Daniel 9:24)

This is Dowd's story, explaining why he was empowered and enriched, enlightened and enabled to fulfill the decree Yahowah had made to his people through the seven Miqra^{ey} | Invitations to be Called Out. With his arrival in Yaruwshalaim during Chag Matsah and again on Yowm Kipurym, he will bring an end to death and guilt, religious rebellion and contrarian views. With him serving as our lamb and shepherd, God's people will never stray again. With the relationship reconciled on these occasions, Yisra^{el} will be right forevermore, always correct and thus eternally vindicated. This is the summation of all prophecy. After the fulfillment of Pesach and Matsah leading to Bikuwrym, the fruition of God's promises transpire the moment Dowd anoints the Mercy Seat of the Covenant within the Qodesh Qodesh of God's Home on Yowm Kipurym to usher in Sukah in the Yowbel year of 6000 Yah. And in this light, *shabuwa*ym shib°*iy*m represents the seventy centuries of the seven Miqra°ey which encompass the rich history of God's relationship with mankind.

Moving on, I suspect that you will be surprised as I was by what follows....

“Therefore (wa), know (yada° – it is beneficial for you to be aware of Yada by coming to possess the information required to recognize the ongoing implications of Yada°s choices (qal imperfect jussive)) and gain the insights to understand (wa sakal – realizing that the best option is for you to be prudent after learning, succeeding and prospering by being attentive, properly educated, intelligent, and wise, perceiving (hifil imperfect jussive)) that from (min) the going forth of the word (mowtsa° dabar – the stage being set to begin the process in accord with the message) to return to restore (shuwb – to bring back to its original state), rebuilding (wa la banah – and reestablishing), Yaruwshalaim (Yaruwshalaim – the Source of Teaching and Guidance on Reconciliation) until the restoring testimony and eternal witness (°ad – up to, as far as, for an extension of time to become victorious and receive the spoils evidenced by the witness) of the Son of the Sovereign who is conspicuously making this known, and who is providing the leadership and counsel (nagyd – of the one who has officially obtained the status of being properly appointed, and who has expounded upon, announced, and proclaimed the message) of the Mashyach | the anointed Messiah (mashyach – the one who is set apart, anointed, and prepared to serve as authorized) are seven sevens, and thus seven promises and fulfilled vows (shabuwa°ym shiba°ah – contractual oaths fulfilled in harmony with the promises of Shabuw°ah over seven periods of seven weeks).

Therefore (wa), in sixty-two weeks (shabuwa°ym sheshym wa shanaym – based upon the promise of seven, in sixty and two weeks), she will be restored (shuwb – she will return and recover), and rebuilt to reestablish and fortify (wa banah – she will develop) the way to grow and expand (rachob – opening the way by expanding where people can congregate; from rachab – to grow larger and expand) by being diligent and decisive (wa charuwts – by becoming sharper, more determined, increasingly judgmental, separated and defensive) in a troubled time of oppression (wa ba tsowq ha ^eets – during a period of anguishing subjugation, restrictions, constraints, and persecution, being harassed and pushed into a corner; from tsuwq – to constrain and oppress).” (Dany^el / My God is Judgmental / Daniel 9:25)

Then after (wa ^aachar) the sixty-two weeks (ha shabuwa^{ym} sheshym wa shanaym), the Anointed Messiah (Mashyach) will be cut off and separated to create the covenant, being banished (karath – will be severed from the source and be cast off (nifal imperfect third-person masculine singular – he will accept being separated to receive and deliver the benefit of being cut into the covenant on an eternal basis)) but not for himself (wa ^aayn la huw^a).” (Dany^el / Daniel 9:26 in part)

Gabry^el | God's Most Confident and Capable, Courageous and Combative Man, prefaced his prophecy with yada^e and shakal. That is to say, by prudently processing this information, we will gain the insights needed to understand. He is the thinking man's prophet.

When he is speaking, as is also the case with ^aElYah and Yasha^ayah, one's brain needs to be engaged to keep pace. So, when he repeatedly indicates that to figure this out, we need to be discerning, learning by processing the information which he is providing in an intelligent manner, experience dictates that we follow his advice. In other words, we should consider how the pieces of the puzzle he provided fit together as opposed to plucking the mashyach references out of context to promote an agenda contrary to everything else he said. To be on the same page with the Messiah, we should linger on this page with him for a while.

He is explaining that there will be a public decree issued regarding the liberation of Yahuwdym | Jews from Babel | Commingling which Confuses. Therefore, it is worth considering the similarity between this and the decree to leave Mitsraym | the Crucibles of Religious and Political Oppression during Pesach to begin the *Yatsa | Exodus. This is because Yahowah introduced Pesach, Matsah, Bikuwrym, and Shabuw^{ah} to physically liberate the Children of Yisra^{el} from religious and political oppression. The process would continue with Yahowah explaining the Miqra^{ey} to Moseh within His Towrah | Guidance, which was likely received during Shabuw^{ah}. This ultimately led to God's people entering the Promised Land.

The proclamation Dowd is currently addressing is similar. This time, Yahuwdym will be liberated from religious and political subjugation in Babel – the birthplace of the Beast which would evolve from Imperial Rome to Roman Catholicism. Not only would they be physically freed, Yahuwdym would be able to rebuild Yaruwshalaim | the Source of Guidance on Reconciliation and the City of Dowd.

After the passage of the specified time, Dowd's nepesh | soul would return to his city to serve his people by fulfilling Pesach and Matsah leading to Bikuwrym. Then the promise of enrichment and empowerment was honored as a result. In so doing, the nepesh | souls of Covenant Members would be allowed to come home during Shabuw^{ah}, to become exempt from the tyranny of politics and religion plaguing the planet.

Nearly 40 Yowbel thereafter, we are using Shabuw^{ah} and Taruw^{ah} to call the Covenant Family Home, back to the Promised Land, to their Messiah, and to Yahowah. This will culminate with the grand reunion during Dowd's return on Kipurym | Reconciliations, which leads to Sukah | Camping Out with our Father and His Family forevermore.

In this way, with the proclamation to leave Babel | Babylon and restore Yaruwshalaim | the Source of Guidance on Reconciliation, one event foreshadows the next, becoming a harbinger of what follows, each step liberating us from religious influence and political control so that we can come home and live as family.

In conjunction with the redemption of his people, the *Nagy*d | the Son of the Sovereign, by *nagy*d | publicly revealing what would occur, explaining how it would transpire, and then demonstrating the character and courage to bring this to fruition, is the one who is providing leadership and counsel as ha Mashyach | the Messiah. He is fulfilling his vows and those of his Father over the course of the seven Mow^ed.

While the Messiah Dowd is the Son of the Sovereign, in the sense of Yahowah, it is also true that Yada is the representative of the Sovereign, who is King Dowd, conspicuously making our Messiah's identity known. He is tasked with the responsibility for explaining all of this intelligently so that it can be widely known.

Recognizing that Dowd's gruesome and heroic portrayal of his soul's fulfillment of Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym in the 22nd Mizmowr depicting what would happen to him more than 400 years prior to this proclamation, this pronouncement may be the most cathartic ever made...

“Then after (wa ^{}achar) the sixty-two weeks (ha shabuwa^{ym} sheshym wa shanaym), the Anointed Messiah (Mashyach) will be cut off and separated (karath) but not for himself (wa ^{}ayn la huw^{*}).”

This self-portrait is awe-inspiring, so courageous, and compassionate. It is hard to properly convey the enormity of this moment. I am overwhelmed by what he had volunteered to endure and overjoyed by what he accomplished. I am also horrified by what the religious have done to cheat him and us of the magnitude of this gift.

I'm not immune to criticism either. Over the past 24 years, I've made more excuses for Daniel 9:25 and 26 than anything else in the Tanakh. And now, I know that it is only from the perspective of Dowd revealing what he would achieve that his words ring true. And yet, as the first and only one to ascertain this profoundly important realization from the Towrah and Naby^{ym}, I suspect I've been exonerated.

The only prophetic statements which rival this in the challenges they pose to translation and understanding are 2 Shamuw^{el} 7 and Yasha^{yah} 9, both of which we have considered and reconsidered many times. It was in the first of these, reading Yahowah's response to Dowd wanting to build a home for Him, that we were finally able to resolve the identity of the son and king. And all that was required for it to be consistent with the whole of God's story was to understand the change in audience – from God speaking to Dowd through Nathan, to God speaking of him to us, and then back to speaking directly to His Son. The identity of the son in Yasha^{yah} 9 lay in the recognition that only one name was given to identify him, just as there is only one person to whom all of the accolades are applicable.

In the preamble to this prophecy, Gabry^{el} | God's Most Capable and Courageous Man listed many things which would be resolved as a result of what he would accomplish, some of which were achieved during Chag Matsah while most will be fulfilled on Taruw^{ah} prior to Dowd's Yowm Kipurym return. They are listed together because they will be accomplished by the same Messiah.

And speaking of ha Mashyach, if not Dowd, how would a new one have been anointed such that we could learn of him? Dowd had clearly stated that this would bring an end to prophecy. There would be no one for Yahowah to work with or speak through at this time.

Since we know the timing of the decree to rebuild Jerusalem, and we have done the math, we know that the Messiah's fulfillment of Chag Matsah occurred in the Yowbel year of 4000 Yah, 33 CE, in absolute harmony with the Towrah's instructions. Since ha Mashyach's body was karat | cut down and died on Passover and then was karat | separated on UnYeasted Bread, a Shabat, with the Firstborn released and returned to his Father on Invitation of Firstborn Children, the individual fulfilling the Towrah's promises could not have been the founder of a Towrah-adverse religion. That would have been absurd.

Dowd knew that something special was going to occur in his city, Yaruwshalaim | the Source of Guidance Regarding Reconciliation, in 7 + 62 weeks of years from the pronouncement to return, not only because he was a prophet but, also, because he would endure it.

We have been given a starting point, one we will track down in a moment, pertaining to the announcement to return and restore Yaruwshalaim by the man who built Jerusalem into the City of David 3,000 years ago. He was the most prolific source of restoring testimony found within Yahowah's eternal witness. Moreover, Dowd is the most conspicuous of Yisra^el's leaders and the most profuse counselor. He is also the preeminent Mashyach, having been anointed three times on Yahowah's instruction.

Once again, the timing, if we are to read it as such, is predicated upon shabuwa^{ym} shiba^{ah} | seven promises and contractual vows fulfilled in harmony with Shabuw^{ah} over seven periods of seven weeks. While Dowd will soon return to fulfill Kipurym, and then serve as the King of Sukah, the Son of God embodies Bikuwrym, and it is Firstborn Children which makes Shabuw^{ah} possible. He is Yahowah's Bakowr | Firstborn, the foremost beneficiary of Shabuw^{ah} | the Promise of Seven. Yahowah has overtly empowered and enriched, enlightened and enabled Dowd.

Once home, the result would have nothing to do with buildings, plazas, broad avenues, defensive walls, or moats, as other translators will claim. When we turn to the verbal root of the words Dowd selected, we discover that what is going to be shuwb | restored and banah | established is rachob | the way to grow and expand by charuwts | being diligent and decisive. What is being foretold is the fulfillment of the first three Miqra^ey in year 4000 Yah because they provide the benefits of the Covenant – the means to grow and expand – for those who are diligent and decisive regarding the terms of acceptance.

We also learn that this will occur ba tsowq ha ^eets | in a troubling time of oppression, of anguishing subjugation, restrictions, and constraints. Dowd is speaking of Yahuwdym being persecuted and harassed by Imperial Rome and then pushed into a corner and confined by her Church.

Since I'm anxious to reprise the math and verify the result, let's interrupt the conclusion of this prophecy and do the arithmetic. We'll reconnect with Gabry^el thereafter and consider all he had to share. After all, Dowd knew what was going to happen to himself and to his people, and he warned us about it. The very least we can do is listen.

Now it's time to fill in some of the gaps. And first among them is to return to the math itself. In this regard, it is helpful to know that a prophetic year isn't equivalent to a solar year. And so, to ascertain the number of days in "sixty-two weeks" of years, we should adjust our measurements to Yah's prophetic process. This consists of twelve months of 30 days (based upon a sensible rounding up to the nearest full integer of the 29.5 days of a lunar cycle) – not the 365.242 to which we are now accustomed based upon the Roman method.

This duration of time also differed from the Babylonian approach because they observed a lunisolar year which added an intercalary month every five to six years to prevent the shifting of seasons. They were aware that the solar year was 365¼ days long, but a lunar calendar remained the only practical timekeeping device before mass communication and mechanics. A lunisolar system gave everyone a reliable means to "set their clocks." Every renewed moon marked the start of a new month.

The Yisra^elites, based upon Yahowah's Towrah instruction, used a different method with the same result. An intercalary month was added based on barley, the first grain to rise in the spring. Fruit harvested in the suburbs of Yaruwshalaim | Jerusalem was tested as they approached the nearest renewed moon to the vernal equinox. If the grain was green and growing, still laden with water, it would dance in a hot pan placed above an open fire. In that case, the next renewing moon would designate the beginning of a new year.

However, as effective as this is year to year, it is not a predictive approach since it only pertains to the beginning of the current year. Therefore, since this was not predictive of future years, and thus not prophetic, it would lead to confusion over centuries of time. The barley method does not offer a means to distinguish one year from the next in advance of the current situation. And that is what makes the length of a prophetic year – of 360 days – the one that was established in Bare^esyth / Genesis, where events related to the flood are given in both days and years.

These things known, the date of the “word came forth to restore and rebuild Jerusalem” is presented in Nachemyah / Nehemiah. There we read...

“And it came to pass in the month of Nisan, in the twentieth year of King Artaxerxes, when...I [Nachemyah]...said to the king, ‘If it pleases the king, and if your servant has found favor in your sight, I ask that you send me to Yahuwdah, to the city of my fathers’ tombs, that I may rebuild it.’ ...So it pleased the king to send me.”
(Nachemyah / Yah Comforts / Nehemiah 2:1-6)

In ascertaining this date, it is helpful to know that archeologists have recently discovered and translated thousands of cuneiform tablets from the ruins of Babylon. By doing so, we have come to learn that Artaxerxes was not able to assume the throne until 464 BCE. That would make the twentieth year of his reign, and thus the starting date of Gabry^el's / Dowd's prophecy in Daniel, the 1st of abyb* / Nisan, 444 BCE.

Therefore, from the Abyb* 1, 444 BCE date, we must add 7 weeks of years (49 prophetic years) until Yaruwshalaim would be rebuilt. Then there would be another 62 weeks (434 prophetic years) for a total of 483 prophetic years until the one miscast by the Romans, but yet authorized by God, would fulfill Pesach.

To calculate his arrival, we must multiply 483 (49 + 434) years by the 360 days in the Towrah's prophetic calendar. This equals 173,880 days, or 476 solar years plus an additional 21 days (when divided by 365.25), which we should then add to our starting date of Nissan 1 in 444 BCE – twenty years after Artaxerxes I secured the throne.

It bears repeating, the solar-lunar calendar used at the time by the Hebrews and Babylonians featured a 354-day year with the addition of 29.5 days for an additional lunar month 7 out of every 19 years. There was no Julian calendar at the time and the concept of a leap day to properly adjust the solar-lunar calendar wouldn't be conceived until halfway through this period. That is all to say, Dowd's intent with the prophecy was to get the thoughtful reader to realize that when he adds 476 years from Nisan in 444 BCE we arrive in Abyb* in 33 CE which is the Yowbel year of 4000 Yah. Mission accomplished.

What this means, at least when transferred to the Julian calendar, is that his fulfillment of Chag Matsah was foretold to transpire in April 33 CE (realizing that there was no year zero in the Julian or Gregorian calendars). As a result, the general timeframe of Abyb* in 33 CE, being 476 years from 444 BCE is both obvious and easy to deduce.

Affirming that we are in the right place and time, there is no question that 33 CE is the ideal outcome. So, while we don't have access to barley fields that year, we can deduce the same result using the Vernal Equinox. It was on March 20th, a Friday in 33 CE. The nearest emerging lunar crescent to it was conveniently on the same day, March 20th. And that is of great significance.

This means that the Passover meal would have been celebrated on Thursday April 2nd in 33CE, during the evening beginning at sunset. Dowd's body would then be crucified as he foretold, on Friday, April 3rd. Then, just prior to sunset and the beginning of the natural and symbolic Shabat of Matsah, his basar would be removed and incinerated that night.

He would have been cut off from the living during Matsah, commencing on Friday evening and running through Saturday, April 4th at sundown. Dowd's nepesh was laden with our guilt and taken to She^eowl to deposit it there never to be seen again. This not only means that Firstborn Children was observed on the first day of the new week, but also that Chag Matsah would continue through Friday, April 9th which is, drumroll please, exactly 476 years and 21 days from ^{*}Abyb 1, 444 BCE. So, not only was Gabry^eel / Dowd revealing that his fulfillment of Chag Matsah would occur beginning Thursday, April 2nd with the Passover meal, and that he would serve as the Lamb on Friday, April 3rd, removing our guilt on the Shabat of April 4th, 33 CE, he reminded all who would do the math, that Chag Matsah is a seven-day celebration of our redemption.

It is also profoundly important to note that the only way for the forecast year to be correct is for there to be an observable sliver of light emerging on the moon's surface nearest to the Vernal Equinox and for that to occur on a Friday, which it does in 33 CE. But to be precise, it must also be collocated with the equinox, which not only occurs in 33 CE, but does not happen again for at least another 70 years. Neither occur in 34, 35, 36, 37, or 38, with only half of that equation met in 39 CE. In fact, going forward in time, there wasn't another match with the first crescent of a new moon being viewable on the Vernal Equinox through 100 CE. Going back in time, there is a very weak partial match with the observable new moon on a Friday in 26 CE, but it's on the 8th, and thus nowhere close to the equinox. We have to go all the way back to 14 CE for another partial match, with the visible crescent coterminous with the equinox, but it's on a Tuesday. In 6 CE we find the crescent on a Friday, and only a day from the Vernal Equinox, but not ideal and still 17 years shy of the result that Dowd forecast. Therefore, this gives us some sense of how unique 33 CE was in this regard to be the perfect fit in years, days, correlation to the equinox, and the proper day of the week for all of what Dowd revealed to be a perfect fit. What has been lost on so many is how exquisitely the detail of the prophecy matched its fulfillment.

Dowd's entry into Yaruwshalaim | Jerusalem coincided with the day the paschal lamb would have been brought into the household, on the tenth day of abyb*, when, just as they had in Chazaqyah | Hezekiah's time, large crowds had gathered in Yaruwshalaim | the Source of Guidance on Reconciliation. This conveniently, occurred on a Sunday, the 29th of March in 33 CE, corroborating not only the "Palm Sunday" recollections, but also affirming that the Passover supper was observed on a Thursday, that "Good Friday" is when the crucifixion transpired, and that it was on a Sunday morning that the Messiah returned to his Father.

Dowd's prophecy and his subsequent sacrifice corresponded perfectly with the designated time of Passover in year 4000 Yah / Thursday and Friday April 2nd and 3rd in 33 CE. It was just before sunset beginning the fourteenth day of abyb* that all of this transpired, with Mission Accomplished on the 9th of April, at the completion of Chag Matsah, just as Dowd had foretold. His basar and nepesh served as promised.

The prophecy of the first *Miqra*ey* | Invitations to be Called Out and Meet of Pesach | Passover, Matsah | UnYeasted Bread, and Bikuwrym | Firstborn Children were honored literally, right down to the minute detail. There should have been no mistaking what he had done – at least for those who "darash – consistently seek to know Yahowah, who read the Towrah to find the way to Father and Son, who ponder the implications of the relationship He intended by diligently studying the Prophets."

Showing our appreciation for what Father and Son have done, we should answer God's invitation and observe Chag Matsah, keeping this appointment with Yahowah. The 14th through 21st days of Abyb* are not difficult to establish.

Passover is marked by the full moon closest to the spring equinox.

We should observe Chag Matsah | the Celebration of UnYeasted Bread by seeking to understand the intent of Yahowah's instructions, doing as much of what the Towrah teaches as possible. This Chag | Feast should be celebrated with Yisra^el and the Covenant Family in mind. The menu is roasted lamb and unyeasted bread with olive oil and bitter herbs, consistent with that of the first celebrants.

While we are reminiscing over the promise of life eternal, we can focus on what occurred during the first Passover, when lives were extended, Matsah when God's people left the realm of religious and political corruption, and Bikuwrym, when they burst out of the sea as newborn children. Yahowah presents His story in Shemowth / Exodus 12 and 13.

I would also encourage Covenant Members qara^e | to read the prophecies in Yasha^e Yah / Isaiah 53 and Mizmowr / Psalms 22 and 88 – all of which are translated for your benefit within these volumes. They speak vividly of Father and Son's intent and provisions for their People, Yisra^el, and for Yahowah's Beryth | Family.

Before we leave this profoundly important revelation from Gabry^el / Dowd regarding when he fulfilled Chag Matsah in year 4000 Yah, which began on Thursday and Friday April 2nd and 3rd in 33 CE, with the Mission Accomplished by the 9th of April, 476 years and 21 days from the Vernal Equinox in 444 BCE, there is another aspect of this which is even more important for us to acknowledge. With Dowd having affirmed the fulfillment of the Spring Mow^eedym in 33 CE, we can be absolutely certain that the Fall Miqra^eey will be fulfilled in 2033 CE / year 6000 Yah.

Therefore, we can now determine the days upon which Taruw^ah, Kipurym, and Sukah will be fulfilled with certainty. And that's a big deal, huge, HUGE. It is almost as important as realizing that it was Dowd who, as the Messiah and Son of God, was crucified in Jerusalem on Friday, April 3rd, 33 CE, as he foretold. And therefore, there is no room for the interloping Jesus in God's story.

If this was not enough, realize that this is the only place in the Prophets where there is a reference to a Messiah who will come and be cut off but not for himself. And yet, rather than justifying Christianity, it annuls it. Collectively, there are no more vital revelations for our time – proof that Jesus never existed while affirming that it was Dowd who fulfilled Chag Matsah in 33 CE / year 4000 Yah.

Let's return now to the continuing narrative Gabry*el / Dowd provided through Dany*el for our benefit 2600 years ago. When we do, we find ourselves jumping ahead in time forty years to the destruction of Dowd's city and Yahowah's Temple. But to appreciate this in context, last we read...

“Therefore (wa), know by being aware of Yada, recognizing (yada*) so as to gain the insights to think about and understand (wa sakal) that from (min) the going forth of the word (mowtsa* dabar) to return to restore (shuwb), rebuilding (wa la banah), Yaruwshalaim (Yaruwshalaim) until the restoring testimony and eternal witness (*ad) of the Son of the Sovereign who is conspicuously making this known, and who is providing the leadership and counsel (nagyd) of the Mashyach | the anointed Messiah (mashyach) are seven sevens, and thus seven promises and fulfilled vows (*shabuwa*ym shiba*ah*).

Therefore (wa), in sixty-two weeks (*shabuwa*ym sheshym wa shanaym*), she will be restored (shuwb) and rebuilt to reestablish and fortify (wa banah) the way to grow and expand (rachob) by being diligent and decisive (wa charuwts) in a troubled time of oppression (*wa ba tsowq ha ets).

(Dany^el 9:25)

Then after (wa ^eachar) the sixty-two weeks (ha shabuwa^m sheshym wa shanaym), the Anointed Messiah (Mashyach) will be cut off and separated to create the covenant, being banished (karath) but not for himself (wa ^eayn la huw^e).” (Dany^el 9:26 in part)

Therefore, as we have deduced, this was addressing the Mashyach Dowd's fulfillment of Chag Matsah between April 2nd and 9th in 33 CE / year 4000 Yah. But then, recognizing that his people would reject what he would achieve and even replace him, in one breath to the next, we find ourselves dealing with the consequence in 70 CE with the Beast of Rome destroying the city and Yahowah's Temple.

“Then (wa) the City (ha ^eiyir – the largest population center) of the Set Apart people and Sanctuary (wa ha qodesh – those who are separated and distinct, uncommon and devoted, both as individuals and as a set-apart place), will be corrupted, ravaged, and destroyed (shachath – will be ruined and rendered useless, annihilated and razed (hifil imperfect third-person masculine singular)).” (Dany^el 9:26 in part)

History tells us that the ^eEbyownym were the only ones who both recognized Dowd and documented what he said at the time, providing us with the “Sermon on the Mount” and “Olivet Discourse.” Unfortunately, for telling the truth, they were hunted down and killed by the rabbis who were haunted by their message and by the emerging devotees of Paul. And with the inhabitants of Jerusalem rejecting the city's founder and favorite son, God's Son, Yahowah would abandon them, leaving them to be mauled by the Beast of Rome. There was no longer any connection to the Temple, the City, or the People. They were now irritating and counterproductive. And so, the people were ravaged and the Temple was destroyed, exactly as Gabry^el / Dowd foretold.

Fortunately, this deplorable state of affairs will change, even though to witness this transformation, we must leap ahead

40 Yowbel rather than just 40 years. Dowd was aware that his Father would empower the aforementioned Yada, known here as Myka^{el}, to make a difference.

“People of the extended family (am* – individuals of the nation) of the one who will come and then return is (*ha bow – the one who is arriving is (qal participle masculine singular absolute)) the Son of the Sovereign and Prince of the King who is conspicuously making this known, and who is providing the leadership and counsel (nagyd – of the one who has officially obtained the status of being properly appointed, and who has expounded upon, announced, and proclaimed the message).

And he, in the end, at the far limits of time, will be hacked to death and cut into pieces (*wa gets huw – he will complete his purpose by being chopped into pieces; from qatsats – hewn into pieces) in an overwhelming manner and along with a torrent of water to purge and wash away (ba ha sheteph – during this intense outpouring that will be inundating, scouring, rinsing, while also engulfing and sweeping away; from shataph – to rinse and wash), as the Restoring Witness delivering the Eternal Testimony (*wa ad) at the conclusion of this period by being cut down and hacked to pieces (gets).

These battle lines have been drawn, the war is determined, and this fight is decreed (milchamah charats – this crushing conflict and struggle against the adversary is decided upon and assured (nifal participle)) such that it is devastating and desolating, appalling and horrifying (shamem – life ending and destructive).” (Dany^{el} / God is My Means to Decide / Daniel 9:26 conclusion)

I understand that this rendering is completely different than what religious publications have promoted. But what they have projected isn't rational. They would have you believe that the Nagyd | Son of the Sovereign and Prince of the King who is conspicuously making this known is the Mashyach in one breath but then represents the 'Antichrist' in the next. That simply isn't reasonable.

Therefore, after telling his people that he would be cut off from the living to enable the Covenant in 33 CE, Dowd is revealing that the consequence of his people rejecting what he would accomplish and counterfeiting him would be that within 40 years they would be cut down and the Temple torn down. This prognostication was nearly as profound as acknowledging and then dating his fulfillment of Chag Matsah.

It was then, after discussing the events of the 1st century CE that Dowd took us forty Yowbel ahead in time to when the people of the Nagyd | Son of the Sovereign would be greeted by the Nagyd | Prince of the King, with nagyd serving to identify Gabry^{el} / Dowd and Myka^{el} / Yada. We are both prolific in nagyd | making all of this known through their counsel by expounding on this announcement.

While both will *bow | arrive and return gets | in the end, it is only ad | the Restoring Witness who will be gets | who will be hacked to death at this time. Yada will serve as the adamah Parah* | Bloody Red and Productive Bull by fulfilling Yowm Taruw^{ah} | the Day of the Herald. So, gets was used twice to convey that the sacrifice at the conclusion of the Time of Trouble will be cut up while Dowd by comparison was cut off. Therefore, while Gabry^{el}'s soul would enter Satan's eternal habitat, 2,000 years thereafter, the corporeal manifestation of ha Satan | the Adversary will slice up the basar | body of Dowd's Nagy^d prior to being sent to She^{owl} forevermore.

This is not only good news, it is germane to Dowd's story as our Savior in 33 CE, transpiring as it will in 2033 CE / year 6000 Yah. It is as a result of sheteph | an overwhelming torrent of water that will be released beneath the sacrifice of the Parah | Bull who has served as the Ad | Restoring Witness that the mortal remnant of Yisra^{el} will be sheteph | purged, their guilt washed away. And as a result, the Adulterous Woman that has been the religious whore of Yisra^{el} is prepared for the betrothal to her returning King, the Nagy^d and Mashyach Dowd.

Now that Gabry*el has explained the who, where, when, and why of the fulfillment of Chag Matsah in 33 CE to deliver the benefits of the Covenant, and has explained the means the Restoring Witness will use to facilitate his return at the conclusion of the Time of Troubles, he directs our attention to its commencement. On or before Shabuw*ah in 2027, the Towrahless One will do to Israel what he will do to the *Adamah Parah, dissecting the nation to make it indefensible.

“And therefore (wa), he, as an exceedingly influential person, will vault himself into prominence by arrogantly confirming and imposing (gabar – he will strengthen and empower, then triumph by imposing a self-aggrandizing and overbearing) a treaty, a covenant agreement and arrangement (beryth – an international contractual compact and binding pledge) with a great many, including plenty of rabbis, the preponderance of people, especially the elitists (la ha rabym – including plenty of rabbis, the preponderance of the populous, and with numerous among the elite) for one week, based upon a single promise during a particular Shabuw*ah (echad shabuwa).” (Daniel 9:27 in part)

Satan’s Advocate, whom we know as the Copper Confabulator, Demonic Donald, is the Great Betrayer of Israel. He is today’s Neville Chamberlain, and will be sacrificing Israel to appease Muslims and repay MBS of Saudi Arabia. This will occur on or before Shabuw*ah in 2026 for there is to be a full week of years prior to resolution, or in advance of Shabuw*ah on the 11th of June 2027, coinciding with the 2,300-day period already delineated for the Time of Israel’s Troubles.

This is an interesting conundrum that I want to mention but not resolve because I think these options were intended. We should be prepared for the dismemberment of Israel as soon as Shabuw*ah in 2026 and no later than Shabuw*ah in 2027. We should work such that, if the Shabuw*ah Harvest occurs on May 22nd next year, we will have done all we could to make it as productive as possible, while also prepared to capitalize on the extension of time if afforded to us.

If the Harvest occurs on May 22nd, 2026, Israel will have already been dissected and the 2,300 day warning will apply to the carnage of Al Aqsa Flood 2.0 in June of the following year. This way, it's a full seven years of grief during the time of Trouble and 2,300 days of Holocaust conditions. And under these conditions, the Qatsyr for the Covenant Family could transpire on either date. So, I'd rather continue to address the possibilities accompanying the earlier timeframe while setting expectations on the Shabat of 11 June, 2027 because no one will be disappointed if we are taken home earlier than expected but many would have their confidence shaken if the potential of May 22nd, 2026 was delayed.

This prognostication regarding the divestiture of Israel for an Islamic State was originally presented by Yasha^{yah} / Isaiah in the 17th chapter. There, the timing of the divestiture of Israeli land was coterminous with Shabu^{ah}. And then in the 18th chapter, we are offered over seventy American and Trumpian attributes and characteristics, collectively which were more than sufficient to demonstrate that the perpetrator imposing the treaty that initiates Israel's great suffering is none other than Donald J. Trump.

While we have discovered here in Daniel that this warmongering egomaniac in pursuit of the Nobel Peace Prize will have ten political cohorts championing Israel's demise, we have always known that when it comes down to a vote in the United Nations, fewer than ten of nearly 200 nations will support Israel. When given the opportunity to stand with Israel against the onslaught of Islamic terror and Marxist propaganda, 90% will make the wrong call.

In my mind, the only remaining question is whether Israel has been so weakened by its counterproductive prosecution of the Gaza war and subsequent world condemnation that it will be forced into retreating to her 1967 borders. That would come at great peril because the last time Muslims and Jews were in this position, the Arabs schemed to destroy Israel. The notion that it will be different this time is ludicrous.

With Israel defenseless and vulnerable, ‘Free Palestine’ will rapidly devolve into a final and horrifying battle to annihilate the Jewish people. This is Satan’s last-ditch effort to forestall Dowd’s homecoming on Kipurym by obliterating Israel. Ezekiel’s 25 ways to kill Jews will be in full effect. And with no one to turn to for support, the carnage will be catastrophic – worse than the Holocaust. If not for Yada’s and *ElYah’s support and Yahowah’s intervention before Dowd’s return, all would be lost.

Since the monster behind this madness is a demon-possessed Trump, I checked to learn the Scottish / Gaelic / Celtic origins of his name. Donald is from Domhnall, which is a compound of two Celtic terms, Dubno, meaning “world,” and Walo, which is “supreme ruler, such that Donald conveys: “Leader of the World.” As for the ‘Antichrist’s’ last name, trump is a verb, meaning “to surpass by defeating.” But as a Germanic noun, in recognition of his father’s nationality, a Trump is a “trumpet.” This may somehow infer that the target of Satan’s rage will be associated with *Taruw*ah* | Trumpets. And of course, our showdown occurs on this day because Dowd’s Herald serves as Yahowah’s Showphar.

Now that Gabry*el has shared insights regarding the beginning and end of the final week of years leading to his return, he splits the difference and reminds us what will occur between these events.

“But halfway through from Shabuw*ah (*wa chatsy shabuwa – at the midpoint of the seven years), he will forestall the benefit of the sacrifice which had been freely offered as a gift (shabath zebach wa minchah).

The most extreme aspect (*wa al kanaph – upon a flight to the far extremity of being separated and distant, this wing) of this vile and abhorrent action of repulsive religious idolatry (shiquwtsym – of vile and repulsive edicts, detestable and abhorrent acts) will devastate, desolate, and incapacitate (shamem – stun and stupefy).

But in the end, the Restoring Witness will finish, determined to fulfill and accomplish the mission, even to the point of complete annihilation (wa ʿad kalah – consistent with the Eternal Testimony, it will be completed).

This has been determined and decreed, spoken about and pronounced, even to the point of mutilation (charats – this maiming by bludgeoning has been decided upon as the result of exercising good judgment), to be poured out as a form of payment (nathak – brought forth in liquid fashion) on those who were deserted, devastated, and ravaged (al shamem* – destitute and dismayed).” (Dany^{el} / God is My Means to Judge / Daniel 9:27)

This is an interesting confluence of events. By collocating Passover with Easter and Ashera Day for Christian and Islamic consumption, then disassociating the intent from Matsah when Dowd's soul was cut off from the living to carry our guilt into She^{owl}, the Devil's Advocate will have negated the value of Pesach. Therefore, to resolve this abhorrent crime which incapacitates God's People, we are told that the Restoring Witness will fulfill his calling, such that, as the Adamah Parah*, he will let the Adversary annihilate him.

Long ago, this is what Gabry^{el} and Myka^{el} determined in consultation with Yahowah. It is what is decreed and spoken about throughout the prophets. By mutual consent, the decision has been made for the Nagy^d | King's Prince to allow Satan to mutilate his soon-to-be-discarded body by bludgeoning him to death on Taruw^{ah}. In this way, God will pour out the means to rejuvenate the mortal remnant who have been devastated by the horrors of the Time of Trouble.

Formerly known as the Adulterous Woman, the religious whore of Israel will be cleansed for the family reunion and wedding. All Dowd sought to achieve will be known and appreciated. And on that happy note, we conclude the 9th chapter of Dany^{el}.

It will have been Satan's last hurrah. Religion will be no more – relegated to She*owl with its author and inspiration.

As we have discovered when reviewing the Adversary's playbook in Ezekiel, for Satan to have prevailed in his quest to rise above Dowd and Yisra*el, he must negate what our Messiah and King have achieved to forestall his return. Fortunately, Satan's influence with Paul, Luke, Mark, and Peter in the creation of the New Testament, leading to the abusive nature of Imperial Rome and Roman Catholicism, Rabbi Akiba and the institutionalizing of Rabbinic Judaism to lead Jews away from Yah, and then Muhammad, through whom the Devil became Allah and ushered in unmitigated anti-Semitism through Allahu-Akbar, will finally have lost its sting. However, he will have come exceedingly close to prevailing. But in the end, there will be Jews to reconcile. And that is why this story has a happy ending.

There are many scores of prophetic pronouncements which serve to affirm some of what we have read in Dany^{el} 7 through 9 and 12. And so, I would like to share a few of my favorites with you, covering them in chronological order, beginning with Shamuw^{el}. It is the first prophecy I attempted to translate some 24 years ago. And this time, I'd like to introduce it by citing something from Zakaryah 6, which affirms that Dowd is the Tsemach | Branch, while his Herald is but a Choter | Stem.

“Say to him (wa *amar el huw la amar), ‘Thus says Yahowah (YaHoWaH) of the heavenly messengers (tsaba), by communicating (la *amar), “Behold, look now and see (hineh), the individual (ysh) who is known as and is named (shem huw) Tsemach | the Branch (Tsemach) will branch out and grow in his place (wa min tachath huw* tsamach), and he will build at that moment in time (wa banah) the Royal Residence and Temple (hykal) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH). (Zakaryah 6:12)

He will construct (banah) the Royal Residence, the Temple (eth hekal), of Yahowah (YaHoWaH) while his authority, honor, and countenance (howd) are lifted up and upheld (nasa). Then (wa) he will sit and remain (yashab) upon his throne (al kise huw*) and he will govern with symbolic narratives, showing leadership by explaining things in a memorable way by making the kind of comparisons which lead to understanding (mashal).

Additionally (wa), he will be (hayah) adorned in priestly garments (kohen) upon his seat of honor (al kise huw*). Advice and counsel (*etsah) on peace and prosperity, satisfaction and contentment, and the blessings of reconciliation and freedom (shalowm) will exist (hayah) to encourage understanding by making the connections between both of these responsibilities (bayn shanaym hem).”” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 6:13)

This narrative not only affirms that Dowd is named Tsemach, but also that he will be given the authorization he has long sought – which is the opportunity to build Yahowah’s Royal Residence. We learn here that there will be no rival to his ongoing authority, which means there can be no other Messiah, eliminating the possibility of a Jesus character or rabbinic savior. Further, King Dowd will govern as he has led in the past, through his Mashal | Pictures Painted with Words. And equally important, if not most of all, I have been vindicated in affirming that Dowd will be dressed in the apparel of the High Priest upon his return so that he can anoint the Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant with a smattering of blood from the conspicuous Bull and Goat already on the scene.

This all becomes especially relevant in determining who is the Son of God who is returning as King to restore Yahowah’s Home in my favorite prophecy...

“It came to pass (wa hayah ky) when the king sat down and relaxed in his home (*ha melek yashab ba beyth huw), because Yahowah (wa YaHoWaH) had given him comforting respite (*nuwach la huw) from his adversaries and rancorous foes (*min sabyb min kol *oyeb huw), (*Shamuw*el 2 7:1*) that the king said (*wa amar ha melek) to Nathan, the prophet (el Nathan ha naby), ‘Please look around (*ra*ah na). I live (anoky yashab*) in a house of cedar (*ba beyth erez), but the Ark of God (*wa *arown ha elohym) sits within curtains (*yashab ba tawek ha yarya*ah*).’ (*Shamuw*el / 2 Samuel 7:2*)

So, Nathan said to the king (*wa *amar Nathan el ha melek), ‘Choose to pursue all that is in your best judgment (*kol *asher ba lebab atah) because, surely (ky) Yahowah is with you (*Yahowah *im atah).’ (*Shamuw*el 2 7:3*)

However, that evening (*wa hayah ba ha laylah ha huw) the word of Yahowah came to Nathan (*dabar Yahowah hayah el Nathan). He said (*la amar), (*Shamuw*el 2 7:4*) ‘Go and tell

(*halak wa *amar el) Dowd, My coworker (*Dowd *ebed any), that this is what Yahowah says (*koh Yahowah amar). “Why should you build Me a home to live in (*ha *atah banah la *any beyth la yashab any)? (*Shamuw*el 2 7:5*)

Indeed (ky), I have not lived (lo yashab*) in a house (ba beyth) since the time (wa min yowm) that I lifted up to be with Me (alah *any eth) the Children of Yisra*el (*beny Yisra*el*) out of the crucibles of oppression in Mitsraym(min Mitsraym). Then as an ongoing witness to the restoring testimony, up to (*wa ad) this day (ha yowm ha zeh), I have been moving about (wa hayah halak) in a tent dwelling as a tabernacle and home (*ba ohel wa ba mishkan). (*Shamuw*el 2 7:6*)

During any of that time, when showing the way to the benefits of the relationship, that (*ba kol asher) I traveled (halak) with all of the Children of Yisra*el (*ba kol beny Yisra*el*), did I say a single word (ha dabar dabar) to one (eth echad) of the leaders of the tribes of Yisra*el (*shebet Yisra*el*), whom I instructed (asher tsawah*) to shepherd (*la ra*ah*) My people (eth *am any), Yisra*el (*Yisra*el*), to say (*la amar), ‘So why not (*la mah lo) build for Me a house of cedar (*banah la *any beyth erez)? (*Shamuw*el 2 7:7*)

Now, therefore (*wa atah), this is what you should say (*koh amar) to My associate, Dowd (*la *ebed any la Dowd), as a result (koh) Yahowah of the spiritual implements (Yahowah tsaba) says (amar), “I took you (any laqach atah) from the sheepfolds (min ha neweh), from chasing after lambs (*min *achar ha tso*n*), to be the conspicuous and informative leader (la hayah nagyd) among My People (al *am any), over Yisra*el (al Yisra*el*). (*Shamuw*el 2 7:8*)

I have been with you (*wa hayah *im atah) throughout it all (ba kol) revealing the benefits of the relationship (asher*) as you journeyed through life (halak). I have cut off (wa karat), accordingly, all of your enemies (eth kol *oyeb atah) from your presence (*min paneh atah).

And I have engaged on your behalf to make for you (*wa *asah la atah) an exceptionally important name, the greatest designation, and the most distinguished reputation (shem ha gadowl), when compared to the most glorified designations (ka shem ha gadowl) pursuant to the relationship (asher*) on the Earth (*ba ha erets). (Shamuw^eel 2 7:9)

Furthermore (wa), I will appoint and establish (sym) a dwelling place (maqowm) for My People (*la *am any), Yisra*el (*la Yisra*el*). I will plant them (*wa nata^e huw) such that they may abide (wa shakan) below throughout a less chaotic time than this (*tachath huw) and no longer be agitated, anguished, or terrorized (*ragaz owd). They will not continue to be (wa lo yasaph*) afflicted or degraded, disparaged or denigrated (anah*), by unjust and harmful sons, perverted and violent descendants of evil (*beny awlah), as will have formerly been the case (*ka *asher ba ha ri*shown*). (Shamuw^eel 2 7:10)

From the day (wa la min ha yowm) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), I appointed and instructed (tsawah) Judges (shaphat) on behalf of My people (al *am any), Yisra*el (*Yisra*el*), I will provide a respite (*wa nuwach la atah) from all of your enemies (*min kol *oyeb atah).

In addition (wa), Yahowah (Yahowah) is boldly and publicly announcing to you (*nagad la atah) that, indeed (ky), He will act, engaging with you to create the family and home of Yahowah (*beyth *asah la atah Yahowah).” (Shamuw^eel 2 7:11)

God was promising to announce and then implement a plan whereby He would engage with Dowd to establish the Family of Yahowah. He was, therefore, addressing Dowd’s role in fulfilling Chag Matsah which made this possible.

“Surely (ky), your time will be thoroughly proclaimed and completely fulfilled (male yowmym atah). Then after your relaxing rest (wa shakab) with your fathers (eth *ab atah), I will rise up and take a stand to bring to fruition (quwm) with what you have sown (*eth zera° *atah), something more in the end without hesitation for you (*achar *atah). For the benefit of the relationship (asher), it will be extracted and withdrawn (yatsa) out of a small particle of your physiological nature (min me°eh).”

Yahowah is speaking of taking a stand with Dowd’s physiological nature, which would have been required to fulfill Passover as the Pesach *Ayil. And at this point God stops talking to Dowd directly and begins speaking to us about him...

“Therefore (wa) I will establish (kuwn) his reign over his kingdom (eth mamlakah huw). (Shamuw°el 2 7:12) He, himself, shall restore and rebuild (huw* banah) the family home (beyth) for (la) My name (shem *any). And (wa) I will prepare and establish (kuwn) the throne (eth kise) of his kingdom (mamlakah huw*) forevermore as a continuing witness (°ad *owlam). (Shamuw°el 2 7:13)

I was, I am, and I always will be (any hayah) for him (la huw) as a Father (la ab) and (wa) he was, is, and always will be (huw hayah) for Me as (la *any) a son (la ben).

So when that which is associated with him is warped and perverted, twisted such that it is contrary to what has been stated (*asher ba awah huw), I will resolve the dispute against him, vindicating him, deciding with him to expose and issue a condemnation (wa yakah huw*) against the weapons and staves wielded by rulers of the nations (ba shebet) of men (*ishym) and against (wa ba) the fungus and plague that has fallen (nega°) upon the descendants (ben) of *Adam (*adam).” (Shamuw°el 2 7:14)

And therein is a perfect explanation of the religious crusade to transfer the promises made to the Messiah to create a Christ. God was not a fan...

“Therefore (wa), My steadfast devotion, enduring love, commitment to the relationship, and unmitigated favor (chesed *any) will not be removed from him, be disassociated or diminished regarding him, nor replaced, substituting another for him (lo suwr min huw) as was the case when (*ka asher) I turned away from and completely rejected (suwr min) associating with (im*) Sha*owl (*Sha owl) whom, to show the proper way (asher*), I removed (suwr) from your presence (*min la paneh atah).’” (*Shamuw*el* 2 7:15)

In the debate between Dowd as the Son of God and Sha*owl as the Devil’s Advocate, Yahowah has taken sides, and that’s good for Jews and unfortunate for Twistians. And now, having concluded speaking to us about His Son, Yahowah concluded the prophecy addressing Dowd directly...

“And so (wa), your family (*beyth atah) and (wa) your position of authority, your kingdom and reign (*malakah atah), are assured, as it is trustworthy and dependable, firmly established, credible, and enduring (aman*) forever as a continuing witness (ad owlam) in My presence (*la paneh atah). Your throne and seat of honor (kise atah) will be (hayah) established and sustained (kuwn) forevermore as a restoring testimony (ad owlam).’ (*Shamuw*el* 2 7:16)

Consistent with all of these words (*ka kol ha dabarym ha eleh) and in accord with (wa ka) the entire revelation (kol ha chizyown ha zeh), in this manner, Nathan accurately conveyed this (ken dabar Nathan) to Dowd (el Dowd*).” (*Shamuw*el* / Listen to Him / 2 Samuel 7:17)

It is hard to imagine how anyone could remain confused, wondering whether Yahowah is addressing Dowd, His Beloved Son, our Messiah and King, the Shepherd and the Lamb, or a misnomer who was never addressed prophetically. If this were a contest between man and myth, it concludes with a score of 1,000 to 0.

And yet, there are a million more Christians than Covenant Members honoring Dowd’s contribution to our lives. How is that possible in a supposedly rational world?

Let’s continue to reinforce what should have been obvious and yet has been misappropriated and misrepresented in Dany^el 9 to create a god named “Christ” and a religion called “Christianity.” We can correct these errors and reinforce the truth by turning to the 2nd Mizmowr which was written by the very prophet who has been speaking to us. He asks...

“For what reason, one should ask (la mah), do noisy and confused throngs of scheming and rebellious Gentiles gather together to conspire in open defiance (ragash gowym)?”

The people of such places who are transformed while massing under an antiquated and unifying religious, political, and / or conspiratorial leader (wa la^eom) choose to plot and speak (hagah) in vain, deluded in their fantasies (ryq). (Mizmowr 2:1)

The rulers (melek) of the Earth (erets*), solely on their own initiative, continually set themselves up (yatsab). Those who govern (rozen) conspire and rebel (yasad) altogether (yachad) against (al*) Yahowah (Yahowah) and (wa) against (al*) His Mashyach | Anointed (*mashyach huw).” (Mizmowr 2:2)

Yahowah perceives Christianity as an attack on His Son, the Mashyach, Dowd, because these titles were removed from him to create the illusion of Jesus.

“Let us choose of our own volition to break away and pull off (nathaq) their bonds which trap and ensnare (eth mowserah hem*). We should want to reject and throw away (wa shalak) from us (*min anachnuw) their twisted and interwoven threads which bind and immobilize (aboth hem*). (Mizmowr 2:3)

He who inhabits, establishing His dwelling place (yashab) in the heavens (ba ha shamaym) holds them in contempt and will pulverize them (sachaq). Yahowah (Yahowah) ridicules their foreign behavior and mocks their unfamiliar and irrational statements (la^eag la hem). (Mizmowr 2:4)

At this time and place (*az), He will communicate, expressing Himself (dabar) toward them (*el hem) showing His frustration and resentment (ba aph huw) and in His burning indignation (ba charown huw*), will overwhelm and bewilder them (bahal hem). (Mizmowr 2:5)

I, myself, have offered leadership (wa *any nasak) providing counsel through my governance (melek *any) upon (*al) Tsyown | the Signs Posted Along the Way (Tsyown), my Set-Apart Mountain (har qodesh *any). (Mizmowr 2:6)

I will choose to account for, proclaiming in writing (saphar) the decree, serving as a clearly communicated prescription for living (choq) of the Almighty (*el) which Yahowah (Yahowah) conveyed (*amar) to me (*el *any), ‘You are My son (ben *any *atah). This day (ha yowm) I (*any) bring you forth as your Father (yalad *atah).’ (Mizmowr 2:7)

Why are billions confused, denying Dowd and accrediting Jesus with a title Yahowah clearly delineated long ago? To be a Christian, one must disbelieve God.

“Feel free to ask questions about this, seeking to learn the answers because literally out of Me and from Me (sha *al min *any) there will be an inherited share of the land of the gentile nations that will be given to you and to successive generations (gowym nachalah *atah), even unto (wa) the distant reaches of the Earth and the material realm (*ephes *erets) becoming your property (*achuzah *atah).” (Mizmowr / Lyrics to be Sung / Psalm 2:8)

Demonstrating that Dowd’s life serves as a metaphor for Yisra*el, consistent with its depiction in Shamuw*el’s prophecy regarding him, Yahowah refers to Dowd | David as His Bakowr | Firstborn in Mizmowr / Psalm 89. It affirms many things, all of which are germane to properly interpreting Dany*el 9...

“I have established (karat) the Beryth | Covenant, the Home for the Family (Beryth) with My Chosen One, the man I personally selected (la bachyr *any). I have sworn this oath

(*shaba) to Dowd (la Dowd), My authorized agent who works on My behalf (ebed any). (Mizmowr 89:3)

I will establish (kuwn) your offspring and that which you sow (zera atah) as an eternal and restoring witness (ad owlam). In addition, I will construct a home (wa banah) for your throne and seat of honor (kise atah) on behalf of all generations throughout time (la dower wa dower). Pause now and contemplate the implications (selah).” (Mizmowr 89:4)

This not only affirms our rendering of Dany^el 9, it is consistent with the 2nd Mizmowr and 2 Shamuw^el 7. Now speaking to Yahowah on Dowd’s behalf, the Psalmist prescribes a title far more important than Mashyach...

“Beside You and on Your behalf (*la atah) the Zarowa^o | Protective Shepherd and Sacrificial Lamb (zarowa^o – the Productive Ram who shepherds the flock, who prevails because he is effective and strong, fully resolved with the overall ability to accomplish the mission, the remarkably important and impactful individual of action who, as a leader and fighter, is engaged as a shepherd among his sheep, especially when sowing the seeds of truth while advancing the purpose of the arm of God) with tremendous power and awesome ability (im gabuwrah* – with the will to fight and the capacity to perform, who accomplishes what needs to be done; from gibowr – a mighty warrior, valiant soldier, and capable defender, a hero worth noting) will be Your strong hand (azaz yad atah) raised up high (ruwm) at Your right side (*yamyn atah). (Mizmowr 89:13)

Delighted to show the way and blessed (ashry*) are the family members (*ha am) who are aware of and acknowledge Yada (yada^o) and Taruw^oah (Taruw^oah – Trumpets, the 5th Miqra^oey, serving as the time to expose corruptions while sharing the truth, the day Yada^o was called by Yahowah to awaken His people in 2001), who walk (halak) with the light into Your presence (*ba *owr paneh atah), Yahowah (Yahowah). (Mizmowr 89:15) In Your name (*ba shem atah) they rejoice (gyl) every day (kol ha yowm). And (wa) in Your justice and vindication, by being right (ba tsadaqah *atah), they are lifted on high (ruwm). (Mizmowr 89:16)

Indeed (ky), Your power (*oz *atah) is their adornment (tiph*erth hem) and (wa) our status and radiance (qaran *anachnuw) which is lifted up (ruwm) by Your desire to be accepting (ba ratsown *atah). (Mizmowr 89:17) For (ky) our deliverance and protection (magen *anachnuw) are from (la) Yahowah (Yahowah). Accordingly (wa la), the Set-Apart One (qadowsh) of Yisra*el (Yisra*el) is our King (melek *anachnuw).” (Mizmowr / Psalm 89:18)

Let there be no doubt as to the identity of the Set-Apart One of Yisra*el. He is Yahowah’s choice to be our Shepherd, Messiah, and King, His Son, Dowd.

“At the time (*az) You spoke (dabar) in a revelation (ba chazown) to those whose love for You and commitment to You is unwavering (la chasyd *atah), saying (*amar), ‘I have provided (shawah) assistance, supplying what is needed (*ezer) on behalf of (*al) the one with the strength to prevail (gibowr – the mightiest of men, the strong and effective fighter, the valiant and brave warrior, the one who battles; from gabar – to prevail, to be powerful, mighty, and strong, to prove one’s valor and to champion a virtuous cause). I have raised up and exalted (ruwm) the Chosen One (bachar) from (min) the people (*am).” (Mizmowr 89:19)

It is from this statement that I readily deduced that Gabry*el was Dowd. Gibowr, gabar, and geber stand out as an exemplary family of words directing us to the subject of this Mizmowr – to *Gabry*el* | God’s Most Competent and Capable Individual. Moreover, Yahowah said as much...

“I discovered and then made known (matsa*) Dowd (Dowd), My coworker (*ebed *any). Out of (min) My set-apart oil which uniquely distinguishes (shemen qodesh *any), I have anointed him as the Mashyach / Messiah (mashach), (Mizmowr 89:20) to show the way to the relationship and that

(asher*) My hand (*yad any) will be steadfast and unwavering (kuwn) with you (im atah). (Mizmowr 89:21)

In addition (aph*), My Zarowa^o | Protective Shepherd (*zarowa^o any) will empower and embolden you, strengthening you, helping you grow, expanding your horizons, and elevating your status (amets atah). (Mizmowr 89:21)

By referencing this Mizmowr, Dany^oel 9 is easily understood. And there is more to it than just the realization that our hero is Dowd because God also addresses the role of the villain. And this is especially true with regard to the point Yahowah was making about Christians replacing the Messiah Dowd with their Christ.

“The Adversary (oyeb*) will not nullify him (showa^{}* – will not negate his value or annul his position or purpose) and (wa) the Son of Evil (*ben awlah) shall not deny him or denigrate him (lo^{} anah huw^{}* – shall not silence him or stop him, will not obfuscate his answers or nullify his responsive declarations). (Mizmowr 89:22)

And so (wa), I will rebuke and incarcerate (kathath) his foes, especially those who seek to constrain and restrict him (tsary huw^{}*). Then (wa) because of his presence and appearance (min paneh huw^{}*), I will plague (nagaph) those who shun him by attempting to decrease his status (sane^{} huw^{}). (Mizmowr 89:23)

Therefore (wa), My steadfast commitment is resolute and unwavering (emuwnah any; from emuwn*), so My love and devotion, My enduring favoritism and unfailing affection (*wa chesed any) will remain with him (im huw^{}). In My name (*wa ba shem any) his light will radiate and enlighten (qaran huw^{}*). (Mizmowr 89:24) He shall call out to Me and welcome Me, announcing (huw^{} qara^{*} any), ‘You are my Father (ab *any atah)!’ (Mizmowr 89:26)

I (any*), likewise (aph*), will appoint him (nathan huw^{}*)

My Firstborn Son (*bakowr any), the highest of all (elyown*) of the kings and rulers (la melek) of the Earth (erets*). (Mizmowr 89:27)

For all eternity (*la owlam) I will keep watch over him, paying very close attention to him (*shamar la huw). My unwavering love, unrelenting devotion, enduring affection, and generosity (*chesed any) as a part of My Family-Oriented Covenant (*wa beryth any) are truthfully presented and will reliably endure with him (aman la huw).” (Mizmowr 89:28)

There is only one Covenant, and it is reliably presented through Dowd – not Sha’uwl | Paul or the other Towrahless One who will come.

“And I will establish (wa sym) his seed, that which he sows, and his offspring (zera huw), as an eternal witness forever (*la ed | ad*). And (wa) his throne (kise huw) will be equated to the time of heaven (ka yowm shamaym). (Mizmowr 89:29)

However, if (im*) his descendants and offspring (beny huw) continue to forsake, ignore, or reject (azab) My Towrah | Teaching and Guidance (*Towrah any) and (wa) make a habit of failing to walk (wa lo halak*) according to My means to exercise good judgment and justly resolve disputes (*ba mishpat any), (Mizmowr 89:30) if (im*) they perpetually view My clearly communicated prescriptions for living with contempt (*chuqah any chahal), and further (wa), if they consistently fail to observe the instructive terms of the relationship considering what is being offered and expected in return (*mitswah any lo shamar*), (Mizmowr 89:31) then (wa) I will hold them accountable (paqad) for the full measure (ba shebet) of their rebellion (pesha hem*). The consequence of their deviation from the way and of their corruptions (awon hem*) will be a pestilence which causes widespread death (*ba nega). (Mizmowr 89:32)

Accordingly (wa), My unwavering love and devotion

(chesed *any) I will never remove from him (lo*parar min im huw) because I will never communicate something which is not true nor will I ever contradict (wa lo*shaqar ba) My steadfast commitment (*emuwnah *any). (Mizmowr 89:33)

I will never dishonor or make commonplace (lo*chalal) My Covenant (beryth *any) nor will I ever alter, change, or rearrange (wa lo*shanah) that which has gone forth from (mowtsa*) My lips (saphah *any). (Mizmowr 89:34)

There is only one (echad) to whom I have affirmed the truth by having made a promise (shaba) by My Set-Apart nature (ba qodesh *any). If not to (*im la) Dowd (Dowd), I will be proven a liar (kazab).” (Mizmowr 89:35)

And therein dies any chance that Jesus is the Messiah or the Son of God. The preceding rendering of Dany^el 9 stands affirmed.

“His offspring and that which he sows (zera*huw*) shall exist and endure (hayah) forever (la *owlam). And (wa) his place of honor, his throne, seat of authority, and sovereign leadership (kise*huw*), shall be as (ka) brilliant and powerful as the sun (ha shemesh) before Me (neged *any).” (Mizmowr 89:36)

Unfortunately, very few have done what we are doing, and that is to closely examine the evidence Yahowah has provided and then go where His words lead. Had rabbis done so 2,000 years ago, Christianity would not have emerged in their midst to plague God’s people. Once one accepts that Dowd is the Messiah and Son of God, there is no room for an anti-Semitic religion based upon Jesus Christ and Replacement Theology.

“But now (wa), you have refused to accept (zanach) and (wa) you have rejected by diminishing the merit of, even over time becoming averse to (ma*as) your Messiah (Mashyach *atah), improperly, and on your own initiative, meddling while presumptuously passing over (*abar) any association with him (im huw)! (Mizmowr 89:38) You have repudiated and renounced (*na*ar*) the Covenant (beryth) with your coworker (ebed atah), dishonoring and defiling (chahal) his dedication and preparation, even his consecration and crown (*nezer huw). (Mizmowr 89:39)

What's worse (aph*), you have deliberately turned away from (shuwb) what he has chiseled in stone (*tsuwr chereb huw) such that (wa) you do not stand with him or support him (*quwm huw) in this conflict (ba ha milchamah). (Mizmowr 89:43) His brilliance (*tahar huw) and his position (wa kise huw) you have truncated (shabath) because (min) you have hurled it to the ground (*la magar ha erets). (Mizmowr 89:44)

You have cut short, curtailing the ability to accomplish the mission (qatsar) during the days (yowmym) of his youth (aluwmym huw). You have shamefully covered him over, dishonoring him (atah al huw buwshah*). Take a moment and consider the implications (selah). (Mizmowr 89:45)

For how long (ad mah*), Yahowah (Yahowah), will You remain hidden and unknown to so many (sathar)? Will Your displeasure and antagonism (*chemah atah) burn like a fire (*ba*ar kamow esh) forever (la netsach)? (Mizmowr 89:46)

What man (my geber) can live (chayah) and (wa) never see (*lo*ra*ah*) death as a result of the plague (maweth), saving his soul (*malat nepesh huw) from the hand (min yad) of Shauwl (Shauwl – Question Him, the Benjamite wolf in sheep's clothing who as a result of being demon-possessed changed his name to reflect his affinity with Rome, becoming Paul, the principal author of the Christian New Testament, the Father of Lies and the Son of Evil)? Pause now and consider what this implies (selah). (Mizmowr / Psalm 89:48)*

Where (ayeh*) is Your unwavering love and enduring mercy (*chesed atah) which was expressed first and foremost in the beginning (*ri*shown*) which You promised (*shaba) to Dowd, the Beloved (la Dowd), in harmony with Your steadfast commitment to being trustworthy and reliable

(emuwnah atah)? (Mizmowr 89:49)

Choose to remember, and elect to be mindful of (zakar), the contemptible and condescending taunts and the dishonorable and deplorable decrees which were determined (cherpah) by all of the many nations and the preponderance of the people (*kol rabym am) against those who work with You (ebed atah) which I have now brought to bear (nasa any) in my best judgment (ba heq). (Mizmowr 89:50)

That is because (asher*) those in open opposition to You (oyeb atah), Yahowah (Yahowah), are insulting with their bewildering derision and improperly discerned contempt (charaph) which is why (asher*) they are confusing, responding improperly by ridiculing and defying (charaph), the beneficial and trustworthy footsteps (aqeb / eqeb) of Your Messiah (*mashyach atah). (Mizmowr 89:51)

Blessed and benefited by kneeling down in love to uplift is (barak) Yahowah (Yahowah) forever (*la owlam). This is trustworthy, verifiable, and reliable (aman wa aman).” (Mizmowr / Lyrics to be Sung / Psalm 89:52)

This is game over for Christianity, Judaism, and Islam. The truth has been presented as bluntly and boldly as words allow. It is well past time that Yisra^{*el} and Yahuwdah discard the myths of old, tear off the controlling shackles of their religion, and that of the gentiles, and come to embrace the truth regarding Dowd. God’s Son and our Savior has one name and many titles: *Ben *Elohym, Ha Mashyach, Bakowr, Ra^{*ah}, Bachyr and Bachar, Tsemach, *Ebed Any, Zarowa^{}, Qadowsh, *elyown Melek, Gibowr and Gabry^{el}, et al.

*Charah Aph ~ Resentful and Angry

Yahowah is in the business of reconciling fractured families. And while He has taken a long Sabbatical, He nonetheless has several millennia of experience.

Our journey into the future is going to once again venture through the past. While the episodes we are going to review in Bamidbar / Numbers 11 through 15 occurred, these stories were recorded for our benefit, not theirs long ago. Now that we have just 8 years remaining to bring Yisrael back to Yahowah, it's important that our eyes are open and that we know what we are up against.

Jews are a tough crowd, and have been resistant to Yahowah's outreach to them for nearly 35 centuries. They are currently as far apart as words and time allow, with the estranged orphaned and divorced. The Beryth is a fractured family. And so, the more we know about how this schism occurred, and what it will take to resolve it, the better our chances of success.

But there is another aspect of this story that needs to be told at this time. Jews are convinced that they are the beneficiaries of Hashem's watchful eye, that rabbis are sages, and that Judaism connects them with one another and with God. But none of that is true, and this harsh reality must be driven home for there to be any chance of change and reconciliation. Therefore, in the harsh narratives recorded in the wilderness circa 1447 BCE, we are going to show Israelis for who they are and what they have done to antagonize Yahowah. This is not a pretty picture.

Our path back home begins long ago because that is when the Chosen People chose to go a different way. Therefore, we will ponder a series of treasonous episodes in the life of the first Zarowa® – all transpiring at the beginning of the Exodus. It is as if Israel learned nothing from the insult of the Golden Calf and stayed in character.

In this case, we'll continue to focus our attention on the first of the three Zarowa*, the man whom Yahowah chose to liberate the Children of Yisra*el, to bring His People Home, and to convey His Towrah | Guidance. Although he was placed on his heels and wobbling after the previous debacle, he wouldn't be allowed to catch his breath.

As we know through the Towrah, Yahowah worked through Moseh to articulate the message He would later enable through the second Zarowa*, Dowd. The first explained the *Miqra*ey* and the second fulfilled the first three in 33 CE, delivering the promises made long ago pursuant to the Covenant. Then, to reacquaint Yisra*el and Yahuwdym with what He said through Moseh and achieved through Dowd, Yahowah chose and equipped the final Zarowa*, Yada, to share this lifesaving message with you.

These three men, and the insider rebellions they faced as a result of fractured families while pursuing Yahowah's purpose, are all worth considering – especially at this time when the fate of Yisra*el, and the planet, hangs in the balance.

While they all stumbled from time to time, when it is all considered, inspired by God, and serving at His pleasure, the three were most often exemplary in their conviction, character, and courage. For most of their lives, their steadfast devotion to learning and conveying Yahowah's testimony to His People accurately, passionately, and without compromise served God's purpose.

In this regard, all three spoke for Yahowah without verbal collaborators. And when others tried to misappropriate the role Yahowah had assigned to these men, there were severe consequences.

As we progress, there is an interesting passage in Bamidbar / Numbers 12 that not only vividly depicts Moseh's personal relationship with God, but also presents the scheme deployed by insiders to override his testimony. It is the very same tactic that was deployed against the Choter as God's Voice today.

Interestingly, this revealing episode sits in the epicenter of the two chapters in Numbers that have become so essential to knowing the Nakry's role in Yahowah's plans, explaining how, where, when, and why the basar | corporeal body of the Herald will be sacrificed to save the surviving mortal remnant of Yisra^{*}el. In preparation for Yahowah's return with the Messiah Dowd, in Numbers 5 we find that the Adulterous Woman is cleansed by the Red Heifer of Bamidbar 19.

In context, the antagonistic and defiant, totally unappreciative and contrarian, overtly malcontent and ornery, pathetically petulant and cantankerous, ever irascible Children of Yisra^{*}el were doing what they did best – antagonizing Yahowah and His chosen implement, Moseh. So, to frame the issue and appreciate the story behind Miryam's delusional and desperate quest for notoriety, we move from one sentence to the next and begin the 12th chapter of Bamidbar / Numbers. There, we discover that the disgruntled Israelites set off from Choreb for a three-day walk to Tab^{}erah* | Kindling Burning Animosity.

“And it came to be that the people habitually and continually were (wa hayah ha ^{}am*) akin to (ka) miserable and immoral, distressing and undesirable, worthless, anxiety-ridden companions (ra^{}* – loud-mouthed and disagreeable, evil and corrupt countrymen) who were complaining and grumbling without reason (^{}anan* – who were self-defining as a sorrowful and sorry lot, lamenting without justification (participle hitpael)) in the ear of Yahowah (ba ^{}ozen Yahowah*).

And so when (wa), Yahowah heard this (Yahowah shama^{}*), He grieved as His resentment and anger were aroused over a prolonged period (charah ^{}aph huw^{} – He was displeased as His nostrils flared, His temper was inflamed, and His righteous indignation was kindled (qal imperfect)).

Then the fire of Yahowah (wa ^{}esh Yahowah*) burned

(*ba*ar* – was combustible and blazing) among them (ba hem) and it consumed (*wa akal) that which was in the outskirts of the camp (ba qatseh ha machaneh).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:1)

They were just three days’ walk from Choreb where Yahowah had spoken to them directly and had begun revealing His Towrah and yet they were already embittered malcontents in a horrible funk. And because this is the same contentious attitude pervasive today, history is repeating itself – making this narrative, like the one in the next chapter regarding Miryam, prophetic and instructive. And so, we are going to approach it from that perspective, focusing on what we can apply to our present situation.

Now, keep in mind, this was not a unique occurrence but, instead, the overriding disposition of the Israelis of the Exodus. Jews behaved badly. Therefore, so that I don’t sound antisemitic when I disclose God’s assessment, I’m glad that Yahowah stated it outright: “And it came to be that the people were habitually miserable and immoral, undesirable and anxiety-ridden companions, loud-mouthed and disagreeable, always complaining and grumbling without justification.”

Sadly, this deplorable attitude toward God has devolved over the past 3,470 years. It has become so egregious that Jews have actually erased Yahowah’s name, disgraced His Son, Dowd, denied His Covenant, misrepresented His Invitations, even replaced His Towrah with their Talmud, and His priests with their rabbis. This must all change abruptly because we only have eight years left before the Family Reunion, and God isn’t going to tolerate any further defiance.

As bad as it has been for Yisra*elites for having rejected Yahowah and marginalizing Dowd over the millennia, without many Yahuwdym coming to their senses, the next eight years are going to be unfathomably horrendous. I say this not only because we are fast approaching the Time of Ya*aqob’s Troubles, but also because, rather than 70 million antisemitic Germans, there are now two billion Muslims, and the most devout of them are genocidal. They are supported by a billion vocal and antagonistic Progressives, Socialists, Communists, and conspirators, who immorally serve as their pimps.

The problem is now global, and Jews are outnumbered five hundred to one. The Chosen People are isolated in a hostile environment and surrounded because Yahowah will not intervene on behalf of malcontents who snub Him. As God has bluntly stated, it is shuwb for shuwb – Jews must return to Yahowah before He will return and restore them. We, therefore, have a lot to accomplish in a short period of time.

Aware that it would be this way, and of no fault of His own, Yahowah has been driven to resent what His people have become. He is naturally disappointed and angry at them. Jews have continually grieved God for 35 centuries, constantly invoking His ire. And it was so bad early on, even during the first encampment after Choreb, that God's burning indignation set the surrounding countryside ablaze.

Jews have driven God away. So now, our challenge is to change their attitude such that they become receptive to what Yahowah is offering and expecting in return. And until a reasonable number of interested and intellectually astute Israelis of exemplary character and courage join me as a resounding chorus, it will be slim pickings.

Evidently, based upon this recording of these events, Yisra*elites believed it was appropriate to irritate God, but not okay for God to show them that He was annoyed...

“So, the people cried out in a raucous tone (*wa tsa*aq ha am – the extended family, relatives, and followers made a clamorous outcry) toward Moseh (el Moseh*). And Moseh (wa Moseh), without assistance from anyone, sought to arbitrate by intervening (palal – he tried to provide some justification for interceding by foreseeing future contingencies (hitpael imperfect)) with Yahowah (el Yahowah*). Then the fire (*wa ha esh) subsided somewhat, dying down (shaqa° – was diminished).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:2)

I interact with Israelis on X, Facebook, and YouTube, where some are receptive, but most are raucous. The preponderance remain stained by Judaism and deceived by their political allegiances. And so, apart from the few, we continue to intervene between Yahowah and Yahuwdym largely unassisted. Although, with all of the energy God has invested prophetically and pragmatically into our collaboration, the fires are beginning to subside.

The hitpaal stem indicates that Moseh was struggling alone in his attempted mediation. And that means, there was no support for his effort to make amends and resolve the problem of Israel’s deplorable attitude toward God. Therefore, with everyone either against Him, or uncommitted, Moseh was in a very precarious and vulnerable position, one that would have been emotionally and intellectually draining, especially for an eighty-year-old man who didn’t want to be there in the first place. Having tried to save his people once before, only to be threatened and denounced by them in response, he had a troubling history with the Hebrew lack of gratitude.

Intervening for the moment, I understand the problem. Without a supportive team, success would have to be miraculous and not as a result of our effort. The collective attitude of Jews in opposition to God and in support of Judaism is too pervasive and entrenched to be resolved without the help of capable and loyal coworkers. And in the end, that is the answer Yahowah will offer Moseh in this situation. It is one of many indications that this episode is prophetic and serves to prepare us to deal with what would come our way. This is because when I was attacked by those I was shepherding, and they became cancerous and rebellious, Yahowah immediately responded by providing a team of wise men and women so that we could perform as He intended.

And while I did not expect abandonment nor vitriol from those I had perceived as family, I should not have been surprised because the story of Yisra^ael is that of a continuously fractured family. It began with Adam and continued with Abraham. It was no different with Ishmael and Yitschaq, nor Esau and Ya^aaqob. The two sisters, four mothers, and twelve brothers were contentious from the outset. Moseh's brother and sister turned on him, and Dowd's sons were obnoxious.

Therefore, the moral of the story isn't precluding rebellions, overlooking them because they are embarrassing, even trying to resolve them by placating those in betrayal, or toning down the message such that it is less divisive, but, instead, dealing appropriately with each contentious situation. These prophetic accounts from the Towrah prepare us to do exactly that, particularly Bamidbar 5 by cleansing the adulterous woman for her impending betrothal, Numbers 11 which conveys the lack of support for God's mission among His people and their cantankerous ingratitude, Bamidbar 12 with rival voices claiming to speak for God while in rebellion, Numbers 19 with the sacrifice of the red heifer being offered as the solution, and Bamidbar 20 with the ultimate expression of ungodly behavior by Jews toward Yahowah.

“The name of the place (wa shem ha maqowm) was called (qara^a) that which is Taba^arah | Kindled and Burning in Animosity (ha huw^a Taba^arah – that which is consumed by burning rage) because the fire of Yahowah (ky ^aesh Yahowah) burned (ba^aar – was combustible and blazing) among them (ba hem).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:3)

As is the case today, Jews are an ungrateful lot who are firmly entrenched in their religious rebellion. And God is so distraught by them, He chose and equipped a Gowy to deal with them. Therefore, it is easy to see the present in their past. And that is by design. For here we are projected forward in time to our situation in immediate proximity to the final asaph* | ingatherings – the Shabuw^aah Qatsyr and Taruw^aah Laqat.

“The annoying riff-raff that had been gathered on the threshold of the harvest (wa ha ^aasaphsaph – grumbling rabble which had come together in considerable numbers prior to the ingathering), who were within their midst (asher ba qereb huw), were overcome with selfish cravings and internalized yearnings, establishing parameters of their own choosing, having decided to act independently (awah ta'awah* – were beset with desires and enthralled with carving out a space and delineating a purpose for themselves apart from the influence of another (hitpa'el perfect)).

In addition (gam), they turned away (wa shuw'b – they changed their behavior and refused to be helpful (qal imperfect)) and wailed, complaining and moaning (wa bakah – with groaning convulsions lamenting (qal imperfect)).

The Beny Yisra'el | the Offspring of those who Strive Contentiously Against God (beny Yisra'el) said (amar*), ‘What are we to consume such that we are nourished by (*mah *akal anachnuw – who are we to devour) the flesh of the herald (basar – of the human who proclaims the news among the living as a corporeal manifestation of the message).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:4)

During a harvest of saved souls, the annoying riff-raff must be cast aside such that those who are worthy can be gathered in. Therefore, the grumbling rabble must be culled prior to such ingatherings. Relatively few will be taken while most are left behind. And the determining factor will be the choices each individual makes, whether selfish and self-serving or contributory to the Covenant and our God.

For example, on Shabuw'ah | Sevens, the Qatsyr | Harvest will benefit one in a million, perhaps 8,000 among 8,000,000,000 on either the Shabat of May 22nd, 2026 or the following year on the Shabat of June 11th, 2027. Most will be turned away and left to endure the wailing and moaning of the Time of Yisra'el's Troubles.

Continuing to affirm that this was both timely and prophetic, basar can be a verb, noun, or title in Hebrew. Then recognizing that the vocabulary of God is defined by its actionable roots, the overriding intent of basar exists to depict a human herald, a man conveying Yahowah's message to Yahuw'dym. And while basar can speak of any animal, including humans, and is often rendered flesh, since the verbal connotation speaks of heralding good news and conveying a message, we are typically wise to incorporate as much of this as is possible in our definitions.

This realization has profound implications when seen in conjunction with impending ingatherings of Shabu^wah and Taru^wah where there will be a clear distinction between those harvested and left behind. It is the decision to consume or renounce what the Basar | Herald is serving that will determine who goes and who remains.

As it would transpire, Yahowah was feeding the Children of Israel, but not to their liking. Consider this as a metaphor comparing the relationship God was offering versus the religion these miscreants craved – even if they ate it while restricted and abused – much like the onerous nature of eating Kosher in Judaism.

Longing for the bad ole days...

“We remember (zakar – we recall, and want to bring to mind, the memorable man) the thing that grew (eth ha dagah* – associated with the increase and growth) which we consumed (asher akal) in Mitsraym | when Besieged and Confined (ba Mistraym) for nothing, gratuitously and undeservedly (chinam – without cause or compensation, gratis) with the mystery food (eth ha qishu^wahym* – since the verbal root means ‘to be hard to prepare,’ and since it is only used this one time, no one actually knows what this might have been), and with the other unknown item (*wa *eth ha abatyach), in addition to the green grass and hay (*wa eth ha chatsyr), even with the edible that has to be peeled (*wa eth ha batsel) and that which is exhaled (*wa eth ha shuwm).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:5)

Yum, that's quite a list, especially when we recognize that the primary meaning of dagah is to grow, not fish, and that the other items on this list, at least apart from hay, which humans cannot digest, were presented this one time and can only be explained through their verbal roots. This may be to say that the disgruntled Yisra*elites were making stuff up while longing to be religious – things which commonly go hand in hand. It would certainly explain their current propensity to exchange Yahowah's approach for their own religious ways.

This next statement seems to validate this assessment...

“But now (*wa atah), our soul (*nepesh anachnuw) has withered and is paralyzed (yabesh – has shriveled and gone). Nothing exists (ayin*) anywhere (kol) besides the negative association (bilthy) of whatever this man might be (el ha man*) by our perceptions (ayin anachnuw).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:6)

When it came to nurturing the body, man (typically called manna, but without support for the second syllable in the text) was good. It just didn't satisfy these irascible nepesh | souls. These children had developed a bad attitude, and it was now bleeding through the fine print of the Towrah. And this is because the people's perceptions were more important than what was beneficial in God's sight.

After registering the complaint, Yah explained the nature of the free cuisine...

“So, the Man (wa ha man – meaning what, who, or why) was similar to (ka) the seeds (*zera) of that which is fortuitous and pleasing for them (*gad huw – for his good fortune and joy). Its appearance (*wa *ayin huw) was like the sight of something set-apart, very different and uniquely distinctive (ha badalach).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:7)

In Shemowth / Exodus 16.31 we read, “And the House of Israel called the name of it Man. And it was white, like coriander seed. And the taste of it was like wafers made with

And here in Bamidbar / Numbers, the Towrah explains...

“The people roamed about (*shuwt ha am), gathering and gleaning it (wa laqat). And they ground it (wa tahan) within millstones (ba ha rechaym) to crush it (o duwk ba ha madokah*). Then they boiled it (wa bashal) in pots (ba ha paruwr), making cakes out of it (*wa *asah eth huw ugah). So the taste of it was (*wa hayah ta*am huw) like (ka) the taste (*ta*am*) of a moist cake (lashad) with olive oil (ha shemen).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:8)

Even today, Yisra*elites are shuwt | roaming about while keeping their distance from God. And in this regard, laqat is relevant because it describes the last chance to head in the right direction. *Yowm Taruw*ah* | the Day of the Herald is a Laqat | Gleaning, the final ingathering of Jews.

With an eye to the prophetic implications of Numbers 11, rechaym is also telling because the Temple Mount was originally a threshing floor. And this is where the Herald will conduct this final Ingathering of Yisra*el. The mention of bashal | boiling plays into this narrative as well because it is the result of adding heat to water. This is what will occur when Yahowah ignites the fire above the torrent of water that He will unleash from beneath the Temple Mount following the sacrifice of the Red Heifer on *Yowm Taruw*ah*.

Perhaps even these unleavened cakes could be reminiscent of Matsah where their rebellious religious guilt of God’s people is expunged. The one fulfilling this *Mow*ed* | Restoring Witness was Dowd who was anointed in shemen | olive oil per Yahowah’s instructions. And the Basar is the King’s Herald, tying these things together. In everything, there appears to be a foreshadowing of what is to come.

“With the falling of the dew (wa ba yarad ha tal) upon the camp (al ha machaneh*) at night (laylah), the Man fell upon it (*yarad ha man *al huw).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:9)

This is germane to the last days as well since it was falling out of the heavens above. This made it evident that Yahowah was providing it – just as He will reengage at this time in collaboration with His Witnesses.

Now we reach the climax of this harrowing story...

“Moseh (Moseh – One Who Draws Out) heard (*shama) the people (*ha am bakah) complaining and moaning (wa bakah – with groaning, convulsing, and lamenting (qal participle)) throughout their tribes (la mishpachah huw – of every group and clan of theirs), with a man (iysh) approaching the entrance (la patach) of his tent (ohel huw).

The resentment aroused (*wa charah aph – the displeasure and temper were inflamed and the righteous indignation was kindled (qal imperfect)) by Yahowah (Yahowah) was extreme (*ma*od* – at the highest point of the scale), and in plain view (*wa ba ayin – it was clearly seen and visible that). Moseh (Moseh) was distressed and troubled by having been mistreated by obnoxious countrymen to the point of being broken and shattered (*ra*a* – discontented and ruined).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:10)

So far, so bad, but it was only going to get worse. Moseh was woefully mistreated by the Children of Yisra*el. The Jews of the Exodus were obnoxious. And Moseh was miserable for having been mistreated – literally groaning into the ground.

To a significant extent, history will repeat itself. Israelis by the millions will be moaning and groaning over the message of the two Witnesses, Yada and *ElYah. They, consistent with this scene, will be standing alongside the Tent of the Restoring Witness. It will be replicated atop the Temple Mount as a residence for those conveying God’s message to His people. The difference is that, while we will be present and in full view, we will be intervening to mitigate Yahowah’s prior animosity rather than stoke it. Additionally, as a result of *ElYah’s entertaining sarcasm, and Yahowah's intervention and support, I do not anticipate that we will be broken. But then again, there is no limit to the extent Jews can be antagonistic toward Yahowah and those who serve Him.

This disquieting episode is often brushed off by casual readers, who seldom consider just how obnoxious Jews were and remain toward God and those who speak for Him – nor ponder the ongoing implications of their belligerence. I, on the other hand, am constantly reminded that when Yahowah spoke to them directly, they told God to shut up and go away.

Jews were not only obnoxious toward Yahowah and Moseh, they also rebelled against God's beloved Son while King. One thousand years later, even in the face of momentous prophecies affirming his sacrifice, they robbed him of his contribution as the Passover Lamb. They even replaced him.

The great prophet, Yasha'yah / Isaiah, fared no better. So, if God couldn't win them over, and recognizing that they rejected everyone else He sent to speak to them, men far better than me, how is the Choter supposed to prevail when they failed? Surely not through the cesspool of X or idiocy of YouTube where censorship is extreme. And we are running out of time.

As a positive, what we read next from Moseh is not going to occur with Dowd's Basar. Sure, I recognize that the challenge is nearly insurmountable, and that the effort required is superhuman, but I have never thought it appropriate to criticize Yahowah. Fact is, I empathize with God because if I were He, I'd walk away from the abuse, too, based upon Israeli recalcitrance and the Jewish affinity for Judaism.

But the fact remains, I'm not Yahowah, nor was Moseh or Dowd. As men, there are things we can endure that God cannot, like wade into the cesspool of Christianity and Islam to rebuke these abominations and even post on X where truth is an impediment to success.

So, rather than complain that the job we have been given is too difficult, we should celebrate the realization that Yahowah chose us because He knows that we are capable of doing as requested. We have been afforded the greatest opportunity in the universe – the chance to accomplish something that serves our Creator’s interests and pleases Him with the assurance that we will prevail so long as we remain committed.

Moseh, however, needed a time out and a bit of an attitude adjustment...

“Moseh said (*amar Moseh) to Yahowah (Yahowah), ‘So why have You been so wrong and harmful, evil and troubling, distressing and antagonizing (la mah ra^a – why have you inflicted this anxiety and suffering, causing this misfortunate calamity (hifil perfect)) toward Your servant (la^ebed *atah)?

And what is the reason (wa la mah) that I have not found or obtained (masa^{*}) favor, even kindness or compassion (chen) in Your sight (ba *ayin *atah)?

You have laid (sym – You have placed) the burden (masa^{*} – the immense oppressive load) of all of these people on me (kol ha *am ha zeh *al *any).’” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:11)

I’ll bet your reaction is similar to my own – thinking that there is no way Moseh actually said this to God. But there it is in black and white. Jews crushed Moseh to the point he suffered an emotional meltdown. The only good news here is that Yahowah didn’t give up on him, hold it against him, and managed to talk him through the crisis of confidence. And this means, since Yahowah is consistent, should I falter along the way, I can count on God to walk me away from the cliff.

What I’m about to say may sound scandalous, but I think it is true – God is capable of learning, even enjoys it and grows as a result. And if so, this would be among the reasons that He has been so prolific in praise for His final Witness, even applauding our collaboration in Yada Yah. Yahowah knows that the challenges are formidable and Israelites are irritating. It's a little like X where 12,000 posts have led to just 1200 followers while combatting Muslims and Christians, Progressives and MAGAs. In recognition, we have been offered hundreds of historic narratives such as this one which equips us to deal with adversity en route to the final victory.

God was in a precarious position with Moseh. There was no viable alternative to him, there was a lot of Towrah to cover, and He needed to work with His eighty-year-old shepherd to herd this disagreeable flock of malcontents to the Promised Land. And yet, the people had told God to shut up and go away, making it difficult to intervene to support Moseh in situations like this. So, they would have to work out an arrangement, one Moseh could endure. So, the Almighty listened, but Moseh was not finished fuming...

“‘Was it me (*ha anoky) who gave birth (harah) to all of these people (eth kol ha am zeh)? Am I their mother (im anoky) who conceived them (*yalad huw) such that You would continually say to me (*ky *amar *el any), ‘Lift them up and carry them (nasa huw – bear and tolerate them) in you bosom (*chyq atah) as one carries (*ka *asher nasa) the legitimate (*ha aman – the true) infant (eth ha yowneq* – suckling) onto the land (al ha adamah) that you swore to give to their fathers (asher shaba* la nathan *aby huw)?’”
(Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:12)

This is early on. They had barely left Choreb. And Jews were so irascible and ungrateful that Moseh couldn't stand them. And I don't suspect anyone can accuse Moses of being anti-Semitic, even though he clearly wasn't happy with Jews.

At first blush, one might rightly question why Moseh spoke of giving birth and of being a mother. Obviously, he wasn't a woman, nor is Yahowah, but that's likely the point. The cult that has striven to counterfeit the work of the Choter while trying to replace me so that they, too, can speak for God, is a Mother

Goddess Cult. And since Yahowah's retort to them is found in this and in the next chapter of Bamidbar, the crux of that rebellion is being announced here. This serves as the prelude to the Almighty's rebuttal against those whose position is contrary to His interests. Therefore, we even find Moseh narrating a transition from not being a em* | mother to him looking for a Basar | Herald.

“From where (*min ayin) is there a Basar | Corporeal Herald in the flesh to bring a message (basar – a living being, a human, capable of proclaiming what needs to be said (masculine singular)) for me (*la any) to give (la nathan – to offer (qal infinitive – as an actionable noun)) to all of these people (*la kol ha am ha zeh)?

Because (ky) they continually weep and wail, choosing to tear up and sob (bakah – they constantly cry (qal imperfect jussive)) over me (al any) and say (*wa la amar), “We want you to give to us (*nathan la anachnuw – we’ve decided that you should really want to give us (qal imperative paragogic he cohortative second-person masculine singular)) a Basar | Herald in the flesh (basar – a human to convey the message) that we can choose to devour (*wa akal – we can consume at our option (qal imperfect cohortative first-person plural)).””
(Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:13)

Fortunately for Moseh's malcontent Israelites, Yahowah found a Basar | Corporeal Herald for His wayward people, even if it would take another 3,400 years to prepare and deliver him. But eventually, the Basar would be offered as a nathan | gift given to the final remnant of these people. On this day, after considerable gnashing of teeth during the Time of Trouble, the weeping and wailing will finally be over.

While the Israelis of the exodus would have known nothing of this, the message is that on the Day of the Herald in 2033 / year 6000 Yah, the corporeal manifestation of ha Satan will bludgeon the Basar as the Red Heifer on the Temple Mount. And then, he will try to feast on his flesh, even drink his blood, as this is all foretold in Ezekiel, which conveys Satan's intent. And in so doing, Yahowah's prophecies will be fulfilled.

Moseh, however, was still out of sorts, so he had no idea about any of this, or that he was conveying a harbinger of future events. And what Moseh also missed is that when we work with Yahowah, we never serve alone. God is always at our side, ready to move Heaven and Earth as needed for us to prevail. All that is required of us is commitment, focus, loyalty, a positive attitude, a thoughtful approach, and some effort. God provides the rest, even without our asking.

Moseh, however, felt threatened, overwhelmed, and alone. And he knew that as a solitary man, the mission was unachievable. He said...

“I am not able to succeed or overcome this, nor do I understand (*lo yakol – I am incapable of prevailing and lack the confidence (qal imperfect first-person singular)) by myself, all alone, just me (anowky la bad any) to carry and bear (*la nasa – to lift up or tolerate (qal infinitive)) all of these people (eth kol ha am ha zeh).

It's obvious that it's too great a burden (ky kabed – indeed, this is too weighty a matter) for me (*min any).”
(Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:14)

At this point, Moseh had only known Yahowah for a matter of months. Apart from the *Bare syth / In the Beginning / Genesis narrative and the Shemowth / Names / Exodus experience, he was a neophyte, and that is something few contemplate. Looking back at his body of work and accomplishments, there is the tendency to picture a formidable, even heroic, liberator and a dashing and inspired hallmark of divine revelation – but this is real time. So while that man would emerge in time for the grand oratory of Dabarym / Words / Deuteronomy, he was there at the moment. Currently, Moseh was an eighty-year-old shepherd with wobbly knees, an unresponsive tongue, and an unruly flock.

By contrast today, we have the entire Towrah comprising everything Moseh would learn and share. But that's just the beginning because we benefit from insights provided by Yahowsha*, the Shaphat, Chronicles, and Kings, along with the education Shamuw*el provides. We grow exponentially with Dowd through his Mizmowr and Mashal. Then there is an additional lifetime of learning encapsulated in Yasha*yah, Howsha*, Yirmayah, Yow*el, Zakaryah, and Mal*aky. As a result, we are vastly better prepared and equipped to understand and prevail than was Moseh.

Speaking from personal experience, twenty-four years ago when Yahowah asked me to help free His people from the curse of Islam, I said, "Only if You commit to working with me every step of the way." He said, "What else do you want?" To which I replied, "Protect my home and family and take responsibility for conveying the result of our collaboration to the intended audience." He replied, "Agreed. Now reach into your pocket and you will find a written record of our arrangement." I did, the 91st Psalm served as our contract, and we were off trampling demons and despots on behalf of Israel. We have never hesitated, stumbled, or regretted any part of our collaboration. As a result, I have never felt alone, inadequate, or inept. Yahowah wants us to succeed as much or more than me.

Moseh, however, at least at this moment, was not on the same page. And to make matters worse, he had to deal with his brother and sister, the rebellious and embittered *Aharown and Miryam, antagonizing him while I have Leah's love and support. So, we find ourselves in different circumstances.

"If it is to be like this (*wa im kakah) that You intend to work with me and act toward me (atah *asah la any – You will engage with me), You should want to kill me (*harag any – You should take my life (qal imperative second-person masculine singular)).

If I find (im matsa) favor (chen) in Your sight (*ba *ayn atah), I beg to be put to death (na harag) so I will not witness

(wa al ra*ah*) my disastrous shepherding (ba raah* any*).”
(Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:15)

Moseh hadn't yet settled into the job. Truth be known, he didn't want it, and when he was talked into taking it, all of his worst fears materialized. The Children of Israel were every bit as belligerent and antagonistic as he had remembered the last time he had tried to help them. The sojourn from religious subjugation to Covenant emancipation was progressing poorly. And even though the revelation of Bare^osyth had gone well, and Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym had gone according to plan, every other aspect of their relationship was off kilter. They would need to reboot.

But you will note, Yahowah did not lecture Moseh. God did not even mention his meltdown. Instead, He felt empathy for His shepherd, recognizing what he was up against. Jews have some wonderful qualities, but listening and cooperating are not among them.

Like a good captain or pilot who has a rehearsed response prepared and ready for every contingency, it is always wise to put ourselves into these narratives and consider what we might do differently. And in my case, I would have pushed the grumblers aside, found a prominent rock upon which to stand, and told the whole lot of them to shut up and remove their heads from their posteriors. If there were still those among them who wanted to go back to Mitsraym, I'd point the way. And for those wanting to go to the Promised Land, I'd remind them that it's only available to those who respect the One offering it to them.

Perhaps this is among the reasons Yahowah chose Moseh and not someone whose disposition was more unflappable. Had I been there, I would have addressed those trying to assert their will over God's the way I confront them on the YAHOWAH BLOG. And recognizing their current affinity for the onerous restrictions of Judaism, it is evident that the Yisra^elites would have made a beeline back to Mitsraym, preferring to be abused as slaves. It is quite possible that God had already determined that they couldn't be reasoned with and wanted nothing more than to herd them to Israel with minimal additional confrontation and intervention. He gave up on them.

Yahowah's response, however, can change as the situation necessitates. This is why he revealed in Zakaryah 8 and Yirmayah 31 that He would deploy a different approach prior to His return. Next time, His Messenger won't back down and there will be no accommodation. The Message and the Messenger will be firm, uncompromising, and resolute. Shuwb or no shuwb for you.

Therefore, as we delve deeper into this narrative, it is becoming ever more obvious that it was intended to be prophetic and speak to us as we are working to bring the final remnant of the Children of Yisra*el out of their stupor and back to the point that they are willing to listen to Yahowah at long last. To that end, you will notice that Yahowah did not include either *Aharown or Miryam, Moseh's brother and sister, in His temporary accommodation. The burden would be shared, but not the responsibility for communicating the word of God. That is particularly telling considering that the pair of insiders would soon claim Yahowah's authority for themselves – something God resolutely denounced. Therefore, even here, Moseh would remain Yahowah's lone voice. This was about sharing the burden, not forming a chorus.

Further to this comparison, no one received a full application of the Ruwach | Spirit of Yahowah. The singular Ruwach that had been offered to Moseh was split and spread among seventy elderly men. This makes the situation associated with the Choter all the more impressive since Yada has the ongoing benefit of seven Ruwach rather than one Spirit split among seventy. (Although, at the conclusion of Moseh's time, he passed the Spirit of Chakmah | Intelligence on to Yahowsha* ben Nuwn.)

As we proceed through this narrative, there are some words that catch our eye, such as asaph*, which addresses an ingathering. This becomes especially revealing with asher yada because it suggests that Yahowah was attesting that Yada would know a great deal about the impending Ingatherings of Shabuw^{ah} and Taruw^{ah}, and how they would be beneficial to the relationship He intended.

Thereafter, we find shoter which, when properly translated from its root, speaks of finding someone who could write – and write we would.

Next, it is as if Yahowah was using this opportunity to not only help Moseh survive a rebellion predicated upon the ongoing recalcitrance and belligerence of Israel, but also to prepare His Choter for both eventualities. We find a reference to the ohel Mow^{ed}* | Tent of the Restoring Witness to the Eternal Testimony which Yada and ElYah* will reside within while they fulfill the Mow^{ed} of the Herald. The Witnesses will be yatsab | standing and present at their post atop the Temple Mount and in front of the newly erected Tent of the Witness, such that, upon Taruw^{ah}, Yahowah will atsal* | take away the ruwach from Yada for a limited time to advance the benefits of the relationship through him. By doing so, the Red Heifer will atsal* | remove the *masa | religious bias and political prejudice of the people.

There is also a reference to *sheba | seventy which is the current age of zaqen | the elderly individual serving as Yahowah's final Witness. Evidently, it is an appropriate age to serve. But besides these dozen commonalities, there is little else to tie this narrative to our present situation other than Yahowah has assembled a similar support team to advance our collaboration sharing His Restoring Witness.

“So then (wa) Yahowah (Yahowah) said to Moseh (amar el Moseh), ‘You should gather for either a harvest or removal (asaph* – assemble and bring together to reward or perish (qal imperative)) concerning Me (*la any) seventy individuals of the old men (sheba iysh zaqen) of Yisra^{el} | those who struggle and contend with God (Yisra^{el}) whom,

for the sake of the relationship, you know and can acknowledge (*asher yada^o – whom to show the benefits of the way to walk of which you are aware) that are indeed among the most mature of the people (ky hem zagen ha am) and the literate who can write (wa shoter) of them (huw), grab hold of them and take them (wa laqach *eth hem) to the Tent of the Restoring Witness to the Eternal Testimony (*el *ohel mow^{ed}). Then, without any pressure, and solely on their own volition, let them stand, presenting themselves (wa yatsab – let them independently appear (hitpa'el perfect)) there with you (sham *im *atah). (Bamidbar 11:16)

And I will descend, diminishing an aspect of Myself (wa yarad) and talk with you there (wa dabar *im *atah sham). Then, I will take away and remove (wa *atsal – I will hold back and deny, reducing for a time (qal perfect)) a portion of the Spirit (min ha ruwach) which, for the benefit of the relationship (*asher), is upon you (*al *atah) and place it for a limited time (wa sym – and set (qal perfect)) on them (*al hem).

Then they will bear (wa nasa* – they will carry (qal perfect)), along with you (*eth atah), the burden and bias (ba masa – the oppressive desires and prejudices) of the people (ha *am) so that you will not continue to tolerate and carry it (wa lo nasa – you won't bear it (qal imperfect)) by yourself, alone (*atah la bad).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:17)

The Children of Yisra*el were burdensome to be sure, annoying and unappreciative. They were prejudiced against God and biased toward religion. It was more than God could bear, much less a man, even seventy men. This remains one of the most unheralded revelations in the Towrah. The Children of Israel have been obnoxious toward God since the beginning. They remain so. In fact, they are arrogant and belligerent in their animosity toward Yahowah and those who speak for Him.

This known, Yahowah would continue to support and communicate through a single man. The others were there to run interference between Moseh and the most malcontent. But there is no evidence that they were of any value. Moseh was accommodated but not benefited.

If we were to render basar as “meat,” unaware of its verbal root, the searing lesson here would be that if God gives you what you want, He has given up on the possibility of deriving from you what He wants. But since this discussion was about the growing Yisra^{*}elite animosity toward Yahowah and not dietary considerations, by presenting basar as the “human herald” who would resolve the people’s misplaced appetite, we are rewarded with life-saving advice. But to benefit, today’s Israelis must disavow Judaism and be set apart unto Yahowah, becoming special again.

“And to the people say (*wa *el ha *am amar), ‘Be special and act set apart (qadash – become devoted and dedicated, uniquely special) in the future (machar – from this day forward) and then you will be nourished by the Basar | Human Herald at that time (*wa akal basar – so you can be fed by the corporeal messenger of good news (qal perfect)).

Now, by contrast (ky), you have wept and wailed, moaning and crying (bakah) in the ear of Yahowah (*ba ozen Yahowah) to ask (*la amar), “Who is this nurturing Basar | Human Herald for us (*my *akal anachnuw basar – where and when will this corporeal messenger of good news be feeding us (hifil imperfect)) because it was better (ky towb – it was beautiful and pleasing, prosperous and beneficial, good and festive) for us (*la anachnuw) in Mitsraym | Confining and Troublesome Subjugation (Mitsraym – the Crucibles of Religious and Political Oppression; from matsowr – being bound and besieged, confined and anguished by a hostile adversary).

So, therefore (wa), Yahowah (Yahowah) will, at the appropriate time, provide (nathan – will give, offering at a point in time (qal perfect)) for you, and on your behalf (*la atem), the Human Herald (basar – a person to proclaim the message), and then, at that time, you will be nourished (wa akal – you will be fed (qal perfect)).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:18)

Promise made. Promise kept. Here we are.

And while we can and should commend God for doing as He said He would, and for the benefit of His people, what are we to make of the Children of Yisra*el who had the audacity to lie to God and say that He was treating them worse than the Egyptian taskmasters when they were slaves and enduring apartheid and genocide? It was as rude as it was ridiculous.

But there is a benefit, even in belligerence, because now when attacked by rabbis and their ilk for trying to help liberate Jews from themselves and their contrarian attitudes, my retort is that they are responding similarly to the way they attacked God and Moseh. And I’m delighted to be in their company.

The following numbers might all be poetic license, but if not, it is instructive to note that 1 God chose 1 man and the 2 have initially collaborated for 5 + 20 years (2001 to 2026) and 2 + 10 + 20 years overall (2001 to 2033), all the while focused on the 2 Mow*edym he would fulfill, with the most important role occurring on day 1 of the 2 + 5 month as part of the 2 + 5 total. And on Taruw*ah, we are explicitly told in Yasha*yah 17 that there will be two or three gleaned on the uppermost branch of Yahuwdym and four or five from the Yisra*el branch that had been cut away.

Unlike a morsel of meat with no lasting benefit, the Basar | Human Herald will provide the *ad | restoring witness to the eternal testimony. He will do so during the chodesh yowmym | days of renewal and restoration on the first day of the month, also known as *Taruw*ah* | the Day of the Herald. As a result, he will bestow the *asher | benefits of the relationship while *yatsa | leading the final exodus, this one away from the *aph | animosity and rancor of Jews toward Yahowah. But as has been the case, most Israelites will see their godsend, the Nakry | Observant and Responsive Foreigner, as a *zara | nauseating foreigner and loathsome stranger. But I'm getting ahead of God's story...

“Not for one day (lo yowm echad) will you be continuously and abundantly fed and nourished (akal* – will you consume what is nurturing and valuable (qal imperfect paragogic nun)), and not for two days (wa lo yowmym*), nor for five days (wa lo chamesh yowmym*), not for ten days or twenty days (*wa lo asarah yowmym wa lo esrym yowmym), (Bamidbar 11:19) but forever by the restoring witness to the eternal testimony during (ad* – eternally for a continuous existence by the one observing and sharing the evidence through) the days of renewal and restoration on the first day of the month (chodesh yowmym – days of reaffirmation of the prior relationship), until the restoring witness to the benefits of the relationship (ad asher) comes forth and he leads the exodus (*yatsa – he is brought out and extended to bring out and withdraw (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular)) before your face and because of your resentment and animosity (*min *aph atem). Although, he will be for a time (wa hayah), perceived as a nauseating foreigner and loathsome stranger by you (*la *atem la zara – a disgusting and revolting outsider toward you).

This is on account of your failure to pay attention and because surely (*ya*an ky*), you have rejected and spurned, avoided any association with and despised, even loathed as vile, while showing contempt for (*ma*as* – you have refused and trashed, cast away and abhorred (qal perfect)) Yahowah (Yahowah) who, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), has drawn near and is in your midst (*ba qereb atem) while you have wept and wailed, moaning and groaning (bakah) before His presence (*la paneh huw) to say (*la amar), ‘For what and why then (la mah zeh) did we come out, participating in the Exodus (*yatsa – were we withdrawn (qal perfect)) from (min) Mitsraym | Confinement within the Crucibles of Oppression (Mitsraym – Troublesome Subjugation, Religious and Political Persecution; from *matsowr – being bound and besieged, confined and anguished by a hostile adversary)?” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:20)

The reason the Basar | Human Herald is providing the *ad | restoring witness to the eternal testimony during the chodesh yowmym | days of renewal and restoration on the first day of the month is to bestow the *asher | benefits of the relationship upon those *yatsa | engaged in the final exodus because of their *ya*an* | failure to pay attention along with their *ma*as* rejection of God. He will be leading them away from their *aph | animosity and rancor toward Yahowah, even as they view him as a *zara | nauseating foreigner and loathsome stranger because this will be their last opportunity to *yatsa | be withdrawn from their self-imposed mitsraym | religious subjugation.

While Moseh may have been a little delayed on the uptake, it was not without purpose. He was aware that even among the 600,000, there wasn’t a basar | herald in the bunch. And since he realized that Yahowah promised to provide one to resolve the current calamity, he was looking.

“Then Moseh said (wa *amar Moseh), ‘I am in the midst of these (anoky ba qereb huw) six hundred thousand (shesh me*ah *eleph) people on foot whom, to show the way to walk (raqgly ha *am *asher), such that You, Yourself, have said (wa *atah *amar), ‘A Human Herald (basar – a person to proclaim the message) I will provide for them (nathan la hem – I will offer and give to them (qal imperfect)) so that they would be nourished (*akal – they would be fed (qal perfect)) the days of renewal and restoration on the first day of the month (chodesh yowmym – days of reaffirmation or the prior relationship). (Bamidbar 11:21)

Where is the flock with the lamb as well as the herd with the bull (ha tso*n wa baqar) to die, slaughtered and sacrificed (shachat – to be beaten and killed) for them (la hem), such that he is discovered and obtained for them (wa matsa* la hem – so that he is found, experienced, and sufficient for them)?

Or is it as if (*im) all of that grows, even as fish (kol *eth

dag) of the waters (ha yam – the sea), to be gathered in and harvested for them (asaph la hem* – ingathered and removed for them) so that he is found and experienced by them (wa matsu la hem* – such that that he is discovered, obtained, and sufficient for them)?” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:22)

It isn't an accident that tso*n and baqar, addressing a lamb and a bull, were both singular and masculine in the statement. The lamb is Dowd and the bull is Yada*, the King who fulfilled Pesach and his Herald who will fulfill Taruw*ah. Further, their willingness to sacrifice their lives and die, beaten by the beast, is advanced through shachat which not only conveys all of this but is also sparingly used. Rather than conveying the idea of being “slaughtered” as would be the case if basar was to be interpreted as “meat” rather than “herald,” shachat speaks of being “killed by being beaten to death.” And that was and will be the fate of the lamb and bull of the Mow*edym of Pesach and Taruw*ah.

Yahowah inspired Moseh to ask when the lamb and bull will *matsu | be revealed and discovered, obtained and experienced. While the answer is Passover in year 4000 Yah and the Day of the Herald in year 6000 Yah, it is likely that these insights were for us to deduce, celebrate, and share.

As we have previously considered, dag, which is commonly rendered “fish,” is from an unused root which addresses “growth.” Further, by this time, Moseh was well east of the gulf and thus nowhere near a yam | sea, suggesting that dam yam was to be understood as the way to grow as a result of the great waters which would cascade off of the Temple Mount and from beneath the bull during the fulfillment of Taruw*ah. This is then reinforced by the fact that this all pertains to an asaph* | harvest and ingathering for them. It is something the remnant of Yisra*el will *matsu | experience at that time.

Should there be any doubt as to the appropriateness of this interpretation, Yahowah reaffirms that we are on the right track in the anticipation of a qatsar | harvest, one that He will orchestrate. So, God asks His faltering liberator...

“Therefore, Yahowah said to Moseh (wa *amar Yahowah *el Moseh), ‘Is Yahowah’s influence (ha yad Yahowah) to reap a harvest cut short (qatsar – lacking in the ability to ingather)? So then you will see and perceive (*atah ra*ah – at a point in time you will witness) whether he will be selected, choose to engage, be encountered by you, and succeed (ha qarah *atah – if it will happen and whether you will meet him (qal imperfect jussive third-person masculine singular)), if My word is or is not (dabar *any *any im lo).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:23)

There are many reasons I don’t question or challenge Yahowah, and this is one of them. Within the parameters He has set for Himself, such as being consistent and reliable, Yahowah can and will do whatever He has promised. Two qatsar | harvests remain to be fulfilled, so Yahowah posed a rhetorical question regarding the likelihood that they would transpire as foretold.

While it is unwise for us to question whether Yahowah will fulfill his obligations and do as He has promised, we are in a vastly superior position than was Moseh. We have over one thousand pages of prooftexts to scrutinize which serve as validation when Moseh was just beginning to scribe God’s story. And this is likely why Yahowah was a bit coy with Moseh, telling him that he’d have to wait and see if He had selected and engaged a Herald and Bull who would succeed, even if he would choose to engage and encounter God’s wayward children such as they are. This then suggests that Moseh and I will meet and share a laugh at long last. In that way, he and we will have further poof that Yahowah is true to His word.

That may not have been much fun for Moseh, but it has been a joy for us to behold how adept Yahowah is at using the past to frame the future. God is really good at this prophecy stuff.

Moseh walked out of his tent to speak, likely parroting what Yahowah had told him, but remember, that he was so distraught, that he had just told Yahowah to kill him, so this would not have been his best effort. And while that perspective is interesting, what's particularly telling is that Yahowah was not actually present during Moseh's meltdown. God listened and spoke, but did both from a distance. He is just now descending...

“So Moseh went out (wa yatsa Moseh*) and he spoke to the people, communicating (*wa dabar *el ha am) through the words (eth dabarym*) of Yahowah (Yahowah).

And he gathered (*wa asaph) seventy individuals of the elders (sheba iysh min zaqen) of the people (*ha am) so that he was present and standing with them (*wa *amad eth hem) around the tent (*sabyb ha ohel). (Bamidbar 11:24)

Then (wa) Yahowah (Yahowah) descended, diminishing an aspect of Himself (yarad) within a cloud of smoke and water (*ba ha anan) and He spoke to him (*wa dabar *el huw) as He took away, holding back and reducing (*wa atsal) a portion of the spirit (min ruwach) that, for the benefit of the relationship and to show the way (asher*), was on him (al huw) to provide to (*nathan al) the seventy old men (sheba iysh ha zaqen).

And he was (wa hayah – he continually existed (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular)) comparably (ka) inert and inactive, in a restful state (nuwach) with the spirit (ha ruwach) among them (al hem*). And they were as uninspired prophets of their own initiative (*wa naba – they, without benefiting from influences apart from themselves spoke about the future (hitpael imperfect)), so they contributed nothing, not adding anything (wa lo yasaph*).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:25)

With only two notable exceptions, Eldod* and Mydod, Yahowah's presence was subtractive, not argumentative, on this occasion, which is not surprising under the circumstances. He would diminish the presence of His Spirit within Moseh, reducing it seventyfold. And apart from God's Beloved and the Loving Friend of Dowd, none of the others were of any benefit. Moseh became somewhat listless and inactive, taking a breather, while others contributed nothing.

This is to suggest that Yahowah had turned the page and was moving on, recognizing that there was nothing more to be achieved through the Yisra*elites of the Exodus. He would go through the process and deliver them to the Promised Land, but that would be it, at least until God's Beloved and Dowd's Devoted Friend, filled as they would be with the Ruwach, would perform on behalf of the final remnant of these people.

“But then there were two individuals (*wa shanaym iysh) who remained, continuing to exist to the end, who were spared on behalf of the remnant (*sa*ar* – who were preserved for the remainder, continuing to the end (nifal imperfect third-person masculine singular – they carry out and receive the benefits associated with being spared for the remnant over the course of time)) within the encampment as a favor (ba ha machaneh – the camp; from ma | consider the implications of chanah | to come down to pitch a tent and camp out as a merciful favor).

The one's name is (*shem ha echad) Eldod | God's Beloved (Eldod* – Beloved of God; from el* | god and dowd | beloved), and the second's name is (wa shem ha sheny), Mydod | Cast as Dowd's Devoted Friend (Mydod – Ponder the Implications of the Beloved's Adoring Hand serving as My Hand brought forth for friendship; from ma | to question and yadad | cast in as a loving friend, from any* | My, yad | hand, and dowd | beloved [note: the Mem indicates that MyDod will come from the sea and be a gentile, that he will provide cleansing and life in conjunction with Dowd, while the Yowd affirms that he will serve as Dowd's right hand]).

And the Ruwach | Spirit (wa ha ruwach – the breath and mind of God), She came to rest, settled, and continually remained upon them (*nuwach al hem – She was constantly associated with them (qal imperfect third-person feminine singular)).

They were among (wa hem ba) those who are writers (ha katab – who received and conveyed the writings because they wrote written statements (qal passive participle masculine plural)).

They did not emerge from the tent at this time, as they were not leading an exodus for the illuminated family at the moment (*wa lo*yatsa*ha ohel – they did not leave the radiant home and go out of the shining dwelling place at this moment (qal perfect)).

Therefore (wa), they continued to speak prophetically, communicating the message of God, independent of the others (*naba – they prophesied without further assistance on an ongoing basis (hitpael consecutive imperfect)), fortuitously and compassionately within the encampment (ba ha machaneh – the camp; from ma | consider the implications of chanah | to come down to pitch a tent and camp out as a merciful favor).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:26)

When Moseh stumbled and the Elders of Yisra*el failed, Yahowah brought in reinforcements by way of the great and final Zarowa* – *Eldod and Mydod – Dowd and his Herald. They would not only be filled with the Spirit, the Ruwach of Yahowah would remain on them. And as a result of the Spirit’s inspiration, they would be prolific writers, reading what was written and expounding upon it. And so it would be with Moseh, Dowd, and Yada writing more than all others combined. From Moseh, the Towrah, from Dowd the Mizmowr and Mashal, and from Yada the 35 volumes of Yada Yahowah.

In that their contributions would be for another time, *Eldod and Mydod did not emerge from the tent at this time, but those they represented would emerge 400 and 3,400 years thereafter. What I did not expect, however, is that while we know that Moseh and Dowd were the most powerful and prolific prophets, it is insinuated here that Dowd’s Helping Hand has some prophetic attributes, even if only limited to speaking for God at this time. This is, therefore, Yahowah's great favor and act of compassion, for those wanting to camp out with Him.

Tellingly, it was the scattered sheep who recognized that God's Beloved and the One Devoted to Dowd were speaking for Yahowah. And so, they, the youngest members of the Covenant Family, immediately made the connection between what they were saying and the Towrah, so they moved in Moseh's direction. They would even confess to the relevance of this corresponding and straightforward correlation.

“And the scattered sheep represented by a young man (*wa ha na*ar* – the wayward flock comprised of adolescents served by an attendant of the one to whom the flock belongs) ran, moving quickly (ruwts – he immediately and swiftly moved (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular) before Moseh, the counterpart who Withdraws, to conspicuously inform, making known by announcing in a straightforward fashion so as to confess the corresponding connection he was making through Moseh (wa nagad la Moseh – to openly acknowledge before Moseh, expounding upon what is conspicuous and forthright (hifil consecutive imperfect third-person masculine singular – the wayward flock represented by a young man caused Moseh to be his understudy, participating in making the announcement publicly known in the past for the future with ongoing implications over time)).

And he said with unfolding implications through time (*wa amar – he stated (qal consecutive imperfect third-person masculine singular)), Eldod | God's Beloved (Eldod* – Beloved of God; from el* | god and dowd | beloved) and Mydod | Cast as a Loving Friend of Dowd (wa Mydod – Ponder the Implications of the Beloved's Adoring Hand serving as My Hand brought forth for friendship; from ma | to question and yadad | cast in as a loving friend, any* | My, yad | hand, and dowd | beloved [note: the Mem indicates that MyDod will come from the sea and be a gentile, that he will provide cleansing and life in conjunction with Dowd, while the Yowd affirms that he will serve as Dowd's right hand]), are speaking prophetically, demonstrably communicating the message of God, independently of the others (*naba – they are prophesying without further assistance (hitpa'el participle)) beneficially and mercifully within the encampment (ba ha machaneh – in the camp; from ma | consider the implications of chanah | to come down to pitch a tent and camp out as a favor born of compassion).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:27)

What a marvelous way to highlight future events through previous experiences, turning a horrible episode into a teaching opportunity. The Towrah is prophetic and miraculous, enlightening and educational. Out of a history few want to acknowledge is a prophecy fewer still want to accept.

While it is obvious with el* being god that ElDod* is the Almighty's Beloved, God's Chosen One, and Yahowah's Son, Dowd | David, I'm intrigued by the m-y prefix to Dowd with MyDod. In paleo-Hebrew, the Mah ~  was drawn as waves on the sea. This would infer that MyDod would be a gowy, and that he would be involved cleansing the Yisra*elites while providing them with an extension of life in conjunction with Dowd and based upon what Yahowah's Beloved has accomplished. In addition, the Yowd ~  was drawn in the form of an extended arm and open hand, one designed to grasp hold of the people and lift them up. It is also symbolic of MyDod serving as the right hand of King Dowd. Even with the two Dalets ~ , Dowd and his Herald would open and close the “door” to life and God's home.

But here's an intriguing question, one I'd wager no one has previously contemplated: since we know Dowd studied every word of the Towrah, how do you suppose he responded when he saw His name, and the one of someone serving him, as spirit-filled troubadours in the midst of this horrid affair? Do you think he made the same connection with the brutal deaths of the lamb and bull to resolve his people's recalcitrance? Was this where Dowd came to realize that he would have a Basar | Herald who would reintroduce him to Yisra*el and reacquaint his people with what he has achieved? The implications are actually extraordinary.

Back in the moment, it is becoming apparent that Moseh was beginning to understand the point of this, even as Yahowshuwa^o was still trying to get his bearings and figure it out...

“Then (wa) Yahowshuwa^o | Yahowah Delivers, Liberates, and Saves (Yahowshuwa^o) son of Nuwn | the Continually Existing (ben Nuwn), the one serving Moseh (sharath Moseh) from his youth, having made his decision and having been chosen (min bachurowth huw* – from a young age and of his choosing; from bachar – to choose and be selected), responded (*anah – replied).

And he said (wa *amar), ‘Sir, my Upright One, Moseh (*adony Moseh – my Lord, Moseh), do you want them to stop (kala^o hem – do you want them to cease (qal imperative second-person masculine singular))? (Bamidbar 11:28)

But Moseh said to him (wa amar Moseh la huw), ‘Are you jealous (ha qana^o *atah – are you envious) for my sake (la *any)? What if the gift was offered to (my nathan) all of the people and family (kol *am) of Yahowah (Yahowah) such that they spoke as prophets (naby*ym – were inspired by God) because (ky) Yahowah (Yahowah) gave (nathan – He offered (qal imperfect)) Ruwach huw* | His Spirit (eth ruwach huw) to them (*al hem)?’” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:29)

He knew that this was God’s way of saying, “Don’t worry Moseh, herd the wayward flock a little longer and then I’ll take it from there. The plan and people are in place. You are the first of three men who will be responsible for bringing My people home.” And so, Moseh immediately began preparing the Children of Yisra*el for the harvest that was sure to come.

Then Moseh (wa Moseh) and the elderly men (wa zaqen) of Yisra*el (Yisra*el) gathered, preparing for the harvest (asaph – assembled for an ingathering) of the beneficial and merciful encampment (el ha machaneh – to the camp; from ma | consider the implications of chanah | to come down to pitch a tent and camp out as a favor born of compassion).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:30)

And then as a sign of things to come...

“The spirit set out (*wa ruwach nasa) from Yahowah (min Yahowah) and He brought (guwz) prosperity and quail (salaw) from the sea (min ha yam – from a non-Israelite).

But then, He abandoned (wa natash – and left, rejecting and forsaking (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular)) being associated with the encampment (al ha machaneh*), similar to (ka) the way of another day (derek yowm). For this (koh), and like a journey of another time (wa ka derek), this was (koh) encompassing (sabyb) the camp (ha machaneh) and akin to (wa ka), units of measure, mothers, and people (amahym* – tribes, cubits using the hand and forearm, or the source of origin; from em* | mothers) over the face, presence, and appearance (al paneh*) of this domain (*ha erets).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:31)

It is as if Yahowah is setting us up for what will follow when things go from bad to worse, with Moseh’s sister, Miryam, claiming authority for herself, as if she and Aharown* also spoke for God. So, while God’s Dowd and Dowd’s Friend remained filled with the Spirit and safe within the Tabernacle, even with 70 others equipped to do better, there was no sign of improvement. Therefore, God did as I’ve suggested He would, and He gave up on His wayward and bratty children. They had gone from slavery to self-indulgence without so much as a kind word in between. Unable to reason with them or even care for them, Yahowah abandoned and rejected those who had rejected and abandoned Him.

Fortunately, a new day would come, even if it would dawn in phases with Dowd anointed 413 years thereafter and then his friend, Yada coming to light 3,036 years later. But before these events would transpire, we are told that even though Yahowah’s

Ruwach was represented by a feminine noun, when deployed, there was no mistaking that Yahowah was retaining His masculinity and acting under the pronoun “He,” thereby negating the possibility that the Ruwach represented the maternal aspects of God’s nature. This is pertinent because, claiming otherwise was the impetus of the Mother Goddess rebellion that tried to rob the world of the Choter, replacing by counterfeiting Yahowah’s chosen implement, necessitating the rebuke found in Numbers 12. And that is why we find the plural of em* | mothers used as the unit of measure of their domain by these rebellious traitors in opposition to the Basar. So fortuitously, the Herald was undeterred.

“The Basar | Herald (ha basar – the corporeal manifestation of the message) will be beyond expectation in testifying, admonishing and helping as a restoring witness (owd* – will continually serve as one providing evidence to restore and sustain).

He will provide insights and understanding (huw bayn* – he will make the connections to comprehend) for them to bite into and chew (shen hem – piercing as a sharp Crag).

However, before (terem – nevertheless, prior to the time) he will reestablish the covenant by being cut off and killed (karath – he creates through separation (nifal imperfect third-person masculine singular), the enormous frustration, animosity, and resentment (*wa aph – the anger and disappointment) of Yahowah (Yahowah) will be aroused and kindled (charah) against the people (*ba ha am).

So Yahowah (wa Yahowah) would afflict (nakah – would strike (hifil imperfect)) the people (*ba ha am) with a devastating plague, a calamitous pandemic disease, and an overwhelming impairment (*makah rob ma*od* – an extremely debilitating incapacitation).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:33)

By consistently rendering each word in a manner consistent with its actionable root, beginning with basar, with an eye to the future and an ear tuned to Yah's instructions, we grow in our relationship with God and are better prepared for the ensuing battle: for the awakening and return of Yisra*el. While I remain as devoted to this mission as is humanly possible, the primary reason that we are exceeding expectations while testifying and admonishing Jews, is that Yahowah is inspiring and enabling His Witness. We will restore a surviving remnant of Yisra*el because of God's assistance. He has, through the Ruwach of Chakmah and Bayn, provided the intelligent insights and overall comprehension, and through the Ruwach of Gibowrah, the fortitude and courage to see this through. Between 25,000 pages of Yada Yahowah and the 300 hours thus far of the YAHOWAH BLOG, there is plenty to bite into and chew.

But let's be clear, we are trying to overcome 3,475 years of built-up animosity, resentment, and frustration. Yahuwdaym have been egregious for a very long time. God is exceedingly disappointed in His people. And recognizing that they turned on Him, against Moseh, and have continued to be antagonizing thereafter, it is going as we should expect. A most formidable challenge lies before us. But at least we know that Yahowah is pleased and that our testimony on behalf of Yisra*el's restoration exceeds His expectations. That is as gratifying as it is satisfying.

It has been obvious all along that God wasn't going to tolerate such belligerence – and why should He? Apart from a rare few, these people were already dead to Him. He was now biding His time, going through the motions, until Dowd's first two of three lives, the time of the Prophets, the nastiness of religion, and finally to the ultimate restoration of Yisra*el through the witness and testimony of the Basar | Herald.

This was a graveyard for Yisra*elite souls...

“And the name (*wa eth shem) of that place (*ha maqowm ha huw) was called (*qara – was designated) *Qibrowth hat-Ta*awah* | Tombs to Bury Lusts, Longings, Inclinations, and Cravings (*Qibrowth hat-Ta*awah* – Graves of Covetousness and Sepulchers of Wants and Desires) because this is where (ky sham) they buried (qabar) the people (*ha am) who were overwhelmed with their wants and needs and who were enthralled with their yearnings, longings, and cravings (awah* – who were covetous, greedy, and lustful).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:34)

When Yahowah is offering the sun, moon, and stars, when our inheritance is life and liberty, our perfection, adoption, enrichment, and empowerment to an infinite extent, squabbling over one’s next meal and complaining bitterly about the menu is sure to engender an exceedingly negative response. But such has been the nature of Yahuwdaym, and largely as a consequence of Judaism. The original cast has written themselves out of God’s story and so it is to be seen how many choose to pencil themselves back in before the final curtain is drawn and the book is closed.

From (min) Qibrowth hat-Ta*awah* | Tombs to Bury Lusts, Longings, Inclinations, and Cravings (*Qibrowth hat-Ta*awah* – Graves of Covetousness and Sepulchers of Wants and Desires) the people set out and moved on to (nasa ha am) Chatserowth* | the Sounding of the Trumpets (Chatsarowth), where they remained (hayah – existed (qal imperfect)) in the presence of Trumpets (Chatserowth).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 11:35)

There would be a day, albeit 3,480 years distant from this deplorable occasion, when the Shophar will be sounded for Shabu*ah and Taruw*ah. God’s People will be given a last best chance for redemption as a result of the Basar | Herald.

I will openly admit that it would have been possible to render basar as “meat” rather than “herald” and akal* as “eat” rather than “be nourished,” but that would have left us in a terrible place without remedy. Moseh had a nervous breakdown and said horrible things to God, and God completely disavowed and rejected His people for their ingratitude and insanity.

In the first year of a forty-year journey through the desert and three millennia voyage through life, by rendering basar as “meat,” this would mean that it was all over, with no hope of restoration. And in the process of a messy and irreconcilable divorce, we’d have to disavow a hundred indications otherwise. Or, we can see it as I’ve presented it and give Yahowah credit for being a master wordsmith and playwright.

Miryam ~ Embittered and Contentious

It is hard to imagine in light of how Jews give lip service to the Torah and revel in the Exodus as they are recast by Judaism, but, in reality, that the Children of Yisra^el could have been more cantankerous as they migrated from confrontational to maniacal one day to the next. Nevertheless, the issue that sparked the next appalling episode in the estrangement of God's people grew out of ill-advised resentment against Moseh's wife. This was parlayed into an attack on the prophet's authority to speak for Yahowah.

Interestingly, this is the very same flashpoint that was recently used against the Basar | Herald. The motivation was the need to fill voids in impoverished lives by trying to supersede Yahowah's Choter. Personal and overwhelming wants and needs, unmitigated greed and covetous desires, dark yearnings and hidden longings spawned a hideous cult conceived to promote a Mother Goddess. The instigators would go one day to the next from promoting Yahowah's Nakry to demeaning and denouncing him, only to counterfeit him to the extent they emerged to wear him as a skin to hide their leprosy.

What we are about to learn is that Yahowah does not compromise to accommodate the desires of those who want to write their own script. He chooses whom He intends to communicate His message through and He never waivers or replaces them – even when they stumble and fall, as did Moseh on the previous occasion or would Dowd thereafter.

The life lesson is that we are not smarter than God. He has a plan, and He is going to see it through. He has chosen His cast of characters for reasons that appeal to Him and He does not give a hoot what anyone else may prefer. For example, rabbis have made careers out of convincing Jews that they know better than God and that they are smarter than everyone else. Their names, holidays, edicts, laws, arguments, and books take precedence over Yahowah's preferences, albeit only in the minds of the religious.

Along these lines, there are those who do not like my wife and many more who are of the opinion that they could do better than I have done as they insist that they speak for their nameless Hashem of a G-d, the myth of Mr. Christ, or even for the deplorable un-god Allah. And while freewill entitles the believer to their opinions, God not only disagrees, He is emphatic about His position. Those who oppose the men and women of Yahowah's choosing find themselves ostracized and rebuked, leprous and afflicted. The story never changes.

In this case, being Yahowah's messenger afforded Moseh, and now Yada, the status that others craved, not knowing the responsibility that comes with it. After all, Moseh was establishing the foundation of the Covenant and the Path to Heaven, while Yada is tasked with the responsibility of reacquainting Yisra^{*}elites with Yahowah and His Son so that he can bring them back together. Moseh would invest 40 years herding malcontents across the desert while Yada would devote every waking hour for 32 years making the final harvests and homecoming productive and rewarding. With a faulty foundation, the Covenant Home would not stand. But without instructions on how to find it and move inside, it would be for naught.

But beyond this, think of the responsibility of the Nakry based upon what God announced through Solomon at the dedication of the House for Yahowah's Name 3000 years ago. He said that the entire world, including Yisra^{*}elites, should listen to and then act upon everything the Nakry spoke and wrote. And that's the ultimate challenge: say too much and risk saying something wrong and say too little and fail as a result.

As we move forward, and as you consider what is revealed in the Towrah, please do not make the mistake common among rabbis of assuming that a concern over Moseh's wife being of a different ethnicity actually mattered. She was only the point of contention, one used to galvanize many in the community into rebellion against their actual rival – Moseh, himself. It is the same situation that my wife, who is Jewish, experienced, making this prophetic...

“Miryam | the Embittered, Contentious, and Rebellious (Miryam – the mentally and emotionally troubled and despondent as the well-fed fatling sister of Moseh; from mary – a bitter fatling and well-fed beast, and marah – to be contentious, insubordinate, and disruptive in an either/or proposition) and aharown | the Desire to Serve as an Adversarial Alternative, (aharown – alas, one alarmingly choosing to offer a troubling option; from ahah* – not so, an emphatic adversarial situation with an alarming cry, ar* – to be otherwise, and own* – all things pertaining to this) spoke (wa dabar – communicated words to control others destructively (piel imperfect – the object of the hostile narrative was to have Moseh suffer the consequence on an ongoing basis)) concerning (ba – with regard to) Moseh | One who Draws Out (Mashah – to pull out) over and against (al odowth – concerning and on account of) the woman (*ha ishah – the female spouse) of the Kuwshy (ha Kuwshy – of the Cushites, descendant of Ham, Noach’s grandson suggesting either from Egypt, Arabia, or Mesopotamia) who, for the benefit of the relationship (asher* – who relationally and beneficially), he had selected (laqach – he had accepted, received, and obtained) as (ky) a wife (ishah* – woman) having taken (laqach) a Cushite (Kuwshyth).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:1)

There is an attempt among Christians to make this about race, suggesting that Kuwsh denotes someone’s skin pigmentation or ethnicity, but there is no correlation to “black” in the word. All that matters is that she was of a different ethnicity than the others in the group who were trying to disparage and discredit her while using her to make Moseh vulnerable to being manipulated by these conspirators.

This was, therefore, a harbinger of what occurred with my wife, Leah, who is a Jew, and therefore, unlike me or them – at least from their gowyish perspective where Yahuwdym are commonly degraded and demonized. The same tactic was deployed by the Leprous Hornet’s Nest of Gowym Motherites. In fact, demeaning my wife to discredit me became an essential plank of their rebellion and was featured as part of their “Teachings.”

So that we are clear in all of this, we are not told if the woman being harassed by the other women and attacked was Tsiporah | Zipporah. If so, she was one of the seven daughters of Jethro, the shepherd and priest of Midian, whom Moseh married upon his arrival in Arabia. This is likely because the story of their meeting, where Moseh defended her and her sisters from bandits and then was invited to break bread with her father, is one of many affirming examples of Moseh’s remarkable character. It also reveals that gowym were more appreciative of Moseh’s heroics than Yisra^{*}elites.

And if victim of the assault was not Tsiporah | the Early Bird, then we do not know this woman’s name. There would be no telling whether she was an additional wife, or a subsequent wife should Tsiporah | Zipporah have predeceased Moseh without mention. Although, since this is very early on during the Exodus, Tsiporah is the most likely suspect.

Further suggesting that this was Tsiporah, in Shemowth 4 we discover that it wasn’t until Yahowah grew frustrated with Moseh and confronted him over the life-and-death matter of the failure to circumcise their son that Zipporah did so. She tossed the foreskin toward Moseh’s feet and said, “Surely, you are a chathan | bridegroom and son-in-law of your blood to me.” Yahowah’s insistence on the circumcision of their son, His framing the failure up to this point as a life-and-death decision, Tsiporah’s response, and even the subsequent, “A bridegroom of blood regarding the circumcision” is so riveting in its implications, that an incident with another unknown wife seems incredulous.

Therefore, in full consideration of the evidence, recognizing the heroics of her journey into Mitsraym with Moseh to free the Children of Yisra*el, and noting her ongoing support of her husband, who was the most important man in human history up to this point in time, it is particularly telling that Miryam | the Continuous and Embittered spawned her rebellion by demeaning such a prominent and positive character in the story of the Exodus.

Had I not experienced this same tactic up close and personal, and witnessed the psychopathy at play in a similar circumstance, I would not have fathomed how anyone could be so immorally conniving in a self-incriminating and self-destructive assault against a good woman, or why anyone would ally with such a misguided aspirant.

Nonetheless, just as has been the case with my wife, Tsiporah | the Early Bird had been the butt of slanderous antipathy and mean-spirited gossip among the women. And those who sought influence with God for themselves, foolishly used their disdain for her, and their jealousy of her, to justify their powerplay as part of an embittered rebellion. Similarly, the women who had gathered around me, who had learned everything they knew about Yahowah and His Beryth from me, as had been the case with Moseh and the Children of Yisra*el, were abhorrent in their scandalous petty denunciations.

Three-thousand four-hundred years later, and on the cusp of the final Exodus from the Mitsraym | Religious and Political Crucibles of Oppression of the Time of Ya*aqob's Tsar | Troubles, we find this all playing out again. But this time, we are witnessing a much more serious rendition of the revolt than was brought against Moseh's unique and vital standing with Yahowah. We are not only running out of time to save Yisra*elites, today's Miryam continues to babel | confound by commingling truth and lies and her *Aharown has doubled down rather than backing down – but more on this in a moment. And that makes this entire story prophetic of the challenge once posed to my calling as Yahowah's Choter and Nakar, His Qowl and Zarowa^o.

While that is why Bamidbar / Numbers 12 was written for our benefit, there is yet another advantage. The reason that rabbis focus on the conflict with Tsiporah rather than the challenge to Moseh's authorization as Yahowah's lone Voice, and the reason they accuse God of overreacting, is that this story condemns them for having usurped Yahowah's authority by way of their Oral Law / Talmud. It is equally indicting of Peter and Paul, and of popes claiming to speak for God, making their edicts authoritative and binding. Miryam and Aharown* tried the same trick – not unlike the Serpent in the Garden.

So, now that we understand that the circumstances were identical, we arrive at the actual reason behind the rebellion: "We want to speak for God, too..."

"And they said (*wa amar – so they claimed with ongoing regularity), 'There is a question as to whether (ha – can it be that) Yahowah (Yahowah – written as directed by His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence) has only and exclusively (*raq ak – has indeed, uniquely, and singularly) given the message and spoken the word (dabar – spoken) through (ba – with and by way of) Moseh (Mosheh – the One who Draws Out).

Has He not (*ha lo) also (gam – in addition) through us (*ba anachnuw) given the Word and spoken (dabar – brought about communications at times (piel perfect))?" (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:2 in part)

There is no question that Yahowah chooses, introduces, inspires, emboldens, equips, forms narratives around, and is tremendously supportive of the men through whom He communicates to His people. There have been very few of them, especially in major roles, so we know a great deal about each in addition to their place, time, challenges, and opportunities. Therefore, the answer regarding others contributing to God's message apart from His chosen implements was and remains, "No!"

This is exactly what has caused the current rebellion against me, with a deeply troubled and clinically diagnosed psychotic woman and an equally disturbed and demeaning man promoting themselves as the alternative to Yada as the Nakar, Choter, Qowl, Basar, and Zarowa* of Yahowah, through whom the Almighty inspired 35 books filled with unique translations and transliterations, countless audio programs, and thousands of unheralded insights. And they are, of course, doing so using the very words, names, accolades, and insights Yahowah revealed through our collaboration because, as was the case with Moseh, they would know nothing of God apart from what Yada had written and spoken about Him.

These ostracized interlopers would have those they have beguiled into their rebellion believe that their message should be considered even more relevant and superior – in spite of the fact they were inappropriately using the witness I revealed, my translations and proprietary style, unique transliterations, logos, insights, and even name, as the basis of their message, only to pervert the truth about Yahowah's nature to serve their agenda. Based upon what they have written, they want me to stand down and let them disseminate their Spiritual Mother's testimony by corrupting my translations – even though there is no speaking role for, or person identified as, a Spirit Mom.

That rather serious flaw in their scheme notwithstanding, the malcontent and embittered Hornets I have dubbed as the Leprous Gowym Motherites as a result of Yahowah's testimony and instructions in this matter, have claimed that the YadaYah.com website offering the translations and insights gleaned over the first 24 years of my collaboration with Yahowah should be torn down and that those who blindly listen to my opposition to their Mother God are all going to die because they are now the ones conveying Her voice and revealing Her divine persona.

Notwithstanding the realization that Yahowah and I are offering 25,000 pages of cogent amplified translation, copious amounts of in-depth commentary, and a plethora of insights to verify our conclusions, and they are foisting their mythology on an ignorant and errant portrayal of the 8th Mashal / Proverb serving as proof of Spirit Mom, when there is no mention of spirit or mom in the text, they are relentless in their claims to speak for Her.

While their irrational position is invalid, indeed traitorous, there is an even bigger issue. And that is why Yahowah directed me to Bamidbar / Numbers 12 to begin our resolution of this matter. God wants us to know how we should respond when someone claims that God has more than one authorized voice. Who is right when there is a mutinous conflict? Can a person speak for God when their intent is to censure and constrain the chosen Voice of God?

Since the answer to this fundamental question undermining the validity of the Leprous Gowym Motherites posterizing their positions on the Shamar Yahowah and Shamar Towrah websites and social media pages, is clearly articulated by Yahowah, we will listen to Him. We will consider God's instruction regarding the confiscation and manipulation of our collaboration by the rebellious cult misappropriating everything from God's name, our titles, terminology, transliterations, and logos.

For those who would advocate that there should be additional and even competing voices, or that my voice should be filtered through them, you'll notice that God didn't agree.

“Now (wa) Yahowah (Yahowah – the proper pronunciation of YaHoWaH, our elowah* – God as directed in His ToWRaH – teaching regarding His HaYaH – existence and our ShaLoWM – restoration) heard about this (*shama).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 12:2)

Yes, indeed, He and I discussed it one evening not long ago. And He directed me here, to Bamidbar / Numbers 12. However, when Yahowah and I had previously discussed this matter of rebellion, His answer was slightly different – and therefore appropriate for that moment a couple of months previously when they had only begun to incriminate themselves and assault me. Back then He told me to rebrand the books and website with His name and with the modern Manowrah and start completely over in social media under my name and His brand, eliminating everything that they had done. And as for the psychotic and manipulative instigator, God asked me to ignore her for the moment.

So, I went about His business and said nothing – all while the rebellion grew to such an extent, I was mocked and deliberately thwarted by them as they did exactly what Yahowah and I asked them not to do – all while misappropriating His testimony and my contributions to annul all we had and would achieve. They even claimed that the upcoming Shabuw^{ah} harvest was theirs.

Fast forward a couple of months, and now that this rebellion is too caustic and cancerous, erroneous and antagonistic that it cannot be ignored without crippling the mission and precluding our success on behalf of Yahowah's People, I brought up the issue again with Yahowah. And that is when He directed me here.

This is Yahowah's answer to the Miryam and *Aharown of Shamar Towrah, Shamar Yahowah, and the Leprous Gowym Motherites, as well as to their fraudulent use of our collaboration in the promotion of the Mother Goddess Cult. This is God speaking...

“So (wa), the lone individual (ha *ysh – this man), Moseh (Mosheh), answered, he was responsive, and embroiled in thought before making informed declarations (*anaw – he was sincere, straightforward, and devoted in his investigations and answers, lacking pretense while concerned with thinking and responding, not arrogant or prideful in his reply even though he has been mistreated and harassed; from *anah – to answer, respond, and testify under duress), significantly more (ma*od – at the extreme end of the scale) than (min) any other (kol) man (ha *adam - human) who (*asher – to show the way to the benefits of the relationship) is upon (al) the face (paneh) of the Earth (adamah – the ground as a bloody red man).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:3)

The same was largely true with me 24 years ago. I answered when others were not willing. I was responsive and have tried to be thoughtful and have remained so throughout our association. I listen, learn, and then speak. And considering the fallen state of humankind then as now, neither of us had much competition.

There were actually many reasons Yahowah chose Moseh | Moses to work with Him to free His people from religious and political oppression and then compose His Towrah. Foremost among them, he was “anaw* – responsive and thoughtful.” Based upon “anah* – to answer and reply,” it was this man’s straightforward sincerity and devotion to Yahowah that mattered. While he was initially reluctant, due to his frustrating previous experience trying to help his people, Moseh answered the call when no one else would.

It has remained this way for most of the past 2,400 years. While there are a number of traits Yahowah finds useful and appealing, the baseline is always the same. God chooses individuals who, after walking away from politics and religion, answer His call. And He seeks those who are straightforward and will go where His instructions lead without wavering.

To work with us and through us, God needs us to remain reliant and steadfast – as were Moseh and Dowd. I strive to follow their example. So should we all.

Those who seek acclaim typically have a giant hole in their lives which needs to be filled by feeding upon others. Still mired in their own agendas, they are useless to God. Such men and women consider their testimony and opinions to be as binding as God’s chosen, even when they are competitive and contrarian.

It would have been interesting to see Miryam’s and Aharown*’s expressions at this time...

“Instantly, without any hesitation (pith^{owm} – instantaneously without delay), Yahowah (Yahowah – a transliteration of יְהוָה, our elowah* – God as directed in His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence) said (*wa amar – declared) to Moseh | One who Draws Out (el Mosheh* – to One Who Pulls Out), to Aharown | Wanting to Serve as an Adversarial Alternative (*wa *el aharown – to alas, one alarmingly choosing to offer a troubling option; from ahah* – not so, an emphatic adversarial situation with an alarming cry, ar* – to be otherwise, and own* – all things pertaining to this), and to Miryam | the Embittered, Contentious, and Rebellious (*wa el Miryam – to the mentally and emotionally troubled and despondent as the well-fed fatling sister of Moseh; from mary – a bitter fatling and well-fed beast, and marah – to be contentious, insubordinate, and disruptive in an either/or proposition),

‘Come out (*yatsa – proceed to come forth and forward (qal imperative)), you three (*shalosh atem), to (el*) the Tent (ohel* – home which shines clearly and brightly) of the Restoring Witness to the Eternal Testimony of the Appointed Time (Mow^{ed} – of the eternally scheduled and restoring appointments; a compound of mow^o and ed* – of whom the eternal testimony is about and to whom the everlasting witness pertains).’ And the three of them proceeded to come forth (wa yatsa shalosh hem*).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:4)

The ohel Mow^{ed}* | Tent of the Eternal Testimony and Restoring Witness regarding the Appointed Meeting Times served as Yahowah’s home on Earth. It is where God was seen shining clearly and brightly before the people during the Sojourn in the Wilderness. It was the place of Divine revelation and unvarnished truth.

The ohel Mow^{ed}, therefore, serves as the point of separation, the dividing line, between that which is consistent or in conflict with Yahowah’s instructions. Our words either reflect the brilliance of the ohel Mow^{ed} or they deflect attention away from it.

You'll note that the hint of someone else suggesting that they might also speak for Him was enough to garner God's undivided attention. He confronted the threat immediately and directly. And keep in mind, at this point all Miryam and *Aharown had done was raise this issue as a possibility because they had been in and around the action as insiders and considered themselves to be part of the same family.

"Then Yahowah (wa Yahowah – a transliteration of 𐤆𐤑𐤆𐤓, our elowah* | God as directed in His towrah | teaching regarding His hayah | existence) descended (yarad – came down by lowering and diminishing an aspect of Himself) by way of (ba – within) an upright pillar (amuwd* – a vertical and cylindrical column; from amad* – to take an enduring and upright stand) of cloud (anan* – making a visible appearance as condensed water vapor sufficiently dense to be translucent, but not transparent) and was present, standing (*wa amad – He took a stand to sustain and accuse (qal imperfect)) at the Doorway (petach – opening, entrance, and portal) of the Tent (*ha ohel – of the home, shining brightly and clearly).

And He called out (wa qara – He summoned, designating by name by announcing and reckoning with) Aharown | Wanting to Serve as an Adversarial Alternative (aharown – alas, one alarmingly choosing to offer a troubling option; from ahah* – not so, an emphatic adversarial situation with an alarming cry, ar* – to be otherwise, and own* – all things pertaining to this), and Miryam | the Embittered, Contentious, and Rebellious (wa Miryam – the mentally and emotionally troublesome and despondent as the well-fed fatling sister of Moseh; from mary – a bitter fatling and well-fed beast, and marah – to be contentious, insubordinate, and disruptive in an either/or proposition), and they both came forward (wa yatsa shanaym hem* – the two came forth).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:5) additional benefit to Yisra^{*el}, or even to update His messaging. This wasn't a social call. The Almighty was angry. All God was trying to do was to keep this $#!+ Show from following the Siren Song into the gutter long enough to herd these malcontents to the intended destination and then drop them off.

Therefore, what's most meaningful here is that Yahowah realized that any confusion over who was authorized to speak for Him, particularly at this critical juncture with the first of the three Zarowa[®] and the revelation of the Towrah, was so fraught with peril for His people and His plans that He immediately set the record straight and denounced the unauthorized power play. It is so infrequent that Yahowah appears in this manner to speak to His people to resolve a problem that, when He does, we should pay attention. One would think that this would discourage anyone making the same mistake, especially considering God's uncompromising and punitive response.

So that we are clear, for Yahowah to appear in our presence, and not incinerate us, He must diminish Himself. Not in the sense of becoming less than He is, but rather by setting apart a diminished manifestation of Himself. All of God will not fit into the universe He created, much less the opening of a tent. And therefore, He is sometimes represented by fire or within an illuminated cloud. God has presented Himself in the form of a man, which he can accomplish by projecting His nepesh | conscious soul. He can also use His ruwach | spirit to address, inspire, empower, embolden, or enlighten someone, setting them apart for service – although this is quite rare.

While these episodes are also fairly uncommon, Yahowah has deployed His *mal*ak* | heavenly messengers to communicate and convey His intentions, even to protect someone who is important to Him. Although, most often, God relies on the words He revealed through His Prophets. In this way, He can convey His instructions to the largest possible audience over the greatest span of time. He can also validate that His directions are interwoven with prophecy while demonstrating His consistency and reliability. We are pursuing this form of communication now by reviewing the treasonous episode in Numbers 12 because it speaks volumes to us today.

Therefore, the rabbinical notion that G-d is incorporeal is erroneous. But so is the notion that various projections of Yahowah's presence create more than one God. While the situations differ, Yahowah's approach to them is as consistent as His personality is unchanged.

In this regard, the amuwd* | upright pillar representation in this narrative is significant because it establishes a connection between Yahowah's Towrah explanation and Dowd's fulfillment of Passover. The Lamb was affixed to an upright pole, opening the doorway to life in God's Home. And by veiling some of His light in the cloud, Yahowah was able to approach without blinding and incinerating the likes of Miryam and Aharown.

Also relevant, the Tabernacle which had been erected during their journey to the Promised Land was an ohel*, "tent," which is symbolic of Sukah | Shelters, where we are afforded the opportunity to camp out with God as His children. God's Home is, therefore, a representation of the Beryth | Covenant, signifying who would be welcomed inside and hereby excluded.

When it comes to who was and was not authorized to speak for Him, Yahowah did not equivocate...

"Then Yahowah (wa Yahowah – the proper pronunciation of YaHoWaH, our elowah* | God as directed in His ToWRaH | teaching regarding His HaYaH | existence and our ShaLoWM | restoration [from 4QNum because Yahowah's name was removed from the Masoretic Text]) said (amar* – stated) to them (el hem* – [from 4QNum]), 'It is imperative that you both choose to listen (*shama – you should elect of your own freewill to hear (qal imperative)) with a sense of urgency and intensity to the tough and raw nature (*na – now) of My words (*dabar any).'" (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:6 in part)

This was not a pleasant meeting, nor is there any way to spin it into a happy moment. Yahowah was exceedingly upset that Miryam and Aharown were being presumptuous and self-serving. And while this clearly troubled the Almighty, what's worse is that theirs has become a prevalent position – with the religious and political claiming that they, too, speak for God. Paul claimed it, as did Peter, Mark, Luke, and others in creating the vastly inferior and wholly contradictory Christian New Testament. Rabbis and Judaism exist based upon this same proposition. So does Islam.

Therefore, with so much having been lost as a result of the self-aggrandizing, often psychotic, and typically intrusive and domineering among the religious, political, and conspiratorial making this claim, Yahowah wanted His people to be aware of His position: Hell no.

To prevail with Moseh, who was always reluctant and now impaired, God would have to silence and ostracize those who would seek to speak over him. There is one God, with one name, one Towrah, one Covenant, and one purpose, and He speaks through one person at a time to minimize rivalries and confusion.

Just as there is no Towrah of *Aharown or Maryam or one of the rabbis, there are no divinely inspired pronouncements pertaining to a g-d who is bisexual with mommy issues or who is schizophrenic with multiple personalities and conflicting messages. Therefore, to nip notions to the contrary in the bud, Yahowah addressed this foolishness urgently and demonstrably, with words so raw and tough, there would be no mistaking them. Got it? Questions?

When someone is expressly called to speak for God, they know it and can prove it, as is the case with Yada.

“Whenever (im) there is (hayah – there exists) a prophet and someone who proclaims an inspired message (naby – who speaks for God about the past, present, and future) among you (atem) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH – an accurate presentation of the name of elowah – God as guided by His towrah – instructions regarding His hayah – existence), I make it known to him, revealing and acknowledging the likes of Yada (yada° el huw – I divulge and recognize Yada, providing familiarity and understanding) by (ba) communicating through visual imagery with verbal content in a revealing way (ha mara°ah – a phenomenal visionary with spectacular apprehension through audible and tangible expressions, through sight to perceive; a compound of mah – to ponder the implications of and ra°ah – of what is observed, witnessed, and seen) to him (el huw).

I consistently speak in a way that delivers the result (dabar – I communicate words (piel imperfect)) with him (*ba huw) through (ba) a series of thoughts and images in a receptive state of awareness like opening a window for the passage of light (chalowm – communicating in an empowering, enlightening, edifying and restful, contemplative state).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:6)

It's worth repeating: when a person has been chosen to speak for God, they know it. They are certain of it. Even better, they have proof of it directly from Yahowah.

The reason I addressed those who “speak for God,” instead of “prophets” is because not all naby°ym are the same. Some communicate everlasting truth to teach and guide, like Moseh. He said relatively little about the future, other than to frame it, and instead focused on the past. Others are concerned about what will occur millennia thereafter – like Yow°el. Some reveal what was previously unknown, such as Zakaryah. Yasha°yah painted the entire spectrum of time. Most prophets stand upon the shoulders of their predecessors and build upon the foundation God has laid. And there are those whose novel revelations come by way of making sense of and sharing the amalgamation of previous insights.

Prophets are prophets because of what God reveals through them. His words and prophetic revelations are their most salient credentials. This means that if a prophet's testimony differs from God's Word, or if there is an alternative variation of His shem or persona in the text, the pretender is lying.

When someone speaks for Yahowah, it's obvious to those who yada °Yahowah. And that is why there is no dispute on what belongs in Yahowah's Towrah, Prophets, and Psalms. It is one of many things which differentiate the Talmud, New Testament, and Quran from the inspired writing. Yahowah has a test, and we are diligent in applying it.

While God does not overtly designate the title of *naby to our collaboration for a host of valid reasons, Yahowah has designated me as Yada | One who Knows. And since our work together revolves around framing the issues important to Him and then inserting the words He has spoken, as if setting pieces to a revealing puzzle in their proper places, our purpose is to reveal the overall picture God is portraying. For the most part, I am sharing the word pictures He has painted over the years.

Therefore, our focus has been on the words He revealed to His prophets long ago so that they are understood, often for the first time. This noted, we have had numerous conversations, and more recently, He has opened a window in my mind so that I might see and share the future, especially as it relates to the sacrifice of the *Adamah Parah during Taruw°ah. Not only has Yahowah provided hundreds of prophecies regarding what we would achieve together, He has enabled the first comprehensive review of His entire expansive tapestry. Now that it is time to pay attention, Yahuwdym have been afforded the information needed to make an informed decision.

In this regard, it is interesting to note that the rabbis who scribed the Masoretic Text removed Yahowah's name at the beginning of Bamidbar / Numbers 12:6. They replaced it with the pronoun "he," thereby drawing less attention to the speaker and His message. The "to them" was also omitted. These are but two of many examples throughout the book of Bamidbar where the Qumran scrolls correct the Masoretic Text.

Moseh was different than the likes of Abraham and Sarah, Yitschaq and Ya^aqob, especially the Children of Yisra^el. He was, therefore, more like the other Zarowa^e who would follow him, and particularly, Dowd and Yada. Yahowah was, therefore, quick to underscore this distinction...

“It has not been like this (lo^{}ken* – that is not so) with My associate and coworker (ebed any – My colleague), Moseh (Mosheh).

With regard to every aspect of the Family (ba kol beyth – throughout the entire home and household), I have caused him to be truthful and reliable to verify My trustworthiness through him (any aman huw^{}* – I have confirmed and verified that he is established as trustworthy (nifal participle)). (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:7) I continually speak with him (dabar ba huw^{}* – I prompt and benefit from this consistent dialogue through him (piel imperfect)) mouth to mouth (*peh el peh), doing so clearly in plain sight in visual form (mar^eeh – comprehensively in a way which is easily understood [4QLev-Num adds panym – openly face to face]) and not in allegories, enigmatic sayings, or perplexing riddles that cannot be resolved (wa lo^{}ba chydah* – and not through unfathomable parables or by being somewhat obscure so that there are hidden meanings that are impossible to understand).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:8 in part)

Yahowah was clear, distinguishing as singular ebed* | colleague and coworker. His name was Moseh. His mission was to draw God’s Family out of religious and political servitude and to the Promised Land.

With one messenger, there would be no conflicting reports, no infighting among witnesses, and no confusion as to who was in charge and communicating on behalf of God.

When we draw back to gain perspective, beyond the obvious, there would be three exceptional times during the long sojourn from Eden and back to the Garden when it became vital that Yahowah's message be especially clear, unchallenged, unencumbered, and distinct. Initially, Moseh was tasked with sharing the narrative between Yahowah and Abraham so that we would be cognizant of the instructive conditions and resulting benefits of the Beryth | Covenant as they were inscribed for the first time in the Towrah. The second occasion transpired when Dowd spoke of and then fulfilled Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym, establishing God's Family. And then in advance of His Homecoming with His Son, Yahowah wants to preclude anyone from interfering with His Family Reunion because, with so many having forgotten His name and His Son's accolades and achievements, there would be no one to come home to without absolute certainty and clarity.

But do you know why Yahowah said *peh el peh | mouth to mouth" instead of mouth to ear as would be the case with other *naby | prophets? It is as He explained when Moseh said that he wasn't particularly articulate, and God affirmed that since He created our mouths, He knew how to use them and, thus, his. Yahowah spoke through Moseh when He revealed Dabarym, such that it is Yahowah's voice emerging from Moseh's mouth.

This was God's only option since He concurred with the Yisra*elite demand that He stop addressing them in His booming voice and out of His illuminating fire. This was the next best way to communicate. It, however, differs from the mode He used to convey prophecy through the likes of Yasha*yah, where God spoke to him and then the prophet wrote to us, sharing what Yahowah revealed.

This is also relevant to our situation because Yahowah has routinely used qowl | voice to address the manner in which He would speak to His people through His Basar | Herald at this time. And this has become especially true now that God has asked me to write less and speak more through the YAHOWAH Blog. There are many days when during the livestreams I feel like an implement, someone whose mind and emotions, voice, expressions, and gestures, are being deployed by the Ruwach of Yahowah. If we are to be used as a tool, there is no better way.

The conclusion of the previous statement is unique in two ways. First, Moseh was the only person that Yahowah spoke to mar^eeh | visually and in plain sight. He did so on the summit of Mount Choreb and then again beside Moseh at the base of the mountain.

And second, God's instructions through Moseh were straightforward and considerably less nuanced than what He would reveal through others. This is because the Towrah is foundational, and it must be squared away for the Prophets to build on top of it, adding details, additional facades, nuances, and vibrant hues. Further, once it became obvious that Yisra^{*}elites were going to continue to be religious, God had to veil his revelations, such that they wouldn't be corrupted and could be preserved for the time that they could be properly understood and shared. A substantial part of my mission is to solve these riddles and then present the entire picture as God intended.

Beyond all of these insights, Yahowah told the Prophet's rebellious brother and sister that Moseh received some of these accounts visually rather than audibly. As such, he could write down what he saw, even if he did not yet fully appreciate what lie ahead. I think most all of Numbers 11 would fall into this assessment.

“He observes (nabat – he looks upon, sees, and considers) a visual image (tamuwnah – a unique appearance, form, representation, manifestation, similitude, and likeness) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH – an accurate presentation of the name of elowah* – God as guided by His towrah – instructions regarding His hayah – existence).

So why then (wa maduwa^e) were you not more respectful (lo^{} yare^{} – were you not appropriately concerned and deferential, even revering, venerating, and awestruck, showing trepidation) when speaking (la dabar – to talk) against (ba) My coworker and collaborator (ebed any – My cohort and associate) in Moseh (ba Mosheh)?” (Bamidbar / In the

As was the case with Adam and Abraham before him, Yahowah visibly conveyed His presence to Moseh – ostensibly to make him more comfortable and the experience more credible. It was necessary, not only because of the rigors of the mission but also because, heretofore, there was no prophetic text from which to draw to prove Yahowah's existence.

By comparison, we have God's testimony on so much better authority today because there are many thousands of accurately fulfilled prophecies proving God's presence and inspiration. We have a written legacy from twenty prophets, albeit none like Moseh. He not only met directly with Yahowah, partnered with God to liberate the Children of Yisra^{el}, scribed the Towrah, he also led the Chosen People home. All the while, Yahuwdym bellyached and complained, making the job exceedingly wearisome. And that is why Yahowah intervened at moments like this. Not to mention, Moseh was still on his heels, punch drunk from his previous meltdown.

Throughout God's testimony, we are reassured that Yahowah's prophets are “aman* – completely truthful and reliable, dependable and verifiable.” Therefore, the distinction which made Moseh unique is that, after scribing the first four books of the Towrah based upon His conversations with Yahowah, he became the voice of Dabarym / Words – errantly rendered Deuteronomy – where he spoke directly for God, “*peh el peh – mouth to mouth.”

One of the more intriguing aspects of this statement is the suggestion, confirmed elsewhere in the Mizmowr, that, with other prophets, Yahowah spoke in “chydah – in allegories and riddles, using parables which were somewhat obscure.” This may sound disconcerting to those who are new to Yah's testimony, but it has to be this way. If God made it too easy, such that those unwilling to invest the time to study His revelations as we are doing, and then were at liberty to act upon incomplete knowledge and use it to enter Heaven, there would be no way to screen out those who do not belong. Moreover, part of the joy of closely examining and carefully considering the Towrah, Prophets, and Psalms is finding and sharing the many profound insights discoverable along the way. As in life, so it is with the Word of God: we appreciate things we have worked to accomplish or comprehend. And a treasure shared has twice the value.

For example, having devoted ten to twelve hours a day, six to seven days a week, for twenty-four years composing these translations and sharing the insights derived from them, as I look back upon the result, I not only appreciate the enormous contribution we have made to what can be known about our relationship, I have found tremendous satisfaction in the process.

The “tamuwnah – unique appearance, representation, and visual manifestation, the similitude and likeness” of Yahowah was represented by fire, an illuminated cloud, or an individual before Moseh. Some have seen Him in Heaven. On other occasions, God communicates through His *mal*ak* | heavenly messengers. But most often, the Almighty relies upon the dabarym | words He has revealed through His Prophets to reveal Himself to us.

Based upon what He conveyed through complicated man, we know that God walked in the Garden with *Adam. (Bare*syth 3:8) Yahowah appeared to *Abraham as an individual, engaging in conversations, walking, and eating with him as the Covenant relationship was initiated. (Bare*syth 17 and 18) God introduced Himself to Moseh as a blazing fire atop Mount Choreb. Then, as is portrayed in the previous statement, He met with the repurposed Shepherd for forty days to reveal His Towrah | Teaching. (Bamidbar / Numbers 12 and Shemowth / Exodus 24)

Yahowah disclosed Himself to *Shamuw*el* | Samuel near the Ark of the Covenant in Shiloh. In *Shamuw*el* / 1 Samuel 3, we read: “Yahowah came, stood, and spoke to Samuel...appearing so as to be seen, revealing and disclosing Himself as the Word of Yahowah.” And, of course, Yahowah will return to fulfill Yowm Kipurym in 2033. (Qara^{} 23-25, Howsha^{} 6, and Zakaryah 12)

Considering the intent of this prophetic episode, and the nature of the situation when Yahowah directed us to Numbers 12, it should be noted that on none of those occasions, and never once in the Towrah, did Yahowah expose Himself to anyone so as to portray Himself as a woman, a mother, or a Spirit Mom. The fictitious claim and the embittered rebellion it prompted, are without merit. And so, therefore since Yahowah is unchanging and dependable, we can be assured that their contrarian claims will be met with the same rebuke as we find here. When a covetous woman and misled man claimed that they also spoke for God, as they have done to me, Yahowah became very angry...

“And the righteous indignation and intense animosity (aph* – the anger, displeasure and burning resentment) of Yahowah (𐤏𐤓𐤕𐤓𐤕 – a transliteration of YaHoWaH as instructed in His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence) was kindled and burned (charah – was aroused and enraged, with angry consternation) against them (ba hem). And then He departed, walking away (wa halak – and so He proceeded to continually move away (qal imperfect)).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:9)

When people act in a manner that causes Yahowah to walk away, there are serious implications. However, there is something worse than angering God and that is causing Him to depart. And that is interfering with His purpose and chosen implements, especially when there is so much at stake.

Even the thought of pushing the first Zarowa^{*} aside and claiming to speak for God was enough to enrage the Almighty and arouse His consternation. And, other than slander his wife, that is all Moseh’s sister and brother had done at this point.

Unlike the rebellion perpetrated so viciously against me, Miryam and Aharown hadn’t made false claims regarding God, denounced Moseh's credibility, or tried to counterfeit him – all of which were done in my case. And yet, God was so repulsed by the supposition, He intervened to denounce the would-be perpetrators and let the world know that the consequence would be grievous if attempted again.

It's not like Moseh chose this role or petitioned for the part. Yahowah had chosen him, and God isn't one for making adjustments midstream. He can foresee the future and knows the outcome of His decisions long before they play out in the ordinary flow of time.

In my case, rather than be presumptuous, for a decade or more, I perceived myself as nothing more than an anonymous translator. I served as a commentator, sharing what others had written. Comfortable in the role, indeed, relishing it, I stepped out of anonymity and into the spotlight only after encountering hundreds of prophecies which begged otherwise. It quickly and irrefutably became obvious that these harbingers of tomorrow applied to our collaboration – and I had promised to go where His words led.

By this time, there were many thousands of profoundly important insights derived and shared, none of which were previously heralded, and the thirty-five books, all of which serve as validation. We were, indeed, doing something very special together. Therefore, confronted with all of this evidence, I realized that I would be doing a disservice to God's people if I denied what Yahowah revealed and foretold.

As we pursue what occurred so long ago, we discover that the punishment for contravening Yahowah's intent and suggesting that the sister's and brother's testimony were also inspired by God, equally valid with regard to His Towrah, Yahowah pronounced that Miryam, the instigator, was malignant and diseased, clearly demonstrating that no one should approach her – much less listen to her.

Miryam's fate was not pretty...

“When the cloud (wa ha ʿanan) turned away and departed (suwr – he took off while rejecting, forsaking, abolishing, and cutting off) from over (min ʿal) the Tent (ha ʿohel – the brilliant home), then behold (wa hineh – look up now and pay attention), Miryam | the Embittered, Continuous, and Rebellious (wa Miryam – the mentally and emotionally troublesome and despondent as the well-fed fatling sister of Moseh; from mary – a bitter fatling and well-fed beast, and marah – to be contentious, insubordinate, and disruptive in an either/or proposition) was panicked and plagued, confused, depressed, and discouraged, as a malignant and leprous hornet (tsaraʿ – was a pest in the form of an aggressively irritating wasp and stinging malevolent leper) representing one who is icy cold and frozen (ka ha shalag – like ice water).

And (wa) Aharown | Wanting to Serve as an Adversarial Alternative (ʿaharown – alas, one alarmingly choosing to offer a troubling option; from ʿahah – not so, an emphatic adversarial situation with an alarming cry, ʿar – to be otherwise, and ʿown – all things pertaining to this) turned to face (panah ʿel) Miryam | the Embittered, Contentious, and Rebellious (wa Miryam – the mentally and emotionally troublesome and despondent as the well-fed fatling sister of Moseh; from mary – a bitter fatling and well-fed beast, and marah – to be contentious, insubordinate, and disruptive in an either/or proposition) and, behold (wa hineh – so take note and pay attention), she was infectious and plagued, confused and discouraged, because she was malignant and leprous – a pest in the form of an aggressive wasp and stinging hornet (tsaraʿ – she was diseased and fearful, infected with a pestilence as a panicked killer bee).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:10)

The Contentious and Embittered Insubordinate who was Disruptive and Troublesome was equated to leprosy, which is a contagious, unattractive, and debilitating plague. She was irritating God because she was malignant, a confused and malevolent pest to be avoided. And she was without empathy, icy cold, because she was unconcerned about the harm she was doing to the people who would be misled by her rebellion.

And as bad as it looks, it would be far worse than it appears because, even though Miryam was the only documented case of leprosy in the Towrah, there are copious instructions from God on how to deal with those afflicted by it. In every case, it is goodbye and good riddance.

It is interesting, however, that Aharown* was not similarly stricken. And the reason is that he wasn't the instigator and he immediately recanted the ill-advised plan of his sister and admitted that he had been wrong.

“Then (wa) Aharown | Wanting to Serve as an Adversarial Alternative (aharown* – alas, one alarmingly choosing to offer a troubling option; from ahah* – not so, an emphatic adversarial situation with an alarming cry, ar* – to be otherwise, and own* – all things pertaining to this) begged, pleading with (amar el – said to) Moseh (Mosheh – the One Who Draws Out), ‘Please, I beg you, my Lord, I’m praying that you accept my excuse, my Master (by adony any – excuse me, sir), and you choose not to place upon us an enduring (*syt *al anachnuw – so that you opt to not demand or impose a continuous (qal imperfect jussive)) punishment for leading astray and missing the way (*chata th – condemnation for wrongdoing and judgment for guilt, accountability for violation of the authorized standard by misleading and forfeiting what is responsible and right) because, we lack understanding and have become unthinking and foolish, content with pleasing ourselves while willfully resolved and determined to pursue that which we knew to be unsupported and wrong (asher ya*al* – even though we began something we found pleasing to us and confidently pursued and enjoyed it without exercising good judgment in the situation (nifal perfect)), and because (wa asher*) we were wrong, missed the way, and led others astray, so we bear the blame and resulting guilt (*chata – we bear the loss and have retreated from the goal, erring by wandering away (qal perfect)).” (Bamidbar / In the

Wrongly claiming to speak for God, especially when in addition to His chosen implement at a critical time, is a punishable offense because it leads others astray. Any variation from God's message, even if perceived as augmentative by the perpetrator, and even if the offending individual had previously made notable contributions, is considered unacceptable. It isn't just wrong; it must be denounced while the offensive individuals are held to account.

As with the Towrah, we are not to add to it or subtract from it. Therefore, anything which differs from God's prescribed plan is deemed to be adversarial. And in Moseh's case, as well as that of the Nakry and Choter, there would be no provision for an alternative. Every prophecy regarding my role, for example, is directed at a man chosen and equipped by God for this purpose. And he is consistently presented as masculine singular. Just as there is no Spirit Mom, there is no Nakarah or Choterah.

As we have witnessed late last year and this year, the Leprous Hornets have been irrational, willfully pursuing what they have been told is evidentially and rationally unsupportable. And with their motives laid bare, there is nothing left but the pursuit of spurious agendas and selfish ambitions. As a result, they will bear the blame and retain the associated guilt.

To suggest that Miryam's claims were poorly received would be the understatement of the Towrah. But it has largely fallen on deaf ears because rabbis have followed in her footsteps, speaking over Yahowah and Moseh with their Talmud.

In this narrative, Aharown was now pleading Miryam's case as if it were a life and death issue. But every indication is that he was wrong. Contentiousness had taken this Embittered woman from being part of the Covenant fellowship with the potential for an eternity in Shamaym | Heaven, to the forfeiture of her soul with the potential of eternal separation hanging in the balance.

Then, in what appears to be an ode to our situation with the Leprous Hive of Hornets pleading to avail their Spiritual Mother's compassion...

“Continuing to plead, ‘Let her not be (al na* hayah* – I pray that she will not continually exist as (qal imperfect jussive)) as the lifeless and dead who are plagued (ka ha muwth – like those who die and perish from a pandemic disease).

This is because (asher*), in being brought forth (*yatsa – in coming out and being produced and extended to serve), this (*huw) is out of (min) this Mother's compassion (*rachem *em huw – his mother's womb with love and mercy) while the core of his message is eaten away (*wa *akal chatsy basar huw – half or more of the herald bringing the news has his proclamation destroyed (nifal imperfect)).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:12)

As we strive to ascertain whether this was meant for Moseh's ears or ours, we are struck with a harsh reality. It was actually senseless for Aharown to be insisting that Miryam not die as a result of her horrendous and selfish decision. And this is because, once plagued in this way by God as a result of her rebellion, death became the best possible outcome. The only other alternative was an eternity in She*owl.

Further, there had been no reference to an em* | mother in Miryam's case, causing us to question why it was referenced in this narrative. But by contrast, the insistence on a Spirit Mother became the central issue *yatsa | brought forth by those in the Hornet's Nest. Moreover, the core of the message they are trying to destroy, is the one Yahowah and I have been developing over the past two decades.

While Moseh's response is very different than the one Yahowah has asked me to pursue, his circumstance was unlike mine. As we have just read, the Children of Yisra*el had been so antagonistic, Moseh quit – so now he was just going through the motions. I have my back bowed, chin up, and remain fully committed.

Also, our Miryam went much further than did Moseh's sister, and our Aharown has been far more egregious. Rather than accepting Yahowah's criticism as appropriate and fair, the Queen of this Nest doubled down and became far more belligerent. And the man who made the Hive, rather than admitting he was wrong, became particularly demeaning, indicting himself and his Queen with a torrent of repulsive letters.

Therefore, rather than asking for restoration and healing, I'm committed to exposing and condemning yesterday's plague. This is partly because there are many people who once walked with us who have been lured into the Hive. And while I don't want them to infect others, my primary concern remains the preservation and ultimate success of Yada Yahowah, the YAHOWAH BLOG, and this designated collaboration with Yahowah which they have sought to undermine.

“Then (wa) Moseh (Mosheh) called out loudly to (tsa*aq *el – shouted because of the great distance to) Yahowah (YaHoWaH) to say (la amar), ‘I am requesting that (na) if You want to provide restoration and healing (rapha* – should You choose to cure, mend, repair, or provide recovery (qal imperative second-person masculine singular)) for her (la hy*) that this is my pleading (na*).'” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:13)

There is, of course, another, even more compelling reason that, unlike Moseh, I am not advocating for restoration. Yahowah didn't, and I am committed to following His advice and example. In fact, Yahowah was exceedingly harsh, which is even more appropriate in dealing with the modern Leprous Hornets.

Since Yahowah encouraged us to consider this episode when trying to minimize the fallout from the recent repeat of such belligerence, it would be disrespectful for us not to learn from His response in Bamidbar / Numbers 12. After all, why seek guidance His guidance only to disrespect His instructions in this regard? And let's be perfectly clear, God was exceedingly disappointed in Miryam...

“However (wa), Yahowah (YaHoWaH) said (*amar) to Moseh (*el Mosheh – to the One Who Draws Out), ‘Even if her father (wa ab hy) had shown his contempt by repulsively spitting (yaraq yaraq) in her face (ba paneh hy*), let no one question that she has brought this on herself and should be disgraced, humiliated, and shamed on an ongoing basis (ha lo kalam – do not question that she deserves to be embarrassed and deprived, even disrespected and have unmitigated shame thrust upon her (nifal imperfect)) as a promise and sworn oath for seven (shaba) days (yowmym).

As a result of what she has brought upon herself, she must shut up and be isolated, even imprisoned (sagar – she deserves incarceration (nifal imperfect)) as a promise and sworn oath for seven (shaba*) days (yowmym) outside of and apart from (min huwts – away from public contact) the encampment (machaneh – the community and temporary dwelling place). Afterward (wa *achar – then in the end, at the conclusion sometime later), she may be gathered in or withdrawn based upon her actions (*asaph – she may deserve to be escorted back for the ingathering (nifal imperfect – whereby the subject carries out and receives the action of the verb on an ongoing basis)).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 12:14)

This is the most disgusted and angry we've ever seen Yahowah. From God's perspective, Miryam was revolting. He'd as soon spit in her face than speak with her. And she, like the psychotic queen of today's Leprous Hornet's Nest, brought the wrath of the Almighty on herself. She is shown to be shameful and disgraceful. Not only was she plagued with leprosy, she was cut off from her previous association with God's Covenant children.

Miryam's initial time out for bad behavior would last seven days. Then, Yahowah revealed that her isolation would conclude in one of two ways. If she disavowed her prior claims and was silent, never stirring up trouble again, there was the potential for her to be gathered in as part of a harvest. But if she didn't learn her lesson, she would remain isolated and then be incarcerated. And we know from our experience with an exceedingly embittered, cantankerous, and misleading pair of conspirators, today's Miryam and Aharown, they could not and would not remain silent, but would remain hopelessly hostile to the one Yahowah has chosen to speak for Him at this time. And therefore, based upon everything God had to share with us in this prophecy, and the summation of His judgment which follows, today's exceptionally rude Dee and her David have brought an undesirable consequence upon themselves.

While this is the conclusion of this discussion, it is not the last we hear of Miryam. In Numbers 20:1, we are informed of her death: “Then came the whole congregation of the Children of Israel, into the desert of Zin in the first month, along with the people residing in Kadesh; and Miriam died and was buried there.”

The last time the contentious Miryam would be mentioned is in Dabarym / Deuteronomy 24:1-9, which begins as a discussion about divorce – which seems appropriate enough. In this case, the situation God is describing is exceedingly complex with a woman with a bad reputation and a number of individual suiters who have been troubled by her. Evidently, the more one knows about Yisra*el, the nastier she appears. Therefore, this is a scathing indictment of what we have read beginning in Numbers 11 and running through Bamidbar 19, even beyond. It addresses how the Adulterous Woman of Numbers 5 is restored to acceptability so as to be symbolically betrothed to Dowd.

Fair warning, there are so many dependent clauses and possibilities strung together, without further elucidation, this might be indecipherable. So, if I may, Moseh was the first man asked to grasp hold of Yisra*el. And he found her to be annoying. The more he was exposed to Yisra*el, the uglier the people became. Not only did he divorce her in the wilderness, telling Yahowah that he wanted nothing more to do with her, they were precluded from entering God's home at the time.

Thereafter, while Yisra*el became Yahowah's responsibility, He was so disgusted by these people, he wrote them a letter of divorce, posting it with the prophet Howsha*. Thereafter, both Yisra*el and Yahuwdah were banished from Yahowah's house, also known as the Promised Land, with time outs in Assyria and Babylonia.

Pressing on, I suspect that the certain man who dies in the end while trying to grasp hold of her and gain her attention, even if for a relatively short period of time, is Yada as Dowd's best man. He will, after all, sacrifice his life during Taruw*ah to return Israel to her awaiting groom on Kipurym. And while this is explained in Bamidbar 15 pursuant to the Bull and the Ram, it's unlikely that Moseh understood any of it.

Should I be correct in this assessment, then the one who sent her away, and who is returning to take her back, is King Dowd. But realizing that she sullied herself with religion, and became detestable, Dowd knows that she must be cleaned up and become presentable before Yahowah's arrival. Recognizing this occurs during Taruw*ah with the sacrifice of the Adamah Parah, we are told that Yisra*el will be purged of her guilt and will no longer appear blameworthy in the Land.

“Indeed, when (ky) a man (iysh*) grasps hold of and obtains for a prolonged period (laqach – receives (qal imperfect)) a woman (ishah*) and marries her for a limited time (*wa ba*al hy – accepting her as a wife (qal perfect)) and then if it comes to pass (*wa hayah im) that she does not find favor (lo matsu* chen* – she does not obtain fondness or kindness (qal imperfect)) in his eyes (*ba *ayn huw) because he has found (ky matsu – for the reason he has discovered (qal perfect)) with her exposed and laid bare some ugliness (ba hy erwah – her nakedness and by implication indecency) so to speak (dabar), and he writes her a letter (wa kathab la hy sepher*) of divorce (karythuwth – of dismissal and separation), and puts it in her hand and sends her out (wa nathan ba yad hy wa shalach hy) from his house (*min beyth huw), (Dabarym 24:1) and she goes out of his house (wa yatsa min beyth huw) and goes and becomes (wa halak wa hayah) another man's (*la *iysh acher), (Dabarym 24:2) and he despises and hates her (wa sane hy), the last man (*ha *iysh ha acharown) who wrote her a letter of separation and divorce (wa kathab la hy; sepher karythuwth), so as to put it in her hand and send her out (wa nathan ba yad hy wa shalach hy) from his house (*min beyth huw), or if a certain man dies in the end (ow ky muwth ha *iysh ha acharown) for the relationship (asher*) while grasping hold of and obtaining her for a short period (laqach hy – receives (qal perfect)*) as his woman (la huw la ishah), (Dabarym 24:3) then her first husband will not be able to comprehend or endure this (lo yakol ba*al hy* ha ri*shown*). So, the one who sent her away for a time (asher shalach hy), will return to take her (*la shuwb la laqach hy) to be his woman (la hayah la huw la ishah) after the relationship (achar asher) where she has, on her own initiative, become filthy and defiled (tame^o – she has independently become unclean (hothpaal perfect)).

Indeed, this is a detestable abomination (*ky tow*ebah – surely an abhorrent and repulsive religious practice*) of hers in the presence (hy la paneh*) of Yahowah (Yahowah).

So, you will not continually bear the blame and become guilty (wa lo chata) in the Land (eth ha erets) that, for the benefit of the relationship, Yahowah, your God (asher Yahowah *elohym atah) is giving to you (*nathan la atah) as an inheritance (nathalah).” (Dabarym / Words / Deuteronomy 24:4)

Should I be right in my earlier assessment, then this next statement is addressing the honeymoon, which would commence on Kipurym and continue through Sukah. By that time, every battle will have been won...

“When a man accepts a renewed and restored woman

(*ky laqach *iysh isah chadash), he should not go out (lo yatsa) with the conscripts to fight (*ba ha tsaba) and not be extended (wa lo abar) for him for any event or speaking role (al huw* la kol dabar*).

He will be free at home (naqy hayah la beyth) one year to be happy and enjoy his time (*shanah echad wa samach) with his woman (eth ishah huw) who, to benefit from the relationship and add more joy to his life (asher), he has accepted (laqach).” (Dabarym / Words / Deuteronomy 24:5)

If this is addressing Dowd, then it would appear that he is going to be afforded a full year reprieve from duties while he enjoys the restoration of his relationship with Yisra*el. And that means that his Basar / Herald will be busy administrating the affairs of the Kingdom and speaking on his behalf. After all he’s done, and considering how poorly Yisra*el has treated him prior to this point, it’s well deserved.

The millstones which once ground the grain into flour for Matsah will no longer be needed, as will be the case with war chariots by this time. The occasion of making pledges and binding souls to that which is destructive and troublesome is over...

“Do not require a pledge (lo chabal*) of a pair of mill stones which grind and pulverize (rechaym) or a chariot (wa rekeb – a mount for riding) for your soul (ky nepesh) that would be binding and destructive, even troublesome (huw chabal*).” (Dabarym / Words / Deuteronomy 24:6)

During the millennial celebration of the ongoing Shabat of Sukah, Yada Yahowah will be sufficient. And it is my conclusion that the Covenant Family and I will continue to write and speak, teaching through books and vlogs, insights on how to thrive in Yahowah’s company and get the most out of lives so that as many as possible make the transition from mortal remnant to eternal heirs under Dowd’s leadership.

However, it is important to realize that during this exceptional time, the remnant of Yisra^{*}el, even purged of the religious corruptions prior to Dowd's return, will remain mortal and will retain freewill. This being the case, there will be severe consequences for luring anyone back to the old ways and manipulating souls. There will be no tolerance for making merchandise of men such that they are brought under the yoke of religious oppression...

“Indeed, if (ky) an individual (iysh) is found (matsa^{}) stealing through deception (ganab) the soul of his brothers (nepesh min achy huw^{}) among the Children of Yisra^{}el (min beny Yisra^{}el), and he manipulates him as a slave (amar ba huw^{}) or he sells him as if his property (wa makar huw^{}), then that kidnapper and human trafficker (ha ganab ha huw^{}) will die (muwth), so as to purge and remove, even incinerate (wa ba^{*}ar) such immorality and evil (ra^oa) from your midst (min qereb *atah).” (Dabarym 24:7)

Yahowah considers the kind of religious deceptions that steal souls away from Him by stealth to be manipulative and immoral. Religion is, therefore, a form of human trafficking in which the perpetrator is essentially committing suicide.

As it relates to our situation, the leprous fatling and psychopath promoting the Mother Goddess Cult stole nearly $20,000 from my wife and I just prior to her embittered rebellion, while also luring eight souls away, six of whom remain, including the man who built her online nest. And for this crime, today's Miryam and Aharown have been ba^{}ar* | purged and removed from the Covenant Family. What they have done is ra^oa | immoral and evil ba qereb | in our midst.

Deception is a form of rebellion against Yahowah. Fortunately, there is a vaccine to negate the leprous plague...

“Choose to be especially observant, closely examining and carefully considering (shamar – be perceptive (nifal imperative)) in the case of the battering plague, with this invasive fungus which aggressively assaults, striking blow upon blow and causing many to stumble and fall (ba nega^o– with the traumatic wound and physical impact which festers and grows, becoming destructive and infectious) of leprosy, this spore and smut of infectious disease, even as a malignant and incurable hornet (*tsara*ath*), to be exceedingly perceptive and thoughtful, on your guard and focused (*la shamar ma*od*) and act, engaging and doing (*wa la asah) accordingly, everything that, for the benefit of the relationship (*ka kol asher) the Lowy priests (ha Lowy ha kohen) have instructed and taught you, providing guidance and directions for you (*yarah *eth atem) according to the way I instructed them (*ka asher tsawah hem). You should be observant and then engage (*shamar la asah).” (Dabarym / Words / Deuteronomy 24:8)

It is by closely examining and carefully considering Bamidbar 11 and 12, and now Dabarym 24, at Yahowah’s insistence that we have come to understand the invasive fungus of antagonism toward Father and Son that has consumed the world like a devouring fire. We cannot overlook the blowhards or their assault on the truth because our stated mission is to remove obstacles along the way.

The more aware we are of the debilitating disease infecting so many around us, the less the leprosy will spread and the fewer the hornet will sting. When these impediments to our success appear in our midst, we must follow Yahowah’s example and denounce them. We must engage on behalf of Father and Son and never run – doing as we have been instructed.

With this known, be aware that we are being asah* | called to action, and that Yahowah is yarah | instructing and guiding, teaching and directing us to be shamar | especially observant regarding the *nega | invasive fungus of deception and of the obstacles these blowhards toss along the way to trip us up. A second and third time God encourages us to shamar | be aware of and thoughtful regarding the *tsara*ath* | the malignant spores of infectious disease which are incurable so that we can asah* | act accordingly. And it is all directed toward what follows...

“Remember (zakar – recall the most memorable of men (qal infinitive absolute)) what, for the benefit of the relationship (eth asher), Yahowah (Yahowah), your God (elohym atah), did (asah* – He engaged in and acted upon which is now done and over (qal perfect)) regarding the embittered and despondent Miryam (la Miryam – regarding the contentious rebellion from the well-fed fatling and her antagonistic strife and the resulting pandemic and mental anguish) on the way out during your exodus from (ba ha derek ba yatsa atem min – along the way to you being removed from) Mitsraym | Crucibles of Religious and Political Oppression (Mitsraym – being besieged and constrained, bound and confined by a hostile adversary).” (Dabarym / Words / Deuteronomy 24:9)

In the context of divorcing a despicable woman who has been rejected by two men (Moseh and Dowd), who was summarily rebuked and then cursed by God with leprosy and exiled, we are reminded of Miryam | the Contentious and Rebellious. There would be no return. The woman who was once considered a prophetess, the very sister of Moseh, for the crime of claiming to speak for God when not appointed to do so, she was eternally and demonstrably banished as a lesson for all of us.

We have considered the story of how Moseh gave up on himself, his people, and on Yahowah as a result of the collective malfeasance of Yisra*elites who became as obnoxious as they were obstinate. And since Yahowah agreed with Moseh's assessment of Yisra*el, He neither chastised his prophet nor suspended him. Instead, he supported him with a team to deflect the burden of his irascible people, while offering hope by revealing that *ElDod and MyDod would be filled with the Spirit to resolve the ongoing revolt long after Moseh got them to the Promised Land. The story was, therefore, prophetic and meant for us to understand and apply to our challenges today.

We have pondered the implications of how Miryam and Aharown denounced their brother's wife in a ruse to discredit Moseh so that they could also claim to speak for God. It was prophetic of our situation, revealing Yahowah's uncompromising response to those who denounce His chosen implements in a misconstrued attempt to speak over them ~ and Him. By sharing it, God explained how He wants us to deal with the current incarnation of the psychotic woman leading this leprous plague.

Therefore, while we have turned to the Towrah's instruction on how to fend off the most annoying obstacles strewn into the path to God, impeding progress, we ought not stop short and fail to explain the rest of the story. So now, after having detailed Bamidbar / Numbers 11 and 12, exposing the belligerent character of Israel and the covetous nature of a conniving and duplicitous woman, God wants to take us back in time to the future to deal with the man who would seek to uproot His plans and restrict access to the Trees of Lives and Knowledge He has planted.

As this next story begins, we find Yahowah teasing us with tuwr | pigeons flying in circles in search of a bull. While the Israelites are in a state of Paʿran | Self Glorification, a dozen foggy-brained malcontents are selected to scope out the Promised Land.

As is normally the case, we can deduce marvelous insights from the meaning of names God presents, especially when considered in the order they are introduced. And in what follows, a cursory inspection leads to what appears random and chaotic, while a more systematic approach to common roots leads to something special. And so with good names mixed in with the possibility of bad, depending upon the level of scholarship, and of one brave soul in the midst of cowardly lions and brainless strawmen, the message may be that our diligence determines our outcome.

Do we see inspiring patterns or chaos and confusion? Are we Covenant or Israel? Is God, perhaps, revealing the thoughtless nature of those who have left to promote an imbecilic Mother Goddess cult. They can say the names of the people I have shared with them, but they are clueless beyond my transliterations.

Following in the footsteps of Numbers 11 where Moseh was hounded into capitulation and said some things he no doubt regrets, and Numbers 12, where Yahowah had to liberate his Liberator from a dysfunctional family, Moseh's speech is filled with inappropriate directions. He seems to beg the horrific response received from the spies as a consequence.

The resulting despair and lack of trust caused great suffering and carnage for Yisra'el. And through it all, only one man, a fellow who was totally judgmental, stood up against the rest of the people.

While you may know bits and pieces of this story as foretold in Bamidbar / Numbers 13 and 14, I'll bet you are unaware that it sets up and explains the story of the man stoned for picking up branches and stems, or more correctly, for uprooting trees, on the Shabat. Indeed, while it will take us three chapters to get there, we are going to be the first to understand and explain what has transpired up to this point, the most disconcerting story in the Towrah.

“Yahowah (YaHoWaH) spoke (dabar) to Moseh (*el Moshah – to Draw Out) to say (la *amar), (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:1) ‘Of your own volition, you should choose to dispatch and send out on your behalf (shalach la *atah) individual people (*iyshym). And they, of their own choosing, will, like spying pigeons, explore and investigate (wa tuwr – so they, as doves flying in circles to spy out the bull, will infiltrate; indistinguishable from towr – turn in circles, in the mode of circular reasoning, as a dove or pigeon, seeking a bull (qal imperfect jussive third-person plural)), within the land of Kana’an | Subdued, Humbled, and Brought Down (*eth *erets Kana’an) which, for the benefit of the relationship (*asher), I am giving (nathan) to the Children of Yisra*el (la beny Yisra*el).

One individual (*iysh *echad), a single person (*iysh *echad), for the branch, clan leader, or tribe (la mateh) of their fathers (aby huw) you should send out, releasing them and giving them free rein (shalach – you should dispatch, sending them away on an ongoing basis (qal imperfect)), all stormy leaders and foggy supporters (nasy*) among them (ba hem).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:2)

Normally, something like tuwr / towr wouldn’t register beyond the prospect of investigating. However, since everything from the Numbers 11 narrative through Numbers 15 fits the aggravating rebellion we are enduring from former insiders, I can’t help but notice its specificity. The psychotic leader of the cult, our Miryam, fancies herself a towr | dove and she is fixated on spying on me as the bull while getting herself all turned around with circular reasoning.

“So, Moseh sent them off and away (wa shalach Mosheh *eth hem) from the lifeless place in the wilderness where the word is questioned (min midbar) of Pa*ran | Self Glorification

(Pa^oran) upon the mouth of Yahowah (*al peh Yahowah), all of them individual heads (kol hem *iyshum ro^osh) of Beny Yisra^oel | Children who Strove Against and Challenged God (beny Yisra^oel hem).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:3)

Here is the list of names, all of which are interesting: 1) Seeing the Son’s Renown is Memorable. 2) Listen to and Decide Upon the Whitening Bread. 3) Yahowah and His Beloved, Dowd, Enable the Judgmental to Approach. 4) By Bearing the Payment, the Kinsman Redeemer Contributes to Our Enrichment. 5) Being Productive, Yahowah Empowers and Broadcasts. 6) The Right Son Delivers Healing. 7) The Honored and Favored by God is our Counselor. 8) By Continually Adding, Much is Forgotten for Personal Enrichment. 9) Be Judgmental People of God for Debt Forgiveness and Rearing. 10) The Path to the Benefits of the Relationship is Hidden and Concealed Until Pondering what is Right About God. 11) Those Who Twist, Withdraw All the More. 12) Fortunate to Grow with God’s Salesman.

So, from this perspective, here is the list of spies...

“These were their names (wa *eleh shem hem): for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Ra^ouwben | Seeing the Son, Shamuwa^o | Renown, the son of Zakuwr | Memorable, (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:4)

for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Shim^oown | Listening, Shaphat | Deciding, son of Chory^o | Whitening Bread, (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:5)

for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Yahuwdah | Yahowah and Dowd, Kaleb | Totally Judgmental, son of Yaphuneh | I Turn to Approach the Appearance, (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:6)

for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Yisaskar | Bearing the Payment and Reward, Yig^oal | the Kinsman Redeemer, son of Yowseph | Increases by Contributing to Enrichment, (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:7)

for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of ephraym* | to be Fruitful and Productive, Howsha• | Yahowah Delivers, son of Nuwn | Continually Increasing and Propagating, (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:8)

for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Binyamyn | Son of Right, Palty | Delivers, son of *Raphuw | Healing, (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:9)

for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Zabuwluwn | the Honored and Exalted, *Gady*el* | the Favored of God, son of Sowdy | Counselor Conversing, (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:10)

for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Yowseph | Continually Adding, for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Manasheh | Causing to be Forgotten, Gady | for Personal Enrichment, son of Suwsy | Skipping and Flying Away, (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:11)

for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Dan | Judge, •*Amy*el* | People of God, son of Gamaly | for My Debt Repayment and Rearing (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:12)

for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Asher* | Path to the Beneficial Relationship, Sathuwr | Hidden and Concealed, son of *Myka*el* | One Considering What's Right About God, (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:13)

for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Naphtaly | Wrestling and Twisting, Nachby | I will Withdraw, son of Wophsy | Even More, (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:14)

for the tribe and clan (la mateh) of Gad | Fortunate, *Ga*uw*el* | Growing with God, son of Maky | the Salesman (an influential and wealthy merchant who rendered essential services to Dowd when he needed it most).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:15)

I think it was worth taking the time to reconsider the intent of the thirty-six names because everything in the Towrah is presented as a learning experience. Some, however, are particularly poignant. And on this occasion, we are especially blessed by our Father's ability to tell His story in an endearing, nurturing, and affirming way...

*Ra*uwben* | Seeing the Son's Shamuwa° | Name and Renown is Zakuwr | Memorable and Worth Mentioning, so

Shim°own | Listen and Shaphat | Decide upon the Ben | Son's *Chory | Whitening and Purifying Bread, for

Yahuwdah | Yahowah and Dowd Kaleb | Always Inspire Good Judgment for the Ben | Children who Yaphuneh | Turn to Approach their Appearance, because

Yisaskar | He Bears the Payment and Reward as Yig°al | the Kinsman Redeemer, this Ben | Son who Yowseph | Empowers and Enriches, so as

ephraym* | to Be Fruitful and Productive knowing that Howsha° | Yahowah will Deliver Salvation by Nuwn | Continually Broadcasting, Proliferating, Promulgating, through

Binyamyn | the Son of the Right Hand who Palty | Delivers *Raphuw | Healing, as

Zabuwluwn | the Honored and Exalted Ben | Son who is Gady°el | Most Favored by God, our Sowdy | Counselor and Advisor, and yet

Mateh | the tribe of Yowseph | Those who Continually Add Manasheh | Cause It to be Forgotten for Gady | Personal Gain, Suwsy | Quickly Flying Away, so

Dan | Be Thoughtful and Judgmental °Amy°el | People of God to Gamaly | Receive My Debt Payment and Rearing, for

Asher* | the Path to the Beneficial Relationship, Sathuwr | is now Hidden and Concealed, necessitating the Ben | Son known as Myka°el | One Who is Right About God, to resolve

Naphtaly | Wrestling and Twisting such that Nachby | I Had to Withdraw Wophsy | Even More, until

La Mateh | the Approach of the Stem and Branch, the Rod and Staff of the Gad | Fortunate and Favored who Ga°uw°el |

Grows with God, this Ben | Son who is the Maky | Salesman rendering essential services to Dowd.

It should be obvious to all who have read this far into Yada Yahowah that Dowd is God's beloved Son. He is the one whose name is worth remembering. Consistent with what Yahowah revealed about Dowd, we must listen to him and act accordingly because what he is providing through Matsah | UnYeasted Bread purifies and whitens our soul.

Yahuwd is a compound of Yahowah and Dowd. It means Yahowah's Beloved. And Kaleb, who will emerge as the hero of this story, speaks of always being thoughtful so as to consistently exercise good judgment. By doing so we are among the few who are allowed to enter the Promised Land. Therein, we can approach the very presence of God, drawing near as Yahowah returns.

Dowd, as our kinsman redeemer, has paid our debt in full, rewarding us with the benefits of the Covenant by fulfilling Chag Matsah. His sacrifice facilitates our enrichment and empowerment, increasing our capacity and capability in every imaginable way.

Making this known to a lost generation is why Yahowah deployed a man who would be especially productive in revealing the means He would deploy to deliver salvation. One has now arrived who is broadcasting and promulgating God's message far and wide. And the instruction he is communicating is that Dowd serves as Yahowah's right hand to restore the relationship the Benjamite has broken. God's Firstborn is the most honored and favored of His sons, serving as our counselor and advisor.

But alas, even with all of this, among the descendants of Yowseph would be those who, for monetary gain, would continue to augment Yahowah's testimony with their Talmud, thereby causing God's revelations to be forgotten. And as a result, many would simply fly away, quickly distancing themselves from Yah.

Therefore, our Father is asking the People of God to be especially thoughtful and judgmental because they need the debt forgiveness He is offering through His Son. Only then can our Father raise us as His children.

However, since the path to the benefits of the relationship God intended has been concealed by the religious who continue to twist Yahowah's testimony, pushing God further away, the Almighty is delivering Myka^{el}. He is the prophet who accompanied Gabry^{el} into Babylon to reveal through Daniel how the events of the last days would unfold. Therefore, recognizing the essential nature of his role, Myka^{el} | the One Who is Right About God, has become a Stem off of the main Branch, the enforcing Rod of the Staff of God's Favorite and Favored Son.

As a result of the Maky | Salesman who is rendering these essential services to Dowd, many will grow with God. But there is much more to his story, and it parallels my own. It takes flight in 2 Shamuw^{el} 9, commencing a chapter removed from my favorite prophecy. Maky's namesake, Makyr | the Salesman, was a wealthy and influential merchant. As it would transpire, he would adopt the handicapped son of Dowd's best friend, Yahownathan | Yahowah's Gift.

Initially, Dowd wanted to know if someone had survived Yahownathan | Jonathan's death following his brave battle against the invading Philistines. He was told that one son had, and that his name was Maphybosheth | Shattered and Confused. He learned that he was stricken such that he was lame and could not walk. Mephibosheth was living in the home of Makyr | the Salesman, a ben | son whose el Amy^{el} | Family was God's. They were from Lo^{} Dabar* | Where the Word was Negated.

But that isn't the end of the story, because after Dowd restored Maphybosheth's inheritance, Makyr would restore what rightfully belonged to Dowd. As the King fled all of the men of Yisra^{el} during Absalom's uprising, he came upon Machanaym, the twin encampments where Ya^{aqob} had wrestled with mal'akym | spiritual messengers, one representing Satan and the other Yahowah, earning the title that would define the rest of his life – Yisra^el.

Without food, shelter, or provisions, Dowd was vulnerable, something Makyr | the Salesman resolved, with mishkab | beds to rest, saphowth | basins, bowls, and goblets for the Doorkeeper, kaly | vessels and utensils for the Temple, chitahym | wheats for Shabuw^ah, sa^aorah | barleys for Bikuwrym, gemach | milled flour for Matsah, roasted grain, beans, lentils, and other grains, dabash | honey and chema^aah | curds representing the Promised Land, a tsoⁿ | lamb for Passover, shaphah | that which sweeps and scrapes away to clarify, which is the result of Matsah, and a single Baqar | Bull representing Taruw^ah for Dowd to nagash | come forth, approach, and be present on Kipurym.

Quite simply and emphatically, the Salesmen not only adopted the crippled child of Yahowah's Gift, he found Dowd when all others had passed him by. Then, without question or hesitation, the Salesman reestablished the King's inheritance, right down to presenting the barley, wheat, lamb, and bull. I am Makyr, that Salesman, and Dowd is my King. And so now you know the rest of the story.

“These are the names of the individuals (eleh shem ha^aiysh*) who, to show the way (asher*), Moseh (Mosheh) dispatched and sent away (shalach) to spy as pigeons and circling doves to explore and investigate (wa tuwr – flying circuitously to spy out the bull, infiltrating; indistinguishable from towr – turn in circles, in the mode of circular reasoning, as a dove or pigeon, searching for a bull (qal infinitive)) that which is associated with the land (eth ha^aerets*).

Then, Moseh called out to, summoning (wa gara^a Mosheh), Howsha^a | Yahowah Delivers, son of Nuwn | Continually Increasing and Propagating (la Howsha^a ben Nuwn), Yahowsha^a | Yahowah Delivers (Yahowsha^a). (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:16)

So Moseh (wa Mosheh) dispatched them and sent them away (shalach *eth hem) to spy as pigeons and circling doves to explore and investigate (la tuwr – to fly circuitously to spy out the bull, infiltrating; from towr – turn in circles, in the mode of circular reasoning, as a dove or pigeon, searching for a bull (qal infinitive)) that which is associated with the land (*eth *erets) of Kana'an | Subdued, Humbled, and Brought Down (Kana'an). And he said to them (wa *amar *el hem), ‘Ascend (*alah), therefore into the Negeb (zeh ba ha Negeb) and climb the hills (wa *alah *eth ha har).’” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:17)

By repeating tuwr, Yahowah is giving us every opportunity to appreciate the nuances, reflecting on the misguided dove and her pigeons flying in circles in search of the Bull they abandoned. This especially rings true in the context of entering the realm of the Humbled and Subdued who are Brought Down.

Moseh could have done much better in his pep talk. And, in fact, there are some questions here that he never should have asked because they discount Yahowah’s gift. Instead, I would have explained that we are on the cusp of the greatest adventure in human history, entering the land Yahowah has chosen for us. Let’s go unwrap this marvelous gift.

“Then see (wa ra*ah) what the land is like (*eth ha erets mah hy). And regarding the people (wa *eth ha *am) who inhabit and dwell upon it (ha yashab al hy), are they militarily mighty and powerful or instead, are they weak and incompetent (ha chazaq hy* ha rapheh), find whether they are few, little in stature and quantity (ha ma*at huw*), or if many, even large and imposing (*im rab).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:18)

Yahowah told them what the land was like. And He told them that He was giving it to them. So why disrespect God by disregarding His descriptions? It’s rude and disrespectful. As for the prowess of the occupants, Yahowah said that they would be removed. Why didn’t Moseh listen to Him and trust Him?

The disregard for God continues, and in fact, it gets much worse...

“Also, question whether the land (*wa mah ha erets) that they inhabit and dwell within (asher huw *yashab ba hy) can be considered good and beneficial, even productive (*ha towb hy) or if bad, worthless, and detrimental (im ra).” (Bamidbar 13:20 in part)

It's little wonder Moseh was not among the initial escapees allowed into the land. His attitude toward God at this moment wasn't any better than the returning spies. This is equivalent to saying, “Before I get back to You on the invitation to Heaven, do You mind if I check it out and see if it's a dump, or if it's up to my standards? After all, I don't want to be inconvenienced or have to work to make improvements.”

Lions, tigers, and bears, oh my...

“And question the cities (*wa mah ha iyir) that they occupy (asher huw yashab ba henah) as to whether they are encampments (ha ba machaneh) or whether they are within fortifications (im ba mibtsar*).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:19)

Surely, Moseh didn't think that a stone wall was going to stump God. So, why even ask? But worse, why would someone who has witnessed Yahowah's miracles propelling the liberation of his people, and having listened to His creation account, suggest that God's land grant would be barren?

Question whether the land (*wa mah ha erets ha) is rich and responsive (shamen hy) or whether it's lean, poor, and barren (im razeh), even whether there are trees in it (ha yesh ba hy ets) or not (im ayin).” (Bamidbar 13:20 in part)

Nope, no trees for you. Better luck next time.

So, be tough and courageous, firm and resolute, even uncompromising and unrelenting (wa chazaq). And grasp hold of and take something from the fruit (wa laqach min pery) of the land (*ha erets) - the days of days (wa ha yowmym yowmym) of grape firstfruits (*bikuwrym enab).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:20)

Why not, “Have a great time. Enjoy exploring Yahowah’s marvelous gift to us. And remember, He will be with you, guiding you, every step of the way.”

“So they ascended (wa *alah) and they spied out as pigeons and circling doves to explore and investigate (wa tuwr – they searched for the bull, infiltrating; indistinguishable from towr – turn in circles, in the mode of circular reasoning, as a dove or pigeon, seeking a bull (qal imperfect)) that which is associated with the land (*eth ha *erets) from the wilderness of Tsin | Prick (min midbar Tsin) as far as Rachob | Broad and Open (*ad Rachob) Labow• Chamath | Entrance to the Fortress (Labow• Chamath). (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:21)

They climbed (wa alah) into the Negeb | Parched (ba ha Negeb) and came as far as Chebrown | the Allies (wa bow *ad Chebrown). And there (wa sham), *Achyman | From Brother, Sheshay | White Nobleman, and Talmay | Furrow, born of the Anak | Necklace (yalyd ha anaq). So, Chebrown | the Ally (wa Chebrown) was built (banah) seven years before (sheba shanah la) the presence of Tso•an | Departure of Mitsraym | Crucibles of Oppression (paneh Tso•an Mitsraym). (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:22)

Then they came up to the Valley of eshkowl | Grape Clusters (wa bow *ad nachal *Eshkowl) and they cut (wa karat) from there a pruning (min sham zamowrah) and a single cluster (wa *eshkowl *echad) of grapes (enab). And they carried it on a tipsy frame (wa nasa huw* ba ha mowth) between two (ba shanaym). And some of the pomegranates and some of the figs (wa min ha Rimown wa min ha ta*enah). (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:23)

So the place (la ha maqowm ha huw*) was called (qara*) the Valley of Grape Clusters (wa bow* *ad nachal *eshkowl) on account of the cluster (*al *odowth ha *eshkowl) that the Children of Yisra*el cut from there (*asher karat min sham beny Yisra*el). (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:24)

Then they returned from (wa shuwb min) spying out to explore and investigate (wa tuwr – they searched for the bull, infiltrating; from towr – turned in circles, in the mode of circular reasoning, as a dove or pigeon, seeking a bull (qal imperfect)) the land (*ha erets) from the end (min qets) of forty days (araba yowm).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:25)

It was quite the tour, from top to bottom and left to right. But they brought back little more than some haunting memories, a bad attitude, a bunch of raisins, some wrinkled figs, and shriveled pomegranates.

“They walked and they came (*wa halak wa bow) to Moseh and to *Aharown (el Mosheh wa *el aharown) and to the entire community (*wa *el kol edah) of the Children of Yisra*el (*beny Yisra*el*) in the wilderness of Paran (el midbar Paran*) at Qadesh | Separated. They returned with their statements (*shuwb eth hem dabar) and to the entire community as witnesses (*wa *el kol edah) and so they could see for themselves the fruit of the land (*wa ra*ah hem *eth pery ha erets). (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:26)

So they recounted to them (*wa saphar la huw), and said (*wa amar), ‘We entered into the land (bow *el ha erets) which you sent us (asher shalach anachnuw). And although it flows (wa gam zawab) with milk and honey (*chalab wa dabash hy), and this is its fruit (*wa zeh pery hy), (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:27) nevertheless (ephes*), it is a fact that the people who inhabit the land are powerful and fierce, fortified, and harsh (*ky *az ha *am ha yashab ba ha erets), and the cities are many, they are very large, and unassailable with impenetrable walls (*wa ha *iyr batsuwr gadowl ma*od*). And beyond all of this (wa gam), the descendants of the Anaq | Necklace (*yalyd ha anaq) we saw there (*ra*ah sham*).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:28)

“Yep, God described it accurately. It’s a really nice place. But we don’t do well with company or play nicely with others so we’ll take a pass. At this point, we think slavery in the Nile Delta seems more appealing. Besides, we saw the guy with the really big and scary necklace. And in addition to those really scary guys, we saw the Grievous Toilers, some Chity Terrorists, the Trampers, and the Talkers, too...”

“Amaleq | Grievous Toilers live in the land (yashab ba *erets) of the Negeb | Parched. And the Chity | Terrorists, and the Yabuwcy | Trampers, and the *emory | Talkers dwell in the hills (yashab ba ha har), and then the Kana*any | Humblers and Subduers inhabit the sea (yashab *al ha yam) and on the hand (wa *al yad) of the Yarden | that Which Goes Down.” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:29)

But, hey, even if there were some Humblers along the sea, at least there were no Islamic terrorists, and that’s nice.

Among the twelve, and fourteen if you toss Moseh and Aharown in with the sissies and malcontents, there was...

“Then Kaleb | Totally Judgmental and All Heart silenced (hasah) the people before Moseh (*eth ha *am *el Mosheh). He said (wa *amar), ‘Let’s rise without reservation (*alah *alah) and accept our inheritance so as to take possession of it (yarash eth hy), because we will absolutely be capable of prevailing and obtaining it (ky yakol yakol la hy*).’” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:30)

If I’d been there, I would have been Kaleb. “Since Yahowah is with us, we are already victorious. Let’s go.”

When it comes to Yahowah, the worst thing is a bad attitude. The best thing is trust. So, it’s for sure, the rest of these boys were losers.

“But the men who had ascended with him said (wa ha *iysh *asher *alah im huw amar), ‘We would not be able to prevail (lo yakol) by rising up against these people (la *alah *el ha am) because, it is for sure (ky), they are more vigorous and powerful, sharper, stouter, stronger, and severe (chazaq) than are we (huw min *anachnuw.’” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:31)

Jews have never been on the same page with God. After all, it's not every day you encounter a gang who are crazy enough to give God a bad report while demeaning His gift and slandered Him. But that's exactly what these reprehensible souls did on this forgettable day.

“Therefore, they withdrew, having brought out and vented (*yatsa) a slanderous report, insulting the reputation (dibah) of the land (*ha erets) that they had spied out, exploring and investigating it (*tuwr *eth hy—searching for the bull as circling pigeons, infiltrating it; indistinguishable from towr – turn in circles, in the mode of circular reasoning, as a dove or pigeon, looking for a bull (qal imperfect)) for the Children of Yisra*el (el ben Yisra*el*), to say (*la amar), ‘The land which (*ha *erets asher) we have passed through, passing over it (abar ba hy), to spy it out (*tuwr eth hy) is a land (erets) that devours and consumes, eating (akal*) those who inhabit it (yashab hy hy). And all of the people (*wa kol ha am) that we saw in the midst of it (asher ra*ah ba tawek hy) were large statured individuals (iysh midah*).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:32)

A slanderous report against God is not recommended, nor is it rational or deserved. Moreover, land does not eat people. And no one who lives with Yah is ever devoured by those who don't.

This is really quite amazing. After rescuing the Children of Israel from slavery, and bringing their disgruntled personages here, what do you suspect Yahowah thought about His offer of an inheritance? Would it be fair to say that by this point, the last thing God wanted was to live with any of these bums? And that being the case, is this narrative being provided such that we understand the need to separate the majority from God rather than unifying them?

The lesson here is that it is essential for there to be a wide variety of offramps leading away from the Covenant and all manner of barricades set up along the way to distract the unworthy. And from this perspective, are you beginning to see the merit of evil, of ha Satan, of Christianity, Judaism, and Islam, for Marxism and Conspiracy, even for the likes of the psychotic Mother Goddess cult?

They also lied, as have the religious. The Nephylym were notorious for their violence and savagery outside of the Garden of Eden, necessitating the flood, which eliminated them. Further, the name is from the verbal root naphal, which means “fallen and cast down,” not “giants.”

“And there we saw (*wa sham ra*ah*) the Nephylym | Fallen and Cast Down (eth ha Nephylym*), sons of Anaq | the Necklace from the Nephylym | Fallen and Cast Down. And we existed in our eyes (*wa hayah ba *ayn anachnuw) like grasshoppers and locusts (ka chagab), even being as annoying as gnats or lice (wa ken hayah) in their eyes (*ba ayn hem).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 13:33)

At this point, Yahowah had to be well beyond disappointed and to the point of being furious. He was angry. He was disgusted. These were awful people, and this was a horrible idea. If only He hadn’t said He wouldn’t do it again, another flood would have been the best solution. But this time, since God needed to purge the Yisra*elites rather than Nephylym, this would require a different approach.

To my mind, this shouts something few want to hear: God would prefer that most die than endure their presence. Rather than bemoan religion and politics, cults and conspiracies, for leading the ignorant astray, we ought to be grateful for them. They are the plague and scavengers ridding the world of this irrational, unthinking filth. Those who lead others astray are providing a service, even if it is to thin the herd.

From God's perspective, those who demean Him with their slanderous and insulting beliefs are as destructive as locusts and as meaningless as gnats. They are annoying lice. The Children of Yisra^{*el} had condemned themselves.

And in this light, we must rebuke them in accordance with Yahowah's instructions. And yet, we see in them the dunderheads who broke away from the Covenant Family to pursue Spirit Mom and attack Yahowah's Witness. And in so doing, they have done us a great favor. They have drawn a line in the sands of time and removed themselves from our company, luring the unfit away in the process.

Case in point...

“Then the entire community as a unified gang (wa kol ha ʿedah) they got carried away (*nasa) and contributed their voice (wa nathan ʿeth qowl hem), such that the people who were considered family, continually wept, crying and sobbing (wa bakah ha ʿam) throughout the night (*ba ha laylah ha huw).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:1)

Again, akin to our situation with Israel, with Jews in general, and with Christians and Muslims, Magas and Marxists, as well as with the most annoying of all, the Goddess Cult, they grumbled and complained rather than listened. They are good at passing blame and expert at howling, but not much else. And as such, they are as good as dead.

“And they constantly grumbled and complained, blaming and howling (wa luwn) against Moseh | the One Drawing Out (al Mosheh*), even against aharown* | the Alternative (*wa *al aharown), every one of the Children of Yisra^{*el} | Who Strive and Wrestle Against God.

So (wa), the entire community (kol ha ʿedah) said to them

(amar el hem), ‘If only we had died (luw muwth) in the land (*ba erets) of Mitsraym | the Crucibles of Oppression, or if we had died in the wilderness (ow ba ha midbar ha zeh luw muwth*).’ (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:2)

The Children of Yisra*el preferred death to living with God. And they were given what they requested.

What’s especially disappointing here is that Moseh didn’t stand up and shut them up. And so, I’m exceedingly sorry for God, and I’m embarrassed for humankind.

By confronting this, I’m keenly aware of why it was important for us to suffer the fracture of what we had thought was a Covenant Family. Most people are unfit to exist in Yahowah’s presence so there must be those willing to lure the rotten fruit away before the harvest. Therefore, even the Mother Goddess Cult, Conspiracy, Judaism, Christianity, Islam, and Marxism serve a purpose.

“So, for what reason (wa la mah) is Yahowah bringing us to this land (bow *eth *anachnuw *el ha *erets ha zo*th*) to fall (la naphal) by the sword (ba ha chereb)? Our women, and our little ones (ishah *anachnuw wa taph anachnuw), will become prey and plunder (hayah la baz).”

Wouldn’t it be better (ha lo towb*) for us to return (*la anachnuw shuwb) to Mitsraym | the Crucibles of Religious and Political Oppression?’ (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:3)

So they continually said (*wa amar), each individual to his brother (iysh *el *ach huw), ‘We want to choose to offer and appoint (nathan – to assign (qal imperfect cohortative first-person plural)) the foremost and uppermost leader (*ro*sh*) because we want to return (wa shuwb – we have chosen to go back (qal imperfect cohortative first-person plural)) to Mitsraym | the Crucibles of Religious and Political Oppression.’” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:4)

Let’s be clear, Yahowah chose Abraham, Yitschaq, and Ya*aqob, but they didn’t reciprocate, and it only got worse from there. The Chosen People have never chosen God in return. And this episode may be the worst thus far.

Yahowah made a promise to give the land of Yisra^{}el to Abraham and his descendants through the Covenant. He was honoring that promise even though the Yisra^{}elites had disavowed the Beryth in every conceivable way. Therefore, the only reason that they were here is because Yahowah knew that this horrible response to Him would become tolerable someday, even if that day would be 3,780 years away.

But for now, when the Children of Yisra^{*}el had become so reprehensible, so self-absorbed and delusional, they chose death over life with God. Their preference was to be abused as slaves rather than live freely in the Promised Land. They were just a step away from the ultimate opportunity, and chose to spit in God's face, instead.

Then for bad measure, the Israelites undermined and rebuked Moseh again, this time actually threatening to replace God's choice with one of their own. This was a preview of Sha^ouwl replacing Shamuw^oel. Rather than Moseh leading them out of slavery in Egypt to the Promised Land alongside Yahowah, they wanted Nachby | We will Withdraw, son of Wophsy | More of the Same, of the Tribe of Naphtaly | Wrestling and Twisting, to take them away from God to die. And as usual and fair, Yahowah honored their request.

Speaking personally at the moment, I have received countless death threats, and yet I stand, unbowed by the sword. Yahowah made a commitment to protect me should I choose to engage with Him, and He has honored His commitment ~ just as He would have done for these Israelites had they not been so obnoxious. And yet, these reprobates cowered.

I understand that Moseh was the best man for the job, and in fact, the only one qualified for the mission Yahowah wanted accomplished. I recognize and applaud Moseh for risking his life to protect the Israelites from the brutal taskmasters, and then intervening again on behalf of the young women at the well when threatened by bandits. But unfortunately, he's no longer courageous when surrounded by a mob of malcontent Jews. As a result, his propensity to faceplant rather than stand up when needed, is disappointing. (Although to be fair, Moseh was only 40 when he killed the taskmaster and protected the girls at the well against a few bandits and now, he's over 80 and dealing with 600,000 angry Israelites.)

At this point, following his embarrassing send-off speech, Moseh had said nothing and done nothing. Then it got worse...

“Then Moseh and Aharown fell (naphal) on their faces before the presence (al paneh hem la paneh*) of the entire contingent crowd and gang (*kol qahal edah) representing the Children of Yisra*el. (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:5)

So, Yahowsha• | Yahowah Delivers, son of Nuwn | Continuing to Exist, and Kaleb | Totally Judgmental, son of Yaphuneh | One Who Turned to Approach, from among those who had spied out (min ha tuwr) the land (*ha erets) tore their clothes (qara beged hem*). (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:6)

Then he spoke (*wa amar) to the entire community (el kol edah) of the Children of Yisra*el, to say (*la amar), ‘The land (*ha erets) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), we passed over and through it (abar ba hy), spying it out, exploring and investigating it (*la tuwr *eth hy – we searched, looking for the bull, infiltrating it; indistinguishable from towr – turned in circles, in the mode of circular reasoning, as a dove or pigeon, looking for a bull (qal infinitive)), is an exceedingly good, overwhelmingly desirable, tremendously agreeable, and marvelously productive (*towb ma*od ma*od*) land (*ha erets). (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:7)

If (em*) Yahowah (Yahowah) wants us and takes pleasure in us, choosing us, and should He be willing to accept us (*chaphets ba anachnuw), then He will bring us (wa bow *eth anachnuw) into this land (el ha *erets ha zo*th*) and He will give it to us (wa nathan hy la anachnuw) – a land that, for the benefit of the relationship (erets asher), it flows

(hy zuwb*) with milk and honey (chalab wa dabash).”
(Bamidbar / Numbers 14:8)

What Yahowsha® and Kaleb did on this occasion, by standing up and speaking up over the drone of deceit, deception, and despair, was exceedingly difficult. Those who tell the truth are routinely threatened and assaulted because lies about God are preferred a million to one over reality.

Of course, the land was towb. It was Yahowah’s gift. They were returning after a long time out for bad behavior. And of course, God would be true to His word. He said that the Children of Israel would reclaim it.

However, even if someone is counted among the misled, even if they are afraid to be the one in a million who is set apart unto Yahowah, there is a difference between choosing to disassociate from God so as to remain part of the pack, as opposed to slandering Him. What we have heard the Children of Yisra*el do on this occasion by openly insulting Yahowah is the difference between the dissipation or incarceration of one’s soul. Therefore, Kaleb, beside Yahowsha®, unambiguously stated...

“However, with Yahowah (ak ba Yahowah*), do not rebel or revolt (al marad*). And you should neither fear nor be intimidated by (*wa *atem al yare eth) the people of the land (am ha erets) for they will be consumed by us (*ky lacham anachnuw hem).

Their shadow will be removed (suwr tsel hem) from on them (*min al hem). With Yahowah with us (*wa Yahowah *eth anachnuw), you have no reason to fear them (al yare* hem*).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:9)

By saying that the locals will be consumed, this stalwart was turning the tables on the other spies. And by saying that they had already lost their shadows, he was affirming that they had no real substance, especially when exposed to the will of Yah. But even then, Kaleb was hedging his bet, wondering if the damage had already been done such that this was one insult too many for Yahowah to endure. And if not, what happened next confirms these concerns...

“Then (wa), the entire assembled pack and congregated gang (kol ha ʿedah) said (*amar) they should pummel them with stones (la ragam ʿeth hem ba ha ʿeben).

However (wa), a powerful manifestation of Yahowah (kabowd Yahowah) was seen (raʾah) in the Tent (ba ʾohel) of the Restoring Witness to the Eternal Meetings (Mowʿed) by all of the Children of Yisraʾel (*el kol ben Yisraʾel).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:10)

A moment ago, I mentioned that it takes courage and conviction to stand up and speak up for Yahowah, knowing that God is immensely unpopular. But it’s actually far worse than that because the overtly religious and political who form the vast majority are prone to attack and kill those who impugn their delusions. However, not to worry because there are so few who are willing to speak for Him on behalf of His people, God can always be counted upon to protect those who are willing.

“So, Yahowah inquired of Moseh (wa ʾamar Yahowah ʾel Mosheh), ‘Will it be forever (*ad ʾan) that these people (ha ʾam ha zeh) will continually reject, spurn, and despise Me, treating Me with contempt (naʿats ʾany – deriding and disrespecting Me, even abhorring Me (piel imperfect reveals that Yahowah is suffering the effect of the ongoing abuse of His people)))?’

Will it be forever (wa ʾad ʾan) that they consider Me dishonest and untrustworthy, unreliable and insufficient (loʾ ʾaman ba ʾany) even with all of the wonderful examples and miraculous signs (ba kol ha ʾowth) that, for the benefit of this relationship (*asher), I have accomplished and produced (*asah) in their midst (ba qereb huwʾ)?” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:11)

Since there is no evidence that this attitude has changed, and considerable proof that it has actually deteriorated with the erasing of Yahowah's name and the malfeasance of the rabbis, the case cannot be made that God has a relationship with His people or that He has any respect for them.

It is Yahowah's assessment that Israel has spurned Him and treated Him with contempt. For good reason, God is convinced that Jews hate Him. He knows that they prefer the false religious god they have written into their lives by writing Him out.

There is only one way to resolve this abysmal situation, and that is to disassociate from the majority who are overtly religious and political, then come to know and respect Yahowah by reading Yada Yahowah – which is why it exists for you in its entirety at YadaYah.com. Only then, can God be understood and relied upon as He instructs and deserves.

Even God could not save Israel under these conditions. They would die instead. And they continue to die as a result of na'uts and *lo' aman, spurning Yahowah and distrusting Him with words not dissimilar to those spoken so appallingly on this occasion. So God said...

“I will continually destroy them, afflicting and killing them based upon their choices (nakah hem – I will ruin and slay them without remitting, striking them for their decisions ((hifil imperfect energetic nun jussive)) with the plague of words and pandemic of incurable speech (ba ha deber).

So (wa), I will disinherit them, making them destitute and dispossessed (*wa yarash huw – I will drive them away (hifil imperfect energetic nun)). Then I will engage to make (*wa asah) in association with one of you (eth atah), through a Gowy | a single non-Yisra*elite (la gowy) who is greater in importance and status, more capable and courageous (gadowl – more intense, vociferous, and distinguished, able to promote growth which is magnifying and worthy), thereby accomplishing the purpose of there being a multitude beyond them (atsuwm min huw).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:12)

God is fair, but intolerant, just, but uncompromising. He is also quite clever – and to such an extent, it would be unwise to challenge Him as Nachby | We will Withdraw, son of Wophsy | More of the Same, of the Tribe of Naphtaly | Wrestling and Twisting has done.

To those who would deride Him by turning His people against Him, God says that they will choke on their own words. Those who have advanced Judaism, Christianity, and Islam by pontificating their rhetoric over God have conceived and spread a plague of faith. The pandemic Yahowah promised Yisra^{el} was religion ~ an incurable disease of words spread virally ~ not His, but theirs.

Based upon Yahowah's brilliant retort to Israel's jaundiced rhetoric, I find it reassuring that He inspired me to write the 5 volumes of God Damn Religion to protect Jews from Islam, the 5 volumes of Twistianity to invalidate the theft of their Messiah and their inheritance, and the 3 volumes of Babel to expose the curse of Judaism. When God composes a plan, He sticks to it.

As a result, choose Talmudic, New Testament, or Quranic scripture over the Towrah and you will die apart from God. Those who do not listen to Yahowah and accept the inheritance He is offering though His Towrah | Guidance, Beryth | Covenant Family, and Mow^{ed} | Restoring Witnesses to the Eternal Testimony will be destitute and dispossessed, their souls lost.

Therefore, by turning the tables on these reprehensible men and using their religious and political rebellion against them, Yahowah has precluded these malcontents from ruining the Promised Land of Shamaym | Heaven for the rest of us. God is announcing that He will be using the religions that men create to discredit Him to dismiss them. It's genius.

Since it is likely that the lone man vocalizing the defense of Yahowah initially was the same during the rebuttal, the second time standing alongside Yahowshuwa^{}* | Yahowah Delivers, this Yisra^{el}elite's name, Kaleb | Completely Judgmental becomes vital to this conversation. I say this because eth atah | in association with one of you was singular, addressing this one man among the many. In a nation openly condescending toward the Almighty, he was willing to stand up and speak up in a judgmental way, pleasing God in the process. It is role reversal on Christianity ~ Judge lest you be judged.

The lesson here is that by contrasting what Kaleb said and did on this occasion and in coordination with his name ~ Completely Judgmental ~ to the caustic vitriol of the rest of Israel, Yahowah promised to deploy a Gowy to save a multitude of His people. The situation was bleak because God stated emphatically that He was “yarash – disinheriting” the Children of Yisra^{*}el. They were no longer His children. They were yarash | dispossessed. And that means that they were as good as dead.

Before we move past Kaleb, we should acknowledge that he was from the tribe of Yahuwdah. This means he represents God’s Son, Dowd. Our King was the most courageous man of God and someone who never flinched when it came to trusting Yahowah to prevail over any foe.

Had this meltdown in the midbar been the end of the story, Yahowah would have obliterated the planet and rendered the human experiment a colossal failure. Therefore, God revealed a remedy. He would reengage with one of us ~ just one ~ and that singular individual would be a Gowy | Gentile. He was, of course, speaking prophetically of His Nakry | Observant Foreigner. Since Jews would not listen to Him or Moseh, God would confront their rebellion through someone else.

While we know that God would work with Dowd and a score of other prophets, when it came to resolving the belligerence of the Children of Yisra^{*}el, God simply and unequivocally gave up on them and turned outside the tribe. Although, to be clear, it would be Yahowah engaging through this man to make this happen.

Israel had fallen so far so fast, a single gowy would be more capable than the lot of them ~ although that may not be saying much considering the obnoxious nature of Marxist and Haredi

Israelites today. But even with Jews setting a low bar, from Yahowah's perspective, His chosen Gowy would be more important, of greater value, more intense and vocal, indeed, more courageous and distinguished than the rest of Israel combined. And he would hold a higher status with God than the Chosen People who chose to denigrate Yahowah.

And while that is extraordinary, even better is the purpose. By coming to know Yahowah by name, beginning to trust Him again, God's Gowy would accomplish what was not achieved on this day. He would bring a multitude of Yisra^{*}elites back to Yahowah and into God's Home.

If His Chosen People would not listen, God would choose someone who would. And so now we know why there are upwards of a thousand prophecies pertaining to Yada | One Who Knows as the Nakry | Observant Foreigner becoming the Choter | Stem who Parah | Is Productive while also a Zarowa^o | One Cultivating the Seeds of the Harvest.

Playing devil's advocate for the moment, most English translations render gowy as "nation" at this point. But why? Gowy speaks of those who are unrelated to Israel by ethnicity or culture. If God wanted to say that He would be creating a new, bigger, and better version of these sad sacks, He would have used am* because it speaks of the people of a nation who are related by race. Further, it did not occur, at least at this time. The Children of Yisra^{*}el would soon be decimated.

Also, even under King Dowd, while Yisra^{*}el was a great nation, this same cancer had metastasized. Dowd's own son led a divisive rebellion against him. And as a result of their wanton behavior, Israel disintegrated not long thereafter. Therefore, there is no rational reason to render gowy as anything other than a single, unrelated, individual in this context. Also, while Dowd is the hero of God's story, our Savior and King, he's not a gowy, so this could not have been about him, either.

Unfortunately, Moseh did not understand the point God was making, and he was obviously struggling to find the right words to resolve this unmitigated disaster. So he floundered, and rather than accepting responsibility or holding the people accountable, tried to shift blame to Yahowah...

“Then Moseh said (wa *amar Mosheh) to Yahowah (el Yahowah), ‘But Mitsraym | the Religious and Political Oppressors will hear (wa shama Mitsraym) this about these people (ky *eth ha *am ha zeh) You had lifted up (*alah) in Your authority and ability (ba koach atah – with Your power and might) from among them (min qereb huw), (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:13).

So now they will say to the inhabitants (wa *amar *el yashab) of this land (ha *erets ha zo*th) that they have heard that You (shama* ky *atah), Yahowah, in the midst of this people (Yahowah ba qereb ha *am ha zeh) who saw You eye to eye (*asher *ayn ba *ayn ra*ah *atah), Yahowah (Yahowah), along with your cloud (wa *anan *atah) which was present over them (*amad *al hem), and in Your cylindrical cloud (wa ba *amuwd *anan *atah) going before their presence (halak la paneh hem) by day (yowm) and in the pillar of fire (wa ba *amuwd *esh) by night (laylah) (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:14) that You killed these people (wa muwth *eth ha *am ha zeh) as one individual (ka *iysh *echad).

Then it will be said to the gentiles who have heard this statement about You (wa *amar ha gowym asher shama eth shema *atah), claiming (la amar), (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:15) therefore, that Yahowah is incapable of prevailing (min bilthy yakol Yahowah) in bringing these people (la bow *eth ha *am ha zeh) to the land (*el ha *erets) that He promised to them (asher shaba la hem). That is why He has slaughtered them (wa shachat hem) in the wilderness (ba ha midbar).’” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:16)

Should anyone have been of the belief that prophets never make mistakes, it’s time to smell the manna. This isn’t a thoughtful argument. God was not concerned with Gentile perception but instead with Yisra*elite attitudes. And even though He was aggravated by these condescending miscreants, He wasn't disowning all of them such that they would disappear from history.

Moseh's argument was, essentially, that if Yahowah couldn't get these curmudgeons to cooperate, God, Himself, would be mocked by gentiles as if an incompetent boob. Rather than blame the Jews, it was blame their God.

Of course, because Jews remained cantankerous and opposed to Yahowah, Moseh's jaundiced assessment became prophetic of the way the God of the Towrah is perceived and besmirched in Christianity. And while that is a grossly unfair depiction, Moseh was the first to give such slander a voice. And it didn't stop there. Moseh foolishly called Yahowah adony* | my lord in his flattering appeal to ego...

“So now, please, let the power grow great (*wa *atah gadal na*ko*ah*) of my Lord (ado* any – my upright one) in accordance with what (*ka*asher*) You have conveyed (dabar) to say (*la amar), (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:17) ‘Yahowah (Yahowah) is long-suffering, and slow to anger (arek aph) and abundant in love, favoritism, and mercy (wa rab chesed), lifting up and carrying away (nasa) the guilt of perversity and depravity for having bent, twisted, and distorted the truth (aown) and the crime of revolting rebellion and defiance (*wa pesha), who will not consider innocent, nor ever leave unpunished or pardoned (naqah lo naqah*), recording and counting (paqad) the depravity of bending, twisting, and distorting the truth and the guilt of bowing down (aown*) of the fathers on the children (ab al ben) over threes and over four (al shileshym wa *al ribe – threefold squared).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:18)

Excuse my nitpicking, but Moseh provided a somewhat contradictory assessment. He began by stating something that had to irritate God, “So now, please, let the power of my lord grow great.” Yahowah's power does not ebb and flow. He is not a “lord.” Further, almost all of Yahowah's messaging on this occasion and in the previous two episodes with Israelites taunting Moseh into giving up only to have his brother and sister try to supersede him, led to overt rebukes by God. Therefore, bringing His attention to His words at this time demonstrated that Moseh hadn't been paying attention.

Yes, to even get this far with the legacy of Abraham required Yahowah to be long-suffering and slow to anger. I'm surprised He didn't nuke the planet. Lucky I'm not God or it would have been back to the drawing board with an entirely different cast of characters. And it is also true that Yahowah favors those He loves over all others, but in this case, they would be few and far between. And it is only on behalf of those of us who at least try to be civil towards God and listen to Him that He advanced the means to "lift up and carry away prior distortions of the truth." Further, the pesha^o | crime of rebellion against God can only be resolved once people cease being defiant, and that clearly had not happened here.

Then, Moseh appears to have realized that he had painted a grossly inaccurate picture, and reeling in his suggestion of "forgiveness for all." Without so much as a transition, he correctly stated that Yahowah "would not consider those who twist His testimony innocent, nor leave them unpunished. And rather than pardoning them, God would record and count their distortions of the truth and the guilt of bowing down against them." As a result, Moseh curtailed the hopeful result he had initially articulated, thereby affirming that the Israelites were in deep doo-doo – at least for the moment.

However, there was a bit of prophetic lucidity in Moseh's pleading. The Children of Yisra*el ~ the fathers and their children ~ would be held accountable for perverting their relationship with Yahowah and for corrupting His testimony for an unspecified third and fourth something – "over threes and over four." So, to what was this a reference since the natural affinity for "dowr – generation" was not mentioned?

I'd like to propose an answer. The aforementioned Gowy who is touted for resolving the guilt of a multitude of Yisra*elites, bringing them home, was born exactly 3,400 (threes and four) years after these words were spoken. Just a thought for you to consider or discard.

If so, this would become possible, even in accordance with the manner Yahowah had tried to guide and lead His wayward children up to this point...

“Please, I plead and beg (*na), You should want to be indulgent and remove the guilt, pardon, and forgive (salach – You should choose to forbear and stop passing blame (qal imperative second-person masculine singular)) the perversity of twisting and distorting along with the depravity of bowing down (aown*) of these people (*ha am ha zeh) according to the degree (ka godel) of your love and favoritism (*chesed atah) and according to how You have lifted up and carried away (*wa ka *asher nasa) the people (*la ha am ha zeh) from Mitsraym and up to here and now (*min Mitsraym ad henah).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:19)

God had been consistent in describing the path Home while also explaining where all other routes lead. The Exodus actually began as a rehearsal for the fulfillment of Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym.

Unfortunately, Israel had been consistent as well. They were constantly shown walking away from Yahowah while flipping Him the bird and spitting in God’s face. If the Almighty wouldn’t shut up and go away per their request, they would return to slavery and death.

Since Yahowah conveyed this next statement regarding being forbearing and liberating in the perfect conjugation, His offer was constrained in time. It is something He either had done (be forbearing) or would do (remove guilt) during a prescribed period. Further, since Moseh’s statement concluded by listing the offenses God would not resolve, His reply is precisely accurate, even a touch sensitive. And what I mean by that is that Moseh had been on the ropes, complained, quit, was attacked twice more, and was now on his face groveling before the miscreants. Therefore, since He had and would do as Moseh stated, and on the timeline He provided, God was in a position to reinforce His staggering liberator and teetering prophet.

“Then Yahowah said (*wa amar Yahowah), ‘In the past, I have been indulgent and forbearing and I will remove guilt during a specific period in the future (salach – I have and will forgive for a limited time (qal perfect)) consistent with your statement (*ka dabar atah). (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:20)

However (*wa uwlam – that notwithstanding), as I live (*chay any), all the Land and the entire Earth (eth kol ha erets) will proclaim the fulfillment and satisfactory conclusion and completion (*male) of Yahowah’s (Yahowah) manifestation of power and glorious presence, ruler and reward, abundance and gift (kabowd).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:21)

So, God went as far as He could in support of Moseh. There had been an accommodation to get to this point and there would be a solution well down the road.

“Therefore, for this to be true (ky), all of the individuals who have witnessed and seen (*ha ra*ah*) that which pertains to My honorable presence and abundant reward (eth kabowd any) and My miraculous signs and wonderful examples (eth *owth any) which, to show the way to get the most out of the relationship (asher*), I accomplished (asah*) in Mitsraym | the Crucibles of Oppression (ba Mitsraym), as well as in Midbar | the Wilderness where the Word is Questioned (wa ba ha midbar), who are testing and trying Me while tearing Me away (*wa nasah *eth any) these ten occurrences and steps along the way (*zeh *eser pa*am*), and who are still not listening to My voice (*wa lo*shama*ba qowl any), (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:22) they will not ever see (im ra*ah*) the land that I promised to give to their fathers (eth ha *erets *asher shaba la ab hem). Therefore, all those who disrespected and discarded Me, who despised and rejected

Me, feeling contempt for Me and spurning Me (wa kol na^oats) will not witness it (lo^{} ra^{}ah hy^{*}).’” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:23)

Clear. Uncompromising. Processed. Understood. And since the Promised Land represents Shamaym and living with Yahowah in His Home, those who don’t listen to His voice as revealed in His Towrah and who disregard His Guidance therein, are excluded from Heaven. And that would include virtually every Jew over the next 3,400 years and every Christian or Muslim. No exceptions. God is not going to share His Home, or spend eternity with anyone who rejects His name, Instructions, or Guidance – which includes His Towrah.

This means no forgiveness, inclusiveness, tolerance, or changing the rules along the way.

“However (wa), My ^oEbed | Coworker and Associate (^oebed ^{}any), Kaleb | Totally Judgmental (Kaleb – Completely Decisive; from kol – all and leb – heart, which addressed judgment in that day), because as a reward and for the duration of time (^{}eqeb), he exists with (hayah) a special allotment of the Spirit (ruwach ^{}acher) with him (^{}im huw^{}). Right to the end, he fulfilled his calling and satisfied Me completely (wa male^{} ^{}achar ^{}any). Therefore, I will bring him (wa bow^{} huw^{}) into the land (^{}el ha ^{}erets) which, to enjoy the benefits of the relationship (^{}asher), he entered, arriving thereupon (bow^{} sham). His descendants and seed (wa zera^o huw^{}) will inherit it (yarash hy^{}).’” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:24)

This reinforces important insights. First, Yahowah rewards those who take a stand on His behalf. Second, God likes it when we speak out for Him, especially when almost everyone disagrees. Third, Yahowah supports those who support Him. Fourth, God seeks and praises His coworkers. Fifth, Yahowah finds a sense of satisfaction when we appreciate what He is offering and accept what He has provided. Sixth, when God’s Ruwach is offered to someone, it not only sets them apart from all others, as it did with Kaleb on this occasion, the Spirit makes us immortal, living forever. And seventh, Yahowah's children receive a valuable inheritance, one that can be shared with successive generations.

“The Amalegy* | Amalekites and the *Kana*any* | Canaanites settled in the valleys (*yashab ba ha emeq), so prepare to change direction tomorrow (machar panah) and set out (*nasa) for yourselves (*la atem) into the wilderness (ha midbar) by way of the Red Sea (derek yam-suwph).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:25)

They were now on their own. Rather than walking into the Promised Land, they had made an about-face and would be walking away from it.

“So then (wa), Yahowah (Yahowah) spoke to Moseh | One who Draws Out (*dabar el Mosheh) and to aharown* | the Alternative (*wa *el aharown) to say (*la amar), (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:26) ‘For how long (ad matay*) will this troublesome swarm of wicked witnesses (*la ha edah ha ra ha zo*th*), and those associated with them (asher hem*), grumble and complain against Me, even improperly blame Me, wailing like animals in the darkness regarding Me (*luwn *al any)?’

The Children of *Yisra*el* | Individuals who Struggle with and Strive against God (*beny Yisra*el*) are obstinate complainers and disgruntled whiners (eth taluwnah*). Therefore, I have heard (asher shama) their relentless howling, constant moaning, belligerent griping, and irrational protests against Me while dwelling in a darkness of their own (*hem luwn *al any).” (Bamidbar 14:27)

Let it be known that Yahowah perceives the Children of *Yisra*el* as whiners and complainers, as an unruly gang of belligerent malcontents. God sees Jews as always grumbling while never appreciating anything He has done for them. As is the case with the conspiracy types He loathes, Yahowah has revealed something we have only recently come to appreciate:

those who blame others for their lack of success do so because they are unwilling to accept personal responsibility for their miserable and unfulfilling lives.

Once again, we are witnessing our present in the past. The disgruntled malcontents who broke away from us to form their Mommy God cult, can't help but whine and complain, constantly blaming their teacher for them not learning their lessons. They couldn't just run away in shame and hide in the darkness away from God. They had to spew their misguided vitriol, condemning themselves in the process. And this was Yahowah's response then as it is now...

“Say to them (*amar *el hem), “As I live (chay *any),” prophetically declares (na*um) Yahowah (Yahowah), “Behold, there will be no semblance of a relationship because, what (*im lo*ka *asher) you have spoken (dabar) in My ear with Me listening (ba *ozen *any), it is certain and appropriate that, likewise (ken), I will continually do (*asah) to you all (la *atem).”” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:28)

From one word to the next, they wrote themselves out of the Family of God. And as a result of their misguided belligerence, there would be no return.

So, let it be known: they were part of Yisra*el basking in Yahowah's light one moment, and then tossed aside the next based entirely on their attitude. It was a breach that would cost them their souls. And it was an unredeemable error in judgment. Yahowah made no attempt to debate them, reason with them, or accommodate them. He did not love them or try to save them. He saw them, hundreds of thousands of them, in fact all but one of them, as dead men walking away from Him to their demise.

That wasn't very religious of God, now was it? And that's something to ponder if you are religious.

Showing that Yahowah was deliberately mocking those who preferred Pharaoh's whips to His favors, He continued to use naphal | fallen in His depiction of these delusional dimwits since it is the verbal root of Naphylm, the long extinct “Giants” they claim to have seen in the land.

“In the wilderness, this desolate place of questioning the word (ba ha midbar ha zeh), your corpses and carcasses will fall (*naphal pagar atem), every one of you who were counted in the census (*kol paqad atem), the entire sum and quantity of you (*la kol misphar atem), from twenty years of age (*min ben esrym shanah) and upward (*wa ma al), who grumbled and complained, whining and griping about Me (asher luwn *al any). (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:29)

Not one of you shall enter (im *atem bow) into the land (el ha erets) which, to show the way to enjoy the relationship (asher*), I had raised My hand, offering My influence (nasa *eth yad any) for you to live therein (*la shakan *eth *atem ba hy).

But now, the only exceptions (*ky im) are Kaleb | Totally Judgmental (Kaleb – Completely Decisive; from kol – all and leb – heart, which addressed judgment in that day), son of Yaphuneh | Turning to Approach the Presence (ben Yaphuneh) and Yahowsha° | Yahowah Delivers, son of Nuwn | Continually Existing (wa Yahowshuwa° ben Nuwn).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:30)

There is no room for religion here, and certainly none for the notion that God loves and wants to save everyone. Fact is, God does not know most people, and most of those He knows, He does not like. That isn’t His fault, but theirs.

I have made the assertion many times that the most debilitating infirmity is a bad attitude. Seems like Yah concurs. There will be no whiners in Heaven. If you need to grumble, do it elsewhere.

There are other points worthy of our consideration. First, to be included in Yahowah’s Family and to be invited into His Home, God expects something from us. Kaleb and Yahowsha° delivered, standing up and speaking up for God. Therefore, it would be unwise to believe that Heaven's Door is open for those who silently accept God's clearly articulated criterion but who offer nothing else in return. That's rather important.

Second, being in the majority carries no weight with Yahowah. In almost every conceivable situation, popularity sets a person apart from God. Therefore, all of the naysayers out there who would criticize someone for sharing Yahowah's testimony, more comprehensively while more accurately conveying His intent, just because he's a lone voice in opposition to billions of Christians, Muslims, and Marxists and millions of religious and political Jews, theirs would be a fallacious argument. Truth has never been popular, nor has Yahowah.

Third, the larger the crowd, the worse they become. Individually, people like Kaleb can be good or bad, but when they gang up, especially as nations and institutions, wrong is typically insidious.

Fourth, neither silence nor apathy serve as excuses. We must learn about God and come to trust Him to live with Him.

Fifth, if you are of the myth that your fellow man will enrich you, that your military will protect you, that your government will coddle you, or that your religion will save you, you will be disappointed.

Sixth, God is fair. He gives people what they request and deserve.

Seventh, Yahowah gave us life, a conscience, and freewill. We can use them to extend these gifts or truncate them. These people would die because they separated themselves from the source of life.

Eighth, Yahowah will not bend His rules, even for His people. His conditions for Covenant participation are clearly articulated and nonnegotiable.

Ninth, God listens more closely to us than we do to Him. And that's a serious problem. Ill-informed, people say some really stupid things, particularly about Yahowah.

Tenth, there would have been four hundred thousand adults over twenty years of age among the wayfarers, and yet only two made it into the Promised Land. At best, that is one among two hundred thousand individuals who would experience the Covenant. Heaven will not be crowded.

Eleventh, I see this as analogous to our situation today in advance of the Shabu^wah and Taru^wah Harvests. Even with the interjection of Yahowah's seven Spirits, there is no reason to think that we will outperform what God was able to achieve in the presence of His people and while working with Moseh. So, of the 8 billion people alive today, and with half of them between 20 and 60 and, thus, neither too young to make an informed decision nor too old to be receptive to one, we have a potential audience of four billion souls. Therefore, we should expect fewer than 20,000 people of all ethnicities to make an adult decision to be included in the Covenant and participate in the Harvests.

However, since all of those who were under twenty were afforded the opportunity to enter the land and know the truth, we should expect a very large percentage of the surviving mortal remnant of Yisra^el to be afforded the opportunity to benefit from the Adamah Parah and enter Eden on Sukah. This would also suggest that the Gowym allowed to work within the Garden, will be relatively young – unbiased religiously or politically.

“But your little ones (*wa taph atem) who you said (asher amar) would become prey (la baz hayah), I will bring them (wa bow eth hem) and they will become familiar with, know, and appreciate (wa yada^e) that which pertains to the land (eth ha erets) which (asher*) you have rejected and despised, spurning and avoiding it (ma^eas ba hy^e).”
(Bamidbar / Numbers 14:31)

Careful what you say about God and what He is offering because you might come to regret it. And, of course, the lesson bears repeating ~ avoid Yahowah and He will reciprocate.

From this, twenty appears to be the designated age of accountability with Yahowah. If we were to extrapolate from this pronouncement, those who missed the Shabuwa^h and Taruwa^h Harvests but who survived to garner favor in advance of our return to Gan *Eden, will be immature relative to their knowledge of Yahowah. And so, for them to remain in good standing and live in God's presence, the mature adults within the Covenant Family will have to teach them what we have come to know about God.

“But your dead bodies, your corpses and carcasses, especially your lifeless idols (*wa peger *atem atem), will fall and be neglected (naphal) in this wilderness (ba ha midbar ha zeh).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:32)

Note to self: it's a really bad idea to flip God the bird. He doesn't like it. And in this light, disregarding or worse, denigrating what He is saying and offering is deadly. Case in point, don't disparage His Covenant and avoid robbing His beloved Son at all costs.

Tending sheep is evidently good training for herding Jews. Moseh and Dowd were both shepherds.

But beckoning open pastures, long strolls on sunny days, and moonlit nights under starry skies aside, God is pointing out that none of it matters if we are estranged from Him. There is nothing that stinks worse than religion nor is anything as fickle as a whore. Faith is not only unreliable, it paints its god as capricious and volatile ~ and that's the bane of human scriptures.

“So, your sons will tend sheep (*wa ben *atem hayah ra*ah*) in the wilderness (ba ha midbar) for forty years (arba* shanah*) and they will carry the burden of the stench of your religious whoredom, your fickle harlotry, and you adulterous infidelity (wa nasa *eth zanuwth atem), until there are no more of (ad tamam*) your corpses (*peger atem) in the wilderness (ba ha midbar).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:33)

This is the second of three times we will hear forty years mentioned in context with this time of testing the souls of Yisra*elites. God's story is unfurled on this pattern, with forty Yowbel separating the four events which portray our existence, with and without God. Six thousand years ago, in 3968 BCE, Adam and Chawah were expelled from Gan *Eden for disregarding Yahowah's instructions. Forty Yowbel thereafter, in 1968 BCE / year 2000 Yah, the means to return was articulated between Yahowah and Abraham, leading to the events which unfolded pursuant to Passover on Mount Mowryah. Forty Yowbel, or 2,000 years later, in this same location, Dowd would fulfill Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym in 33 CE / year 4000 Yah, as he had foretold.

As I share these thoughts with you in the summer of 2025, we are eight revolutions of our planet around the sun shy of year 6000 Yah, making 2033 the 120th Yowbel year when the final three Mow*edym ~ Taruw*ah, Kipurym, and Sukah ~ will be fulfilled. The young, surviving remnant of Yahowah's wayward children will be brought Home and prepared for the return of Father and Son as we are afforded the opportunity to reenter Eden.

Before we move on, I want to share another relevant insight regarding the return to the Land because this historical narrative is germane to the events which will transpire on Yowm Taruw*ah, the Shabat of September 24th, 2033. The Adulterous Woman of Bamidbar / Numbers 5 represents the entire mortal remnant of Israel. She is a zanuwth | whore, but not in the sense of adultery as the word is wielded today. She is not a sexual slut. Her fornication and prostitution are entirely religious. She has been unfaithful to her man, Dowd, and to her God, Yahowah. And that is why the ben | sons of the revolting Yisra*elites were called zanuwth | fickle and unfaithful whores on this day prior to their return to the land.

With the rather jolting inclusion of whoredom, harlotry, and adultery, even prostitution, in this narrative on the stench lingering over the sons of belligerent and bombastic miscreants, we not only find an explanation for the story of the Adulterous Woman, recognizing that King Dowd is the desirous groom who wants her cleansed and returned, we come to a better understanding of how the sacrifice of the *Adamah Parah of Bamidbar / Numbers 19 achieves this result just in time on Taruw^{ah} prior to Dowd's Kipurym return. Israel's religious stench and bad attitude will be fumigated, purged, and washed away. And this will occur at the very moment when the last dead body will be disposed of as Yahowah incinerates all who oppose Him and His People.

And in this light, should you have thought that the inclusion of the Bull in reference to tuwr was random and unrelated, perhaps Yahowah's metaphor is worth reconsidering...

“According to the number of the days (ba misphar ha yowmym) in which should have been for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), you spied out, exploring and investigating, while searching for the Bull (tuwr – you searched, looking for the bull while infiltrating; from towr – turned in circles, in the mode of circular reasoning, as a dove or pigeon, searching for the bovine (qal perfect)) throughout the land (eth ha erets), there will be a year for each of the forty days (arba yowm yowm la ha shanah yowm la ha shanah) that you will bear (*nasa) your guilt and subsequent punishment for your religious rebellion of twisting and perverting, warping and distorting (eth *aown atem) – forty years (araba shanah*).

Then you will be aware of, familiar with, and acknowledge, know and understand (*wa yada) the displeasure and frustration of My sense of alienation and abandonment, My enmity regarding this disassociation from Me (*tanuwa*ah any).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:34)

The towr | bull is being orchestrated by *ElYah and served up by Yahowah, to resolve this situation. God would like you to tuwr | check him out sometime. You may want to do your own tuwr | investigation regarding even the nuances in this narrative.

Yahowah's concern with His people was their Talmud – their perverting and twisting His testimony to suit their whorish religious agenda. The propensity of Jews to distort God's message, doing so for monetary reasons, is one of the reasons He refers to them as prostitutes and whores. However, a day will come when they will get some sense of Yahowah's frustration for having been abandoned by them. And that is the consequence of all religions. They separate souls from God while engendering the Almighty's wrath.

If I may interject another revealing conclusion. The sons of the belligerents were allowed to enter the land upon the passage of forty years. And while that is a considerable time, it is not al shileshym wa *al ribe | over threes and over four, especially in the sense of generations. They typically span 20 years, which would have made this 60 to 80 years, not 40 years.

Therefore, the time to resolve this problem had to be counted in millennia and centuries, which we deduced was 3,400 years based upon threes and four. And this means that Moseh's declaration as recorded in Numbers 14:18, and as accepted by Yahowah, was addressing something else pertaining to the "lifting up and carrying away of the guilt of perversity for having distorted the truth and for the crime of revolting rebellion." Therefore, in context, reference to threes and four must have been addressing the arrival of the Gowy who would render the Yisra*elites "innocent such that the recording of their depravity for distorting the truth would no longer be passed from father to son upon threes and four."

And from this perspective, we now have another validation of our interpretation of Yahowah's declaration in Bamidbar 14:12: "I will disinherit them. But then I will reengage to make in association with one of you, through a Gowy | a single non-Yisra*elite who is greater in importance, more capable and courageous, thereby accomplishing the purpose of there being a multitude beyond them." The timing of the restoration would be measured in 3,400 years, not three or four generations or four decades.

These things considered, the alternative to the Yisra^{*}elite approach would be to listen to Yahowah. He has spoken.

“I, Yahowah, have spoken (*any Yahowah dabar). There is no question or circumstance in which I won’t do this or continue to do so (im lo^{} zo^{}th ^{}asah) pursuant to the entirety of the swarm of supposed witnesses (la kol ha ^{}edah) who are wicked and harmful, particularly troublesome and miserable (ha ra^{}) regarding this (ha zo^{}th) decision to assemble and challenge Me, congregating in opposition to Me (ha ya^{}ad ^{}al ^{}any) in this lifeless place where the word is questioned (ba ha midbar ha zeh).

They have met their end and are finished (tamam) and here, they will die (wa sham muwth).’” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:35)

Under such circumstances, without evidence of reconciliation, it would be naive, even dishonest, to suggest that “Hashem is watching over and protecting His people.” And instead of resolution, we have the opposite, with Yahowah writing Yisra^{*}el a letter of divorce. This fracture within the Covenant Family will not be resolved until Yowm Taruw^{}ah* | the Day of the Herald in year 6000 Yah.

One thing has become perfectly transparent: the reason rabbis have renamed their Talmud arguments “Torah,” and prefer it overwhelmingly to Yahowah’s Towrah | Guidance, even why they dress up the Towrah like a whore, is because it proves that they are no different than the repugnant fools 3400 years ago who spoke against Yahowah and Moseh.

“The individuals whom Moseh sent (wa ha ^{}iysh ^{}asher shalach) to spy out (tuwr) the land (^{}eth ha ^{}erets), and who returned (wa shuwb) to grumble against and blame him, complaining (wa luwn ^{}al huw^{}), along with the entire swarming gang of supposed witnesses (^{}eth kol ha ^{}edah) who came out with (la yatsa^{}) a disparaging and slanderous report, defaming and insulting (dibah) the land (^{}al ha ^{*}erets), (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:36) those men died (wa muwth ha iysh) of a plague (magephah) before the presence of Yahowah (la paneh Yahowah) because they were the individuals (*ha iysh) who delivered (*yatsa) the unsavory and disparaging defamation regarding the land (*dibah ha erets) which was so harmful and troublesome, even malignant (*ra).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:37)

The Erets* | Land is a benefit provided to the Covenant Family. Therefore, it is symbolic of us returning to the conditions enjoyed in Gan Eden* in year 6000 Yah. This is why Yahowah is making the point that malcontents who speak ill of Him are not welcome. Further, before we are allowed back into the Garden on Sukah in 2033, everyone who has continued to be religious, political, conspiratorial, or militaristic must die such that the plague is quarantined outside of Eden and not allowed to poison paradise.

“From those men (*min ha iysh ha hem) who walked to investigate the land (*ha halak la tuwr *eth ha erets), Kaleb | Totally Judgmental (Kaleb – Completely Decisive; from kol – all and leb – heart, which addressed judgment in that day), son of Yaphuneh | Turning to Approach the Presence (ben Yaphuneh) and *Yahowshuwa | Yahowah Delivers, son of Nuwn | Continually Existing (wa Yahowshuwa ben Nuwn*) remained alive (chayah).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:38)

Neither man did much, but it was enough to distinguish them from the naysayers. And this is good news for us today. God is going to appreciate whatever we are willing to contribute on behalf of His desire for His people to listen and return to Him.

“When Moseh (wa Mosheh) spoke these words (*dabar ha dabarym ha eleh) to all of the Children of Yisra*el (el kol beny Yisra*el*), the people (*ha am), independently, without any coercion, mourned, grieved, and lamented, expressing their great sorrow (abal ma*od* – on their own accord without any outside influence continuously expressed their sadness (hitpael imperfect third-person masculine plural)).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:39)

You have no doubt heard of the religious concept of remorse leading to repentance, along with the inference that those who repent are forgiven. That is obviously inconsistent with God's response to such things. These people cried up a storm, and were likely sorry for having slandered Yahowah and besmirching His gift, but it did not do them a damn bit of good.

There are many reasons that we know that the Yisra*elites were religious. Chief among this is that their first act of defiance was to construct a golden bull idol and worship it. Second, Yahowah devoted the entire second statement on the first tablet warning them of the caustic consequences of having any association with religion. And third, here they are acting all full of themselves, pretending that they can outdo God...

“They arose early in the morning (wa shakam ba ha boqer) and they climbed to the top (*wa *alah *el ro*sh*) of the hill (ha har). They said (*la amar), ‘Behold! Look at us (*hineh anachnuw)! We will ascend to the place that (alah el ha maqowm) Yahowah spoke of (asher amar Yahowah) because we are missing the way (*ky chata).’ (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:40)

But Moseh responded (*wa amar Mosheh), ‘So, why this (la mah zeh)? You are overriding the mouth of Yahowah (eth peh Yahowah*). There is no success or benefit in this (*wa hy*lo*tsalach*). (Bamidbar 14:41)

Do not go up because (al alah ky) Yahowah (Yahowah) is not within your midst (ayin ba qereb atem). Should you stumble, you will be defeated (*wa lo*nagaph*) in the presence of your enemies (*la paneh *oyeb atem). (Bamidbar 14:42)

Indeed, the Amaleqy* | Amalekites and the *Kana*any* | Canaanites are facing you there (*sham la paneh atem). So you will fall by the sword (wa naphal ba ha choreb). So, let's be honest since it is certain that (*ky al ken) you have turned from following (*shuwb min achar) Yahowah (Yahowah). Therefore, Yahowah will not be with you (wa lo hayah Yahowah *im atem).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:43)

To their shame, the Children of Yisra*el believed that they could outmaneuver Yahowah. Full of themselves, like the authors of the New Testament, Talmud, and Quran, these Jews learned the hard way what happens when you write yourselves in, and Yahowah out, of your lives – you lose them. To Moseh’s credit, this was sound advice.

Also relevant, as I have consistently affirmed, Moseh has acknowledged that God was no longer in a relationship with Israel. They were estranged and would remain that way.

Arrogance is bad, confidence is good. Being puffed up and leavened at the wrong time is devastating. And while audacity can be helpful when we are fearless in our service to Yahowah, daring to believe one’s fellow man, especially as part of a prestigious group, is deadly.

“But they were puffed up and arrogant, and had the audacity (*wa apal) to ascend to the summit (*la *alah *el ro*sh*) of the hill (ha har). But neither the arown Beryth* | Ark of the Covenant of Yahowah nor Moseh had departed (lo muwsh*) from the midst of the camp (min qereb ha machanah). (Bamidbar / Numbers 14:44)

Then the Amaleqy* | Amalekites and the *Kana*any* | Canaanites descended (yarad) who lived within those hills (*ha yashab ba ha har ha huw) and struck them, defeating and killing them (wa nakah hem). And they continued to crush and shatter them (wa katat hem) all the way to Chormah | Banned, Exterminated, and Destroyed (ad ha Chormah*).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 14:45)

They chose poorly.

Ayil Par Ez ~ A Ram, Bull, and Goat

At this point, God had two options. He could give up on His people and renounce the possibility of building a family with humans, particularly Jews, or He could devise a way to resolve this problem and clean up the mess His people had made, even if it would take 3400 years to solve amicably. Fortunately, Yahowah chose the latter, and He immediately went about making the proper preparations.

What follows is a very long sentence, but the solution was complicated, and it would play out over forty Yowbel, beginning 1,480 years in their future. By way of introduction, children were now all that was left of Yisra*el. Those over twenty had committed suicide by acerbic arrogance. They had been exposed and condemned for representing the worst of *Yisra*el* | Wrestling with God.

Finding themselves in a bad situation, this youthful remainder of Yah's wayward children would suffer for the religious and political choices of their parents. But there would be resolution one day, a time when their distant relatives would benefit from knowing that Yahowah had a plan to restore the relationship and bring them back into the land.

God still intended to give it to them, even though their fathers had belligerently rejected it. And yet, for this to occur, there would need to be a means to purge the irritating religious residue of their guilt.

Normally, my preference is to briefly introduce Yahowah's narrative and then analyze it as we make our way through the discussion. But this time, that approach isn't ideal because God's explanation is best seen as a whole cloth and completed portrait. And yet, without an explanation of terms, it's likely too much to grasp in a single helping. So, I'm going to veer from what I've done previously and describe each of the elements that were woven into this prophetic presentation.

To begin, God's remedy would be accomplished when a massive fire is kindled by the Ruwach | Spirit beneath the adamah Parah* | Bloody and Productive Bull. And that is why Yahowah is presenting these flames as an isheh* – in the feminine form, consistent with ruwach serving as a feminine noun depicting the Spirit. This same isheh* | fire is something we are requested to approach throughout the Miqra^{ey} | Invitations to be Called Out and Meet with God.

Further, not only would a fire consume the remains of Dowd's basar | body during the transition from Pesach to Matsah, fire is symbolic of our transformation from dying flesh to brilliant light as we emerge on Bikuwrym as Children of the Covenant. Advancing this metaphor, it is also an isheh* that will consume the carcass of the Bull on Taruw^{ah} to purge Yisra^{el} of her religious infidelity.

This narrative addresses the ow zebach* | loving sacrifices of two men, the Greater and Lesser Luminary, the Lamb and the Bull, respectively and chronologically, particularly during the Mow^{edym} of Pesach and Taruw^{ah} in years 4000 and 6000 Yah. Their pala^o | fulfillments are considered marvelous and miraculous, wonderful and beneficial by God in association with the Mow^{edym} | Restoring Witnesses to the Eternal Meetings. And this is because of what Yahowah does to elevate otherwise ordinary occurrences into something supernaturally transformative.

While we are accustomed to seeing the Tsoⁿ | Lamb from the Flock supersede the Baqar | Bull in importance, as well as chronologically, the order is reversed in this instance. This is because the subject is about the Children of Yisra^{el} dwelling in the land as a benefit of the relationship and as the recipients of Yahowah's gift. This event takes place on the Day of the Herald, where the Bull is sacrificed to prepare the final remnant for the arrival of the Ram in year 6000 Yah – and for them to be cleansed prior to entering the restored and pristine Garden of Eden. This is God's promise and our means to olah* | rise above death and destruction, transformed as we will be by the ensuing fire.

Since Bikuwrym and Shabuw^{ah} provide an isarown* | a tenfold increase as God's children evolve from matter to energy, and since both harvests pertain to soleth | fine flour stripped of the husks, we find the qarban | sacrificial offerings of the Bull and Lamb augmented by references to milled grain, shemen | olive oil, and yayin | wine, representing saved souls, spiritual enlightenment, and the bloody nature of these freewill offerings.

It is all being done so that God's people might *la kebes ha echad | approach the dominant Lamb, this ayil* | devoted Ram, the leader of the Flock who opens the door to life as the mighty Tree of Lives in the Garden. He is Dowd, our Savior, Messiah, and King.

And while that's a lot to process, there is more to God's story ~ all of which He is reiterating at this time. Therefore, we find Him telling these children that one day, their descendants would asah* | benefit by engaging and acting to capitalize on the loving sacrifice provided during the Mow^{edym} by the Bull and the Lamb. His ben | sons' olah ow zebach | loving sacrifices would elevate their status. He would pala^o nadar | fulfill the promise in marvelous and wonderful ways, in a manner that would be miraculously beneficial to them.

Regarding the combined effort of the Bull and Ram, we find a reference to a quarter and a fourth pertaining to olive oil and wine. I suspect that four is a reference to the last four Miqra^{ey} to be fulfilled. Yada is responsible for Shabuw^{ah} and Taruw^{ah} so that Dowd can return on Kipurym and serve as King of Sukah. Further, it was the Messiah who initiated this process of fulfilling the Spring Mow^{edym} in year 4000 Yah in 33 CE.

The second time we see asah*, encouraging us to act upon these loving sacrifices, it pertains exclusively to the ayil* | Ram who Opens Heaven's Door. Dowd is seen providing a shanaym

isarown* | double portions of the tenfold increase afforded to the milled wheat of Shabu^oah. And this is to say that, since the Promise of Seven is a Bikuwrym | Firstborn Children Harvest of Standing Grain, it's Dowd's fulfillment of Pesach and Matsah which makes it possible. And this time, with the focus on the ayil* | Ram, the shalyshy | threefold portion of olive oil and a third of wine addresses Dowd's magnanimous fulfillment of the first three Miqra^oey ~ Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym which make Shabu^oah possible.

Speaking prophetically of the sacrifice of the adamah Parah* | Man Serving as a Productive Bull, and using Baqar to say that this Bull will rise early in the morning of Taru^oah to embrace his mission, we discover that God's son will olah ow zebach | uplift and elevate the final remnant of Yisra^oel through his loving sacrifice. And as we are reminded later in the 89th Mizmowr, everything about Taru^oah will be pala^o | marvelous and miraculous, indeed, astoundingly beneficial. As a result, the Bull's sacrifice will provide ow shelem* | complete reconciliation, total restoration of the loving relationship, and a close and devoted fellowship with restitution. As a result, the mortal remnant will be prepared to approach Yahowah. That's considerably more than I had thought the Bull would be offering.

Next, we find that the Almighty is scheduling the sacrifice of the Baqar | Bull such that he will qarab | come forward and present himself as the offering to approach Yahowah at the right moment in time. Yada, as the adamah Parah* | Bloodied and Productive Bull will initially engage as *minchah soleth shalowsh isarown | a gift with a three-fold portion of a tenfold increase of fine milled wheat stripped of the hulls. That is to say that the double tenfold increase provided by the Shabu^oah Qatsyr will be augmented by the Taru^oah Laqat. And with the Bull's efforts focused on Seven Sevens and the Day of the Herald, the outpouring is described as chatsy | half, the same word Gabry^oel used to describe his role at this time in Daniel.

So, Yahowah explains that ka kah | in this manner, it will be asah* | acted and capitalized upon with a *Shor ha echad | the One, Unique, Mature, Well-Traveled, and Notably Observant Bull working with ayil ha echad | the One, Uniquely Devoted Ram, the Leader of the Flock Opening the Door as the most Significant Tree, and with the Seh | Goat – representing Elyah*. And ultimately, the Kebes | Dominant Lamb will work in close association with the ez* | Woolly Goat (as opposed to the “Holy Ghost”) to anoint the Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant on the Day of Reconciliations.

This is a misphar* | full enumeration, itemization, and accounting of how God’s Children can asher* | benefit from the relationship. And in this regard, the Ger | Foreigner Abiding with Israel will be ow asher | devoted to revealing the benefits of the relationship to bring the final dowr | generation dowr | home. So, Yahowah’s advice is to asah* | act upon what he accomplishes.

So, now some final thoughts before we consider Yahowah’s explanation. ow* is used throughout this presentation. In Hebrew, it can function as an adjective and speak of an act being devoted and loving, or can serve as a conjunction and function similarly to wa | and. I think that, in this context, the descriptive application of ow* is better.

Second, ishah* can be fire or a woman, with us left to choose which best fits the message. In Bible publications, it is commonly rendered “offering made by fire” even though there is no reference to “offering” or “made” associated with the word. Ishah*, transliterated isheh*, is used throughout God’s presentation of the Mow^oedym, so appreciating its implications is important.

Third, olah* is from the verbal root alah*, which means “to rise” or “ascend.” My rendering of it is, therefore, consistent with its actionable root. However, so that you are aware, most religious publications propose “burnt offering,” although neither olah* nor alah* speak of an “offering” nor of anything being “burned.”

With this rather comprehensive introduction, here is God's solution for the final restoration of the Children of Yisra*el so that the Promised Land can be offered without reservation...

“Yahowah spoke to Moseh | One who Draws Out, saying (*wa dabar Yahowah *el Mosheh la amar), (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:1)

“Speak to the Children of *Yisra*el* | Those who Struggle with God and say to them (*dabar *el ben Yisra*el wa *amar el hem), “When you come into the land (ky bow *el erets) as your dwelling place (*mowshab atem) which, as a benefit of the relationship (asher*), I am giving to you (any nathan la atem), (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:2)

you should engage by making (asah*) a fire (isheh*) to approach Yahowah (la Yahowah), to rise (olah*), as a loving sacrifice (ow zebach*) to fulfill a marvelously wonderful, amazingly miraculous, and astoundingly beneficial (*pala) promise (nadar), by desiring to voluntarily make a freewill offering (ow ba nadabah*) in association with your *Mow*edym* | Restoring Witnesses to the Eternal Meetings (ow ba Mow*edym atem).

Act in a way that provides (*la asah) a soothing spiritual respite with a delightful aroma and pleasing fragrance (*ry*ach nychowach*) to approach Yahowah (la Yahowah) by way of the Bull (min ha baqar) and by way of the beloved Lamb (ow min ha tso*n*). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:3)

Then he who approaches and presents himself (wa qarab ha qarab), offering to sacrifice himself (*qarban huw) to approach Yahowah (la Yahowah), will serve as a gift providing a tenfold increase for the fine milled wheat stripped of the hulls (*minchah soleth isarown) mixed with (balal ba) a quarter of a small liquid measure of olive oil (*raby*y ha hyn shemen*), (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:4) along with wine (wa yayin) as an outpouring to anoint and to drink (nasek), a fourth of a hyn, which is a small amount (*raby*y ha hyn*).

You should consistently act to engage and capitalize upon (asah al) the means to rise (olah*), as a loving sacrifice (ow la ha zebach*) with the approach of the one and only, dominant, Lamb (*la ha kebes ha echad), (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:5) the devoted ayil* | Ram, the Leader of the Flock Opening the Door as the most Significant Tree (ow la ha ayil), acting and engaging as a gift with a double portion of a tenfold increase of fine milled wheat stripped of the hulls (*minchah soleth shanaym isarown) mixed with (balal ba) a third of a small liquid measure of olive oil (shalyshy ha hyn shemen), (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:6)

along with wine (wa yayin) as an outpouring, to anoint, and to drink (la ha nasek), a third of a hyn, which is a small amount (shalyshy ha hyn), for you to continually approach and draw near (qareb) for a soothing spiritual respite with a delightful aroma and pleasing fragrance (ryach nychowach) to approach Yahowah (la Yahowah). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:7)

Then, accordingly (wa ky), you will benefit if you engage and act to capitalize on (asah*), a Bull (baqar), a son (ben) whose loving sacrifice rises, uplifts, and elevates (olah ow zebach) to fulfill a marvelous and wonderful, amazing and miraculous, astoundingly beneficial (pala ☺) promise (nadar) for complete reconciliation, total restoration of the loving relationship, and a close and devoted fellowship with restitution provided (ow shelem*) to approach Yahowah (la Yahowah). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:8)

And so (wa), the Almighty's Bull (al ha baqar*), a son (ben), he will at the right moment come forward, make his case, present himself as the offering to approach and draw near (qarab – he will be present to constitute a joining together (hifil perfect third-person masculine singular)), acting and engaging as a gift with a three-fold portion of a tenfold increase of fine milled wheat stripped of the hulls (*minchah soleth shalowsch isarown) mixed with (balal ba) half a measure of olive oil (shemen chatsy ha hyn), (*Bamidbar /

along with wine (wa yayin) you can offer to approach and draw near (qarab – you can be present to constitute a joining together (hifil imperfect second-person masculine singular)) as an outpouring to anoint, and to drink (la ha nasek), half of the small measure (chatsy ha hyn) for the fire (isheh*) as a soothing spiritual respite with a delightful aroma with a pleasing fragrance (ry^each nychowach) to approach Yahowah (la Yahowah). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:10)

This is how, in this manner (ka kah), it will be done, engaged in, acted on, and capitalized upon (asah*) for Showr ha *echad | the One, Unique, Mature, Well-Traveled, and Notably Observant Bull (*la ha showr ha echad – for the singular, individual bull who is highly regarded for having been on a long journey and who has examined everything valuable), as well as for (ow la*) ayil ha *echad | the One, Uniquely Devoted Ram, the Leader of the Flock Opening the Door as the most Significant Tree (*ha *ayil ha echad), even for the Seh | Goat (ow la ha seh*) with the Kebes | Dominant Lamb / Ram (ba ha kebes) choosing and loving (ow*) the association with (ba) the *ez | the Woolly Goat (*ha ez). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:11)

Accordingly (ka), this report and numbered accounting (ha misphar) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), you act upon (asah*), is how and the manner in which (ka kah) you should act, engage, and profit from (asah la*), each one (*ha echad), consistent with this narration regarding them (ka misphar hem). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:12)

Everyone who is native-born (*kol ha Ezrach) should act and engage in this manner regarding these things (asah ka kah *eth eleh) to approach and be present near (la qarab) the fire (isheh*) as a soothing spiritual respite with a delightful and pleasing fragrance (ry^each nychowach) to approach

Yahowah (la Yahowah). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:13)

And indeed (wa ka), the Ger | Foreigner Abiding with You (eth atem ger), who is continually dwelling together while of another ethnicity (guwr), devoted to revealing the benefits of the relationship (ow asher) in your midst, to you and through you (*ba tawek atem), on behalf of your lineage, home, and generations (*la dowr atem), he will act at a point in time to engage, offering the benefits (asah*) of the fire (isheh*), producing a soothing spiritual respite which is pleasing (*ry*ach nychowach*) to approach Yahowah (la Yahowah) consistent with the proper way to receive the benefits of the relationship (*ka asher). You should act upon (asah* – you should capitalize on his choice (qal imperfect jussive second-person plural)) what he accomplishes (*ken asah – what he will do (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular)).””” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:14)

This is Yahowah’s resolution to the problem of His people’s ornery and obnoxious obsession with ostracizing themselves from Him. In the end, they will return to the Promised Land when the planet is purged of politics and religion and restored to Eden. Restitution will be provided by three exceptional men, each offering to lay down their lives to bring peace to the family. Dowd, Yada, and *EiYah, a Ram, Bull, and a Goat, will work collaboratively to usher in the benefits afforded to those who observe the Miqra^{ey}. Dowd, as King, has fulfilled Pesach as the Lamb, his soul enduring Matsah to offer Bikuwrym. Yada Heralds Shabu^wah while he as the Bull and *EiYah as the Goat bring the promise of Taru^wah to fruition. They will collaborate again on Kipurym with *EiYah assisting Dowd in the anointing of the Mercy Seat while Yada will serve as the King’s Best Man as he is symbolically wed to the remnant of Yisra^{el}.

This is God’s plan, and the players who make it possible. And there is just one of them, even if it takes a gowly to restore a Yahuwd.

“There will continually be (hayah – there will always exist (qal imperfect)) to approach the presence of Yahowah (la paneh Yahowah), one inscribed prescription (*chuqah echad) for the community (ha qahal) for you and for the one abiding with you (*la atem wa la ha ger) who is dwelling together while of another ethnicity (ha guwr), an inscribed prescription for living that cuts you into the relationship for all eternity (*chuqah owlam) throughout your dwelling places and generations, in every age, location, and time (*la dowr atem). It is consistent and the same for you and the one living with you of a different ethnicity (*ka atem ka ha ger). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:15)

echad | One Towrah | Source of Teaching and Guidance and (wa) echad* | One Mishpat | Decision will exist for you (*hayah la atem) and for the one of a different ethnicity abiding with you (la ha ger) who is dwelling together on life's journey (ha guwr) with you (eth atem).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:16)

One God, one Towrah, one prescription for living. No Talmud, no New Testament, no Quran, no Hashem, no Jesus, and no Allah. There is only one Decision that will prevail.

As a harbinger of better days, God asked His cantankerous children to rehearse giving away the burden of their guilt, lifting it up in the bread as if handing it to Dowd to carry it away during UnYeasted Bread. It would be from his threshing floor atop the Temple Mount that this would occur, while blowing the showphar in recognition of sharing the benefit on Shabuw^{ah} and Taruw^{ah}.

“Yahowah spoke to Moseh | One who Draws Out, saying (*wa dabar Yahowah *el Mosheh la amar), (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:17) ‘Speak to the Children of *Yisra*el* | Those who Struggle with God and say to them (*dabar *el ben Yisra*el wa *amar el hem), “When you come into the land (ba bow *atem *el ha erets) which, as a benefit of the relationship (asher*), I am returning you to it (any bow* *eth atem shem), (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:18) and it comes to be

(wa hayah) when you consume and are nourished by (*akal min) the grain and bread (lechem) of the land (ha *erets), you should lift up and raise (ruwm) a voluntary contribution as an uplifting gift (taruwmah) to approach Yahowah (la Yahowah). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:19)

The first time you begin to knead your dough (re*shyth *arysah *atem), lift up (ruwm) a sorry example as if representing sickness and disease (chalah) as something you voluntarily give away, setting aside (taruwmah), similar to that which (ka) rises up with the blast of a trumpet (taruwmah – that which is uplifting; from taruah – sounding a trumpet and ruwm – to rise) from the threshing floor (goren), with you being lifted up and raised in this manner (ken ruwm eth hy – uplifted and exalted this way (hifil imperfect second-person masculine plural).””” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:20)

The symbolic gesture of the wave offering would help them remember the intent of the harvests and appreciate how they might benefit. Currently fallen, with the blast of the Trumpet on Taruw*ah, they should be prepared to rise.

“From some of the initial portion (min re*syth) of your dough (*rysah *atem), you should offer to give (nathan) to Yahowah (la Yahowah) to rise up with the blast of a trumpet (taruwmah – to ascend and be uplifted; from taruah – sounding a trumpet and ruwm – to rise) throughout your dwelling places and generations, in every age, location, and time (la dower *atem).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:21)

Yahowah has done His part, revealing what we need to know to live long, enjoyable, and productive lives. It is His people who have had a bad habit of wandering away.

“By contrast (wa ky), you continually wander away, mislead, and deceive (shagah) and do not act upon or engage in (wa lo* *asah – do, profit from, or capitalize upon (qal imperfect jussive second person plural)) all of these instructive conditions of the relationship (kol ha mitswah ha *eleh) which, to lead to the benefits of the partnership (*asher), Yahowah

(Yahowah) has stated to Moseh (*dabar el Mosheh). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:22)

Everything that will bring greater joy to your life (eth kol asher) Yahowah (Yahowah) has offered as instructions (tsawah) for you (el atem) by way of the hand of Moseh (ba yad Mosheh), beginning from the day that Yahowah (*min ha yowm asher) provided these directions (tsawah) and beyond into the future (*wa hala*ah*) throughout your dwelling places and generations, in every age, location, and time (*la dower atem).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:23)

There is one set of directions for all people, places, and periods of time. Inspiring instructions rather than burdensome laws, they make our lives more enjoyable.

Unfortunately, Yisra*el would not listen to any of this, and the religious would speak over it. Therefore, Yahowah, in the wake of piling carcass upon carcass of men who were deliberately confrontational, wanted to make a distinction between those promoting an antagonistic climate and those who were simply swept away in their tempest. And so, God is going to distinguish crimes of commission from omission, revealing that a different fate awaits those misleading from those who were misled.

“Then, if it comes to be (*wa hayah im) from the perspective of (*min ayin) the community of those serving as witnesses (edah*), something is done at that time (asah – acted upon (nifal perfect)*) which is inadvertent as a result of ignorance, whereby you are simply mistaken for having been deceived and misled (la shagagah), then (wa) everyone in the congregation (*kol edah) should act to capitalize upon (asah*) the Par | Bull (par), a son (ben), this one special (echad*) Baqar | Bull who is sought out and considered early in the morning (baqar) to rise (*la olah) by producing a soothing spiritual respite which is pleasing (*ry*ach nychowach*) to approach Yahowah (la Yahowah).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:24 in part)

We should be delighted with this distinction between perpetrator and victim, with ignorance being salvageable but not belligerence. This does not mean that the ignorant prevail, at least apart from Taruw*ah, but because of what the sacrifice of the Bull on Taruw*ah represents, they can be redeemed.

This is also to say that at any other time, the souls of those who remain unaware of Yahowah and His Towrah will simply fade away. At the same time, the overtly political and religious who have led others astray will be held accountable by being sent to She*owl.

Come Taruw*ah, ten days prior to Dowd's return, God will scour the world in search of those who will not know enough to capitalize on the Laqat | Gleaning, but whose mistakes are correctable. Once they arrive in Yaruwshalaim, the sacrifice of the *Adamah Parah will remove this fine layer of guilt so that they may witness the King's arrival and enter the Garden on Sukah. So in this narrative preceding that of the Red Heifer in the 19th chapter of Bamidbar / Numbers, we discover the character of the attendees and beneficiaries of Taruw*ah's proceedings.

And this is the result...

“And his sacrificial offering will bestow a share which is apportioned as his gift (*minchah huw), along with (wa) his offering which is poured out to anoint (*nasek huw) in a manner consistent with (ka) the means to execute good judgment regarding the resolution of disputes (ha mishpat – the judgment; from my – to ponder the implications of shaphat – deciding and judging). Then also for the guilt incurred (*wa chata*th* – for being on the wrong path), there will be a uniquely special shaggy goat (*wa sa*yr *Ez echad).”
(Bamidbar / Numbers 15:24)

Working together with Yahowah on behalf of Yisra*el, the Bull and Goat will purge the misled of the mortal remnant on the Day of the Herald. As a result, they will be prepared to celebrate the arrival of their King during Reconciliations and enjoy a return to the Promised Land when it is restored to the conditions of the Garden. It is for this reason that *EiYah was taken long ago, forty-Yowbel 888 years prior to this moment, to do as only he has done before.

This is prophetic of what will transpire on Saturday September 24th, 2033 as Taruw^oah replaces Judaism's Rosh Hashanah. It is in anticipation of the Messiah's return on Kipurym ~ freeing chickens from twirling torture by ridding the world of Judaism.

As we proceed, you'll notice, there will be no rabbis. Yahowah is going old school. *Elyah, as the Goat, will serve in the priestly role during Yada^s sacrifice as the Bull. He will be following the script as outlined in Numbers 5 and 19. The result will be to kaphar | reconcile Yisra^{*el} in coordination with Kipurym | Reconciliations. This is evocative of the fulfillment of the Fall Miqra^{ey}.

“And the one serving in the role of a priest (wa kohen) will provide reconciliation, making atonement, purging (kaphar) the entire (al kol*) community of witnesses (edah*) of the Children of Yisra^{*el} (*beny Yisra^{el}).

Therefore, he will contribute to the process of removing the guilt at this moment (wa salach – he will enable the deliverance of a pardon (nifal perfect third-person masculine singular)) for them (la hem – as masculine plural the recipients are the beny | sons / children of Yisra^{*el}) because (ky) she was culpable by being misled as opposed to condemnable by misleading (shagagah hy^{}* – she, addressing the edah* community, was deceived and ignorantly went astray such that hers was a crime of omission, not commission).

So, they will arrive (hem bow^{}* – they will come and be included (hifil perfect)) accompanying the sacrificial offering who will be providing the means for them to approach and draw near (eth qorban hem* – with the sacrifice for them; from qarab – to be brought near during a summons).

This is an offering in the fire (isheh*) to approach Yahowah (la Yahowah) because (wa) their guilt for missing the way (*chata*ah hem*) to approach the presence (pane) of Yahowah (Yahowah) will be inadvertent as they are mistaken (shagagah hem – of ignorance, going astray in such a way that theirs is a crime of omission, not commission). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:25)

In this prophetic instruction, “she” is a reference to the Adulterous Woman who is being purged of her guilt so that she can be wed to our King. And you’ll note, she is salvageable because her infractions were born of ignorance and, therefore, out of omission not commission.

God’s continued focus on shagagah | the misled rather than the misleading, is essential because this is the distinction between victims and perpetrators of politics and religion. This is the determining factor between souls who would otherwise cease to exist rather than those who would be incarcerated. In addition, this differentiation through shagagah | ignorance determines our target audience. Even God cannot save the overtly religious or political, while there is an opportunity for others, should they be interested.

Unlike any other time in the history of Yisra*el, in the end, Yahowah is insistent that His people listen to and benefit from a Gowy. Here he is called a Ger | Foreigner. Elsewhere, he is known as the Nakry | Observant Foreigner and the Man from Edom. He is the Par | Bull in this narrative and the adamah Parah* four chapters hence. Without a Jew willing to listen to Yahowah or serve Him, this bullish Gowy was recruited and prepared for this mission at this time ~ something Yahowah clearly intended from the beginning.

Then through the Ger | Foreigner (wa la ha ger), who is continually dwelling together while of another ethnicity (ha guwr), in their midst (ba tawek hem), he will contribute to the process of removing their guilt at that moment (wa salach – he will enable the deliverance of a pardon (nifal perfect third-person masculine singular)) for the entire (wa la kol) community of potential witnesses (edah*) of the Children of Yisra*el (*beny Yisra*el*) for the very reason that the entire family, every person (*ky la kol ha am) was being deceived and misled such that their ignorance made it a crime of omission rather than commission (ba shagagah hem – were led astray inadvertently).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:26)

There is a subtlety here worth mentioning. It appears that by fulfilling Matsah, Dowd, as the ultimate Yahuwd and King, God’s foremost Son, was able to carry away all manner of guilt. But on Taruw*ah, the Ger can only provide reconciliation for crimes of omission.

This is by design. Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym provide access to the Covenant, to immortality, perfection, enrichment, and empowerment, facilitating access to the upcoming Harvests. By contrast, the role of the Par on Taruw*ah is to cleanse mortals for their entry into the Millennial Shabat of Sukah. Those who progress from there will proceed through the Beryth and Miqra*ey to benefit from Dowd’s service on our behalf during Chag Matsah.

There are many reasons this must be true, and foremost among them is that the mortal returnees on Taruw*ah will have known Yahowah for less than a day, and likewise, He them. God would be foolish to commit to an eternal stay in Heaven on behalf of those who were completely ignorant of Him less than a day ago. So, to become Covenant, they will go through the same process as did those who participated in the Sevens’ and Heralds’ Harvests. They will learn, grow, understand, and then respond. And as a result, we will serve as their instructors.

By proceeding in this manner, Yahowah ensures the largest possible audience for His Son’s return. And He is providing everyone, Yahuwdym and Gowym, the best possible opportunity to come clean and move forward. He is even affording His more mature Family members a chance to contribute by teaching.

While vital to Israel's survival, God is expecting more from *Elyah than being one of the two final Witnesses, serving as the captivating linguist and Master of Ceremonies during Taruw^{ah}, and offering a little Goat's blood to finalize anointing the Kaporeth | Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant on Kipurym. And so, based upon this depiction, it seems that *Elyah will play the lead role in correcting minor indiscretions among the remnant, nipping them in the bud before they get out of hand and become deadly.

“And under the scenario (*wa im) that a single soul (*nepesh echad) goes astray, erring such that she is consistently wrong (*chata – is misled, retreats, and misses out (qal imperfect third-person feminine singular)), but unintentionally because of having been deceived and misled (ba shagagah), then she should approach (wa qarab) with a steadfast and empowering *ez | Goat (*ez), a daughter for her renewal (*bath shanah hy) for the guilt of being wrong about the way (*la chata*ah*).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:27)

I suspect that the depiction of a single soul rather than a community-wide corruption is that lies become religions when they spread. And since religion will be prohibited in our return to the Garden, it's best to intervene before it goes viral.

Of course, there is no indication that Yisra^{el} has ever understood any of this or followed these instructions, making God's entire narrative throughout the 15th chapter of Bamidbar prophetic. And in this regard, there is another way to interpret the preceding statement. There is the possibility that, rather than the entire remnant of Israel gathered on Taruw^{ah} and in attendance on Kipurym, one Yahuwd among the many will be selected as Dowd's bride. If so, *Elyah will walk her down the aisle while Yada^o stands beside the groom. This being the case, *Elyah will go from serving as the priest during the sacrifice of the *Adamah Parah on Taruw^{ah} pursuant to Bamidbar 19, to being the priest transforming the bride in accordance with Numbers 5.

“Then the one serving in the role of a priest (wa kohen) will provide reconciliation, making atonement, purging (kaphar) the soul (al ha nepesh*) of the one who has unintentionally been misled as a result of having been deceived (ha shagag) when she is erroneous and wrong (*ba chata) without intent because of having been misled (ba shagagah) before the appearance (la paneh) of Yahowah (Yahowah), making amends for this by pardoning and annulling guilt by way of a ransom (*la kaphar *al huw). So (wa), for this (*la huw), he will be releasing guilt by removing it (*salach la huw).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:28)

Just so that we are clear, while the preceding statement begins by releasing her of her guilt, it concludes with masculine pronouns. They could be referencing the guilt being removed or addressing the individual from whom it is being taken away. There is even the possibility that both are true with the woman purged for the wedding while all Yisra*el is released from their guilt.

While we have multiple beneficiaries throughout, we have but one source of benefits...

echad | One Towrah | Source of Teaching and Guidance, Instructions and Directions, will exist for you (*hayah la atem) as the native-born (*ha Ezrach) among the Children of Yisra*el (*ba beny Yisra*el*) and for the Ger | Foreigner abiding with you (wa la ha ger) who is dwelling together on life’s journey (ha guwr) in the midst of them (ba tawek hem), who acts and engages (*la ha asah) for those who have been deceived and misled, missing the way because they didn’t know any better (ba shagagah).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:29)

By affirming that there is one Towrah for the Ger and Yisra*el, Yahowah is making many striking points. These include the realization that the Ger | Foreigner mentioned throughout this narrative will be Towrah observant. He will step out of the pages of the Towrah to serve Yisra*el. This means that there is no place for a New Testament or Talmud.

In the end, as was the case in the beginning, the Towrah provides our means to redemption. Also, the absurd notion that some contrived “Noahide Laws” pertain to Gowy while “Jewish Law” determines the fate of Jews, as pontificated in Judaism, is torn asunder. We know better.

In addition, Yahowah is not articulating a revised plan for the last days. The original still applies. Capitalize now and you’ll be assured of a favorable outcome. Or said another way, this prophecy from the Towrah is explaining how the Bull, Goat, and Ram will fulfill the Towrah during the Mow^eedym on the Towrah’s timeline.

While that is wonderful and assuring news, since Yahowah is steadfastly opposed to religion, He will neither waver in His resolve nor make an exception in the end. Act like a rabbi, or a member of the Mother Goddess Cult, writing and imposing a different script under a different name and be purged, not of guilt, but from our presence.

“However (wa), the soul (ha nepesh) who consistently acts (asher asah) with a raised hand, in an exalted haughty manner, overbearing in his influence (ba yad ruwm), against Yahowah, such that he is slanderous and insulting, reviling and blaspheming Yahowah (eth Yahowah huw* gadaph*), from the native-born (*min ha Ezrach) and from the non-Yisra^eelite (wa min ha ger), that soul (ha nepesh) will be cut off, cut away, and banished, then eliminated (wa karath – it will be exterminated (nifal perfect third-person feminine singular – the slanderous soul is affecting Israel and himself by blasphemy at this time)). It will no longer exist in the midst of His people or family (hy min qereb *am huw).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:30)

We have all been wrong, but those of us who are Covenant are no longer religious. And when it comes to the final remnant purged of guilt on Taruw^eah, the same conditions apply. Those who promote and defend Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Marxism, and Conspiracy, even Mother Goddesses, cannot and will not benefit from the sacrifice of the Par | Bull. They will be banished and eliminated from our presence whether Yahuwdym or Gowym. Yahowah does not appreciate His name or reputation tampered with nor that of His Son, or their Towrah.

As the designated sacrifice, I'm relieved. I'm delighted to serve the unpretentious and unreligious in this way, but it would be an insult to serve those who have been deliberately antagonistic and offensive, even insulting and hindering. In particular, the woman who disparaged my wife to denounce me and the man who cut down the Tree of Knowledge in service to this irritating psychopath, must be excluded from our presence, along with those who served to enable them.

He is guilty of this and more...

“Indeed, it is for certain that this is because (ky) he has shown contempt for, trivialized, disregarded, sought to override, and even despised (bazah – he has disrespected and disdained, even scorned (qal perfect)) the word and message (dabar – the statement, narrative, account, and speaking) of Yahowah (Yahowah).

Therefore, regarding His instructive conditions for the relationship (*wa *eth mitswah huw), he has thwarted and frustrated them, voiding them, revoking and nullifying, violating and breaking them (parar).

So that soul (ha nepesh) will be completely cut off, tossed away, and banished, then eliminated (karath karath – will be exterminated (nifal infinitive imperfect third-person feminine singular – the frustrating soul in breach of the Covenant is nullifying his existence and that of others by his violation of the agreement with enduring implications over time)). And that individual's guilt and resulting liability and punishment for his distortions and perversions (ha hy *aown hy) will remain associated with him (*ba hy).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:31)

The man who built the hive for the conspiratorial Mother Goddess Cult that has destroyed so many souls, committed the crime of tearing the Yada Yahowah website down, twice, both times confessing to the crime. I share this now because it's apparent that the Yada Yahowah volumes serve as the Tree of Knowledge leading God's people back to Dowd, who represents the Tree of Lives. And by hacking the YadaYah.com website, the banished and blasphemous one conspired to control access to vital information. That not only makes this previous section of Numbers 15 prophetic in denouncing this hideous individual, it explains what follows.

Throughout the millennia, the following passage has been the most difficult in the Towrah to process. Out of context and time, it is completely out of character for God to have the community assassinate an individual for doing nothing more than picking up some sticks on the Shabat. But that's not what's happening. There is no mention of sticks, and this man is conspiring to do irreversible damage to the plan Yahowah has just articulated – indeed, nullifying the entirety of the 15th chapter of Bamidbar. Without the Tree of Knowledge, there is no return to the Tree of Lives, just as without Yada* as the Bull there is no return to Dowd and the Ram.

The preceding condemnation of the man who showed contempt for and sought to override the Word of Yahowah by building a nest for the tuwr | foul bird flying around in circles searching for an alternative to the Bull, is the same man who twice replaced the books I had written on the YadaYah.com site with a proclamation of his own. He even had the gall to make the username for his dark site, “NoBull,” and the password, “notCraig.” Therefore, this is one integrated prophecy, with the denouncement explaining the remedy.

Like all of Satan's minions, they showed no creativity and copied our logo, bookshelf, amplified translations, and all transliterations, changing only Yahowah's name to suit their pathetic goddess agenda. And it is by being this obnoxious and counterproductive at this time, and committing this very crime, that he, as the lord of the Mother cult, deserves this rebuke from Yahowah.

“And the Children of Yisra*el (*wa ben Yisra*el*) were existing in the wilderness (hayah ba ha midbar) and they discovered (wa matsa – they found and experienced (qal imperfect third-person masculine plural)) an individual (iysh – a person and man) conspiring to control and contravene the trees by plucking the trees up in an unrelenting manner (*qashash etsym – plotting to assert his influence in an aggressive and harsh way over the trees, jostling through a conscious and perplexing plan to defiantly flaunt and obstinately disregard the trees, their branch and stem by taking them for himself, collecting and gathering the trees; from qasheh – to be difficult, cruel, determined, and bewildering (poel participle masculine singular – in a very intense and demonstrative manner in an attempt to supersede the intent of the trees)) pursuant to the seventh day and the promise of the Shabat (ba yowm ha shabath).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:32)

First, the scene has not changed. The under-twenties are still in the same place. And this time, after Yahowah reveals His disdain for those who are deliberately hostile towards him, those who override His message and deride His messengers, we find a subversive individual whose disruptive behavior is counter to the promise of the seventh day. This means that his intent is to contravene our return to the Garden on Sukah, the Shabat when we enter the seventh millennia.

Further, everything that God was celebrating throughout this chapter occurred on a Shabat. It is when Dowd, as the Ram, carried our guilt into She*owl during Matsah in 33 CE. It is when Yada*, as the Bull, will fulfill both Shabuwa*ah and Taruwa*ah. And it is the first day of Sukah when we are allowed back into the Promised Land.

As for the etsym*, they are “trees.” Hebrew has a plethora of words for stems and branches, but ets* is not among them. And therefore, we are compelled by context, intent, and consequence to consider the nature of the trees which would create such a fuss. And of them, there are only two ~ the Tree of Lives and the Tree of Knowledge. One leads to the other. The Lamb opened one and the Bull wrote the books leading back to it. Not only does Dowd's depiction as the ayil* | Lamb and Most Significant Tree identify him with the most important of these, Dowd opened the Door to prolonged life by fulfilling Passover. And Yada speaks of growing in Knowledge. Just as the moon reflects the sun's life-giving light, the Lesser Luminary directs our attention to the Greater Luminary.

Even the verb, qashash, is evocative of this crass individual's chicanery. In the poel participle, the one flaunting the purpose of these Trees is intensely and demonstrably superseding their intent. He isn't picking them up but is, instead, conspiring to control what they represent.

With the scene set and action cast, we realize that those who witnessed this perversity were still reeling from the prophetic narrative regarding the Bull, Ram, and Goat. They were not up to the challenge of properly assessing this egregious crime or ascribing the proper response. But to their credit, after listening to God speak of the deadly consequence of deliberately opposing Him, they knew that this was a serious affront to Yahowah's instructions.

“Then those who found out about what was taking place with him (*wa ha matsa *eth huw) plotting to control the trees in such an aggressive and harsh way, jostling through a conscious and perplexing plan to defiantly flaunt and obstinately contravene the trees while plucking the trees up and taking them for himself (*qashash etsym – conspiring to collect and gather the trees in a fierce and unrelenting manner; from qasheh – to be difficult, cruel, determined, and bewildering (poel participle masculine singular – in a very intense and demonstrative manner attempt to supersede the intent of the trees)), they approached, presented themselves, and brought him (*qarab *eth huw) to Moseh and to *Aharown (el Mosheh wa *el aharown – the One who Draws Out and to the Alternative), as well as to the entire community of witnesses (*wa *el kol ha edah). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:33)

So they settled him down (*wa nuwach eth hu^w – they secured that which pertained to his spirituality (hifil imperfect third-person masculine plural)) by guarding and imprisoning (ba ha mishmar – with the one placed in custody and confined) because (ky) it had not been declared or made clear (lo^{} parash* – it had not been distinctly declared or explained) what should be made of his actions or how to respond to him considering the ongoing implications (*mah asah la huw^{}* – how he would engage relative to him (nifal imperfect third person masculine singular)).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:34)

Up to this point, the Yisra^{*}elites hadn’t been adept at spying, so they were not out looking for trouble. Nevertheless, what they witnessed shocked them. This was not about working on the Shabat because there was plenty of clarity on that issue, affirming that they would not have been perplexed if that was all there was to this.

Further, nuwach | settling him down spiritually seems to convey the possibility of demon possession. Otherwise, why would they guard and imprison him? They clearly recognized that what he was doing to these trees was serious in nature and devastating in its repercussions.

At this point in the story, Yahowah is not hanging around the fellas engaging in idle chatter. He wanted nothing to do with them. In fact, they were just beginning a forty-year time out for bad behavior. Therefore, for Yahowah to respond without even having been summoned, this was really bad.

“Then Yahowah said (*wa amar Yahowah) to Moseh (el Mosheh*), ‘This man (*ha iysh) has created a situation whereby he must be put to death because of the ongoing implications (muwth – he must be destroyed and killed outright (hofal imperfect – there is no alternative but to assassinate him)).

Have the entire community of witnesses (*kol ha edah) execute him by hurling stones at him (ragam huw^{}ba ha eben – stoning him by piling ab* | father and ben | son on him) outside and apart from (*min chuwt*s) the encampment (la ha machaneh). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:35)

And the entire community of witnesses (*kol ha edah) came out as if part of an exodus, coming forth (wa yatsa – they withdrew, bringing out (hifil imperfect)) with him (eth huw) to a place outside and apart from (el min chuwts) the encampment (la ha machaneh). Then they executed him by hurling stones at him (wa ragam huw ba ha eben – they stone him by piling ab* | father and ben | son on him), putting him to death and destroying him (wa muwth) consistent with and according to the manner and reason (*ka asher) Yahowah (Yahowah) instructed (tsawah) Moseh | One who Draws Out (eth Mosheh*).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:36)

Even in the death of a wayward soul, I find inspiration. The ebenym* | stones brought to bear against this man who would bar access to the Tree of Knowledge in Yada Yahowah were based upon a compound of ab* | Father and ben | Son. And the man revealing this to you is an eben* | rocky crag.

So why is it that, over the past 3,500 years, there isn’t a record of anyone correctly determining that these were trees, not sticks? Accordingly, no one has presented the subject of this continuing narrative on Israel’s salvation as the Trees in the Garden. And yet, there is no question that etsym* speaks of trees, or that there are only two trees of any symbolic importance in the Towrah. Why have billions been blinded to something that has the power to enlighten their minds and transform their souls.

The evil man in this story was trying to control access to the Tree of Knowledge to preclude access to the Tree of Lives. If he was condemned to die as a result of his belligerence, he would try to take everyone else with him.

If not for the realization that this prophecy was scribed for us today, I would otherwise have been surprised that no one discerned the reason Adam and Chawah were escorted out of the Garden and not allowed to return. We were told that the Tree of Lives existed, but nothing more is said of it. The first man and woman conceived with a neshamah | conscience, took one bite of the Tree of Knowledge, but that was insufficient to be of value to them. They were no wiser for it.

This lack of knowledge, of not knowing the details of God's plan of redemption as delineated here and throughout the Towrah, Naby^oym, wa Mizmowr, precluded Adam and Chawah from capitalizing on the adjacent Tree. There is a great deal that must be known, understood, and accepted before any of us are prepared to live alongside God or return to the Garden.

Further, these two Trees, like the Greater and Lesser Luminaries pointing the way to the Mow^oedym, have a story of their own. They, too, are characters in Yahowah's brilliant explanation of how enlightenment leads to life. This is the story of how one Tree leads those who are receptive to it, back to the other Tree, just as the moon reflects the sun's light in the darkest hours.

So, at this point in God's narrative, neither tree had grown to the point it was equipped to educate humankind on the means to extend our lives or to provide that service. Dowd, as the Pesach ayil* | Most Significant Tree, would need to fulfill Passover as the Ayil* to open the Door to Life. And then Yada^o, named after the Tree of Knowledge, would compose Yada Yahowah to explain the way back to the Garden and to the Tree of Lives at the time that this would be possible. Therefore, this is simply a different perspective on the same story of how the Bull, Ram, and Goat would deliver the promises of Taruw^oah and Kipurym so that God's people could reenter Eden* during Sukah.

And in all of these ensuing years, nothing was known of these Trees, of this episode, of the realization that Dowd serves as the Tree of Lives, or that Yada represents the Tree of Knowledge. But now you know the rest of the story. May I offer you a bite?

Prior to translating the entire chapter, and viewing all of this in context and from the proper perspective, I was at a loss as to why Yahowah would condemn any man to death without so much as an explanation. But the fact is, He had already provided that explanation...

“However, the soul who consistently acts with a raised hand, in an exalted haughty manner, overbearing in his influence against Yahowah, such that he is slanderous and insulting, reviling and blaspheming Yahowah, from the native-born and from the non-Yisra*elite, that soul will be cut off, cut away, and banished, eliminated and exterminated. It will no longer exist in the midst of His people or family. (Bamidbar 15:30)

Indeed, it is for certain that this is because he has shown contempt for, trivialized, disregarded, sought to override, and even despised, disrespecting and disdaining the word, narrative, and message of Yahowah.

Therefore, regarding His instructive conditions for the relationship, this man has thwarted and frustrated them, voiding and nullifying them, violating and breaking them. So that soul must be completely cut off, tossed away, and banished, eliminated and exterminated. And that individual’s guilt and resulting liability and punishment for their distortions and perversions will remain associated with them.” (Bamidbar 15:31)

He committed this crime, and he will do the time.

God’s explanation of why the man who had *qashash esh | conspired to control and contravene the intent of the trees, plucking them up in a fierce and unrelenting manner, must be destroyed, was framed by the preceding narrative on how Yahowah would restore the fractured relationship with His wayward children through the Bull and Ram. These supportive metaphors are shared to encourage us to contemplate what these trees might represent that was so essential to the redemption of Yisra*el. And this leads us to the obvious conclusion that they represent the Trees of Lives and of Knowledge.

God’s ensuing instruction, therefore, is predicated on us understanding the previous depiction. And since Yahowah has just outlined the story of our redemption, and how it will be achieved, the one trying to deny access to this vital revelation had to be incapacitated. With so little time left, any interruption or degradation of the conveyance of these essential insights depicting the path home must be thrust aside and torn asunder.

Unbeknownst to anyone heretofore, what follows is directly related to the story of the Bull, Ram, and Goat, as well as to the felling of the Tree of Knowledge that leads to the Tree of Lives. Yahowah is describing a tsytsith, which is a flower and not a tassel. It is to be kanaph | concealed behind the hem of their apparel, not flaunted as a religious symbol. And it is actually the pathyl | twisted thread and bound cord that serves as an unsavory sign of them wrestling with God that is the most important aspect of God's example.

Further, the takeleth bluish-indigo coloration is symbolic of fulfilling and completing the process of perfecting them, using the fifth and sixth color bands of the rainbow to draw our attention to Taruw^oah and Kipurym.

Especially interesting, is that the twisted cord would have been woven from pishtah | flax. And the blue flower would have been its gib^ol | bud. Gib^ol is from the verbal root, gabar, and the noun, geber, which describe “a strong man who will rise, be confirmed, and prevail.”

This is essential for us to understand because Yahowah spoke of these very things occurring prior to the observance of Pesach and Matsah in Mitsraym | the Crucibles of Oppression when the Israelites began their Yatsa^a | Exodus with Yahowah. This very association will be overtly acknowledged in the salutation presented at the conclusion of this, the 15th chapter of Bamidbar / Numbers – just five verses hence.

In the fleeting moments before His presentation of Pesach and Matsah, Yahowah set up the premise of this narrative on the tsytsith. He revealed that the following conditions were observed between the plague of hail and the loss of firstborn sons...

“And (wa) the flax (ha pishtah – the plant native to Egypt and Israel featuring five petals of bluish indigo flowers and producing the fibers for linen apparel and wicks for oil lamps; from pash – extremity to reveal foolishness and weakness) and the barley (*wa ha sa*orah* – grain; from *sa*ar* – for the bristle to be swept and whirled away in a stormy tempest) were beaten down and destroyed (nakah – they were struck, wounded, and afflicted (by the hailstorm)) because, indeed (ky), the barley (*wa ha sa*orah* – grain; from *sa*ar* – for the bristle to be swept and whirled away in a stormy tempest) was abyb* | in the ear, tender, green, and ripening (abyb* – were just forming and growing in the head of the grain, the first month of the year when Chag Matsah is observed) and (wa) the flax (ha pishtah – the plant native to Israel featuring five petal bluish indigo flowers and producing the fibers for linen apparel and wicks for oil lamps; from pash – extremity to reveal foolishness and weakness) was budding (*gib*ol* – blossoming and flowering; from the verbal root, gabar, and the noun, geber, which means “a strong man will rise, be confirmed, and prevail).” (Shemowth / Names / Exodus 9:31)

Yahowah is the ultimate wordsmith and storyteller. Here He was using the pishtah | flax to reveal His wayward children’s pash | foolishness and weakness, their confusion and chaos. The tsytsith | flower would be takeleth | bluish-indigo to correspond with the blossoms on the flax and zakar | remind them of the approach of Pesach and Matsah when the most zakar | memorable of men would prolong their lives and taklyth complete the process of perfecting their souls.

The flower’s coloration, representing the fifth and sixth bands in the rainbow, while featuring five petals, would direct their attention to the fifth and sixth Mow’edym of Taruw’ah and Kipurym when the Bull would offer his life in service to the arriving Ram under the watchful eye of the Goat. Even the pathyl | twisted thread and bound cord that served as an unsavory sign of them wrestling with God would come from the fibers of the pishtah | flax that bloomed in the anticipation of the Lamb's sacrifice on Passover.

All the while, this was a reminder that Yisra^{*el} was presently represented by the *sa^{orah} | barley. At this point, only those who were abyb*, young, tender, ripening, and growing were alive to hear the story that they were not to forget of their fathers *sa^{ar} | bristling against God, so as to be swept away in a whirlwind of their stormy tempest. For having thumbed their noses at Yahowah, they had been nakah | beaten down and destroyed.

Therefore, with all of these thoughts at the forefront of our minds, let's ponder the inspiration and implications of the tsytsith | flower and its takeleth pathyl | twisted blue-indigo thread that was to be concealed behind the hem of the robes.

“Next, Yahowah communicated (wa amar* Yahowah) to Moseh, to say (el Mosheh la amar), (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:37) ‘Speak to the Children of Yisra^{*el} (*dabar el beny Yisra^{*el}) and say to them (wa amar el hem), “Make for themselves (wa asah la atem – they should actually fabricate at this time for them (qal perfect third-person plural)) a Tsytsith | Flower (tsytsith – a bloom, blossom, or bud (some say a fringe or tassel but without etymological support); from tsyts – flower, blossom, bud, and bloom) upon a hidden hem or extremity (al kanaph* – on a concealed corner, edge, border, or wing; from kanaph – obscured from view, removed, and thrust aside)) of their treacherous apparel (begeh hem – of their duplicitous and faithless garments, cloaks, robes, and coats) concerning their lineage and period of time dwelling in tent encampments, and for their family line, generations, and lifetimes (la dower).

They are to be produced and placed at this time (wa nathan – they should be assigned and offered at this moment (qal perfect third-person plural)) as (al* – over) a Tsytsith | a Flower (tsytsith – a bloom, blossom, or bud (some say a fringe or tassel but without etymological support); from tsyts – flower, blossom, bud, and bloom (feminine singular)) on the concealed hem or extremity (al kanaph* – upon a hidden corner, edge, wing, or border; from kanaph – obscured from view, removed, and thrust aside (feminine singular)) of a bluish indigo (takeleth – fifth and sixth color of the rainbow, sign of the covenant; from kalah – to fulfill, accomplish, and complete, akin to taklyth – the completion of perfection (feminine singular)) twisted thread (pathyl – as a bound cord, an unsavory sign of wrestling and of twisting (masculine singular)).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:38)

So (wa), for a time it (addressing the twisted thread) will exist as (hayah – for the moment it (speaking of the bound cord as the unsavory sign of wrestling and twisting) will be as (qal perfect third-person masculine singular)) a Tsytsith | Flower (tsytsith – a bloom, blossom, or bud (some say a fringe or tassel but without etymological support); from tsyts – flower, blossom, bud, and bloom) for you (*la atem) to reveal and be shown, and for you to view and discern what can be witnessed (*wa ra*ah* – to see and perceive at this time (qal perfect second-person masculine plural)) concerning it (eth huw – him (masculine singular and therefore addressing the pathyl rather than the tsytsith or kanaph)) and for you to remember (wa zakar – you recall the memorable man, you mention, remind, and proclaim at this time or that time (qal perfect second person masculine plural)) all of the instructive conditions of the relationship agreement (eth kol mitswah* – what pertains to every one of the terms of the contract between the parties) with Yahowah (Yahowah) and then engage by acting upon them (*wa *asah eth hem – doing what pertains to them (qal perfect second-person masculine plural)).

Therefore, you will never again spy out, explore, or investigate your boundaries and borders by following after a turtle dove (wa lo tuwr* – you do not continually fly around in circles, using circular reasoning, as a dove or a pigeon, in your search for the bull (qal imperfect second-person masculine plural)), delaying in the end by remaining stymied and falling back (achar*) on your inclinations, feelings, and judgment

(*lebab atem – your motivations and thinking) while remaining hindered in the end and detoured (achar*) by your perceptions of outward appearances and visual forms (ayin atem – your eyes, sight, and understanding) which, to reveal your way and your relationships (asher atem), you become flagrantly unfaithful and adulterous, wantonly untrustworthy and unreliable, akin to a prostitute and whore, loathed and despised as a religious harlot (zanah – you treacherously abandoned the relationship while encouraging others to cheat with a wanton and whorish fatling (qal participle – actually destroying the relationship while whoring in a highly demonstrable manner)) while remaining fixated in the end, falling back and stymied by such people and things (achar hem*).” (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:39)

It was a missed opportunity for them at this moment, but it is a poignant lesson for us today. The flower serves as a way to jog memories so that we never forget the propensity of the religious to corrupt God’s testimony. It is the lesson Yisra’el has never heeded, unable to process just how arrogant and acerbic they had become and now remain.

“As a result and for this reason (la ma’an), you should always be mindful and remember (zakar – mention the memorable man and recall the information and events (qal imperfect second-person masculine plural)) and then engage in and act upon (*wa asah) that which pertains to all of My instructive conditions of the relationship agreement (eth kol mitswah any).

You should be (wa hayah) set apart, special, and uncommon (qadowsh), to approach your God (*la *elohym atem). (Bamidbar / Numbers 15:40)

I am (any*) Yahowah (Yahowah), your God (elohym atem) who, for the benefit of the relationship and to show the way to get the most enjoyment out of life (asher*), brought you out (*yatsa *eth atem) from the land of Mitsraym | the Crucibles of Oppression (*min erets Mitsraym) to exist

(hayah – to always and actually be (qal infinitive)) for you (*la atem) as God (*la elohym).

I am (any*) Yahowah (Yahowah), your God (elohym atem).” (Bamidbar / In the Wilderness / Numbers 15:41)

I am Yada, and this is Yada Yahowah.

Our trip through the wilderness has paid dividends. From the vantage point of the past, we can see the future more clearly and are prepared to deal with what is sure to come our way. As a result, we know what we are up against and realize the full scope of Yahowah's plan to provide reconciliation.

Equipped with this knowledge, it's time to flesh out the details on God's means to reach and transform His people. And for this, we are going to venture into the text of another puzzle and see if we can properly assess some of the additional clues Yahowah revealed about the men and means He would deploy to call His people out of Babylon and back home to the Promised Land.

In this phase of our journey, we are going to turn to Zakaryah. Here, we encounter a considerably more sophisticated version of what we witnessed in Daniel with the evolution of the beastly empires. And this time, rather than men like Gabry^{*el}, Myka^{*el}, and ^{*E}lYah collaborating to communicate the prophetic narrative, we find that a *mal^{ak} | spiritual messenger has been assigned the responsibility of painting the distant future as it will unfold during the last days. And he advanced this prophetic narrative through a series of metaphors, many of which the prophet struggled to comprehend.

Nevertheless, Zakaryah was a bright fellow, and it is readily apparent that he had read the reports of previous prophets, particularly Dowd and Yasha^{*yah}. We know this because he adroitly discerned that Yahowah had already introduced the Choter, explained his role, and shared his name through the great prophet and in the Proverbs. Therefore, realizing that Zakaryah was prepared and astute, the spiritual messenger encouraged him to augment his understanding by recognizing that the first of the witnesses he had seen was ^{*E}lYah, and that the second would be the Choter, Yada, who was represented by the olive tree on the sunset side of the Manowrah.

As is Yahowah's style, the *mal*ak* representing Him answered Zakaryah indirectly, providing him with the information that he could use to make the necessary connections to understand. But he stopped short of spoon feeding the prophet, requiring Zakaryah to think for himself to deduce insights from the clues. With this in mind, let's begin by examining Zakaryah 4:4-6...

“So then, I responded (*wa anah) by saying (*wa amar) to the spiritual messenger (*mal*ak*) who had spoken to me (*ha dabar ba any) to ask (*la amar), ‘Why are these here, sir (*mah *el leh *edon any)?’ (Zakaryah / Memorable Man of Yah / Zechariah 4:4)

And the heavenly representative (*wa ha mal*ak*) who had spoken with me (*ha dabar ba any) answered (anah*), and he said to me (*wa *amar *el any), ‘Why do you not know Yada• or understand, and why are you unaware of what is being revealed so that you can appreciate and acknowledge (ha lo yada•*) what these represent (*mah hem el leh)?’

I said (*wa anah), ‘I do not, sir (lo *edon any).’” (Zakaryah / Memorable Man of Yah / Zechariah 4:5)

It is our fault. We have been given the information we need to understand who is doing what, when, where, and why in God's overall plan. While he was not guilty of it, the biggest culprit is religion, because it tends to corrupt and counterfeit everything.

In this case, the *Mal*ak* | Spiritual Messenger of Yahowah is introducing the first of the final Witnesses. He is not only conveying the Word of Yahowah, his mission is to oppose Zerubabel | the Nauseating Seed of the Lord and the Confusion Sown by Babylon's Commingling...

“Then he answered (*wa anah) and said to me (*wa *amar *el *any la amar), ‘This is the Word (zeh dabar) of Yahowah

(YaHoWaH) against Zerubabel | the Nauseating Seed of the Lord and the Confusion Sown by Babylon's Commingling (el* – to and in opposition to Zerubabel – that which is sown and scattered by Bel | the Lord on behalf of the confounding nature of Babylon; from zera^o – seed sown and scattered, ba – by and with, Bel – the Lord and out of Babel – Babylon).

It is to say (*la amar), “Not by might, ability, or wealth (lo ba chayl* – not with physical strength or one's capabilities, not with armies or troops, not with religion or politics), and not with force or authority (wa lo ba koach* – nor with personal qualifications or power, nor with mighty deeds or status, not even with resources and possessions, and particularly not with violence), but in actuality and certainty (ky im – instead) with My Spirit (*ba ruwach any),” declares (amar*) Yahowah (Yahowah) of the vast array of spiritual messengers (*tsaba).””” (Zakaryah / Memorable Man of Yah / Zechariah 4:6)

This is to say that the two messengers, represented by the early and late olive trees, would be firmly rooted in the land of *Yisra*el* and that they would produce a fruitful harvest of olives – representing *Yahuw*dym. They will accomplish this by sharing the Words of Yahowah from the Towrah and *Naby. In this way, they will enlighten those who listen, which is the reason they are positioned on either side of the Manowrah.

ElYah* was the most effective of Yahowah's prophets when railing against “Zerubabel – the nauseating and scorched seed of the Lord and the confusion sown by Babylon's commingling.” He brought the prophets of the *Ba*al* | the Lord and asherah* | the Queen of Heaven and Mother of God down, embarrassing and then killing them.

Following in his footsteps, and going three steps beyond, Yada would be the first person to write multiple volumes comparing the religious rubbish of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam to the Word of God, thereby slaying Israel's most vicious foes. When it comes to felling religious threats, ElYah* and Yada are Yahowah's dynamic duo.

This means that the two Witnesses will be especially effective speaking out against that which is sown and scattered by being ba | with Bel | the Lord, particularly in association with Satan's affinity for the confounding nature of Babylon. Religion is the product of intermixing and commingling truth and lies to more effectively deceive. It is how the Adversary first beguiled Chawah in the Garden. It has remained his strategy ever since, which explains why the Talmud, Zohar, New Testament, and Qur'an contain so many misappropriated and misquoted statements from the *Towrah wa Naby.

While Zerubabel is a name, when considered for what it conveys, it addresses "the Seed of Babylon." Like everything else associated with Satan, in Zerubabel, there is a commingling of good and bad. On one hand, the word represents that which "has been *zera | sown and scattered ba – by Bel | the Lord out of Babel | Babylon." This is consistent with the realization that Yahowah will deploy the two Witnesses to call His people out of Babylon.

And speaking of Babylon, the man named Zerubbabel came out of Babylon in one way, but not in another. He was appointed by Cyrus, the King of Babylon, to oversee Yahuwdah | Judea upon the people's return from captivity. So, while he walked out of Babylon, he carried its influence with him. Further, with only one exception, he is always mentioned in the entourage of Yahowsha*, the High Priest – whom Yahowah called "perverted" in Zakaryah 3.

In Haggai, it gets a bit more interesting because, in 1:1, Zerubabel is introduced as "the governor of Yahuwdah," which is to say that he had been appointed by King Cyrus of Babylon to this rank. Then it is Yahowsha* ben Yahowtsadaq, the High Priest in the previous revelation, who announced that "Yahowah has decided that the time has come for the House of Yahowah to be rebuilt." However, if Yahowah was speaking through him, why was he so thoroughly disparaged here in Zakaryah?

That notwithstanding, we read, “the entire remnant of the people listened to the voice of Yahowah as conveyed through the words of Haggai, the prophet.” Further, “Yahowah stirred up the spirit of Zerubabel, governor of Yahuwdah, and the spirit of Yahowsha^o, the high priest, and the spirit of all of the remnant of the people, and they came and worked on the House of Yahowah.” (Haggai 1:12-14) Considering Yahowah’s negative assessment of these bad actors in the previous prophecy, it appears that God was using them much like He had Cyrus.

There is one final mention in the short, two-page declaration of Chagay | Haggai regarding the man born and bred in Babylon. His final line reads:

“Say to Zerubabel, the governor administering the district for the king (pechah – the lord of the district, from Old Aramaic and thus of Babylonian origin) of Yahuwdah, saying, ‘I will shake up the heavens and the earth.

I will overthrow the throne of the kingdoms of monarchical governments. And I will decimate the militaries of the governments of gentile nations. I will destroy the mobilized weapons of war and those who drive them.

I will send their airplanes crashing down, with their pilots abandoning ship, everyone falling by the dagger and sword of his brother and countryman.

On that day,’ declares Yahowah of Hosts, ‘I will grasp hold of you, Zerubabel, son of Shealtiel (Sha^oalty^oel – I Question God), who has served My interests,’ declares Yahowah, ‘and I will cause you to be like a signet, an implement to make an impression (chowtham – a seal and contrivance denoting an official identification), because of you, I have made this decision, as it will be the best option (ky ba^oatah bachar),’ declares Yahowah of the spiritual messengers.” (Chagay / My Feast / Haggai 2:21-23)

The most positive spin that can be placed upon this is that Zerubabel was similar to the Babylonian king who had sent him.

In Yasha^oyah 45, God said of the arrogant and murderous pagan monarch, “Thus says Yahowah to His anointed, to Cyrus... ‘For the sake of My associate, Ya^oaqob, and Yisra^oel, My chosen, I call you by your name, I name you, though you do not know Me.’” They were used on behalf of Yisra^oel, but we will not see either of these Babylonians in Shamaym.

Therefore, just as Yahowah denounced Yahowsha^o and his entourage, which included Zerubabel, and concluded His assessment of him by suggesting that he is the very insignia of Babylon that has necessitated the demise of its modern incarnations, we are wise to see Zerubabel | as the Seed of Babylon.

As talented a debater and an orator as was ^oEIYah, I suspect that even the prophet will be pleased to know that his witness will be enlightened and empowered by the Spirit. He went after Ba^oal | the Lord previously and made mincemeat of Satan and his prophets. But a lot has transpired in the ensuing millennia, and the forces of evil have honed and diversified their game. And the two most pervasive, captivated attention by pilfering the things of God, corrupting them, and then intertwining those perversions with a plethora of their own.

As we know, Yahowah used an ordinary man, coupled with a strong and forceful hand, to withdraw His people from Mitsraym, but this mission is different. Babylon isn’t so much a place of slavery but a host of debilitating integrated political and religious institutions and crippling beliefs. The havoc brought to bear on Israel in the end will be denounced by these two individuals alongside a Manowrah. Then when the shouting is over, just as we read in the 14th Mashal, the foolish will die so that those who are right may live.

Speaking to those who respect the might of nations and their militaries over the Spirit of God, authority figures over inspiration, the spiritual messenger asks...

“Who do you think you are (my ^oatah – who do you believe you are), a great and prominent figure (har ha gadowl

– a mighty hill holding the high ground, someone lofty and important)?

Before the presence (la paneh – characterized and seen interacting in front) of Zerubabel | the Confusing Seeds Sown by Babylon (Zerubabel – the nauseating and scorched seed of the Lord and the confusion sown by Babylon’s commingling, that which is sown and scattered by Bel | the Lord on behalf of the confounding nature of Babylon; from zera^o – seed sown and scattered, ba – by and with, Bel – the Lord and out of Babel – Babylon), there will be a leveling out of those no longer upright (la myshowr – there will be a questioning of what is agreeable and straightforward among the flatlined; from my – questioning yashar – what is right and on the level).

Then He will remove (wa yatsa^{*} – He will withdraw) the capstone (eth ha *eben ha ro*shah*) amid deceitful and destructive shouts of (tashu^o*ah* – cries which are devastatingly ruinous, worthless and empty, falsified clamoring for; from show^o – to offer worthless lies and vain falsehoods), ‘Show favoritism considering her popularity (chen chen la hy^{*} – be accepting and tolerant, showing compassion toward her, conveying ‘Grace, Grace!’).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 4:7)

Should this be Political, Religious, or Geographic Babylon, there is Capitol Hill in America, the Vatican above all in Rome, and claims to the Temple Mount among Muslims. They all believe that they hold the high ground and that their claims are lofty and important.

Not so much in God’s eyes because He is going to level them. It is what happens when a person who is standing against Him dissolves, turning into goo. Those who have questioned what is agreeable and straightforward will be flatlined – reduced in dimensions such that they only exist in time.

The capstone of Christianity is the New Testament. The cornerstone of Judaism is the Babylonian Talmud. For Americans, it is their claims of superiority and manifest destiny – the right to meddle in everyone’s lives. For Muslims, it is “Allahu Akbar!” – The absurd notion that Allah is greater, bigger, older, and more capable than the Black Stone of the Kaaba. Confronting what they have come to represent with the truth, the Witnesses will reduce them to rubble.

To consume the fruit of Babylon is to be confused, the result of intermixing the Lord’s seeds with those conveyed by Yahowah. In the presence of Babel, men and women are misled. To be “ba Bel – with the Lord” is to be estranged from Yah. Man’s only hope is to come out of her before it is too late.

This “leveling out” is spoken of in the prophets. A voice calls out to make straightforward the approach to Yahowah. The monoliths which have emerged out of Babylon will be toppled. With the capstone removed, the edifice will fall. But even then, those who prefer lies to the truth, religion over a relationship with God, will cry.

To their last breath, there will be tashu^{ah} | deceitful and destructive shouts which are devastatingly ruinous, worthless and falsified, clamoring. The religious and political will say, “Show favoritism considering her popularity.” Out of their minds, the faithful will shout: “chen chen la hy^{}* – show some respect and be accepting and tolerant.” The masses will not like the “hateful” rhetoric brought to bear against Christianity, Judaism, Islam, and Progressives by the Witnesses. While I loved every word spoken by ElYah*, the world will be enraged by his style. Yada will be similarly received.

In the battle between Yahowah and the Lord, shouts of, “Grace, Grace!” will not prevail. The Manowrah does not shine on behalf of the wicked. It is only by coming out of Babylon that something positive is possible. But even then, we must stay the course and be appropriately guided and motivated to prevail...

“Then (wa) the Word (dabar) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH) came to exist (hayah) inside of me (el any), saying (*la amar), (Zakaryah Zechariah 4:8) ‘The actions (yad – the hand) of Zerubabel | the Seed of Babylon (Zerubabel – sowing the seeds of confusion by commingling, being of Babylon and with the Lord) established a foundation (yasad – laid a base for construction) for the House (ha beyth ha zeh) but under his influence (*wa yad huw) it would come to a violent end, as he was greedy for an unjust gain (*batsa – it would be broken apart and torn down, ceasing to exist).

And therefore (wa), you will know (*yada – you will come to realize and acknowledge, even understand) that (ky) Yahowah (YaHoWaH) of the spiritual messengers (*tsaba) has sent me to you (*shalach *any *el atem). (Zakaryah 4:9)

Because why (ky my) deride and show contempt (buwz – scorn and disrespect) for this insignificant day (la yowm qatan – the contribution of those who are unimportant), when you can delight in seeing (*wa samach wa ra*ah*) the plumb line (eth ha eben badyl) in the hand of Zerubabel (ba yad Zerubabel)?

These seven (sheba el leh) eyes (ayn*) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH), they (hem) roam (shuwt) throughout the entire Land (*ba kol ha erets).” (Zakaryah / Yahowah’s Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 4:10)

Zakaryah was a prophet, not a reporter, so announcing the completion of the second Temple was hardly news – and certainly not going to validate his credentials. But what was prophetic and validating, especially with a copy of this prophecy dating to the 2nd century BCE, is that in 70 CE, as foretold, the House of Yahowah “*batsa – came to a violent end as a result of those greedy for an unjust gain. It would be broken apart and torn down, ceasing to exist.” The prophecy was fulfilled.

What Yahowah appears to be saying is that we should not be bothered that He used the likes of Zerubabel and his priests, along with their amalgamation of religious and political cohorts to rebuild the Temple that the Babylonians had torn down. There simply weren’t any good guys to work with or through. Further, what they were building would be misused by Yahuwdym and then ripped apart by Rome – the seed of Babylon. They took its riches to fund the construction of their abhorrent Colosseum. It was just part of the drama as the Beast of Babylon was evolving through Persia to Greece, onto Rome, and then to Roman Catholicism. Therefore, we should see the humor, or at least the irony, in the Seed of Babylon holding the plumb line for what the Babylonians destroyed. The seven eyes of Yahowah roaming the Land seem to attest to this. God was aware of what was going to happen, so He watched as the world devolved to the precipice of self-annihilation.

As for Zakaryah, he was still stuck on finding an answer to his initial question: why were there two olive trees?

“It was then that I interjected (wa anah* – so I responded), and asked of him (wa amar* el huw), ‘Who are these two olive trees (mah shanaym ha zaythym ha el leh*) on the right (al yamyn*) of the Manowrah (Manowrah – the gleaming lampstand) and on the left of it (wa al samowl hy)?’ (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah 4:11)

And then I made a second request (wa anah sheny*) and asked (wa amar*) of him (el huw), ‘Who are these two (mah shanaym) stems (shibboleth – sprigs, speaking of smaller shoots off of the main branch) of the olive trees (ha zaythym) which (asher*) are within reach (ba yad – are beside) of the two (shanaym) golden (ha zahab) pipes (tsantarowth – conduits to transport oil to feed the lamps) pouring forth (ha ryq) from out of them (min al ehem) that which is golden (ha zahab – brilliant and shimmering, valuable and desirable)?’” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 4:12)

Zakaryah understood the metaphor of the Manowrah and appreciated the symbolism of the olive trees. He wanted to know why there were two, and he wanted to ascribe names to them so that they were properly identified. In the process, the prophet offered some useful insights. He inferred that the operative portions of these olives were “shibboleth – smaller stems off of the main branch.” And that is to say that they were “choteresque.” Further, they were near the source of olive oil, within reach of the two golden conduits – one to Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym and the other to Taruw^oah, Kipurym, and Sukah. As a result, that which was “ha zahab – brilliant and valuable” would flow out of them. This is to say that the Spirit would inspire them to speak the Word of Yahowah with competence and authority.

“And so (wa) he replied to me (amar *el any), by asking (la amar*), ‘Even now, you do not know Yada and realize (ha lo yada*^o – do you not recognize and appreciate) who these are (mah el leh*)?’

Again (wa) I answered (amar*), ‘No, sir (lo adony*).’
(Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 4:13)

So (wa), he said (amar*), ‘They are (el leh*) the two (shanaym) sons (beny – offspring and progeny, the beneficiaries) of the olive oil and thus the anointed ones (ha ytsahar – olive oil for light and anointing oil) who stand present (amad*) before (al*) Yahowah (Yahowah – the proper pronunciation of YaHoWaH, our elowah* – God as directed in His ToWRaH – teaching regarding His HaYaH – existence and our ShaLoWM – restoration) for everyone on Earth (kol ha erets*).’” (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 4:14)

This would make them – ElYah* and Yada – children of the Spirit and the beneficiaries of the anointed Mashyach, Dowd. They will be present and standing before Yahowah, serving as witnesses for everyone throughout the Land.

As an interesting aside, three years ago, I was sitting at my desk, completing a translation, and preparing for the Shabat Towrah Study on Yada Yah Radio. My fiancé at the time, my wife today, asked, “So what’s going to happen to Asher (our Labrador puppy) after the upcoming Harvest?”

Good question, so I asked Yah, “Can we bring her with us?” To which He said, “Where do you think you are going? Why do you think I named one of the two witnesses and then provided all of these clues regarding the other?”

But little did I know at the time, just how prophetic Yahowah's answer would be. This is because, while I'll be leaving briefly on Shabu^wah, I will be returning shortly thereafter to fulfill this role. And then on Taru^wah, I'm not going anywhere. I have been asked to sacrifice my life for the surviving remnant of Yisra^el to prepare them to meet Yahowah and Dowd.

The years following 2026, and especially between 2030 and 2033, will be horrific beyond our current comprehension, as mankind devolves toward the abyss. At the end of it, there will be a light for some and eternal darkness for others. The decisions you make now with the information which has been made available to you will determine the outcome of your soul.

From one breath to the next, turning the page from the 4th to 5th chapters of Zakaryah, we go from the sons of the anointed standing before Yahowah to this...

“Then I turned (wa shuw^b) and lifted my eyes (wa nasa^{} *ayn any) and saw (wa ra^{}ah*), right there (hineh), a flying (uwph*) scroll (magilah). (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 5:1)

He said to me (*wa *amar *el any), ‘What do you see (*mah atah ra^{}ah*)?’

I answered (*wa amar), ‘I see (ra^{}ah*) a flying (uwph*) scroll (magilah). Its length (orek hy^{}) is twenty cubits, which is 30 feet (eserym ba ha amah – 9.1 meters), and its width was ten cubits, or 15 feet (wa rochab hy^{} *eser ba ha amah).’ (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 5:2)

He said to me (*wa *amar *el any), ‘This is the consequence of breaking the binding agreement (zo^{}th ha alah – this is the curse of Alah, and the sanctions, for having invoked this recompense of God) which extends (yatsa^{} –* which is brought forth) over the face of the entire Earth (al paneh kol ha erets).

This is because (ky) everyone (kol) who takes away from this or deceives regarding it (*ha ganab min zeh kamow huw – who removes any aspect of what it says or what it offers the rightful owners by trying to outwit the heirs or cheat them out of their Father’s Garden; from gan – garden and ab* – Father) will be banished and forced to endure eternity elsewhere (naqah), while everyone (wa kol) who swears an oath of allegiance (*shaba) will also be swept away and banished (min zeh naqah – and forced to endure elsewhere, cut off and purged from the living).” (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 5:3)

Coinciding with the arrival of the two Witnesses, either Yahowah’s Towrah will be revealed for all to see – and read, or God will be lifting up the Choter’s Nes | Banner as promised previously in *Yasha*yah* 11. Accompanied by God’s explicit endorsement, while miraculously held aloft, there will be no excuses. Passing God’s test for Covenant participation at this time will not be difficult because it remains an open book.

That said, we should expect the worst. God’s word will be no more popular tomorrow than it is today. The secular and sectarian will lash out against it, degrading and demeaning it. Many will seek to negate its promises to God’s people. Others, like New Testament Christians and Talmud-toting Jews will claim that they have changed it. And by so doing, they will have earned their fate.

The United Nations will, no doubt, call the scroll a violation of international law and denounce Yahowah’s occupation of the skies above Al-Haram al-Sharif. Haredi rabbis will insist that HaShem is in violation of the Talmud for having entered the sacred Temple Mount without the requisite approvals and the ashes of a red heifer. Christians will call it a sign of the Apocalypse and blame the Antichrist for the affront to their faith. Jordan will lodge a formal complaint, insisting that the site is under Hashemite control and God is changing the status quo. And at the very least, we should expect 100,000 screaming Progressives from Tel Aviv to block access to the Mount, adamant that the scroll is undemocratic.

Each week that it flies in the skies above the city, the Jerusalem Post will publish a popularity poll, contending that if elections were held today, G-d would lack the votes to form a coalition. The High Court will, of course, forbid it, as unreasonable. Elsewhere, someone will protest that its presence is exasperating climate change. And the Conspiratorialists will shriek that it is a nefarious Jewish plot to control the world by eradicating Gentiles. So at least someone will be partially right.

The two Witnesses will find it reassuring, as will those who listen to them. So, it will have its intended effect. It will inspire those seeking to know Yahowah and leave those who prefer religion and politics muttering nonsensical platitudes.

This next line affirms that God will be engaged in support of the Witnesses and active in the lives of His people. He is committing 25 centuries in advance to extending the scroll, drawing His people out of harm's way via another *Yatsa | Exodus, just as He had done 3,478 years previously...

“I will contribute to it and extend it (yatsa hy – I will bring out the scroll),’ prophetically declares (*na*um*) Yahowah (YaHoWaH) of the vast array of spiritual messengers (*tsaba).

‘Then (wa), it will come upon the house (bow el beyth – it will pursue the home) of the deceiver and thief (ganab – the one attempting to remove some aspect of it or steal the heir's inheritance) and the house (*wa el beyth) of the one who swears an oath of allegiance (*shaba) in My name or using My reputation (*ba shem any) which is deceptive and misleading (sheqer – which is false or mistaken, untrue or wrong).

Then it will remain in the midst of this house (wa lyn ba *tawek beyth huw) and consume it (*wa kalah huw – completely destroy it such that it ceases to exist), from the timbers to the stones (eth ets huw wa *eth *eben huw).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 5:4)

I am encouraged by the juxtaposition of the words on the scroll Yahowah is extending and how it will impact the deceivers of this day, particularly those who have pilfered the things which belong to the Covenant Family – and especially to our King and God – including His beloved name. The religious, political, and conspiratorial falsely claim to speak in the name and reputation of God while deceiving and misleading many. And so, the state houses, houses of worship, and social media edifices they have built will be destroyed, from timbers to stones, rooves to foundations.

Early on, Yahowah told all who would listen that those who curse Yisra*el will be cursed in return. So, this is God doing what He has promised.

It is telling, with nearly two billion Muslims hell-bent on killing Jews while invading Yisra*el, that they will be cursed as a result of their belief in Allah. Having reordered the Quran chronologically, then having set it into the context of Muhammad’s life as was revealed in the Hadith, I was able to prove that Allah is Satan, making this result all the more apropos.

Of great importance, we should expect a literal fulfillment of these prophecies. And thus, with the arrival of the two Witnesses in Abyb 2030, either an enormous copy of the Towrah, Naby*, wa Mizmowr will be unfurled, portions of these books I have written for this moment will scroll, or the YAHOWAH Blog cohosted with *ElYah will be broadcast for all to see. Everything will become compelling and clear, vivid and convicting, presenting a contrast between black or white, wrong or right, the curses imposed or the benefits received.

Having had some time to contemplate Yahowah’s commitment to stretch out a scroll above the Witnesses on the Temple Mount, I've compared this to His insistence that we go from writing to talking to His people on this occasion. It is obvious that He was right because, not only is the spoken word more compelling than text, today, both can be combined, recorded, and broadcast making the YAHOWAH BLOG the ideal format to scroll above the Mount and garner everyone's undivided attention.

From a personal viewpoint in the here and now from the perspective of one of Yahowah's Witnesses, I have recently exposed a ganab | deceiver and thief hellbent on misappropriating and counterfeiting my message. In the process, she has robbed those who have sworn an oath to her of their inheritance. And she has even misrepresented Yahowah's name to mislead the unwary into believing that there is evidence of a Spiritual Mother in God's shem. And so, while all of this fits the one trying to counterfeit the Choter like a cheap glove, as we move on through this prophecy, it will become evident that the Mal*ak is addressing bigger prey.

Up to this point, there have been three potential outcomes for human souls; life with Yahowah, eternity in She*owl, or death – with these souls ceasing to exist. At this point, it appears that there will be no middle ground. Everyone will be deemed to be with Yahowah and His people or against them. As such, anyone who attempts to discount the Towrah or misappropriate what belongs to Yisra*el will be banished to an eternity in She*owl. The cost of dishonesty now, especially regarding Yahowah, will be a long stay in Hell.

The timing of up-or-down and no-in-between seems to coincide with the arrival of the two Witnesses and the unfurling of the Scroll. And it is telling that the Word of God will literally consume those who remain deceptive. And it will be spoken by His Witnesses.

“Then the Spiritual Messenger (*wa ha mal*ak*) who had come forth to productively bring out and serve (*yatsa – who was extended and brought forth for the exodus (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular)), the one talking with me (*ha dabar ba any – the one speaking to me), he said to me (*wa *amar *el any), ‘You should choose to lift up your eyes and elevate your perspective (nasa na* *ayn atah – raise your appearance and understanding (qal imperative)) to be perceptive as a witness and perceive (*wa ra*ah* – look at, consider, and examine) who is the one being brought forth, why this has been extended, when and where this exodus is occurring, even what is being produced through this process (mah ha yatsa ha zo*th*)?’” (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 5:5)

Over the course of thirty years there will be three Witnesses who will come forth to serve Yisra*el, leading them to the Promised Land during the third and final *Yatsa | Exodus. The first of the three guides chronologically will be Yada. And while he began on Taruw*ah in 2001, the first couple of years were devoted entirely to protecting Yisra*el from the diabolical curse of Islam. Overall, the Choter will serve for 25 years prior to fulfilling the Shabuw*ah Qatsyr. All the while, his mission is to call God’s people out of Babylon – where religion and politics are institutionalized to beguile and control.

On the 14th of *Abyb in 2030 / year 5997 Yah, Yada will be joined by *ElYah. Over the next 3½ years the final Witnesses will be aided and abetted by Yahowah’s direct intervention as they pummel the last vestiges of satanic and human babel in the forms of religion, politics, militancy, and conspiracy – all while conveying the most essential aspects the Towrah’s Guidance.

This will continue for 42 months, through Taruw*ah in 2033 / Saturday, September 24th, 2033, at which time *ElYah will orchestrate Yada’s sacrifice as the *Adamah Parah. With the final remnant purged of their religious and political guilt, the Adulterous Woman will be prepared for her betrothal to her returning King, Dowd, with reconciliation occurring ten days later on Yowm Kipurym. And with the Firstborn Son’s arrival, the ultimate Witness of God’s love will have arrived.

Since everything Zakaryah was being shown pertains to the Witnesses and the events that transpire after their arrivals, the eyphah* | basket of questionable associations containing the world's wickedness represents the Whore of Babylon.

“And so I said (wa amar*), ‘Who, what, why, and when is this (mah hy*)?’ And he said (wa amar*), ‘This is a basket of questionable associations (eyphah* – a measure of grain presented as an interrogatory questioning what it represents and where it came from (feminine singular)) that is being brought forth (ha yatsa* – that is being extended).’ Then he said (wa amar*), ‘This is their outward appearance (zo*th ayn hem* – this is the perception of them, their witness, and understanding) throughout the entire Earth (ba kol ha erets* – in all the land).” (Zakaryah / Zechariah 5:6)

The Momma Goddess Cult of Leprous Hornets mimicking Miryam is seeking to discredit Yahowah's chosen Witness by claiming that this basket contains Leah, my wife. But, that is as senseless as everything else they have postured. The figurative female in the Basket of Questionable Associations appears around the world and is hugely influential, so this cannot be Leah since she is an extreme introvert. But is it possible that she represents the rebellious and contentious psychopath that has viciously attacked her? To this point, she hasn't progressed beyond counterfeiting and corrupting my translations and insights to disparage my translations and insights. And out of my shadow, she is the dimmest flicker of a lightning bug lost in a fog compared to the sun on the clearest of days.

Although, the Whorish Spirit Mom has some talent for flittering about. She has vociferously insisted that she is the gowzal of *Bare*syth* / Genesis 15:9 even after I told her that the gowzal was a thieving and vicious bird torn away for being too immature and ill-prepared to have a nest of her own and so is passed over, separated, and destroyed. More to this point, Yahowah referred to Miryam as a vicious hornet whose ambitions He pulverized. So, we may be getting a two for one in this prophecy from the *Mal*ak* | Spiritual Messenger...

“Behold (wa hineh – now look closely and pay attention), there was someone with a talent for flittering around like either a bird or flying insect about to be pulverized (*kikar owphereth – there was a round cover; from karar – that which whirls around and dances about and owph* – a fowl creature or winged insect that flies around and then flits away, as well as aphar* – to be pulverized and cast out as dusty rubbish) who was carried off (*nasa – was lifted away (nifal – this flittering individual, bird, or insect carries out and receives the action of being removed in a participle form – dramatic manner)) representing a singular woman (*wa zo*th *ishah echad) who was residing and remaining in the midst (yashab ba tawek – such that she was staying in the middle (qal participle)) of the basket of questionable substance (eyphah* – of the measure of what is dubious and disputed conveyed as an interrogatory pondering what it represents and from where it came).”
(Zakaryah / Zechariah 5:7)

If you are wondering whether both are possible, that the woman representing the wickedness of the world could be describing the Whore of Spirit Mom in addition to the Whore of Babel, probably not. And yet it is common for Yahowah to weave clues into His prophecies that humor Him and entertain the one who unpacks them. And in this case, turnabout is fair play since the modern-day imposter projected her faults on my wife in the process of trying to steal my identity using this very prophecy. It was highly unethical.

“He said (*wa amar), ‘This is the result of inappropriate ethics and collaborative, conspiratorial guilt (*zo*th ha risha*ah* – this is the criminality and wrongdoing of the vexing and condemnable wickedness).’

So, he threw that which was associated with her (*shalak eth hy – he cast her accordingly) toward the middle (el tawek) of the vessel of questionable affiliations (eth ha eyphah – the measure of grain as an interrogatory questioning what this represents)). Then he hurled (wa shalak – so he threw) a stone (eth eben) toward the mouth of this foul creature (*ha *owphereth el peh hy – to the orifice of the winged insect; owph – the fowl-like creature or flying insect about to be aphar* – pulverized as dust, ashes, and rubbish).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 5:8)

While there are many skanks, including the one who gave birth to the God Mother to conceive a conspiracy, the one being assailed here is the Whore of Babylon. She is the one who prostitutes herself through religion and politics, making special appearances to appease the conspiratorial and militant. She is the spirit of Christmas and Easter, Ramadan and Asherah Day, May Day and Halloween. She dwells in the Christian Church as Mary, from Maryam, meaning continuous, embittered, and rebellious – the Queen of Heaven and the Mother of God.

And while this is assuredly true, every attestation against her speaks of the one who was willing to destroy the Choter’s effectiveness for God and His people for personal acclaim. In addition to being a ganab | deceiver and thief misappropriating and counterfeiting the Choter’s witness, beyond robbing those who have sworn an oath to her of their inheritance, even in addition to misrepresenting Yahowah’s name, she is a conspirator without ethics. Further, as a Crag, I am the stone Dowd has flung from his sling into the mouth of this foul creature.

Beyond the slander and misrepresentation that I’ve had to personally endure and overcome to prevail in God’s mission, over the years I have been the most prolific and effective slayer of Babylonian Whores. Twistianity, God Damn Religion, and Babel are testimony of words wisely wielded to emphatically denounce Christianity, Islam, and Judaism, Israel’s deadliest foes and the Whore’s preeminent schemes. In addition to Dowd, I have hurled tens of thousands of stones to smash the narratives of the religions abusing God’s people. More than anyone before me, I have bruised this Whore.

As the vision of Babylon’s demise plays out before our eyes, we are left to ponder the identity of the two women who have been given the honor of disposing of her. The best option is Sarah, the mother of the Covenant's first child. Second unto her would be Leah, the mother of Yahuwdym and much of Yisra^{*}el – even my Leah since she has had to endure the rage of the psychotic whore who has been so vicious toward her using this very prophecy to condemn her. Of course, there are also Ruth and Deborah.

“I raised my eyes (wa nasa^{} *ayn any) and I saw that behold (wa ra^{}ah wa hineh*), there were two women (*shanaym ishahym) coming out (yatsa^{}*) with the spirit (wa ruwach) in their wings (ba kanaph hem). And they were now present there (wa la henah) with wings like the wings (kanaph ka kanaph) of a godly stork or heron (ha chasydah – of a faithful and merciful one who is set apart and special to God depicted symbolically as an elegant bird).

And they lifted up and carried (wa nasa^{}*) that which pertains to the basket of dubious contents (eth ha eyphah) between the Earth (*byn erets) and between the heavens for understanding (wa byn ha shamym).” (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 5:9)

Regardless of the identity of the Evil Woman or the godly ones who escort her back to Babylon, it's good riddance. And based upon the vision, we have every reason to think Yahowah will dramatize her exit in the skies above Jerusalem.

“So I said to the Spiritual Messenger (*wa *amar *el ha mal*ak*), the one who talked with me (*ha dabar ba any), ‘When, where, and for how long (an*) are they traveling (halak) with that which is associated with the basket of questionable associations (eth ha eyphah – with the measure of grain in the form of an interrogatory questioning what this represents and from where it came)?” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 5:10)

By using eyphah* to depict the vessel in which this foul woman is constrained, we realize that she is taking a measure of grain with her, representing lost souls. And this household of religious, political, and conspiratorial malcontents are being taken to Babylon – which is a very long way from Yisra^{*}el or Shamaym. The Whore of Babel will be the Mother God of a Family of Babelers.

“And he said to me (*wa *amar *el any), ‘To establish (banah – to construct by building (qal infinitive construct – to actually fashion for a protracted period of time in a demonstrable manner)) a household (beyth) for her (*la hy) in the land (*ba erets) of Shin^{}ar* | between the Two Rivers of Babylon (Shin^{}ar* – an ancient name for Chaldea, Babylonia, and Mesopotamia in the alluvial plain between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers from which Abraham and Sarah had come and Yitschaq, Esaow, Yaaqob, Leah, Rachael, and the Children of Yisra^{}el were related (one of the regions from which the remnant of Yisra^{*}el will be recovered)).

When it necessitates being fashioned and formed (wa kuwn – when he is compelled to erect it (hofal perfect third-person masculine singular – the subject is compelled and the object is forced into this at this very moment)), then, by necessity, it will be set down and remain there spiritually with no option for any alternative (wa nuwach sham – they will be forced to place and leave it there without it having any say in the matter (hofal perfect third-person feminine singular) upon its base (*makownah hy – its fixed and final resting place which is foundational to it).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 5:11)

It is the Covenant of the Damned.

While Yahowah and His Witnesses are calling a remnant of Yisra^{}elites out of Babylon, the Whore and her enablers are being removed from Yisra^{}el. And there, in their proper places, they will remain – never to interact with Yisra^{*}el again. A double dose of the exceedingly rare and highly restrictive hofal stem is evidence of that the duplicitous woman and her harem are out of options. They have rolled snake eyes on their last toss of the dice.

It goes without saying for anyone not tainted by the Mother Goddess Cult that this prophecy isn't condemning Leah, my wife. Although much of it paints a very dark picture for the Leprous Hornet and her Nest. She wanted to find herself in the Towrah and Prophets, and indeed, she has.

Merkabah ~ Chariots

I am grateful that Yahowah will deal with the Whore of Babylon, thereby successfully refuting the mean-spirited attacks directed at my wife by the conspiratorial cult seeking credulity by scalping her and wearing me. The religious and political stench will be removed from Yisra^el, just as the rebellious and leprous Miryam was sent away.

In what we might expect to be in chronological order, after flying the banner above Jerusalem and ridding the City of Dowd of the Whore of Babylon, we witness the vision of the four horsemen...

“I returned (wa shuwb), and I elevated my perceptions, lifting my eyes (wa nasa^eayn^e any*) and I looked (wa ra^aah), and behold (wa hineh), four (arba^e*) chariots (merkabah – riders in vehicles) coming forth (yatsa^e) from between (min bayn) the two mountains (shanaym ha harym). And these mountains (wa ha harym) were hills of brassy copper and bronze (harym nachosheth – of a reddish hue; from nachash – of diligent observation used to foretell future events).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 6:1)

This must be from whence the author of Revelations drew his inspiration for the “four horsemen of the apocalypse.” And while there are the same number and color, that is where the resemblance ends. Over the course of this review of Zakaryah 6, you will come to appreciate their intent for the first time.

While flying spiritual chariots would otherwise be purely symbolic, with all of the signs and wonders in the skies above Yaruwshalaim prior to Dowd’s arrival with Yahowah, the allegorical is likely also actual. And in this light, the mountains aren’t made of metal, Mount of Olives and Moriah are basking in a brassy copper and bronze hue, colored as they are by the long warm rays of the late afternoon sun on Taruw^oah.

“With the chariot (wa ba merkabah) that was the first and foremost (*ha ri*shown*), the flying stallions were red (*ha suws adom – the horses as swift swallows were ruddy and bloody colored representing the *Adamah Parah and Man of the Earth who comes out of ‘Edom).

With the chariot (wa ba merkabah) that was second (ha sheny), the airborne horses were black (ha suws shachar – the stallions as swift swallows were swarthy and dark skinned). (Zakaryah / Remember Yah / Zechariah 6:2)

With the chariot (wa ba merkabah) that was third (ha shalyshy), the flying steeds were white (ha suws laban – the stallions as swift swallows were purifying and illuminating).

With the chariot (wa ba merkabah) that was fourth (*ha raby*iy*), the winged horses were dappled and splotchy (ha suws barod – the stallions as swift swallows were speckled as if covered in hailstones), flesh colored while strong and stout (amots* – physically robust and powerful, also piebald). (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 6:3)

And so I responded, replying to (*wa anah) the Spiritual Messenger (*mal*ak* – heavenly representative and envoy), and I said to the heavenly representative (*wa *amar *el ha mal*ak*) who had spoken with me (*ha dabar ba any), ‘What are these, sir (*mah *eleh adowny)?’” (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 6:4)

The superficial implication is that red is for war, black is death, white is life, and dappled flesh represents those caught in between. But that isn’t so with the *ri*shown* | first and foremost steed. This conclusion is based upon three factors: 1) the adom* does not leave Yaruwshalaim, and wars by this time will be enveloping the world. 2) The adom* is presented similarly to the adamah Parah* | the Bloody Red Man of the Earth who is Productive who will, at this moment be sacrificing his life in Yaruwshalaim. And 3) Yahowah is bringing His most treasured from around the world to the Choter so that he can prepare them for Dowd's return.

As we move into the explanation, we quickly discover that the Spiritual Charioteers are Yahowah's implements as He scours the world for survivors and Sukah entrants. The black and white nature of the second and third, with one following the other, represents the life and death consequence of accepting the conditions of the Covenant.

In this regard, they are dispatched from shamaym which is "the Spiritual Realms" of Yahowah and His Home in "the Heavens." Therefore, while al* can be "over" or "before," since it is addressing the Upright One, it is revealing that the chariots will be dispatched before Dowd's arrival. And in this light, even though we can render the object of the appearance as adown* | lord or edown* | upright one, since this is a reference to our returning King, we know which rendering was intended. Therefore, it's clear to me that Yahowah is deploying all four ruwach for the benefit of His people.

"The Mal'ak answered (wa anah ha mal'ak), and he said to me (wa amar *el any), 'These are the four Ruwach | Spirits (eleh araba ruwach*) of Shamaym | the Spiritual Realms of the Heavens (ha shamaym) coming out and going forth (*yatsa) for the reason of (min) taking a stand to be present (yatsab – to appear unaffected by any other influence (hitpael infinitive)) before (al*) the Upright One (edown* – the Established Foundation and Pillar) of all the Earth (*kol ha erets)." (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 6:5)

While it is uncomfortable to perceive our world this way, the simple truth is that Yahowah has withdrawn and Satan has made the most of his opportunity, becoming the Lord of the Earth. However, this is the moment of Dowd's return as King, which would cast the edown* as the Upright Pillar and our Foundation. The Son of God is claiming what is rightfully his. This is, therefore, Satan's swan song. And so we should see all four Ruwach yatsab | taking a stand such that they are present and accounted for at this most critical juncture in human history. We are just ten days removed from the Great Day of Yahowah – Yowm Kipurym 6000 Yah.

Therefore, just before Dowd’s Homecoming, on the Shabat of Taruw^{ah}, the Spiritual Chariots with Black and White flying steeds will canvass the Earth, galloping north initially to determine who among Yisra^{el}ites lives or dies. And while those gathered in the White Chariot will be brought to Yaruwshalaim to be bathed in the restoring waters and purified in the searing flames associated with the Red Heifer, these Yahuwdym are not yet ready to receive their King and live in the presence of God.

One of the reasons we know this to be true is that tsaphown means “treasured,” and no one is valued above Yisra^{el}. And even when we consider that tsaphown also implies north of Jerusalem, it would include all of Europe and most of America, excluding only Florida, Hawaii, and parts of Louisiana and Texas. And even then, all we are told is that they depart to the north, so from there, they will likely turn west and circle the Earth prior to their return from the east into the City of Dowd. And this is particularly important because it means that the sacrifice of the ^{*}Adamah Parah will benefit every Jew on the planet who is receptive to dropping their prior religious and political baggage.

The dappled flying stallions will also canvass the Earth at this time, but more on them in a moment...

“For the benefit of the relationship (^{*}asher), with her (ba hy^{}* – through or with her), the airborne horses that are black (ha suws ha shachar – the stallions or swift swallows that are swarthy and dark skinned) will be dispatched toward (yatsa^{} el*) the realm (^{*}erets) where the treasured are hidden (tsaphown) while the white ones (wa ha laban) go out pursuing their exodus by withdrawing them after this (yatsa^{} el ^{}achar hem). Then the speckled and dappled ones (wa ha barod – the splotchy) will be sent off toward (yatsa^{} el*) the realm (^{*}erets) of the left hand (teyman).” (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 6:6)

Every Yahuwd and Yisra*elite on the planet who can be redeemed will be returned supernaturally to Yaruwshalaim. Those who cannot, will be put out of their misery, and ours. This will be the end of Judaism. The final exodus will be complete. The Homecoming awaits.

As for the speckled steeds, their mission isn't of the essence, and there is no time crunch, so they can be systematic and diligent. They are being dispatched to evaluate the remaining gowym, visiting the undecided. Their mission will be to determine who among the nations will be allowed to enter the millennial celebration of Sukah as the servants of tomorrow. And so, while the mortal remnant of Yisra*el is in the process of being cleansed and prepared by the *Adamah Parah, a significant cadre of gowym who are deemed fit to serve God's People will be spared for this purpose. Their souls will be searched to determine that they are not overtly political, religious, conspiratorial, or militant such that they can be of continuing value.

Should you be among the few who are uncomfortable with the idea of God returning to prior form and conducting the final *Yatsa | Exodus supernaturally, this time with winged stallions flying Spiritual Chariots out of Heaven and around the Earth, what is the alternative? By the conclusion of the Time of Israel's Troubles, there will be nothing but corruption and chaos, economic collapse and world war. Do you expect estranged Jews to book a flight or catch a cruise out of the Holocaust? And should the impossible be possible at this late hour, who would be responsible for separating the right from the wrong, allowing those receptive to a relationship to travel while precluding the overtly political and religious?

Are you comfortable with Yahowah removing the Islamic scars from His Temple Mount, erecting a replica of the Tent of the Restoring Witness, bringing *ElYah back, protecting those speaking for Him, flying the gargantuan scroll, releasing the cleansing waters, igniting the searing flames, purging His people of their guilt, incinerating and washing away the trash, terraforming the scorched Earth so that we can camp out in Eden, and return with His Son as brilliant as the sun, but not gather His people miraculously at a time when the supernatural is natural?

Should you be on the opposite end of this spectrum, and wonder why God didn't perform signs and wonders all along, the answer should also be obvious. It wouldn't have made a difference and may have actually desensitized His people. Do you recall how the Children of Yisra^{el} responded after the miraculous imposition of the ten plagues, their release from slavery, the parting of the seas, the glowing summit of Choreb, and the presence of His brilliant light and booming voice in their presence? Pursuant to this future necessity during the ensuing time of scrutiny, we are told...

“When the flesh colored and particularly robust ones (*wa ha amots – the physically stout and piebald) emerge to withdraw (*yatsa), they will search diligently (wa baqash – they will account for by thoroughly investigating and inquiring) by methodically walking and traveling (la halak la halak) through the Earth (*ba ha erets).

And he said (*wa amar), ‘Journey about, diligently moving (halak halak) throughout the Earth (*ba ha erets). And so they walked (halak) through the Earth (*ba ha erets).’” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 6:7)

Every new layer of knowledge underscores the original assessment, as does what follows. During this time of the adom* | red steed, which is when the Adamah Parah* is sacrificing himself as the *Zeh Bow*Min Edowm* | One Coming from Edom dressed in adom* | red to save a great many, there will be a final search and recovery mission for beneficiaries. It will be conducted among the tsaphown | treasured ones and rendered in black and white. These spiritual steeds will search the world for the last vestige of Yisra^{el}. And in the process, they will be extinguishing the lives of those who will not live to see Yahowah's return while returning with those who will benefit from the sacrifice of the Red Heifer on this glorious Yowm Taruw^{ah} | Day of the Herald.

Yahowah is stacking the deck in our favor, as is appropriate, doing what He promised through Yasha^{yah} in the 17th chapter of Isaiah. He is exploring the four corners of the world for signs of life to find and retrieve Yahuwdym He and I can restore – which is why the Adom Ruwach* remains.

All the while, the Spiritual Chariot flown by the White Stallions will arrive in Yaruwshalaim | the Source of Directions for Reconciliation with thousands of Yahuwdym | Beloved of Yah. Then, before their wonderous eyes, standing tall on the Temple Mount, with the Tent of the Restoring Witness fluttering in the breeze, eLyah* | Elijah will explain the significance of these events. Right on cue, Yahowah will release the cleansing waters and ignite the soaring flames, so that the ashes of the Man from Edom as the Adamah Parah can restore the once Adulterous Woman of Yisra^{*el} in time for her betrothal to her King. It will be the greatest show on Earth.

Quietly in the background, while this is occurring, the other survey of humankind will be more methodical. The speckled steeds will have been dispatched to determine who among the gowym are suited to work on behalf of God's People. To some extent, this assessment will be made based upon aptitude and attitude, as some skillsets and personalities will be more desirable than others. But the principal determinant will be the lack of any signs of antisemitism, religious affiliation, political involvement, militancy, or conspiracy.

It is particularly gratifying to note that the result of the survey of those God values and has brought home, there will be spiritual contentment and rest...

“Then he cried out to summon me, appealing emotionally to me (*wa za^{aq} *el any – he was sensitive and emotive in his plea, even lamenting, when proclaiming this passionately for me), as he spoke to me (*wa dabar *el any) to say (*la amar), ‘Look, choose to notice (*ra*ah* – you should want to witness (qal imperative) that those dispatched on the exodus (*ha yatsa) to the realm (el erets) of the treasured and hidden (tsaphown), they have set that which is associated with my ruwach | spirit to rest (*nuwach *eth ruwach any) in areas (*ba erets) where the cherished reside (tsaphown).” (Zakaryah / Zechariah 6:8)

There is something unique, very special indeed, about this *Mal*ak* | Spiritual Messenger. Heavenly envoys are normally communicative, but not emotional. They commonly convey the message they have been tasked with delivering, but they don’t typically challenge the listener to examine the allegorical evidence they are presenting such that the prophet is not only encouraged to discern the meaning on their own but also chided when it isn’t quickly deduced. These are human characteristics.

The reason that I bring this to your attention is because I share the *Mal*ak*’s response to this amazing revelation and turn of events. Not only are we the first in 25 centuries to perceive the intent of the four chariots, we are joyous participants in God’s story at this remarkable moment in time. And for the first time in such a long time, all of the loose ends are being tied together and the final details of Yahowah’s portrait are being revealed. And that is worth celebrating. The appeal is both cerebral and emotional.

Based upon the recalcitrant history of Jews, recognizing how resistant they have been to God, even antagonistic toward Him, telling Yahowah to shut up and go away, it has always been unrealistic to think that after 3400 years of rebellion and denial that they are going to suddenly change, just because the truth has been made available to them. Jews have become the foremost experts at twisting the truth to suit their delusions and no people have ever been as intractable.

So why all of the effort, why the library of Yada Yahowah, YadaYah.com, the thousands of radio interviews, and now the YAHOWAH BLOG replete with all of the posts on social media, if Yahowah knew all of the time that He would have to intervene and send flying Spiritual Chariots to rescue His wayward flock and carry them home? The answers are many and they are profound.

First, Yahowah always works through people, and this is no exception. The only difference here is that He is more personally involved than normal. But this is something we have known ever since He inspired the Choter with His Seven Spirits and then committed to lifting up the Nes | Sign they would compose.

Second, there are no flying Spiritual Chariots prior to the afternoon of Yowm Taruw^{ah} on the Shabat of September 24th, 2033. This means that the Shabu^{ah} Qatsyr and Taruw^{ah} Laqat are cultivated independently of this final and physical ingathering of mortal Yisra^{el}elites.

Third, Yahowah is actually building off of what we have previously achieved. In so doing, God has demonstrated that it has always been possible to know His Shem, appreciate His Son, engage in the Beryth, answer the Miqra^{ey}, and understand the who, where, when, why, and even how of His prophetic discourse. He has given every one of the eight billion people on Earth in possession of a smartphone, computer, or television, access to the truth in a way that is relevant, inspirational, complete, and relatively easy to understand.

Fourth, Dowd deserves this. He has been disrespected and robbed for far too long. Someone needed to correct the record and explain who did what, when, why, and for whom, while also being the first to denounce the counterfeits.

Fifth, Yahowah wants His people protected from the horrible abuse they have suffered from Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. Writing Babel, Twistianity, and God Damn Religion served as a means to that end.

Sixth, without the years of study and contemplation, I would have been inadequately prepared to serve alongside

*ElYah as the final Witness and I would have known nothing about my role at this time and could not have fulfilled it. Further, those witnessing these things would have no frame of reference to understand any of it, which means they could not benefit from it.

Seventh, King Dowd will not rule alone. He will have a Basar | Herald with the requisite experience and acumen to do the job. This would not have been possible without the past 24, going on, 32 years of on-the-job training.

And eighth, it's more enjoyable for God this way. He gets to work with someone who is devoted and loyal to Him, and to His Son, while achieving the results He anticipated. But then to reduce some of the pressure on His Choter, Yahowah is letting Him know that there is a failsafe in the end.

And it should be noted that by collecting additional Yisra*elites from around the world to benefit from the sacrifice of the Adamah Parah, Yahowah isn't suggesting that *ElYah and I failed to deliver an appropriate audience, He's just adding to it, such that my sacrifice is more beneficial, which is an act of great kindness. Further, God is explaining how He will go about the final *Yatsa | Exodus, bringing a world of Yahuwdym to Yahuwdah for the Homecoming.

What's more, since the Yisra*elites comprising the mortal remnant will only have known Yahowah or recognized Dowd for a matter of days, someone is going to have to teach them. And what better way than to have a library filled with books ready for the occasion. Perhaps even better, there will be nearly a thousand hours of the YAHOWAH BLOG prepared and cataloged for their listening pleasure.

No matter how we contemplate what our God has just revealed through His *Mal*ak* | Messenger, this is wonderful and encouraging news. It means that there will be Yahuwdym gathered from around the world to benefit from the sacrifice of the Man Coming Out of Edom as the Red Heifer. In the end, Yahowah finds and delivers the final remnant of His people.

And you haven't heard the half of it yet.

Earlier when I determined that adown* / edown* did not apply to Yahowah but, instead, to Dowd rather than his rival, the Adversary, this next line strongly suggests that I was right. But far more than this, what Yahowah says is among the more reassuring statements we have ever read...

“And then the Dabar | Word (wa dabar) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH – God’s name pronounced as instructed in His ToWRaH | Guidance regarding His HaYaH | Existence) came to exist with me (*hayah *el any) to say (*la amar), (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah 6:9)

‘Grasp hold of and obtain (laqach – receive and collect, select and accept (qal infinitive absolute)) from those associated with (*min eth) the exiles who were forcibly deported (ha gowlah – those who were removed and now must be uncovered, discovered, and found) among (min – out of) Chelday | Mine of the World (chelday – the duration of life on the planet for Me; a compound of cheled – the continuation of the world and any* – Mine), and from among (*wa min eth) TowbYah | the Favored and Agreeable to Yahowah (Towbyah – Yahowah’s Productive and Prosperous, Beneficial and Pleasant), and from those associated with (*wa min eth) Yada•Yah | Yada Yahowah (Yada•yah – to be familiar with, know, understand, and acknowledge Yahowah).

And then you should go (*wa bow) for yourself in the same day (atah ba ha yowm ha huw) and come to and enter (*bow) the house (beyth) of Yo•shyah | those Yahowah Found and Supports (Yo•shyah – of those Yah Buttresses), the Ben Tsaphanyah | Children Yahowah Treasures (ben Tsaphanyah – Yahowah has Valued and Hidden) who, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), have come out of (*bow*min* – have come away and returned from) Babel | Babylon where Commingling Caused Confusion (Babel – Confounding and Intermixing in the Bible by being With the Lord).” (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 6:10)

Yahowah is asking His Spiritual Charioteers to collect, receive, and grasp hold of those who have remained outside of Israel throughout the generations after the Assyrian, Babylonian, Imperial Roman, Roman Catholic, and Islamic deportations. God has explicitly identified those who are important to him. The final Exodus will include Chelday | Mine of the World, TowbYah | Favored and Agreeable to Yah, who Yada Yahowah.

For a man who has labored every waking moment for 24 years to achieve this result, this is sweet music. And to think that Yahowah acknowledged our collaboration through the volumes of Yada Yah, from the books to the website, and from the YAHOWAH BLOG to the many social media accounts, is endearing and appreciated. Thank you.

We are the Beyth | Family *Yo*shyah* | Yahowah Found and Supports. We are Ben Tsaphanyah | the Children Yahowah Treasures. We are those who have heeded His call to come out of Babylon.

What's more, we now live in service to our King, whose crown we will have the honor of making and setting upon his head. There will not be a dry eye in the house...

“Then take some silver and gold (wa laqash keseph wa zahab) and make a crown (asah atarah). You should set it on the head (*wa sym ba ro*sh*) of Yahowsha• | Yahowah Delivers and Saves (Yahowsha•), the Son (ben) who is Yahowtsadaq | Right About Yahowah (Yahowtsadaq – through whom Yahowah Vindicates), the Kohen | Priest (ha kohen) who is Gadowl | the Greatest and Most Important, Recognized and Honored, Capable and Courageous (ha gadowl – intense and distinguished, magnified and praiseworthy).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yah / Zechariah 6:11)

One does not crown priests but we do crown kings. And since we know that our King has dressed as the High Priest when bringing the Ark of the Covenant into the City of Dowd, and because we are aware that he will serve in this role when he returns to anoint the Mercy Seat, this is further affirmation that Dowd is Yahowsha^o ben Yahowtsadaq | Yahowah Delivers the Son who is Right About Yah.

Dowd is the star of the show. He is the reason the audience has been delivered. He is being crowned King of Everywhere and Forevermore. He is the most capable and courageous man to have ever lived, the most recognizable and important in keeping with 2 Shamuw^oel 7.

“Say to him (wa amar el huw), ‘Thus says (la amar koh) Yahowah (YaHoWaH) of the heavenly implements (tsaba^{}), communicating (la amar), “Behold (hineh – look now and see), this individual (ysh* – the man) whose reputation and renown is known as (shem huw – who is named) Tsemach | the Branch (Tsemach – Growth) will branch out and grow in his place (wa min tachath huw^{} tsamach).

And he will build at that moment in time (wa banah – he will reconstruct for the family name (qal perfect third-person masculine singular)) the Residence and Temple and means to endure (eth hykal* – the sanctuary and palace; from yakol – the means to overcome, prevail, persist, and be empowered and capable) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH).”” (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 6:12)

It is as it should be: Dowd is the Tsemach | Branch and his Herald is a Choter | Stem. We have not only come full circle with an ode to the 4th day of Creation with the Greater and Lesser Luminaries serving as signs that the Mow^oedym would be fulfilled, we have returned to the Garden. Dowd is the main Branch of the Tree of Lives and the Tree of Knowledge while I am a stem reaching out from him to be productive at this time. I am as all Covenant Gowym must be – grafted into Yisra^{*}el. And no one is more symbolic of Engaging and Enduring with God than His beloved Son.

And so, it will be. Dowd | David will have the great honor of overseeing the construction of Yahowah’s Residence on Earth upon his return. The man who has been known as the Tsemach | Branch will once again become the catalyst for our growth and Hykal | Empowerment and Enablement such that we persist and endure.

To the uninitiated, it might appear that Yahowah was repeating Himself in this next refrain, but there is a subtle difference between the two statements. Using the perfect conjugation with banah | build initially, God is saying that His Son will construct His Temple upon His return. And with the imperfect shaping the action in the next affirmation, we know that this time, God's Home will endure forevermore.

Our next insight comes by way of howd, where we discover that Yahowah intends for His Son's authority, honor, and glory to be upheld throughout time. This is a Father, doing for His Son as should be expected – while unexpected for God. For the past 6,000 years, man's religions portend that men must lift up their gods in praise. By contrast, the God who made men is demonstrating the opposite. He is glorifying His Son – and so should we.

On multiple occasions, all of which are directed explicitly to Dowd, Yahowah affirms that He has built a home for his throne. And it is Dowd / David who will occupy this prestigious seat of honor forevermore. It is not up for sale or available to steal – as Christians have done.

Beyond this, and while we have seen it before, it is still a bit startling to see Yahowah refer to someone from the House of Yahuwdah serving and adorned as a kohen | priest. But not only has Dowd done so previously, if there ever was an individual suited to do it all, it is the Son who became King, the Shepherd serving as our Savior, the first Prophetic Priest.

This is how we will see our King upon his return...

“And he will build forevermore (wa banah – enduring throughout time, he will reconstruct for the family name (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular)) the Residence to Engage and Endure (eth hykal* – the sanctuary, palace, and temple to prevail and persist; from yakol – the means to overcome, succeed, persevere, and be empowered and made capable) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH).

His authority and countenance, his majesty and splendor (wa huw howd* – honor and glory) will be lifted up and upheld throughout time (*nasa – will be raised and sustained (qal imperfect)). And (wa) he will sit and remain (yashab – he will settle upon and stay, residing) upon his throne (al kise* huw – on his seat of honor and sovereignty).

Then he will govern through his Proverbs (mashal – his dominion will be manifest through brilliant sayings and intelligent comparisons along with pithy quotes, using pictures drawn with words to exercise his authority, showing leadership by explaining things in a memorable way and by leading through understanding).

Additionally (wa), he will be (hayah – he will exist at that moment in time (qal perfect)) dressed as a priest (kohen – adorned in priestly garments while serving as a minister facilitating our ability to comprehend the Mow^{ed}) upon his seat of honor (al kise* huw – on his throne).

Advice and counsel on the complete picture (etsah* – directions regarding how to properly reply to the entire plan, prudent consultation on the purpose of the whole proposal, effective mentoring on how to deliberate relevant decisions) on peace and prosperity, satisfaction and contentment, the blessings of reconciliation and freedom (shalowm) will exist (hayah) to encourage understanding by making the connections between both of these responsibilities (bayn shanaym hem).” (Zakaryah / Zechariah 6:13)

Just as building homes and thrones connects 2 Shamuw^{el} 7 and Zakaryah 6, and as chakmah | wisdom leading to byn | understanding, serve as a bridge between Proverbs 14 and Isaiah 11, here we find two more. It was in his 14th Mashal | Word Picture that Dowd explained his association with the Choter, and it was in the parallel portrait painted by Yasha^oyah that we find that they shared etsah* and gebuwrah.

God's Son will mashal | govern through his Proverbs. And a giant stride in that direction was when he introduced his Choter in Mashal 14. And if you recall, it was after addressing the Spirits of Chakmah and Byn, that Yahowah spoke of providing the Choter with the Ruwach of Etsah* and Gebuwrah. Therefore, to reflect the ultimate Gibowr | Courageous and Competent Man's light, the Choter must be able to adroitly convey his etsah* | advice and counsel.

Therefore, Yahowah inspired Yasha^oyah to affirm that the Productive Stem would receive: “the Spirit (ruwach) of advice and counsel on the complete picture (etsah* – of pertinent directions regarding how to properly reply to the entire plan, providing prudent consultation on the purpose of the whole proposal, delivering effective mentoring on how to deliberate all relevant decisions) and of being emboldened, capable, and inspiring (wa gebuwrah – on how to be a confident and courageous leader who is empowering, able to accomplish the mission and perform until it is complete, providing the aptitude and ability to confirm what is true, unwavering, championing the cause with integrity, always fighting to defend God's people and affirm their rights).”

Like Tsemach, like Choter. And as we have just read, both would be afforded uncommon bayn, of which binah is a derivative. Therefore, Yasha^oyah explained that the Choter would also receive... “the Spirit (ruwach) providing the capacity to comprehend and then teach (chakmah – offering the mental aptitude and wisdom to learn and instruct, to comprehend and communicate, providing the technical expertise to be discerning and educate) while (wa) enabling understanding by making the proper connections to reveal insights (binah – facilitating the propensity to ponder and process information by being perceptive and discerning, discriminating and judgmental, making intelligent associations which lead to a conceptual comprehension).”

And while at different times, and in distinct ways, they would both be purveyors of shalowm | reconciliation, with Dowd offering his means to it during Chag Matsah and Yada^o doing his part on Yowm Taruw^oah.

Yahowah is such a great Dad. More than anything, His Son wanted to build a Home for his Father. He had acquired Mount Mowryah, including the threshing floor of what is known as the Temple Mount, and he had stockpiled the materials. The King's longing to build God's House precipitated the impassioned exchange between the Beloved (Dowd), the Gift (Nathan), and God presented so dramatically in 2 Shamuw^oel 7. It is that prophetic portrayal of a Father's love for His Son that served as the impetus to attract the Choter | Productive Sucker and inspire everything which would follow.

Over the ensuing twenty-four years, we have come to behold and lift up the howd | countenance and authority of Dowd as the Mashyach and Zarowa^o. We have witnessed his special place with Yah, coming to appreciate the honors the Father is affording His Son based upon all he has said and done – particularly in the 89th Mizmowr. The first prophecy translated for Yada Yahowah in Shamuw^oel / He Listens to God / 2 Samuel 7 still guides our steps along the way.

I will never forget the moment. I was pacing in the log cabin I had built along a picturesque whitewater stream, the Jumping Branch, meandering through the woods within my Virginia farm. I had just returned from surviving a meeting with Islamic jihadists in Israel and was attempting to share that experience in Tea with Terrorists. It was as if a limb from one of the towering red and white oaks (alah* in Hebrew) had hit me square in the head as the wind stirred outside the cabin on this cool spring day. No matter which Bible I queried, every translation of 2 Samuel 7 was wrong. And it was then and there that my quest to know the truth, to understand what God actually revealed, began. Twenty-four years have passed and now you are reading the result: Yada Yahowah.

After having translated Shamuw^el / He Listens to God / 2 Samuel 7 eight times, I am excited to read about its fulfillment in Zakaryah's presentation of the events surrounding Yowm Kipurym. I am happy for Yahowah and thrilled for Dowd, even personally fulfilled to be sharing this portrait of their reunion. It is as if I am witnessing the birth of Yada and the conception of Yada Yahowah from the vantage point of where it has all led – to Dowd building Yahowah's Home and then reigning as king.

Yes, Yahowah's promises to His Son will be honored. The prestige of the Tsemach | Branch will grow. His purpose will be upheld, and it is just beginning. The author of the Mashal | Proverbs will govern through them – sharing their parental advice. Dowd will continue to lead through his lyrics. His ongoing narratives will serve to explain the things of God and the universe in such a way that we will be able to make the kind of comparisons which lead to understanding.

It is as we would expect of Yahowah to dress His Son in white linen, in the garments He designed for the priests, the very attire we considered in Zakaryah 3. It is why that story was presented immediately before the revelation of the witnesses and now leads to this affirmation.

Yahowah has upended the religious interpretations and has denied the use of Dowd's identity in the creation of religious gods. Clearly, it is Dowd whom Yahowah has chosen to perform as His Towrah instructs when approaching the Kaporeth | Mercy Seat on Kipurym | Reconciliations on behalf of Yisra^el. That is what this is announcing. That is why we find the Messiah and King “dressed as a priest (kohen – adorned in priestly garments while serving as a minister facilitating our ability to comprehend the Mow^ed) upon his seat of honor (al kise^e huw^e* – on his throne).” Moments like these, with insights like this, are worth celebrating.

Now if I may share another profound insight. The reason Yahowah told Dowd that he would not be permitted to build the initial Home of Yahowah 3,000 years ago is because, “The Word of Yahowah came to me, saying, ‘A great amount of blood you have poured out as you have fought great battles. So, you will not build this House for My name because of the abundance of the blood you have shed in the Land in My presence. Behold, a son shall be born to you who will be a man of repose and relative ease...for Shalown | Solomon shall be his name. Shalown in a more favorable circumstance I will give to Yisra^{el} in this day.’” (1 Chronicles 22:8-9)

With blood on his hands as a result of defending Yisra^{el} from sa^{yr}, chatath, and pasha^o, let’s bayn | make a thoughtful connection to what will occur on Yowm Kipurym. Remember what we were told that the “alternate,” or “stand-in,” would do to facilitate reconciliation?

“Aharown (aharown – the Alternative) should approach (qarab) with the bull (ba par – representing the *Adamah Parah) for being wrong and having missed the way (ha chatath) for his benefit (asher la huw^{}) and for the purpose of reconciliation (wa kaphar – making atonement) through this for himself (ba^oad huw^{}*) and for his house and family (wa ba^oad beyth huw^{}*).

He should take the life of the bull (*wa shachat eth par) as the resolution for having been wrong (ha chatath) for his benefit (asher la huw^{}). (Qara^{}* 16:11) And he should obtain (wa laqach) some of the blood of the bull (min dam ha par) and sprinkle it (wa nazah) with his finger (*ba etsba^o huw^{}) on the face (al paneh) of the Mercy Seat (ha Kaporeth) on the eastern side (qedem – beginning a new day). Then toward the front (wa la paneh) of the Mercy Seat (ha Kaporeth – Place of Reconciliation), he should sprinkle (nazah) some of the blood (min dam) with his finger (*ba etsba^o huw^{}*) seven times (sheba^{} pa^oam* – to uphold the promise). (Qara^{}* / Called Out 16:14)

Next, he should prepare the goat (*wa shachat eth sa^{yr} – representing *ElYah) to provide the means to resolve iniquity and pardon sin for going astray (ha chatath) for the benefit (asher*) of the people (*la ha am) and return (wa bow^{}) with its blood (eth dam huw^{}*) toward the House (la min beyth) and through the curtain (la ha pharoketh) and do (*wa asah – act, engaging accordingly) with its blood (eth dam huw^{}) as he did with the blood of the bull (*ka *asher asah la dam ha par), sprinkling it (*nazah eth huw^{}) upon the Mercy Seat (al Kaporeth – over the Place of Atonement and Reconciliation) and toward the front (la paneh) of the Mercy Seat (ha Kaporeth). (Qara^{}/ Called Out 16:15*)

Thereby (wa) he shall provide reconciliation (kaphar) upon the Set-Apart place (al ha Qodesh*) as a result of (min) the impurity and filthiness (tuma^{ah} – the foreign residue and offensive immoral nature) of the Children of Yisra^{*el} (*beny Yisra^{el}), and as a result of (wa min) their religious rebellion and political defiance (pesha^o hem), it will be resolved along with the realization that they have been totally wrong and have all wandered away (la kol chatath hem).

Therefore (wa ken), he should act accordingly, doing this (asah*) to approach (la) the shining and clear tent (ohel*) of the restoring witness to the eternal testimony of the appointed meeting (mow^{ed}) which abides (ha shakan) with them in the midst (eth hem ba tawek*) of their impurity and filthiness (tuma^{ah} hem).” (Qara^{}/ Leviticus 16:16*)

Aharown* was symbolic of what Yahowah will have Dowd do for his people on this day. He will act in accordance with the Towrah to reconcile the relationship with *Yisra^{el} and Yahuwdah via the Kaporeth on Kipurym. And now we know why blood would be sprinkled on the Mercy Seat, why it would come from a par and a sa^{yr} and not the *Passover ayl, and why it would occur on Kipurym, not Pesach.

Before we move on, let’s consider the Prophet’s concluding analysis of Dowd’s role in our lives. He said, “Advice and counsel on the complete picture while providing effective mentoring on how to deliberate all relevant decisions (etsah) on peace and prosperity, satisfaction and contentment, the blessings of reconciliation and freedom (shalowm) will exist (hayah) to encourage understanding by making the connections between both of these responsibilities (bayn shanaym hem).” (Zakaryah 6:13) Shalowm, indeed. And in this declaration, we find our future where we began. This all ties right back into Shamuw^{el} / 2 Samuel 7.

“It came to pass when the king sat down and relaxed in his home, because Yahowah had given him comforting respite from his adversaries, (2 Shamuw^{el} 7:1) that the king said to Nathan, the prophet, ‘Please look around. I live in a house of cedar, but the Ark of God sits within curtains.’ (Shamuw^{el} / 2 Samuel 7:2)

Nathan said to the king, ‘Choose to go and do all that is in your best judgment for Yahowah.’ (2 Shamuw^{el} 7:3)

But then that evening, it came to be that the word of Yahowah came to Nathan. He conveyed, (Shamuw^{el} 7:4) ‘Go and tell Dowd, My coworker, that this is what Yahowah says. “Why should you build Me a home to live in? (2 Shamuw^{el} 7:5)

Indeed, I have not lived in any house since the time that I lifted the Children of Yisra^{*el} out of the crucibles of oppression in Mitsraym, even to this day. I have been going about in a tent dwelling. (Shamuw^{el} / 2 Samuel 7:6)

Anywhere along the way, that I have journeyed with the Children of Yisra^{*el}, did I say a single word to any of the tribes of Yisra^{*el}, My people, Yisra^{*el}, whom I fed, asking, ‘Why not build Me a house of cedar?’ (Shamuw^{el} / 2 Samuel 7:7)

Therefore, say to My associate, Dowd, this is what Yahowah of the spiritual implements says, “I took you from the sheepfolds, from chasing after lambs, to be the leader over My People, over Yisra^{*el}. (2 Shamuw^{el} 7:8)

And I have been with you wherever you traveled. I have cut off all of your enemies, removing them from your sight, and I have made your name great, comparable to the names of the greatest on earth. (Shamuw^eel / 2 Samuel 7:9)

Furthermore, I will appoint a place for My People, Yisra^ael. And I will plant them there such that they may dwell in this place of their own and never have to move again. Neither shall the Son of Evil afflict them any more as will have been the case. (Shamuw^eel / 2 Samuel 7:10)

And since the time that I instructed the Judges in conjunction with My People, Yisra^ael, I have created for you a respite from all of your enemies.’ Moreover, Yahowah is boldly and publicly announcing for you that, indeed, He will act, engaging with you to create a family and home. (Shamuw^eel / 2 Samuel 7:11)

When you will have laid down your life (wa shakab) in association with your ancestors (eth *ab atah), I will rise up and take a stand (quwm) to bring to fruition what you have sown (zera^a) without hesitating or delaying (achar*) your approach to providing the way to the benefits of the relationship (asher*). This shall be extracted and withdrawn, then delivered out of (yatsa^a min) a small particle of your physiological nature (ma^aah). And so (wa) I will establish (kuwn) this reign over this kingdom (eth mamlakah huw^a*).” (Shamuw^eel / 2 Samuel 7:12)

Now speaking to us of Dowd, Yahowah continues...

“He, himself, shall reestablish and restore a home for My name. And I will fashion and form the place of honor of his kingdom as an eternal witness forever. (Shamuw^eel / 2 Samuel 7:13)

I, Myself, will be a Father for him and he shall be My son. So, when that which is perverted and twisted is associated with him, I will correctly reciprocate and argue on his behalf, deciding with him to chastise with the scepter of this man, and by assaulting so as to end the lives of the children of *Adam.” (Shamuw^{el} / 2 Samuel 7:14)

Now addressing His Son directly again, and to us about the man named Sha^{uwl} | Paul who would play the pivotal role in robbing God’s Son...

“Then My steadfast love and enduring mercy shall not be taken away from him in the manner that I rejected it being associated with Sha^{uwl}, whom, to show the way to the benefits of the relationship, I removed, abolishing before your appearance. (Shamuw^{el} / 2 Samuel 7:15)

Moreover, your house will remain established, verified, and true and your kingdom and reign will exist forever as an eternal witness in association with My presence. Your throne and place of honor shall exist and be established forevermore.’ (Shamuw^{el} / 2 Samuel 7:16)

Consistent with all of these words and everything within this revelation, Nathan correctly conveyed them to Dowd.” (Shamuw^{el} / Listen to Him / 2 Samuel 7:17)

One prophecy flows into the next, all leading us to the same place: Yahowah’s return with His Son and our Savior on Yowm Kipurym. As with Dowd, so too to a significant extent also with the Covenant’s Family. It is an honor to be invited into their company. And it is glorious to see Yada Yahowah in such magnificent company as well...

“And the crown (wa ha ^{el}atarah – the symbol of sovereign authority and status) will continually exist (hayah – shall always be (qal imperfect)) for the purpose of Chelem | Restoration (la Chalam – to dream about and ponder the implications of renewal and restored health) of Towbyah | those who are Favored and Agreeable to Yahowah (wa la Towbyah – Yahowah’s Productive and Prosperous, Beneficial and Pleasant) la Yada Yah* | by Knowing and Understanding Yahowah (wa la Yada^{yah} – by being familiar with and acknowledging Yah) in order to Chen | Receive Favor,

Compassion, and Kindness (wa la Chen) for the Ben Tsaphanyah | Children Yahowah Treasures (ben Tsaphanyah – the Sons Yahowah has Valued and Hidden to Discover and Reveal) from the Zikarown | Most Memorable of Men as a way to memorialize the inheritance right and commemorate (la zikarown) ba Hekal | Engaging and Enduring within the Royal Residence and Temple (ba hekal – Persisting and Prevailing in the Sanctuary and Palace of the King; from yakol – accomplishing the goal and overcoming the obstacles to become victorious, being empowered and enabled) of Yahowah (Yahowah – the proper pronunciation of YaHoWaH, our *elowah | God as directed in His ToWRaH | teaching regarding His HaYaH | existence and our ShaLoWM | restoration)." (Zakaryah / Zechariah 6:14)

In the previous presentation of Yada Yah, this pronouncement came by way of the "Dabar | Word of Yahowah." (Zakaryah 9) And at that moment, God was focused upon "laqach | reacquiring those who had been gowlah | driven away, claiming them as Chelday | Mine of the World." By contrast here, we commence with Dowd's "crown continually existing to keep Chalam | the Dream of Restoration alive." Thereafter, Zakaryah 6:10 and 6:14 coalesce to state that those who are "TowbYah | Favored and Agreeable to Yah come by way of YadaYah | Yada and Knowing Yahowah."

The narratives diverge slightly with God asking in the first account, "You should go (wa bow*) for yourself in the same day (atah ba ha yowm ha huw) and come to and enter (bow*) the house (beyth) of Yo*shyah | those Yahowah Found and Supports (Yo*shyah)." Whereas in the second iteration, it is in order to "Chen | Receive Favor and Compassion." Then both Zakaryah 6:10 and 6:14 reveal that Yada Yah will result in becoming "Ben Tsaphanyah | Children Yahowah Treasures." In the first rendition of the proclamation this is "for the benefit of the relationship (asher)," and it pertains to those who "have come out of (bow min) Babel | Babylon where Commingling Caused Confusion.” However, now that Dowd has arrived, we find that these marvelous results come by way of “the Zikarown | Most Memorable of Men as a way to memorialize the inheritance right and commemorate (la zikarown) ba Hekal | Engaging and Enduring within the Royal Residence and Temple (ba hekal) of Yahowah.” They are Earth shattering independently, and mind expanding when compared.

And in this case, Zikarown is a title describing the most memorable men of God, those who acknowledge and validate the great inheritance that is being offered by Yahowah. They serve as the catalyst between Ben Tsaphanyah | Children Yahowah Treasures and ba Hekal | Engaging and Enduring within the Royal Residence and Temple of Yahowah.

Zakaryah was aware of the implications of what he had just revealed. He drew the same connections we have derived, such that he would have smiled in appreciation of being afforded the opportunity to share this with us 2,600 years in advance of it transpiring. And that is why he wrote:

“Those who are currently alienated (wa rachowq – those who are far away in the distant future) will come and return (*bow – to be included). And they will help build (wa banah – they will reconstruct) the Royal Residence and Temple for Engaging in the Home (ba hekal) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH). Then you will know Yada and understand (*wa yada – you will realize and acknowledge) that, indeed (ky), Yahowah of the spiritual messengers (*YaHoWaH tsaba) has sent me (*shalach any) to you (el atem).

This will occur (wa hayah) when (im*) you listen diligently (shama shama) to the Qowl | Voice (ba qowl) of Yahowah, your God (*Yahowah *elohym atem).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 6:15)

This will be the payload carried aboard the White Chariot. God’s People are coming home. And once there, we will be granted the great honor of assisting our King in building the Royal Residence and Temple for Engaging and Enduring in the Home of Yahowah.

In the process, those who are returning will be introduced to Yada. They will know that Yahowah has sent him to project the Qowl | Voice of Yahowah. It is not only important, but essential, a point God drives home because, unlike the famed Shema Yisrael, this time it is shama shama, an exponential expression of listening to the Voice of Yahowah. It is in this manner that the estranged will return home.

While that is the conclusion of the 6th chapter of Zakaryah, it wasn't the last word on the failure of Yahuwdym to listen. The religious and political will not have considered what we have read, and they will not have listened to God's Voice. Therefore, addressing those who have perished estranged from the Covenant, our Creator reveals...

“But they resisted and refused to listen or respond (wa ma'an la qashab – they would not pay attention, accept the advice, or reply, failing to offer their consent for a protracted period of time and thereby suffered by not having accepted the information (piel imperfect)).

They gave the gift (wa nathan) a defiant and obstinate shoulder (katheph sarar – a stubborn and rebellious stiff arm as if they were in charge). Their ears became heavy (*wa ozen hem kebed) and they would not listen (*min shama).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yah 7:11)

This is why a Gowy was invited to call Yahuwdym home. I was willing to listen when they were not. And while there is more to it than this, Yahowah's blunt and unambiguous declaration explains the challenge He, and now I, face. Speaking to Jews about Yahowah is like talking to the Western Wall.

The marvelous gift of Yada Yahowah remains on the shelf, mostly unread. Most Jews are too proud, self-absorbed, stiff-necked, and hard-headed to listen to anyone other than those among them with whom they agree. They haven't listened to Yahowah in millennia and even when in their own echo chambers, the Progressive Jews only consider fellow socialists, the Haredi, their flavor of rabbi, and the political only consider the platitudes of their party. To be fair, Jews are like others in this regard, just worse.

Hearts hard as stone and judgment prickly as brambles, while screaming that they are Torah observant, they are actually Talmud toters in the extreme. They have no interest in Yahowah's shem or dabar, preferring the argumentative rhetoric of those who have misled them for monetary rewards.

“They caused (sym) their hearts and judgment (wa leb hem) to be as hard as stone and as prickly as brambles (shamyr), such that they were kept from hearing (*min shama) the Towrah | Teaching and Guidance (Towrah – Source of Instructions and Directions) and the words (*wa eth ha dabarym) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), Yahowah of the heavenly messengers (*YaHoWaH tsaba) sent (shalach) by His Spirit (*Ruwach huw) through the hand (ba yad) of the first and foremost of the prophets (*naby*ym ha ri*shown* – the initial and primary conduits of the divine message).

Therefore (wa), great animosity and frustration (qetseph gadowl – tremendous antagonism, enormous discord and dissention, even considerable rancor and strife) came to exist (hayah – was manifest over a long period of time (qal imperfect)) from (min) Yahowah of the spiritual implements (*YaHoWaH tsaba).” (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 7:12)

We know that the Ruwach | Spirit of Yahowah has come upon His foremost prophets, men like Moseh, Yahowsha^o, and Dowd, and in his case, for all time, as well as upon Yasha^oyah, Micah, and ^{*}ElYah. But not as well-known is how and why the *Ruwach Elohyim | Spirit of God filled *Batsa*el* / In the Shadow of God / Bezalel, son of ^{*}Uwry | My Fiery Light with chakmah | intelligence, tabuwnah | insightful understanding, and da^oath | knowledge for all manner of *Mal*akah* | the Work of the Spiritual Messenger.

Yahowah told Moseh that he wanted *Batsa*el* to chashab | consider the value of, properly account for, and accurately portray His machashabah | thoughts, plans, and purpose when forming tangible expressions of His intent. The resulting spiritually inspired manifestations of Yahowah's mindset for His relationship with mankind would include: the ohel Mow*ed* | Tent of the Restoring Witness to the Eternal Meetings, the arown la ha eduwth | Ark of the Enduring Testimony of the Restoring Witness, and the Kaporeth | Seat of Reconciliation that is on it. In addition, all of the Kaly | Implements of the Tent, its Shulchan | Table, and the Manowrah | Beaming Lamp, in addition to the *Mizbeach ha olah | Altar to Rise. I share this unique application of the Ruwach because it encourages us to contemplate every nuance of the resulting designs and how they shape our relationship with God.

There were others, of course, who received an outpouring of the Spirit. As we know, it was briefly granted to Sha*uwI before departing and being replaced by a demon. The ruwach equipped Gideon and Sampson to fulfill their roles. A shared spirit was offered to the Elders of Yisra*el, albeit for a nanosecond and without result. The Ruwach is mentioned in conjunction with Ya*aqob's offspring, particularly, Joseph, as well as in passing with Balaam, Othniel, Jephthah, and Zakaryah, Amasai, Azariah, Jahaziel. And in addition to these deployments of the ruwach, there is an exceptionally revealing episode pursuant to *ElDod and MyDod in Numbers 11 following Moseh's collapse under the unrelenting abuse of Yisra*elites. And, as previously disclosed, Moseh passed the Ruwach of Chakmah on to his successor, Yahowsha*.

The most copiously detailed and comprehensive application of the Ruwach of Yahowah was afforded to His Choter as is detailed in Yasha*yah / Isaiah 11. Therefore, in the context of *ri*shown* | the foremost of the *naby*ym* | prophets, Yahowah is addressing Moseh, Dowd, Yasha*yah, and ElYah – all of whom had a lot to say about these individuals and events – and their modern-day conduit, Yada.

As for most everyone else, the Chosen People have by and large forfeited their birthright and have literally written themselves out of God's equation. As clearly as words allow,

Yahowah has put Yisra^{*}el on notice through the second to last Prophet that they are no longer on His good side. Qetseph gadowl | great animosity, tremendous frustration, overt antagonism, and enormous dissention, rancor, and strife exist between Yahowah and Yahuwdym. And that is what we are trying to end.

“It came to be over a protracted period (wa hayah) that, when I called out, offering an invitation to meet, to be greeted, and welcomed (*ka *asher qara – when I, for the benefit of the relationship, issued a summons and provided an announcement), they would not listen (wa lo shama).”

Therefore, when (wa ken) they called out (*qara – they issued a summons and they made a pronouncement), I did not listen (wa lo shama),’ says (amar*) Yahowah of the spiritual messengers (*YaHoWaH tsaba).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 7:13)

Yahowah’s equation is relatively simple – listen to Him and He’ll respond to you. Return to Him, and He will do the same. Erase His name, and yours will be blotted out.

Speaking for myself, and as a model for you, for the past twenty-four years, initially six and now seven days a week, originally ten and now fourteen hours a day, I have listened to Yahowah. In all of that time, other than to ask a question or seek elucidation, I have not spoken to Him. Our relationship works best when He teaches and I learn. Then after listening intently, and thinking comprehensively, I speak profusely – but to my fellow man.

Yahowah knows what His coworkers need and what we are thinking. We have a marvelous relationship because He can read my thoughts and share my enthusiasm when we come upon something in His Word that He wrote knowing that we’d find and share it. Perhaps one day that will change once I am further enlightened as a Witness and as a son. But for now, the current arrangement is ideal.

It isn't that I don't have something to contribute, or that I have nothing to say – in fact, quite the opposite. It is just that our relationship is enriched and empowered when I am a good listener because He is the best Teacher. And there is so much to share, so much God's people need to know, and so little time, let's do what we can while we can.

Having shared this before, it rings especially true at this moment. To some extent, I was offered this job by default. The Chosen People refused to listen. Yisra*el and Yahuwdah turned their backs on Yahowah's gift – the testimony He conveyed in His Towrah and through His Prophets. Even now, the words Yahowah's Spirit has enabled the Choter to scribe fall on deaf ears and hardened hearts.

One of the most telling distinctions between someone conveying the revelation of Yahowah and a false prophet is the means of conveyance. An actual prophet writes down what Yahowah is revealing while he is listening to God speak to him. While a false prophet – such as Paul, Mark, Luke, Matthew, Akiba, or Muhammad – recount what they have heard or what they have conveyed audibly. As such, it becomes their message, not Yahowah's.

It is true now, at His request, that almost every day, and often several times a day, I speak to God's People about the Towrah and Prophets. But throughout it all, I am sharing my translations and associated insights. Our message, like that of the prophets, was first committed to writing. That way you can learn at your own pace and more easily verify the meaning of each word. And prior to livestreaming longform videos on Facebook, YouTube, and X, the written word was more broadly disseminated – although now that has changed. And today, both will endure, even after I am gone. Moreover, with the written text, I like the distinction of having my comments and insights shared in a regular font, while Yahowah's words stand apart as they are in bold. But when audibly addressing Yisra*el, tone and intensity, expressions and gestures, can speak volumes.

The conclusion of Zakaryah 7:13 is hard to bear. We should be sad for God and for His people. And yet, based upon the unwillingness of Yisra*el to hear what He has to say, Yahowah has turned a deaf ear toward His people. They have antagonized Him and He is frustrated, but fortunately for both parties, this is resolvable. Start listening. When you hear Yahowah's invitation, respond.

Fortunately, many will do so. As a result...

“Thus says (koh *amar) Yahowah (YaHoWaH – an accurate presentation of the name of elowah – God as guided by His towrah – instructions regarding His hayah – existence) of the vast array of spiritual implements (tsaba), ‘I am passionate about and zealous (qana^e – I am envious because I want a loyal relationship) for Tsyown | the Signs Posted Along the Way (la Tsyown – to the ridgeline of Mowryah between Dowd’s and Yahowah’s Homes), with an enormous desire for exclusivity in the relationship (qinah gadawl).

Further, with a furious rage and debilitating venom (wa hemah gadawl), I am envious, aroused to jealousy, and angry (qinah) for her (la hy*).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 8:2)

Yahowah may have abandoned Yisra*el millennia ago because He could no longer endure His people's religious adultery, but He has not forgotten that He once loved her with a divine passion. Unfortunately, Yahuwdym have continued to cheat on Yahowah by being overtly religious, and the problem has grown markedly worse with the Babylonian Talmud and now the Haredim.

To ignore God's hatred for Judaism is to disregard the Towrah and Naby*ym. It is the single most prevalent issue raised by Yahowah throughout. And Judaism comes at a tremendous cost – enraging God.

“Thus says (koh *amar) Yahowah (YaHoWaH – an accurate presentation of the name of *elowah – God as guided by His towrah – instructions regarding His hayah – existence), ‘I will return and restore (shuwb – at the appropriate time, I will come back and renew) Tsyown | the Signs Posted Along the Way (el Tsyown* – to the ridgeline of Mowryah between Dowd’s and Yahowah’s Homes) and will live and remain (wa shakan – I will dwell and abide, staying) in the midst of Yaruwshalaim (ba tawek Yaruwshalaim).

Then (wa) the Source of Guidance on Reconciliation (Yaruwshalaim) will be called (*qara – will summon and welcome, greet and proclaim, even be designated as) the reliable and trustworthy (*ha emeth – the permanent and continual, the steadfast and dependable, the verifiable and demonstrable) city (yr*), and the mountain (wa har) of Yahowah of the spiritual messengers (*YaHoWaH tsaba), the Mount of the Set-Apart (Har Qodesh).” (Zakaryah / Memorable Men of Yah / Zechariah 8:3)

Although it is never discussed within Judaism or Christianity, Yahowah is returning to Jerusalem to restore Tsyown – which is the ridgeline between His Home and that of His Son on Mount Mowryah. And when He returns, He plans to stay for a long while. And when this occurs on Yowm Kipurym in year 6000 Yah, rather than being the city of religious pollution and deceptions, Yaruwshalaim will reclaim its glory as the City of Guidance on Reconciliation. And at this time, one place will rise above all others in God’s mind, with Mowryah being the most special place on the planet.

Imagine...

“Thus says (*koh amar) Yahowah of the spiritual implements (YaHoWaH tsaba), ‘Once again (owd), elderly men and women (zaqen wa zaqenowth) in the streets and public plazas (ba rachob) of Jerusalem (Yaruwshalaim), each person with their staff and walking stick (*wa *iysh mishe*net huw) in their hands (*ba yad huw) because of their many days (min rob yowmym). (Zakaryah 8:4)

And the courtyards and boulevards (wa rachob) of the city (*ha tyr) will be filled (*male) with boys and girls (yeled wa yaledah) laughing and playing (sachaq) in her streets (*ba rachob hy). (Zakaryah 8:5)

Thus says (*koh amar) Yahowah of the spiritual envoys (*YaHoWaH tsaba), ‘Indeed (ky), it is wonderful (pala° – marvelous) in the eyes of (*ba ayn) the remnant (*sha*eryth*) of the people (*ha am ha zeh) in these days (ba ha yowmym ha hem), and also marvelous in My sight (*gam ba *ayn any pala°),’ prophetically declares (*na*um*) Yahowah of the spiritual implements (*YaHoWaH tsaba).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah / Zechariah 8:6)

Peace is coming to Jerusalem. It will be as Yahowah named Yitschaq, the first child of the Covenant: a time of great sachaq | laughter and playing.

“Thus says (*koh amar) Yahowah of the spiritual messengers (*YaHoWaH tsaba), ‘Behold (hineh), I, Myself, will deliver and liberate (any yasha° – I personally will rescue and free*) My people (eth *am any – those who are associated with My Family) from the country toward the sunrise (*min erets mizrach – the land toward the east; if from mizra° then from the places seeds have been sown and cultivated and if a compound of my – to question and zarach, then it is addressing those who have, after raising questions, broken free to rise and shine), and from the region (*wa min erets) entering from the direction of the setting (mabow° – from sundown; from mah – to ponder the implications of and bow – to come and go, to arrive and enter*) of the sun (ha shemesh).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yah / Zechariah 8:7)

Yahowah is saying that He will liberate His people from the sunrise to the sunset, from dawn to dusk. As a result, The Black and White Spiritual Chariots of incarceration and emancipation for Yisra*elites the world over, will be swift, occurring over the course of 12 hours. This is to coincide with the sacrifice of the adamah Parah* | Productive Bloody Red Man of the Earth, this Zeh Bow Min edowm | One who Comes from Edom to save a great many, serving in the role of the Red Heifer on *Yowm Taruw*ah* | the Day of the Herald. It will begin at sunrise and conclude at sunset on the Shabat of September 24th, 2033 and include a full solar eclipse. With the sacrificial basar | body provided by Yada, Dowd's Basar and Choter, the cleansing waters and purging flames orchestrated by Yahowah, and the oratory given by eLyah* | Elijah, the remnant of Yisra*el must be delivered and present for it to serve its purpose.

Let it be known: while Rabbinic Judaism has no plan or hope of salvation, and is exacerbating Yisra*el's estrangement, Yahowah has announced a resolution for the Jewish religious problem. He will deliver Yahuwdym who are free of rabbinical and political influences and then His team and approach will save them from themselves.

As a reminder, Yahowah is *yasha | delivering the remnant to Yaruwshalaim | Source of Guidance on Reconciliation so that they can be *yasha | saved by *Taruw*ah* prior to Kipurym. Therefore, this is Yahowah affirming the purpose of His White Chariot making the rounds on *Taruw*ah* in anticipation of the Family Reunion on Kipurym...

“And I will go get them and bring them (wa bow eth hem) so that they can be settled and reside (wa shakan – so they can dwell and abide) in the midst (ba tawek) of Yaruwshalaim | the Source of Guidance on Reconciliation (Yaruwshalaim). Then they will be (wa hayah – so at that moment, they will exist as (qal perfect)) for Me as a family (*la *any la am) and I will be (wa hayah – I will continually exist as (qal imperfect)) for them God (*la hem la elohym) in honesty and integrity, truthfulness and reliability (emeth* – with certainty) and in being right, vindicating, and just (tsadaqah – also with being correct, acquitting, fair, and appropriate).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah's Memorable Men / Zechariah 8:8)

This is an affirmation of so much of what we have come to know and share regarding the fulfillment of the Fall *Mow*edym*

| Restoring Witnesses to the Eternal Testimony for the Appointed Meetings in year 6000 Yah. Everything from the fourth day of Creation and life in the Garden, from the narration on the Covenant to the Exodus from Egypt, from the anointing of Dowd to his fulfillment of the Spiring Migra^eey | Invitations to be Called Out and Meet, has led to this moment in time.

Yahuwdym have come home, having returned at long last to Yahowah and Yaruwshalaim. Yisra^eel and the Beryth are one – Family again. And it has transpired as written, honorably, with integrity, truthfully and reliably. The Towrah has led to this, the Prophets have confirmed it, Dowd has fulfilled it, and Yahowah loves it. All is tsadaq | right with the world.

We could well have concluded our review of the prophets in this place considering the magnitude of the previous statement, but there is something else that Yahowah wants us to know and share. And while this is a very long sentence, by way of introduction, God is saying that we have arrived because, those who listened to the Prophets who spoke as the Home for the Covenant Family was being built, remained steadfast. And at this time, there are three prophetic revelations which come to mind: Nathan to Dowd about what would transpire here over time in 2 Shamuw^eel 7, Yahowah to His Son as the cornerstone was being set in the glorious 89th Mizmowr, and then what Shalomoh prophetically revealed about the arrival of the Nakry | Observant Foreigner upon the Temple's dedication.

“Thus says (*koh amar) Yahowah of the spiritual envoys (*YaHoWaH tsaba),

‘You who listen (*ha shama) in those days (*ba ha yowmym ha eleh) to these words (eth ha dabarym*) from the mouths of the Prophets (*min peh ha naby*ym*) who, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), in the day (ba yowm) the cornerstone was set and foundation was established (yasad – the basis was put in place) for the House and Family (beyth) of Yahowah of the spiritual implements (*YaHoWaH tsaba), so that the Royal Residence, Sanctuary, and Temple Home

(ha Hekal) would be built (la banah – would be established for the family name and constructed for the son), your hands should be firm and strong, and your influence must be steadfast to be restoring and empowering (*chazaq yad atem – let all of your actions prevail and be renewing through strength (qal imperfect third-person plural jussive)).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah’s Memorable Men / Zechariah 8:9)

The most rational way to interpret this is to see it as Yahowah acknowledging that the three aforementioned prophetic accounts pursuant to building His Home not only applied and contributed to the Family Reunion, and all being right with God at this moment, the ones who realized that they spoke to this purpose and pursued it to its conclusion, are appreciated for their contribution.

Before we reconsider Shalomoh’s dedication speech at the dedication of the Hekal of Yahowah’s Beryth, let’s proceed a little deeper into the 8th chapter of Zakaryah | Yah’s Memorable Men.

“Indeed, it will have been true (ky), before the arrival and presence of those days (la paneh ha yowm ha hem), there will have been no compensation, no payment of any kind for services rendered (sakar lo hayah* – there would be no wage paid) for this man (*ha adam). And the reward (wa sakar) for the Beast (ha bahemah) would be for her to no longer exist (ayin hy).

And for the one who left and went away (*wa ha yatsa) as well as for the one who was brought out (wa ha bow), there will be no contentment, resolution, or salvation (ayin shalowm – no satisfaction, companionship, favorable outcome, or reconciliation) from the anguishing adversity of tormenting trouble of the adversary during confinement (min ha tsar).

Then I will release (wa shalach) against all mankind (eth kol ha adam), an individual against the shouting and roaring of his countryman (iysh ba rea® huw).” (Zakaryah /

Remember Yahowah's Memorable Men / Zechariah 8:10)

This begins by affirming what I've experienced because I have invested over 100,000 hours (80 hours a week for more than 25 years) and many hundreds of thousands of dollars, over the decades in pursuing this mission as fervently as possible. But I have not been reimbursed or paid. I have never solicited donations or accepted any. It is as it should be. This is a labor of love. We do not serve for financial rewards.

That said, those who have served the beast of politics or religion, or more specifically, have been lured away by the beastly antics of the psychotic woman pretending to speak for Spirit Mom, their reward, or consequence, is that their souls will cease to exist. And it matters not if they left on their own initiative or were those who were bellicose and belligerent from the outset, even if they were lured away by the perpetrators of the ruse. There will be no resolution, satisfaction, or salvation. What's more troubling still is that by incorporating tsar, the worst of the perpetrators and agitators will face an anguishing fate of confinement with the adversary.

There are a number of occasions where Yahowah speaks of releasing humankind, such that we are left to our own devices. And in all such situations it turns out poorly, as in this case when we recognize that the Time of Ya^aaqob's Troubles will envelop more than Israel. There will be acrimony, anarchy, and aggression everywhere. Although, for some, there will be a happy ending...

“However, now (*wa atah) it will not be the same as (*wa *atah lo*ka*) as in the former days (*ha yowmym ha ri*shown*) with regard to My approach to (any la*) the remaining remnant of the people (*sha*eryth ha am ha zeh), prophetically declares (*na*um*) Yahowah of the spiritual implements (*YaHoWaH tsaba). (Zakaryah 8:11)

For indeed (ky), there will be a sowing and cultivating of the seeds and offspring (*zera) for reconciliation and salvation (ha shalowm).

The vine (ha gephen) will produce and give (nathan) her fruit (*pery hy) and the Land (*wa ha erets) will offer and bestow (nathan) her produce for the harvest (*yabuwl hy). Then the heavens (wa ha shamaym) will provide (nathan) their dew for an abundant ingathering (tal hem).

So (wa), I will receive the remaining remnant while bestowing an inheritance to the people (*wa nachal *eth sha*eryth ha am ha zeh) regarding all of these things (eth kol eleh).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah’s Memorable Men / Zechariah 8:12)

Long ago, the Children of Yisra*el told Yahowah to go away, and He did. So now at long last, He is returning. And while one thing remains the same – His children are being abused – another is different in that the remaining remnant is finally prepared to listen. Therefore, this is the beginning of forevermore – of happily ever after.

Many of those gathered before Yahowah on this day will actually have returned with Him. These fortunate souls will be the beneficiaries of the ingatherings of Shabuw*ah and Taruw*ah. The seeds that were sown and cultivated by the final Zarowa* will have taken root and grown, such that they could be harvested in season. And for the mortal remnant assembled in Jerusalem, Yowm Kipurym is the occasion of their reconciliation.

The vine of Yisra*el is yielding fruit again. There will be the new wine of inheritance. The Land, after having been fallow and choked with weeds, is now productive. And so, while there is every advantage to those who were gathered in the harvests, being among the remnant is still enormously favorable.

The most antisemitic and dehumanizing time in Jewish history will be replaced by the most esteemed. Those who are being assailed and attacked as if they were the scourge of the Earth will be her royalty.

“Then it will be that in the manner as (wa hayah ka asher*) you have been accursed as an object of scorn, mocked and derided, jeered and reproached (qalalah) among the nations and people of other ethnicities (ba ha gowym), House of Yahuwdah and House of Yisra*el (*beyth Yahuwdah wa beyth Yisra*el*), likewise, albeit by contrast, honorably and correctly (ken), I will deliver and liberate you, rescuing and saving you (yasha *eth atem).

And you will become (hayah) a source of blessings and benefits, a gift (barakah). Do not be concerned or afraid (al yare) choosing to have your hands be strengthened and empowered, your influence resolute and restoring (*chazaq yad atem – your grasp victorious and renewed (qal imperfect jussive).” (Zakaryah / Remember Yahowah’s Memorable Men / Zechariah 8:13)

Therefore, Christianity and Islam cannot be true under such circumstances. This is because both are based upon them replacing Jews to receive God’s favors. The religions whose scriptures deride and accurse Yahuwdym will watch as those they reviled receive Yahowah’s blessings.

This statement runs in parallel with Yirmayah / Jeremiah 31, where we discover that, upon Yahowah’s return, the Covenant will be restored with Yisra*el and Yahuwdym. When this occurs, God’s people will be uniquely blessed by being given a copy of the Towrah which will be written within them – to guide them through eternity.

Yahowah isn’t just returning. He is bearing gifts.

As we have done previously, I’d like to reapproach the assuring promises regarding the renewal of the Covenant through the integration of the Towrah as they are presented in the 31st chapter of Yirmayah / Jeremiah by sharing some of the reasons behind Yahowah’s approach. And for that, we must turn to *Howsha / Hosea.

“Listen to (*shama – hear) the word (dabar – message, communication, and account, the spoken testimony and written witness) of Yahowah (𐤆𐤏𐤍𐤐 – a transliteration of YaHoWaH as instructed in His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence), Children of Yisra*el (*beny Yisra*el* – offspring of those who struggle and contend with God), for it is certain that (ky) Yahowah (Yahowah – God’s name transliterated as guided by His towrah – instructions on His hayah – existence) has a dispute and grievance (ryb – has an indictment, quarrel, accusation, and contentious argument) against the inhabitants (im yashab*) of the Land and Earth (*ha erets).

This is because (ky) there is no honesty or integrity (ayn emeth – no truth, validity, veracity, certainty, dependability or consistency), no devotion or sense of loyalty (*wa ayn chesed – no love, kindness, or affection), or understanding or thoughtful insights pertaining to (*wa *ayn da*at* – or the knowledge, judgment or discernment needed to comprehend) God (elohym*) in the Land and on Earth (*ba ha erets).” (*Howsha / He Saves / Hosea 4:1)

And so begins one of the most incriminating revelations within the prophets. God is giving His people yet another opportunity to avoid the plague of Judaism, and gowym reasons to disregard Christianity and Islam, by listening to Him. It is the cure for religion and what ails the human condition.

Yahowah’s grievance with Yisra*el goes well beyond erasing His name and repudiating His testimony. He is perturbed because, in the midst of their chronic ignorance, they claim otherwise. If they had simply ignored Him, while tragic, it would not have been nearly as injurious as pretending to speak for Him.

For having written voluminous religious tomes claiming to have been inspired by God, Yahowah is telling us that the rabbis lack integrity – including Paul and those who supplied the contents of the Quran in Yathrib. They have always been dishonest, and devoid of veracity and validity. They aren't even consistent. There are nearly as many strains of Judaism as there are Jews.

Over the years that I have been studying Yahowah's testimony, I have yet to find a single rabbinical insight worth sharing. They may know many things, but when it comes to understanding, they are sorely lacking.

The reason the preponderance of insights derived from these translations are unheralded is that most everyone is blinded by their religion. Yahowah's message is so hostile to their beliefs that they are incapable of seeing His words for what they represent.

To comprehend God's testimony, we must first come to know Him. He and His word are one – inseparable and dependable, consistent and enduring, liberating and enlightening. Rather than weave religion into the testimony, we do well to weed it out. Rather than looking for commandments to obey, we should seek instructions that educate and emancipate.

Since Yahowah stated that this deplorable condition negatively influencing His people would endure until it is rectified, with some changing their attitude during the last days, Rabbinic Judaism is the problem...

“They will have sanctioned the curse of Allah (alah* – they will have invoked Divine restrictions, bans, and punishments for not having told the truth and for having sworn a lamentable oath resulting in unrelenting burials (qal infinitive)). They will cringe in fear, bow in submission, and be disowned for cringe-worthy deceptions (wa kachash – for promoting lies while annulling the relationship by being delusional they will be oppressed, even malnourished and starved as they are estranged (piel infinitive)).

They will be murdered and be murderous (ratsach – they will kill and be killed, they will be slaughtered, dashed by the sword and cut into pieces (qal infinitive)). They will steal, surreptitiously purloining what belongs to another (ganab – they will be deceptively misleading, fraudulent thieves (qal infinitive)).

Then by continuously and demonstrably committing religious infidelity (*wa na*aph* – by being unfaithful and unreliable, especially disloyal (qal infinitive)), they will break all bounds in diaspora (parats – they will be broken and scattered by their widespread and pervasive rebellion (qal perfect)). And they will be plagued (*wa naga – they will be stricken (qal perfect)) by the shedding of copious amounts of blood (dam ba dam – with blood libel, killing, and death).” (*Howsha / He Liberates / Hosea 4:2)

This is a scathing indictment of the consequence of Rabbinic Judaism. And it is all actionable and demonstrable, with one demeaning verb following another: alah*, kachash, ratsach, ganab, *na*aph*, parats and *naga. It is hard to imagine anything worse.

In Hebrew, which is the basis of Arabic, alah* | Allah is a pejorative. It means “to curse and invoke Divine harm.” Those who alah* “bind themselves to a lamentable oath resulting in untold grief and endless burials.” alah* is “unfit and incapable, harmful and cursed.” He is “untruthful.” Such is the nature of false gods.

Do not be fooled, Allah is not the Arabic word for “god.” God is similar in Arabic to its origin in Hebrew, albeit with an intriguing twist: ilah* vs. el* – indicating that “god” is feminine in Islam.

Howsha* 4:2 is prophetic, with Yahowah blaming rabbis for their role in creating the Curse of Allah 1,500 years in advance of their complicity. For those who have studied the Quran and Hadith by reading the 5 volumes of God Damn Religion, you are aware that Muhammad paid rabbis in Yathrib for Talmud recitals which he then bastardized to suit his situation and create the Quran. The ink was not yet dry on the Babylonian Talmud and the rabbis were hawking it for cash. As a result, Jews would “kachash – cringe in fear and bow in submission while being disowned for the cringe-worthy deceptions” incorporated into the Curse of Allah.

In this prophetic statement, alah* was conveyed as a verb in the qal infinitive. This means that the curse would be genuine and self-defining, palpable and ongoing. And in this regard, here is another uncomfortable truth: Islam was conceived in the ancient rock-hewn city of Petra in the Bekka Valley, in what is known as the Wadi Musa (100 miles or 160 KM) south of Jerusalem – not in Mecca. Petra, between the northern tip of the Gulf of Aqaba and the southern shores of the Dead Sea, was within the Judean sphere of influence. By contrast, Yathrib, today’s Medina, where the Quran began to sound like a twisted rendition of the Babylonian Talmud, was inundated with Yisra*elites. Their presence was a legacy of the Northern Kingdom being hauled into captivity by the Assyrians and not returning until they were booted out by Muslims following the reestablishment of Israel.

Kachash is especially revealing in a religious discussion. It means: “to deceive by telling lies and acting deceptively.” It is “to deny the truth.” To kachash is to: “distort reality, to create a delusion, to promote an errant opinion.” To kachash is “to bow down in submission.” It is “to cower in fear rather than out of respect.” To kachash is “to be beguiled into being part of a worthless affair as a direct result of having been conned and betrayed.” The kachash are “disowned because they have been unfaithful.” Further, since ratsach was written using the piel stem, we know that, by lying, the rabbis would cause Jews to be subjugated and cower in fear. In the infinitive mood, they would persist in their delusions and be defined by them.

Ratsach is “to kill and be killed, to murder and be murdered.” It is “to be dashed by the sword and cut into pieces.” The ratsach are “struck down and slain.” With ratsach scribed in the qal infinitive, it serves as a genuine indictment that is self-defining, highly descriptive, actionable, demonstrable, actual, and continual. Ratsach serves as a summation of Allah's intent in imposing Islamic submission.

Ganab speaks of Muhammad and those who enabled him. It is to be a "thief, surreptitiously stealing what belongs to another." Those who ganab | are deceptively misleading and fraudulent. Since this was intended as an actual and ongoing depiction of Muhammad and the rabbis who struck a deal with the Devil, it was also conveyed in the qal infinitive.

By using *na*aph*, Yahowah is addressing "religious infidelity" and not marital carousing. God is accusing rabbis of "being unfaithful, unreliable, and disloyal." These rabbinical characteristics become indelible, continual, and self-defining when cast under the qal infinitive.

Parats is actually much more sinister than simply "break or broken." It conveys "to viciously tear down and destroy." A parats is a terrorist "being hostile, operating in opposition, harming and killing others while destroying property." They "spread out and invade other regions, speaking in a way that encourages destructive and harmful behavior." To parats is to "rebel" against Yahowah.

And while Rabbinic Judaism is guilty of breaking the Covenant with Yahowah, in this context, God is saying that their disloyalty and infidelity break all bonds. The betrayal is beyond comprehension. As a result, Yahowah is also predicting the diaspora, revealing that the Jewish propensity to rebel against Him will lead to the people being scattered. And it is why Jeremiah 31 speaks of the Covenant's ultimate restoration and renewal.

In this regard, it is interesting to note that Dowd was known on a few occasions to turn on his people but never on his God. Things got so bad that he briefly sought shelter among the Philistines. He would side with his rogue son, 'Absalom, rather than defend Yisra*el. And when given a choice to spare his people or himself late in life, he chose poorly. The lesson is that Yah recognizes that Yahuwdym are irascible, and tough to love, and that we will all be challenged at times to support the Chosen People – Himself included. And, therefore, so long as we remain loyal to Yah and do our best with Yisra*el, our God will remain loyal to us.

This is also true with Moseh. With only one notable exception as recorded in Numbers 11, his relationship with Yahowah was reasonably steadfast and unshakable. His battles were routinely fought against those he was saving. It began in Mitsraym when the Hebrews turned on Moseh after he rescued a slave from being beaten by a taskmaster. They turned on him again prior to crossing the Sea. The great dispute around the Waters of Marybah and the beatdown Moseh received upon first surveying the Promised Land are troubling examples of consistently unlovable and unredeemable behavior on behalf of Yisra*el. And yet, through it all, Moseh did as he was asked and completed the mission.

To be *naga is “to be stricken with a plague.” So, from Yahowah’s perspective, religion is a *naga*dam* | plague of death – a pandemic that results in the loss of life and shedding of blood. This is a repetitive theme throughout the Towrah wa Naby*ym.

The problem is, and always has been, religion. Religions are manmade constructs designed to elevate and enrich clerics and kings at the expense of the many whom they seek to fleece and control. Yahowah hates them as much as he despises those who preach and promote such deceptions.

And while this is the most pervasive theme throughout the prophets, it is also prevalent within the Towrah. For example, in *Qara / Leviticus 19, we read: “Yahowah (YaHoWaH) spoke to, sharing words with (*dabar el) Moseh (Mosheh) to convey (*la amar), (*Qara 19:1) ‘Share this message (dabar) with the entire community of eternal witnesses to the restoring testimony (el kol edah) among *beny Yisra*el* | the children who engage and endure with God (el kol Yisra*el*), saying to them (*wa *amar al hem): ‘You should genuinely and continually be set apart, special and uncommon (qodesh hayah), for I (*ky any), Yahowah (YaHoWaH), your God (elohym atem), am set apart, special, and uncommon (qodesh).””” (*Qara / Called Out / Leviticus 19:2) To be set apart is to be removed from the prevalence of mankind’s most common toxin – religion. Do not forfeit your life to this disease.

The fact that Yisra*el did, establishing countless variations of Judaism, the people forfeited not only their birthright but, also, the opportunity to serve as Yahowah’s prophets and witnesses, conveying His eternal and restoring testimony. Among millions of Jews, there would only be forty of them – with only twenty providing a written legacy from which we can grow in our relationship with God. And the realization that there were so few is because Jews prefer listening to their religious leaders promoting false impressions of Hashem rather than to Yahowah, whose name they erased.

“Do not approach, turn to, or appear in the presence of (al panah el) false gods, objects of worship, or religious imagery (*ha elyl). Do not engage on behalf of, perform in association with, or attempt to fashion for yourself (lo asah) gods (elohym*) which are cast or considered anointed (maskah). I am Yahowah (any Yahowah*), your God.” (*Qara / Called Out / Leviticus 19:4)

Yahowah pleaded with His people not to be religious. And yet, they defied Him, becoming the only ethnicity indistinguishable from their faith. When a person says that they are Jewish, it is typically an admission that their religion is Judaism. This condition is so pervasive that most people cannot distinguish between the two. And this is not by accident because the rabbis in charge of immigration into Israel use proof of adherence to Ultra-Orthodox Judaism as their litmus test for eligibility.

“You should not make a habit of stealing (lo ganab*) nor should you consistently feign obedience, act deceptively, convey that which is not true, nor bear false witness (*wa lo kachash). Do not lie to, mislead, or betray (*wa lo*shaqar*) an individual within the community (iysh ba *amyth huw). (*Qara 19:11) Do not swear an oath or make a promise (*wa lo*shaba) in My name (*ba shem any) which is deceptive, misleading, or false (shaqar) and in so doing, profane, defile, and dishonor (wa chahal) the name of your God (eth shem *elohym atah). I am Yahowah (any Yahowah*).” (*Qara / Called Out / Leviticus 19:12)

The religious all feign obedience, which means that they are trying to fool themselves and others into believing that they are devoutly serving God. The realization that they do not know Yahowah or practice what they preach is manifest in the realization that clerics are in it for the money and that they are often abusive toward women and children. It is all a lie, their onerous and regimented lives, their restrictive and ignorant faith, their duplicitous and argumentative words, and their dour religious apparel.

In their words and deeds, religious Jews have dishonored the name of God, going so far as to not only misrepresent Him in their Talmud but erase His name from His Towrah. And if that was not sufficiently deceptive, they call their Talmud the Torah. Knowing that this would occur, Yahowah stays on theme...

“Then Yahowah spoke to Moseh, communicating (*wa dabar Yahowah *el Mosheh la amar), (*Qara 20:1) ‘To the Children of Yisra*el (*wa *el beny Yisra*el*) say (amar*): Any individual person among the people who engage and endure with God (iysh *iysh min beny Yisra*el*), including anyone of a different ethnicity (wa min ha ger) who is living as a guest within Yisra*el (*ha guwr ba Yisra*el*), who offers any of his offspring or who sows something (asher nathan min zera* huw) to Molek | a false god or king claiming the authority to rule (la ha Molek), they will surely die (muwth muwth). The people of the land (am ha erets) should cover him with stones (ragam huw ba ha eben). (*Qara 20:2)

I will also set My presence (wa *any nathan *eth paneh *any) against that individual (ba ha iysh ha huw). I will cut him off and out from the midst of his family (wa karath eth huw min gereb am huw) because he has given some of his offspring and what he has sown (ky min zera* huw* nathan) to Molek | a false god or king claiming the authority to rule (la ha Molek). In so doing (la ma*an), that which is associated with My sanctuary as a special, separated, and set-apart place (*eth miqdash any) becomes sullied and defiled (tame) in addition to dishonoring (wa la chahal) My set-apart, unique, and special name (*eth shem qodesh any).” (Qara 20:3)

When the religious claim to speak for God, and yet contradict Him, as is the case with Judaism, Christianity, and Islam, they tarnish Yahowah’s name and reputation. And since the Towrah and Prophets were presented through Yahuwdym | Jews, when they sacrifice their children by encouraging them to demonstrate their allegiance to nameless and false gods, everything Yahowah revealed through Yisra*el is sullied.

Molek is more than the Lord of the Ammonites. This name is based upon melek, which denotes a man or woman who claims the authority to rule as a king or queen. As such, this statement defines what the world is doing every day by turning children over to the false rhetoric of disingenuous leaders chasing after false gods. For example, the Haredim’s support for the Netanyahu coalition on the condition that they receive grants and exemptions is as Molek as it gets.

In this regard, Yahowah is warning us against tolerance and appeasement. It only takes one to ruin the lives of many. Religion is a particularly infectious disease.

“If (wa *im) the people of the Earth (*am ha *erets) act like hypocrites and ignore or conceal this, shutting their eyes (*alam *alam *ayn hem) regarding a person like this (min ha iysh ha huw) when he causes his child or something he has sown (ba nathan huw* min zera* huw*) to honor Molek | a false god or king claiming the authority to rule (la ha Molek), such that he is not dispatched and continues to live with them (*la bilthy muwth *eth huw), (*Qara 20:4) then I will place My presence (*wa sym *any *eth paneh any) against that individual (*ba ha *iysh ha huw) as well as against (wa ba) his political, religious, or social group (*mishphachah huw).

I will banish them, severing them (*wa karath *eth huw) from among their family and people (*min qereb am hem), along with anyone who follows him into prostitution by feigning love for money (*wa *eth kol ha zanah *achar huw), soliciting an unfaithful and inappropriate relationship (la zanah) by pursuing, even at some later time (achar*), Molek | as a false god or a king claiming the authority to rule (ha Molek).” (*Qara 20:5)

It is better that the one carrying the infectious disease is quarantined than have the entire community get sick and die. When we uproot the first weed in the garden, we do not risk losing the entire crop to the invasive threat. And in this regard, it is the Haredim who are prostituting themselves and sacrificing their children to the Molek of political Israel.

Continuing to denounce religion in the Towrah and preach intolerance, Yahowah says...

“Furthermore (wa), the soul (ha nepesh) who turns to and approaches (asher paneh el) a medium or psychic with the idea of communicating with the dead (*ha owb), or toward the one familiar with spirituality (*wa *el ha yida*ony*) to whore (la zanah) after them (achar hem*), I will place Myself against that soul (*wa nathan *eth *any ba ha nepesh ha huw) and will cut him off and separate him (*wa karath *eth huw) from among his people (*min qereb *am huw). (*Qara 20:6)

Avoid outside influences so that you can be set apart and special (wa qadash) and then be (wa hayah) separate and uncommon, unlike others (qadowsh), for indeed (ky), I (any*), Yahowah (YaHoWaH), am your God (elohym atem).”

(*Qara / Called Out / Leviticus 20:7)

There is a direct correlation between prostitution and religion according to God. And that was the reason we turned to the Towrah, wanting the assurance that we were correct. The institution that would claim that it is a moral bastion against prostitution and whores is leading the parade of harlots.

Yahowah wanted the opposite for His people. His intent for Yisra*el was to be separate and distinct from the Gentile nations surrounding them. God was appalled that human civilizations were defined by their religiosity, politics, and militarism. And He wanted better for His people. They have not cooperated.

While apart from rabbinical Kabbalists, the religious will denounce mediums and psychics, but most have no issue in attempting to communicate with the dead because the religious venerate their perceived saints, sages, and wise men, reveling in their ancient pronouncements. And since these rituals are clearly religious, by specifically denouncing these practices, God is damning religion.

Also relevant, since Yahowah distinguished His witness with His name, one of the easiest ways to determine if someone is speaking for God, or for himself, is to look for the Divine stamp of approval and authenticity. If you do not see Yahowah's name presented throughout the text, it was not inspired by God. This test is sufficient in itself to scrap the Christian New Testament, Talmud, and Quran.

Every significant civilization in human history was overtly religious. The rulers always supported the priests and the priests universally endorsed the political leaders. Even their militaries marched to the edicts of clerics and kings. And they each imposed caste systems, limiting everyone's freedom, and affording people little choice in what to believe, while restricting their access to information. And it is these limitations that Yahowah detests.

“Moreover (wa), you should not follow (lo halak*) the customs and traditions (ba chugah) of the gentile nation (ha gowy) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), I will send away before your appearance (any shalach min paneh atem). This is because (ky) they have engaged in and done (asah*) all of these things (eth kol eleh). And this is why I am disgusted by them (wa quwts ba hem). (*Qara*20:23*)

Therefore, I have promised you that (*wa *amar la atem) you will inherit (atem yarash*) their soil (eth adamah hem). I am giving it to you (*wa any nathan hy la atem) as an inheritance (la yarash). It is a land (eth hy* erets) flowing with milk and honey (zuwb chalab wa dabash).

I am Yahowah (any Yahowah*), your God (elohym atem) who, to show the way to the benefits of the relationship (asher*), separated you, distinguished and differentiated you (*badal *eth atem), from these people and their nations (*min ha amym).” (*Qara*20:24*)

God’s instructions, and His intent, are clear. Since He abhors the culture of man – which is universally religious, political, and militaristic – He wanted His people to be different. Yisra^{*el} was to be a shining example of how much better life would be without the controlling and oppressive influence of clerics and kings.

“Therefore (wa), you should be set apart and separated, special and distinct (hayah qadowsh), to approach Me (*la any) because (ky) I, Yahowah (any Yahowah*), am set apart and special, unlike what is commonly perceived (qadowsh). And so (wa), I have separated you, differentiating you (*badal *eth atem) from these nations (*min ha amym), to be Mine, to draw near and exist with Me (*la hayah la any).” (Qara / Called Out / Leviticus 20:26*)

Yahowah concludes His call for His people to be set apart and uncommon and thus not religious, by reminding them that religion is deadly. As a result, when Yisra^{*el} elites ignored this admonition and rejected their inheritance, God scolded His wayward children throughout the prophets. He would hold them accountable for the fate they had chosen.

Since we commenced our review of the 4th chapter of Howsha° a while ago, a quick review is in order. God began by requesting...

“Listen to (*shama) the word (dabar) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH), Children of Yisra*el (*beny Yisra*el*), for it is certain that (ky) Yahowah (Yahowah) has a dispute and grievance (ryb) against the inhabitants (im yashab*) of the Land and Earth (*ha erets). This is because (ky) there is no honesty or integrity (ayn emeth), no devotion or sense of loyalty (*wa ayn chesed), nor understanding, not even any thoughtful insights pertaining to (*wa ayn da°at) God (elohym*) in the Land (*ba ha erets). (Howsha° 4:1)

They have sanctioned the curse of Allah, bringing restrictions, bans, and punishments upon themselves based on their oaths (alah*). So, they will cringe in fear, bow in submission, and be disowned for these cringe-worthy deceptions, because they have promoted lies while annulling the relationship by being delusional, resulting in them being oppressed, malnourished, and sometimes starved as they are estranged (wa kachash).

They will be murdered and be murderous, dashed by the sword and cut into pieces (ratsach). They will steal, surreptitiously purloining what belongs to another (ganab). Then, by continuously and demonstrably committing religious infidelity (wa na°aph), they will break all bounds in diaspora (parats). And they will be plagued (wa naga°) by the shedding of copious amounts of blood (dam ba dam). (Howsha° 4:2)

This is the reason that (al ken*) the land will dry up (abal ha erets – the region will become a parched desert over a long period (qal imperfect)). All who live within it (*kol yashab ba hy), including the animals (ba chayah) of the expansive region (ha sadeh), along with the birds (wa ba °owph) of the sky (ha shamaym), and even the fish of the lakes, rivers, and seas (wa gam dag ha yam), will fight for survival (asaph*).” (Howsha° / He Saves / Hosea 4:3)

And it has happened just this way, throughout the entire region, and for this very reason.

“Yet (ak* – but thereafter as a result), no one should blame, plead or quarrel with (al ryb* – no individual should accuse or contend with) a lone individual (iysh* – one person). He should not make a practice of arguing with or judging (al yakach* – he should not continually rebuke, accuse, or chastise, vindicate or punish (hifil imperfect jussive – of his own freewill, he should not continually engage with another in such a way that they are alike in complaining)) a single person (iysh* – one individual). And this is because (wa) your people (am atah) are just like (ka – resemble) the argumentative and contentious nature (ryb – the insulting and conflicting approach of the quarrelsome and accusatory (hifil participle)) of the priest (kohen – the one who is supposed to be teaching and ministering by helping to explain the Miqra°ey).” (Howsha° / He Saves / Hosea 4:4)

I agree with Yahowah. And as it is with me, it is also a pet peeve for Him. It is inappropriate to blame Nazi Germany solely on Hitler, the Soviet Union on Marx, Lenin, or Stalin, or Communist China on Mao Zedong. Likewise, it is wrong to blame Judaism solely on Akiba, Christianity on Paul, or Islam on Muhammad. The invasions of Yahuwdah | Judea by Rome were not exclusively the fault of Vespasian or Hadrian. Many are required to start a religion, revolution, or invasion. So, from a modern perspective, Putin isn’t even among the culprits causing the war in Ukraine – although he is blamed 99% of the time.

Yes, there are lots of bad people in positions of power and influence. But they would be like a drop of water in the sea had others not rallied to their cause. Had Timothy, Luke, and Mark, then later Matthew, Constantine, and Eusebius not picked up the torch Peter and Paul ignited, Christianity would have fizzled out long ago. Had Muhammad not enticed mercenaries in Yathrib to rob and enslave civilians for profit, the world would never have known the Islamic prophet. Hitler fired but one shot and it was to his own head. It takes a nation to ruin humankind.

Even more to the point Yahowah was teaching, there is no merit in us focusing on individual sin when it's religious and political malfeasance that is so infectious and catastrophic. Muhammad's personal perversions only matter because he's the exemplar billions of Muslims follow.

“Therefore (wa), you will stumble and fall (kashal – you will stagger, be brought down and overthrown, fail) by day (ha yowm), and the prophet, also (wa naby gam* – the one who claims to speak for God likewise), will waver and falter, becoming injurious (kashal – will be overthrown) along with you (im atah) at night (laylah – during the darkness). Then (wa) I will make this comparable to (damah – I will cause this to silence and resemble) your mother (em atah).” (*Howsha / He Saves / Hosea 4:5)

God's problem with His people is their religion! It is the issue that continues to separate man from God.

Since the people were as corrupt as their clerics, God told the Yisra*elites, and us through them, that no one was in a position to point fingers. The destiny of the deceived would be the same as that of those who deceived them, at least in the sense that they would both stumble and fall.

In this context – especially in the midst of Yahowah's overt condemnation of Judaism, His next statement is among the most revealing ever written.

“My people (am any) are destroyed and they will perish (damah – they are ruined, having become the brunt of a sad story (nifal perfect – the people have destroyed themselves and will suffer the consequence for a protracted, but limited, time for what they have done which is destructive and harmful)) because of (min – from) a lack of understanding as a result of corrupted information (*bely ha da*at* – being without adequate knowledge, having insufficient awareness, and deficient discernment, lacking the will to recall what is important and the capacity to rationally analyze the data to comprehend (infinitive substantive – being ignorant and irrational regarding these prophetic revelations has come to demonstrably define Yisra*elites over time)).

This is because (ky) you (*atah) have avoided and rejected (ma^{as} – you have spurned and despised, refused and disdained, showing an aversion to (qal perfect – revealing that the avoidance was complete and the rejection was literal)) the process which leads to understanding (ha da^{at} – the knowledge required to comprehend, the information which enables discernment).

Therefore (wa – so then), I will consistently reject you and avoid you (ma^{as} *atah – I will actually disassociate from you and will rebuff you, coming to despise and loathe you, showing an aversion to you, spurning you (qal imperfect)) from serving as priests and ministers (min kahan – from acting as counselors, working as teachers or facilitators (piel infinitive – this decision to curtail the priestly service is being imposed upon Yisra*el by Yahowah, emphatically, demonstrably, and continually)) on My behalf (la *any).

And since (wa) you have consistently ignored and forgotten, failing to remember or respond to (shakach – you have overlooked and lost sight of the significance of, ceasing to care about, and failing to mention (qal imperfect – actually and continually become oblivious to)) the Towrah | Teaching and Guidance of your God (Towrah *elohym *atah – Your God's Towrah Instructions and Directions, the Almighty's Education; derived from: tow – God's signed, written, and enduring, towrah – way of treating people, tuwr – giving us the means to explore, find, and choose, yarah – the source of instruction, training, supervision, and direction which flows from God, tuwb – providing answers that facilitate our restoration and return, even our reply to that which is towb – good, pleasing, beneficial, and right, and that which causes us to become acceptable, and to endure, tahowr – purifying and cleansing us, thereby towr – providing us with the opportunity to change our attitude and thinking toward God), I also (*any gam) will ignore and forget your children (*shakah ben atah – I will overlook your sons, lose sight of your children, and consider your offspring as worthless (qal imperfect)).” (*Howsha / He Saves / Hosea 4:6)

For religions based upon the Talmud, New Testament, or Quran to emerge and grow in the shadow of this declaration, the men responsible for promoting them had to be willfully dishonest. In fact, since the prophecies revealed by *Howsha prove Divine inspiration, it is a miracle that anyone believes any religion – when we can and should know and understand.

There are few passages as important to God’s people as this one. Am any refers to *Yisra*el* – to the descendants of Abraham*, Yitschaq, and *Ya*aqob*. From the opening statement, *Yisra*elites* have been the cause of Yahowah’s angst and the focus of His condemnation.

This is so for a number of reasons. First, Yahowah established His Covenant with *Yisra*el*, essentially adopting them into His Family. They were destined to inherit everything God had to offer. But because they were so readily misled, they were disinherited.

Second, Yahowah liberated the Children of *Yisra*el* from being oppressed by religion and politics in Mitsraym. He revealed His Towrah | Guidance to them, speaking directly to these Hebrews in their language. And even though He led them into the Promised Land in spite of their hideous behavior, they showed no appreciation and quickly abandoned God.

Third, *Yisra*elites* were groomed and raised to be the shining example of what life would be like for those who listen to and trust Yahowah. Instead, they became infamous for being belligerent. The realization that they did not listen, that they pursued the ways of the Gentiles, worshipping false gods and giving homage to arrogant kings, broke Yahowah’s heart. Our Creator and Father would watch as those He sought to love were humiliated and abused by those He asked them to avoid.

Fourth, Yisra*elites as a whole, not just Yahuwdym, were called to serve as Yahowah's witnesses, His prophets. And yet, because they forsook His instruction and forewent rational contemplation, Howsha* would be the last Yisra*elite prophet. The greatest opportunity ever afforded men and women by God was squandered and tossed away.

Lastly, Yahowah honors His promises, even when His people are undeserving. So, to save a remnant of Yisra*el, to reconcile their relationship with Yahuwdym and Himself, He would have to get their attention at a different time and in a different way. And as the ultimate insult to Israel's arrogance, a gowy was asked to reintroduce them to the Towrah and call them home. And more than this, the Man from *Edowm would sacrifice his life, dying at the hands of Satan as the Red Heifer, so that God's people might live.

Apart from Yahowah, human souls damah | perish. An estranged nepesh | conscious damah | ceases to exist. This is one of the most vital lessons we can learn from God and it is at the forefront of this declarative statement.

For the thoughtless and faithful, there is no eternal life in Heaven nor everlasting punishment in Hell but, instead, nothing. And while this may not register with some readers, it is essential to our understanding of Yahowah. If, instead, God had created a paradigm wherein those who were unaware of Him, who were misled about Him, or even who chose to reject Him were eternally tormented in Hell, He would be rendered unlovable and sadistic. But this religious perception is not reality.

*She*owl* | Hell is reserved for those who deliberately mislead others and abuse them via religion, politics, patriotism, militarism, education, culture, or conspiracy. Their punishment is not only deserved, recompense is the only way to be fair to those they harmed. The founders and principal catalysts for religion will all be there, along with a long list of emperors, kings, popes, pastors, imams, and rabbis.

We have all been invited to enjoy eternal life in Shamaym | Heaven with Yahowah, even though as few as one in a million will accept God's offer. We avail ourselves of this opportunity by listening to Yahowah by reciting His Towrah, Naby*, wa Mizmowr, and then responding appropriately to the conditions of His Beryth and invitations to the Miqra*ey.

Yisra*el has become so hideously misled that they have come to embody the worst of damah, having become the brunt of a sad story. They have become a nightmarish parable unto themselves – the most universally maligned people in human history. We are reading the reason Jews are the object of so many conspiracy theories.

*Bely ha da*at* is a bad thing. Ignorance is destructive, not bliss. God's people have fallen, just as has humanity at large, because far too many lack understanding. This is due to many factors, including being inundated by the religious, political, and conspiratorial with corrupted information. Those *bely ha da*at* are without adequate knowledge. They have insufficient awareness to be discerning and thoughtful – which is why most believe rather than know. The world is awash in unfounded opinions.

In the case of Yisra*elites, they lack the will to recall the lessons of the Towrah. And without God's Guidance, they have become incapable of rationally analyzing the prescriptions for living Yahowah has provided.

Contrary to what the religious believe, we must think our way to God. He is not found at the end of faith's multicultural rainbow.

Yahowah's Towrah is comprised of teaching and guidance, instructions and directions so that we are suitably educated. But when God's dissertation on life is *ma*as* | neglected or, worse, rejected, there is no *da*at* | basis for understanding. Knowledge is required before we can make the connections and associations needed to comprehend Yahowah's approach to life. We cannot distinguish between right and wrong, differentiate between good and bad, or discriminate between the teachings of God and the edicts of man without access to verifiable information and the will to exercise good judgment regarding it.

Every rabbi who has claimed to serve God is lying. The same is true for every pastor and priest, every minister and theologian. Not one knows Yahowah. In fact, they have all avoided Him as He has rejected them.

Yahowah designated specific individuals in well-defined roles to serve Him and His people. These included the kohen | priests. All of Lowy descent were asked to educate God's people and help them understand His instructions and attend His Miqra^oey. But when the teachers forsook their education, they became useless and obsoleted themselves.

And while this prophecy clearly states that this was the reason behind the demise of the kohen | priests, there is more to the story. Yisra^oelites had rejected Yahowah to the extent they had replaced Him. They had no interest in listening to their God, preferring to heed the myths associated with the gods they had purloined from the gowym.

With Yisra^oelites unwilling to listen, there would be a long intermission. There would no longer be a reason for the kohen | priests under these conditions.

However, you will notice that Yahowah did not replace kohen with rabbis. He simply ma^oas | rejected the priests – avoiding all contact with them. Therefore, Judaism's twisted variation of Replacement Theology, whereby rabbis have replaced the priests, is as irrational and inappropriate as Christianity's version, whereby Gentiles replace Jews. Moreover, when Roman Catholics usurped the priestly title, they unwittingly demonstrated that they were not *kahan la^o any | ministering on God's behalf.

In Judaism, the myth that rabbis draw their authority from God is as errant and deadly as the delusion that their Talmud is an oral Torah with a legacy dating back to Moseh. Yahowah disowned His people, disinheriting and divorcing Yisra*el, because they consistently ignored His Towrah. And considering their fascination with the Talmud, had it been a second Torah, this statement would cease to be true.

This is the one-two punch that destroys Judaism. Yahowah has said that Yisra*el has ceased to be rational regarding His Towrah. Rather than observe and study it as rabbis protest, they are ignoring it and, thus, not responding to the Towrah. God's prophetic proclamation is both consistent with our observable reality regarding the rabbis and in diametric opposition to Judaism.

Further, Towrah does not mean "Law" as the religious profess. It is comprised of Teaching and Guidance, things we can learn from and follow, but not obey.

The Towrah is Yahowah's. The Talmud is rabbinical. The fate of our souls and those of our children hinges upon which we rely or believe. The fate of every soul is determined by this formula. We come to know and understand by studying the Towrah | Teaching of our God. Yahowah accepts or rejects us on this basis.

So, here's something to ponder: Since God's people are destroyed for lack of understanding His Towrah, how is faith the alternative? Those who believe do not know.

The larger human institutions grow, the worse they become. It is gang mentality played out on the scale of nations and civilizations. It is the same with principalities as it is with religions. They not only feed upon the people's willingness to acquiesce and be controlled, but the leaders of such institutions are also emboldened by the increased access to sex, power, and money. And so it is with the cleric, so it is with those he has conned. That is why Yahowah said...

"So as (ka) they grew in number and as the rabbis became more influential (rabab hem – they increased in population and became more numerous and self-exalting), so much the more (ken) they missed the way (*chata – they were misled and went in the wrong direction, retreating from what is right and becoming too culpable, blameworthy, and offensive (qal perfect)) to approach Me (*la any – concerning Me).

I exchanged (muwr – I substituted (hifil imperfect)) their reputation and reward (kabowd hem – their honor and respect, their status and forthcoming abundance) for (ba) shame (qalown – dishonor and disgrace, ignominy and infamy, an exceedingly low status, engendering slander and public humiliation).” (*Howsha / He Liberates / Hosea 4:7)

With the previous statement excommunicating the kohen, it is by recognizing that rabab serves as the basis of rabbi that this becomes a rather biting indictment. As the rabab | number of rabbis increased and they grew, ken chata la any* | so much the more they were misled and missed the way to approach God. The rabbis were culpable and offensive to Yahowah – just as His name and approach were repulsive to them.

To be fair, such is the case with every religion. People go along to get along. They assume that their religion is right because so many people believe it. But the truth has never been popular. And for all of human history, deceptions have held sway.

This passage presents an ironic twist. As people grow in stature, they recede from God. The more people move in one direction, the more likely it is that they are headed the wrong way. The more people strive to be influential, the more insignificant they become. Humankind has substituted transitory wealth for an eternal reward and has exchanged the illusion of power for its genuine manifestation.

Our appreciation for Yahowah’s prophetic testimony grows when we set what He has revealed beside the long history of human malfeasance. A recounting of the exploits of civilizations leaves the observant and moral with the realization of just how awful men and women have been.

While individuals can be good or bad, and are typically both, in a group, we humans are resolutely awful. We engage in human sacrifice to appease the gods. We enslave our neighbors so that we prosper by their toil. We impose our politics and economic schemes and claim to be righteous and democratic. We rape the planet, rob it of its resources, and are murderous while pretending to be moral and peaceful. Lies are preferred over truth, control to freedom, religion to a responsible relationship with God.

We establish enormous militaries and equip the killers with weapons of mass destruction. Then we are indoctrinated to praise the soldiers wielding the implements of death and believe that the least free and most destructive institutions on Earth are responsible for our liberty and prosperity. We tax the productive and reward the unproductive and think that we are being progressive and compassionate. We divide people into groups based on the color of their skin and then blame others for being racist.

And should someone raise their head above the crowd to demonstrate the degrading duplicity of it all, we slander and crucify the lone voice of reason. We will even accept a god or reject God based not on the testimony of God but of men.

When engaged in pursuing their political or religious ambitions, people are rotten...

“They feed upon (akal* – they are fed and nourished by, even prey upon) the wrongdoing and sin offerings (*chata*th* – the iniquity and propitiations, the errant ways and misguided beliefs) of My people (am* any* – My family). These souls (*nepesh huw) lift up and accept, promote and honor (*nasa – they elevate and advance, forgive and even respect), their perversity and wrongdoing, even their depravity (*wa *el awon hem – their wicked ways and resulting liability, their iniquity and injustice). (*Howsha 4:8)

And so (wa) likewise, it will be the same (hayah ka – it is identical) for the people (*ha am) as it will be (ka) for the priest (ha kohen). I will hold both of them accountable (*wa paqad *al huw – I will take stock of them, judging and punishing them) for their ways (*derek huw – for their conduct).

I will repay them, bringing back upon them (*wa shuwba la huw – I will require restitution, seeking retribution for) the foolish, beguiling, and cruel things they have done (*ma*alal huw – for their oppressive practices, malevolent deeds, and malicious characterizations; from alah* – to act foolishly and wantonly).” (*Howsha / He Delivers / Hosea 4:9)

This is true both literally and symbolically. If not for people’s individual and collective sense of guilt and implied hellish consequences, religions wouldn’t exist. Rabbis and priests prey on people’s fear of the unknown and on their fear of punishment. As a result, they devour the funds of the unsuspecting by promising their victims that their donations will somehow exonerate them and elicit favor from God.

Religions prosper using this strategy. If a Hasidic Jew pays the inflated price of kosher food and pays the rabbi to bless their kitchen, they are pronounced righteous. Christians were beguiled to acquire indulgences, which did nothing except enrich the Church. In Islam, a jihadist is promised sexual indulgence in Allah’s brothel.

From God’s perspective, while they are culpable, the “blame the rabbi for misleading me” alibi will not work. Every religious individual will be held accountable for what they have done. And that is because, at the very least, believers have given priests the pretense of credibility by participating in their religion. Most have corrupted their children by encouraging them to follow their example. Rather than endearing a soul to God, their faith will convict them of infidelity. And while that isn’t a crime in courtrooms established by men, it is a capital offense with God.

The quid pro quo of this message is a killer. Because Jews and Gentiles have disassociated themselves from Yahowah, either by ignoring Him or by replacing Him with a god conceived by men, they have been spurned by Yahowah and are crippled spiritually. Oblivious, they have been forgotten.

It is Divine justice, but it is also deadly. And believers have no one to blame but themselves. The truth is available, but most choose to ignore it. Dowd opened the Door and Yahowah stood beside it to call us Home, but too few paid attention. Most have not even bothered to ask our benefactor His name. Very few even know the name of the door (Pesach) or how, when, and why Dowd opened it.

Rabbis have come to promote countless rites and rituals God views as perverse. They advance their arguments over Yahowah's instructions. And if that was all there was to it, by doing away with the rabbis, Yahowah would be able to resolve Yisra*el's problems. However, as it is for the priest, so it is with the people. By accepting the rabbinical lies, and by defending and financing this attack on the word of God, everyone is culpable.

Therefore, to be fair, Yahowah must hold all of Yisra*el accountable. He will judge them individually and collectively and will be hard-pressed to find an acceptable soul.

Without recompense, there can be no justice. Without retribution, life is not fair. Even if the majority would like God to forgive and forget, it is not in His character to be immoral.

The victims of the Inquisition and the Holocaust must be assured that their tormentors will be held accountable. Vespasian and Hadrian must suffer for the suffering they inflicted. And they are but two among many.

Accountability isn't mean but, instead, fair. It is compassionate and moral to seek justice for those who have suffered needlessly. And even if it is counter to your sensibilities, those who tortured others will be tortured, rapists will be raped, and murderers will endure a slow and painful death. This is as it must be. And while that is true in death, for the rabbis in life, it isn't much better...

“They will eat (*wa akal – they will consume food (qal perfect)) but never be satisfied (wa lo saba – not be full or have their needs met (qal imperfect)). They will act like prostitutes (zanah – they will be as unfaithful as whores (hifil perfect)) without ever being productive (wa lo parats* – without satisfying urges) because (*ky eth) they have neglected to observe (azab la shamar* – they are derelict in their consideration of (qal perfect)) Yahowah (YaHoWaH – our elowah* | God as directed in His ToWRaH | teaching regarding His HaYaH | existence and our ShaLoWM | restoration). (Howsha°4:10)

Engaging in religious infidelity, immorality, and unfaithfulness (zanuwth – through harlotry and whoredom), coupled with intoxication (yayn – drunkenness and inebriation) of even barely fermented wine (thyrowsh – being dispossessed and impoverished by being disinherited), seizes and takes away (laqach – grasps hold of) good judgment (leb – rational thinking and a proper attitude).” (Howsha°/ He Liberates / Hosea 4:11)

Faith without knowing, sex without love, and observing without purpose are unfulfilling. Prostitutes are continually engaged in intercourse, and yet, there is nothing to show for it.

Over the past twenty-two years, I have found an axiom that has rung true without exception. The overtly religious and political are incapable of exercising good judgment. No amount of evidence is sufficient, and no rational argument is ever compelling – even if both come from God Almighty. While intoxication slows judgment, religion debilitates it.

That was a lot to process. But such is the essence of Yahowah’s revelation through Howsha°. The subject material is not appealing to God and He is pressed for time, opening the floodgates of instruction. He wants to elicit a different response, but He knows that it isn’t going to happen – not for a very long time.

“My people (am any) ingeniously question (sha°al – ask inquisitively ponder the possibilities of) the trees (ba °ets *huw) and their branches, staffs, and stems (*wa maqel huw) as if they are going to impart information and speak to them (*nagad la huw – are going to convey a message to them). Indeed (ky), the spirit (ruwach) of religious infidelity (zanuwnym – of prostitution, of feigning affection, of pretending to be devoted, and of whoredom) has led them astray and caused them to wander away (*ta*ah* – has misled them). And they act like whores and religious prostitutes (wa zannah – performing like unfaithful harlots) in relation to a succession of their gods (*tachath elohym hem).” (*Howsha / He Saves / Hosea 4:12)

The Ets* | Trees of which Yahowah speaks are the Tree of Knowledge leading to the Tree of Lives. Without one, no one can find the other. This is why Yahowah stated that His people are destroyed for a lack of *da*ath* | knowledge. Further, religious maqel | branches, staffs, and stems serve as counterfeits for the genuine articles – Dowd as the Tsemach | Branch and Yada as the Choter | Stem, both of whom also serve to represent the two Trees of the Garden to which Yahowah is alluding.

Beyond these profound insights, religious cults have long worshiped nature. The Earth reveals its concerns to them as opposed to revealing God’s nature.

The religious are moved by a different spirit. Ignorant of what Yahowah has revealed, they are readily misled. Believing that they are pleasing God, He views them as a loving wife would perceive a prostitute chasing after her husband. If he succumbs to one, there will be more. And indeed, this was true with Yisra*el, where one misguided adaptation of Judaism would lead to countless more.

What God describes next must be seen in context. The subject of His ire is still singular – religion – at this point they were more copycats than inventive. Yisra*elites were emulating the ways of the goway...

“On hilltops and summits (al ro*sh ha harym* – on the tops of mountains), they offer sacrifices (zabach). And so upon the hills (*wa *al ha giba*ah* – upon the knolls and hilltops), they join in and are bound together to blow smoke (qatar – they fumigate the area to shut out others, burn incense and aromatic wood, and make a smoke offering to appease their concerns) under (tachath – beneath) prominent trees like red oaks (alown*) and white poplars (libneh), with any large tree serving as an inappropriate goddess (elah* – a massive tree, cursed, unfit, improper, feminine of el* – god), because her shadow, the object blocking the light in lesser dimensions (*tsel hy – the imposition of her presence diminishes illumination as a two-dimensional representation of the three-dimensional object), is perceived as pleasant, desirable, and beneficial (towb – is deemed good, useful, and pleasing).

Therefore (al ken*), your daughters (*bath atem) are acting like religious prostitutes and disingenuous whores (zanah – are behaving like harlots selling a feigned impression of love for security and money), and your brides (*wa kalah atem – your spouses) are unfaithful and adulterous (*na*aph* – are cheating on the relationship by being religious). (*Howsha / Hosea 4:13)

I will not take this into account and record it (*lo*paqad* – I will not count this) against your daughters (al bath atem) [when they are acting like religious prostitutes and disingenuous whores who are pretending to be adoring for money (ky zannah – omitted from 4Q78MP)] nor against your brides (*wa *al kalah atem) when (ky) they are unfaithful lovers cheating on the relationship (*na*aph* – dishonoring the marriage by being religious) because (ky) the men are cavorting with (*hem im parad – they are selfishly and continually open to, causing divisiveness, disassociation, and isolation with (piel imperfect)) religious prostitutes (ha zannah).

They are with the cult of prostitutes (*wa im ha qadeshah – with the holy whores having sex with fellow believers in religious shrines as part of the worship service) and they offer sacrifices, slaughtering animals (zebach), as people (*wa am) devoid of understanding (lo byn* – incapable of comprehending by evaluating the evidence and testimony in a rational manner, being discerning by making all of the proper connections and associations) which is ruinous and debilitating – thrusting them away (labat – which is catastrophic and degrading, also depressing).” (*Howsha / He Delivers / Hosea 4:14)

This affirms one of the many insights we can also derive from the Garden. While Chawah was misled by Satan’s misappropriation of Yahowah’s testimony, the reason she was susceptible is that *Adam was derelict. He neglected their relationship, and he did not teach his wife what he had learned from Yahowah – at least to the extent needed to rebuff Satan’s miscasting of God’s message.

To be sure, Chawah went rogue. She wanted to be a goddess. And she carried her animosity toward Yahowah and *Adam outside of the Garden, harboring it for a long time. But none of this would have happened had *Adam contributed more to the relationship and spent more time talking with his wife.

In this case, while the women may have cheated on the men, the fact that Jewish men had become religious whores caused Yahowah to say that the crimes the men were committing were so much worse than the infidelity of the women that He’d overlook one and condemn the other. And while their marriages were as broken as the Covenant, God distinguished between what He saw as crimes of commission versus omission, with the men being so egregious with the religious whores, it was easy to see why their wives wanted nothing to do with them.

This may seem like déjà vu all over again. But clearly, God does not want us to miss the message. Religion is whorish according to Yahowah – a form of prostitution where devotion is feigned for a false sense of security and money. Further, as has been the case from the beginning, *na*aph* | adultery is being used as a metaphor to denounce being unfaithful and disingenuous to God.

Satan puts on a show. And so religion has sex appeal. Truth be known, almost every religion exists to give men power over women – who are little more than chattel. Women cannot even get a divorce in Judaism without their husband's written approval. In Pauline Christianity, men lord over women. And in Islam, women are possessions and prizes to be won. And that is not good. An unequal relationship is typically a bad one. Consider Yahowah's with Yisra^{*el}.

In addition to cavorting with religious whores, the men of Yisra^{*el} were doing something far worse – something the Haredi do even to this day. They offer their sacrifices, even slaughtering animals, without purpose. Nothing is achieved, even by those who attend the Miqra^{*ey}, unless we understand the reasons we are responding to Yahowah in this way and on these days.

There are few things as degrading as religious rituals. They imply that God wants us to check our brains at the door and grovel on the floor – to waste our time performing repetitive and mindless tasks. If that were the case, why establish the Covenant and reveal the Towrah?

These things considered, there is something much more important underlying this narrative. Recognizing that in the beginning of this book, Yahowah asked Howsha^{*} to marry a religious whore so that he would understand and properly convey Yahowah frustration with Yisra^{*el}. And God is staying on theme, depicting Yisra^{*el} as a religious harlot. This is relevant because, as He has just stated, Yahowah has a plan in place to resolve this problem of the inadvertent infidelity of Numbers 5. And that is through the Taruw^{ah} sacrifice of the ^{}Adamah Parah of Bamidbar 19. Our understanding of the Towrah is what makes these connections and resulting insights possible.

And in this regard, this is all related to the Trees, the Branch and the Stem, because the same individuals are engaged. Dowd is the groom of Bamidbar 5 who wants Israel back after the people are cleansed of their religious filth and Yada is responsible for purging them.

Up to this point, Howsha*'s message has been directed toward Yisra*el, the ten extended families comprising the Northern Kingdom. There was still hope for Yahuwdah. Another dozen prophets would be sent their way.

“Even though (*im) you act like a religious whore (zanah *atah – you are a fraud and prostitute, unfaithful and unreliable, feigning devotion (qal participle)), Yisra*el | those who Contend and Struggle against God (Yisra*el), let not Yahuwdah | the Beloved of Yah be guilty and suffer the same fate (*al *asham Yahuwdah – let not those Related to Yah fail, become offensive, and be similarly wrong (qal imperfect)).

Do not come to (wa al bow – do not enter) Gilgal | Circular Thinking (ha Gilgal – a whirlwind, tumbleweed, chariot wheel, swirling storm, or circular reasoning, first Yisra*elite encampment west of the Yarden). Neither ascend (wa *al *alah – do not rise) to Beyth *awen | the Home of Affliction (Beyth *awen – the House of Vanity, Religious Idolatry, and Trouble, a town of Benyamyn | Benjamin).

Do not consistently curse, swear, or continually take an oath (wa al shaba – adjure, make a promise, or take a vow (nifal imperfect)). Yahowah lives! (Yahowah chay – Yah exists to vigorously animate and restore lives; Yah is vital to life and the living).” (Howsha^o / He Delivers / Hosea 4:15)

While Yisra*el had become a lost cause, Yahuwdah wasn't – at least not yet. There would be righteous people, honorable kings, and glorious prophets in Dowd's shadow.

And while Yahuwdah would fall, and suffer under the Babylonians, Greeks, Imperial Romans, Roman Catholics, the first Muslims, the Ottomans, British, Nazis, Conspiratorialists, and Marxists, their intermission from Yahowah was another three centuries down the road. They would succumb to the circular reasoning of religion and take vanity to an entirely new level.

Unlike man's religious schemes where conversion is the means to submission and control, there is no oath of allegiance for the Covenant. It is enough that we know that Yahowah lives for it and can be trusted regarding it.

By referencing the towns of Gilgal and Beyth *Awen, Yahowah underscored His anti-religious message. Gilgal is where the people made Sha*awl king and where the ill-conceived leader ran afoul of Yahowah. Gilgal speaks of circular things – such as circular reasoning, tumbleweeds blown by the wind, and swirling storms. This is telling because the Christian term, “church,” is most closely related to Circe, the daughter of the sun god, Helios. It is from her name that the English words, circle and circus, are derived. You will find them in the halos, representing the circular disc of the sun and sun worship throughout Christianity. Even religious Jews have their circles, wearing the kippah – which is of Greek influence.

Further, King *Sha*awl* / Saul is a harbinger for the wannabe Apostle *Sha*awl* | Paul, the founder and principal author of Christianity. Among the vainest of men, he, like King Saul, was from the tribe of Benyamyn | Benjamin, which is where the House of Affliction and Vanity was located.

“Indeed (ky – surely and truly), Yisra*el (*Yisra*el*) is as stubborn (ka sarar – as defiant, obstinate, rebellious, and unwilling to change) as a cow (parah).

Now as a result, can (atah – at a point in time, so then, in the sequence of the narrative and as the logical consequence) Yahowah (YaHoWaH – an accurate presentation of the name of elowah* – God as guided by His towrah – instructions regarding His hayah – existence) shepherd them (*ra*ah hem* – care for their needs, lead, nurture, and protect them) as a lamb (ka kebes – as sheep) in the limitless, spacious place with vast freedom (ba ha merchab – in the midst of the broad and open way)? (Howsha *4:16)

Ephraym (ephraym* – Useless Ash, Waste of Carbon, and plural of Fruitful Cow [the Northern Kingdom]) is in accord with and allied to (chabar – joined to, in union with, and is casting the spells of) harmful idolatrous religious images and vexing false gods (atsab* – objects of worship). You should choose to leave him alone (yanah huw yanah* – let him be, satisfied with his intermission, and undisturbed during his time out (hifil imperative)).” (Howsha 4:17)

The word Yahowah used for cow, parah, was a revealing choice, one where He had to break grammar rules to make His point. Yisra*el is a masculine name while parah is the feminine of par | bull. He did so in this context because Yisra*el represents the Adulterous Woman that the adamah Parah* | Red Heifer will purge of guilt on Taruw*ah in advance of Dowd’s return on Kipurym.

I’ve been called a lot of things, including stubborn, defiant, rebellious, and unwilling to change. My stance regarding Yahowah is formidable and unwavering. And even with all of the titles afforded this mission, from Choter | Sucker to Nakry | Observant Foreigner, from edah* | Restoring Witness to Basar | Herald, from *Yada | One who Knows to *Zarowa | One Cultivating the Harvest, I had not, however, heard Yahowah reference my role as a Parah | Productive Bull until reexamining the prophecies regarding the Choter and the fulfillment of Taruw*ah, both of which speak of this Parah.

Further, the quip that even Yahowah cannot shepherd them comes directly out of the Towrah when we find Yahowah and Moseh both giving up on Yisra*el in Bamidbar 11. It was so bad, Yahowah torched the area surrounding the camp and Moseh quit, saying that no one could shepherd Israel. But then, God interjects the kebes | lamb operating in the limitless realm and of his own accord. He is Dowd fulfilling Passover to resolve Israel’s fixation with religious infidelity.

Let there be no doubt ~ Yahowah divorced Yisra*el because His people were and remain religious, which God is equating to being incapacitated by the spirit of alcohol...

“As their alcoholic beverages (*sobe*hem* – their beer and wine) are consumed and removed (suwr – are finished and dragged away), they go out whoring, acting like disingenuous prostitutes (zanah zannah – they feign adoration for shekels, being religious and unfaithful, cheating on the relationship (hifil infinitive perfect)). The religious are sexually and financially exploitive, as blind and senseless stooges (megen huw – their cultic sex partners who have traded debauchery for money, surrendering to their pretense and gaudy ornamentation and phony embellishments as a result of having their vision impaired) love (ahab – seem to adore and desire, even prefer) ignominy and shame (qalown – insults, scorn, dishonor, scandals, infamy, and humiliation). (Howsha 4:18)

A Spirit (ruwach) has laid siege to and enveloped (tsarar – has bound itself to and oppressed, weakening and troubling, harassing and vexing (qal perfect)) them (eth hy) in her wings (*ba kanaph hy – within the extremity of her garment). They will be ashamed and humiliated, even confounded and disappointed (wa bowsh – have a feeling of emotional distress over the loss of hope, despair as a result of having committed a serious sin), as a result of their sacrifices (min zebach hem).” (Howsha 4:19 / He Saves / Hosea 4:19)

Religion intoxicates and impairs judgment. And those who pander for it are whores. The victims of these schemes are senseless stooges. Any questions?

The spirit of religion is ha Satan’s | the Adversary’s. He is the Lord God of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. And from Yahowah’s perspective, he is nothing but tsarar | trouble.

As for the kanaph, this is the inside seam of a garment that the Yisra’elites were to place a blue flax flower to remind them of the purpose of Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym in the month when it comes into bloom. But, religious as ever, the Yisra’elites turned the flower into a tassel and displayed it openly as part of their religious apparel.

And then to make matters worse, Jews replaced the intended sacrifices of the Lamb, Bull, and Goat during the Mow’edym with their own religious holidays, negating God’s intent while annoying the Almighty in the process.

What follows is unexpected but wise. God is encouraging us to leave Yisra*el alone. Until quite recently, Yahowah deemed the people beyond repair, completely unwilling to listen. Addressing them would have been a waste of breath. And if it were not for the promise to reconcile the relationship, even today, God's message would fall on deaf ears.

Just leave them alone. The religious are allergic to the truth and there is no reason to be downwind of their sleaze.

Humankind is in a fog. Most are aiding and abetting their own demise. Evidential truth has been exchanged for unsubstantiated opinions, reason has been abrogated by speculation, and man has replaced God with religious and political delusions. That leaves us with a choice. We can separate ourselves from the lemmings, reject religion and politics, mock the conspiracies, and turn instead to the Towrah and Prophets.

Speaking through one of the best, Yahowah used several different words to emphasize the importance of “listening” in the opening stanza of the fifth chapter of Howsha*...

“Hear this (shama zo*th* – listen to this and process the information), those who are priests and have become religious leaders (ha kohen – ministers tasked with explaining and facilitating participation in the Beryth and *Miqra*ey* via the Towrah). Pay attention and be attentive to what you are hearing (wa qashab – listen diligently and accept this information as true, then respond to it), Family of Yisra*el (*beyth Yisra*el*).

Household of the king and extended family of political leaders (beyth ha melek – home of government rulers), open your ears to hear as tools to evaluate and consider (azan* – broaden the scope of what you are hearing, give ear and listen; from azan* – to weigh, test, prove, and consider, azen* – implements and tools, and ozen* – ears). For this (ky) just assessment (ha mishpat – this rational evaluation and reasoned conclusion using sound judgment leading to a justified condemnation) applies to you (*la atem).

Indeed (ky), you have become (hayah – you exist as) a snare, a dangerous means to control others (pach – you are plotting a calamity to trap and restrict) la Mitspah* | with the means to be observant (la Mitspah – approaching the way to be watchful, to explore and examine; from my – to consider the implications of tsaphah – being observant), in addition to (wa) a net (resheth – a means to capture, control, and confine, a network designed to impoverish and dispossess others; from yarash – to disinherit) spread out (parash – scattered around) upon (*al) Tabor | a broken and confused world (Tabor – the confounding abominations of the Earth; from tabar – broken and tebel – perverted and confounded world).” (Howsha® / He Liberates / Hosea 5:1)

Yahowah has divided society into three segments: priests, people, and politicians. I believe that they are listed in this order for a reason. If the Lowy had listened and done as they were asked, Yisra*elites would have heard them speak of Yahowah. Had that occurred, they would have responded appropriately because God’s word is consistent and compelling. And had they done so, the people would have relied upon Yahowah’s coworkers to properly interpret and apply the Towrah – negating the need for politicized kings.

Since He elected to use a different word for “listen” for ministers, for individuals, and for leaders, let’s see if we can ascertain why. For the priests, Yahowah chose *shama. It is the most commonly used term by God when He encourages us to *shama | listen to Him. It is not nuanced beyond “hearing.” And yet, because it is often used in conjunction with shamar | to closely examine and carefully consider, and shares two of three letters in its composition in common, we may conclude that the observant individual listens to God.

For the people, God selected qashab. He wants those He is talking about to “pay attention and to be diligent regarding the response to what we are hearing.” It is in our interest to “be attentive, receive the message, and accept it as true so that we respond appropriately to it.” And let’s be clear – Yahowah is addressing Yisra*el, not Christians or Haredi. He has no interest in those who are religious listening to Him because He cannot stand to be around them.

For Yisra*el’s leaders, Yahowah used azan*. While pronounced differently, it was written identically in the ancient text to ozen* | ear. It depicts our ozen* | faculty of hearing as an azen* | tool or implement to deploy in the azan* | testing, proving, evaluating, and considering what we can azan* | incline and open our ears to hear.

Mitspah’s gruesome tale begins in Shaphat / Judges 19:10 and runs through the end of the book. The Yisra*elite chiefs and clerics were assembled “to consider, take counsel, and speak up” about “wickedness that had taken place.” A woman had been raped and murdered by a mob of Benjamites. “As a result, they took an oath concerning those who did not respond to Yahowah at Mitspah, saying, ‘He shall surely be put to death.’ One tribe is cut off from Yisra*el today.”

By contrast, Tabor is cloaked in victory. This is where the great Judge and Prophet Dabowrah lured Sisera to the mountain to end his oppression of God’s people. Mitspah and Tabor are Tragedy and Hope. And they are both used as bait to trap and control the religious and political.

“The rebellious insurgents who are openly defiant (wa set – those who swerve to-and-fro, turning aside and falling away) are intensely and deeply (amaq* – are profoundly and cunningly) murderous, even genocidal (shachatah – deadly to the point of sacrificing humans), so I (*wa any) will judge and punish all of them, inflicting the appropriate penalty upon each of them, which is to incarcerate the totality of them

(muwsar la hem – will shackle and constrain every one of them to rebuke them all).” (Howsha^o / He Protects / Hosea 5:2)

The proponents of religion are overtly hostile to Yahowah and His people. They deliberately pull the unsuspecting away from the proper path, making them genocidal from God’s perspective. And for that, they have earned their express ticket to Hell. God is going to judge and punish them all, inflicting the appropriate penalty on each insurgent, which will be at the very least, to incarcerate them in She^oowl. To be just, recompense is required to be fair to those they deliberately killed.

“I, Myself, am aware of (any yada*^o – I have noticed and so I am familiar with) ephraym* | Ashes (ephraym* – Worthless Specks of Carbon; from epher* – useless ash [describes the ten tribes of the Northern Kingdom]). And Yisra^oel | those who Contend and Struggle with God (wa Yisra^oel) is not hidden (lo^o kachad – is not concealed) from Me (min^o any).

For now (ky^o atah), ephraym* | Worthless Specks of Carbon (ephraym* – Ashes) is an unfaithful, immoral, and disingenuous religious whore (zanah – is a prostitute, a harlot feigning affection to many for monetary gain). And Yisra^oel (Yisra^oel – Individuals who Strive and Struggle Against God) is defiled (tame – is unclean and impure, improper and desecrated, polluted and sullied, dishonorable and deplorable). (Howsha^o 5:3)

Their cultural traditions, social customs, religious practices, and political dealings (ma^o alal hem – their actions and activities) do not allow (lo^o nathan – preclude) a return to (la shuwb^o el – restoration with (qal infinitive – the intensity and genuineness of a continuous and demonstrable return)) their God (elohym hem*).

Indeed, it is certain that (ky) an illegitimate and duplicitous spirit (ruwach zenuwnym – a disloyal and immoral, an unreliable and whorish, religious spirit akin to a prostitute acting under false pretenses) is within them (ba qereb hem – is within their midst and inner nature). Therefore (wa), they do not know or understand (*lo*yada – they are not familiar with and do not acknowledge, they are unaware of and do not respect) Yahowah (𐤏𐤍𐤐𐤗 – a transliteration of YaHoWaH as instructed in His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence).” (*Howsha / He Delivers / Hosea 5:4)

We’ve looked at *yada from both sides now, from up and down, and still somehow, it’s illusions of *yada *Yisra*el* recalls; because they don’t know *yada at all.

There are many revealing verbs in the Hebrew lexicon, but when it comes to Yahowah, *yada is best of all.

Yahowah was aware that *Yisra*el* | those who were contending with God had become ephraim* | Worthless Specks of Carbon. Their religion had defiled them, making them unacceptable. Judaism had taken its toll, sullyng a now hopelessly polluted, dishonorable, and deplorable people.

As a consequence of *ma*alal hem* | their cultural traditions, social customs, religious practices, and political dealings, there would be no right of return, no homecoming, and no means to restoration or reconciliation. The last bridge had been burned. *Howsha was the lone *Yisra*elite* prophet at the time and they were not listening to him.

When God is precluded from speaking to a people, they cannot hear Him, know Him, or exist anywhere near Him. This is why the ten tribes have long been considered lost. They had lo nathan* | negated the gift of life in a relationship with Yahowah.

The verb, shuwb | to return and be restored, was presented in the qal infinitive, affirming that the obstacles in their path were daunting and enduring. Over the next twenty-seven centuries, *Yisra*elites* would identify with their customs, traditions, and religion, but not their God.

Fortunately, they were left with a glimmer of hope. The negation of *yada was scribed in the perfect conjugation which means that it would not have to remain that way forever. Perhaps by juxtaposing *yada and Yahowah, God is suggesting that Yada Yahowah may contribute to the awakening of a remnant such that they dispense with their customs, traditions, and religion in time to give Yahowah a chance.

Between now and then, we can be assured that it is religion that has separated *Yisra*el* from Yahowah, with their faith keeping them from knowing. Rather than bringing people and God together, religion is the greatest impediment between us.

“Moreover (wa), the pride and arrogance (ga*own – the unwarranted perceptions and constant agitation, the presumptuousness and haughtiness, the self-adulation and glorification) of *Yisra*el* (*Yisra*el* – those who struggle with and contend against God) testifies (anah – bears witness as a conspicuous pronouncement, and it is the answer to the response (qal perfect)) against his presence (ba paneh huw* – against his face, his very appearance).

Therefore (wa), *Yisra*el* | those who Contend and Struggle with God (*Yisra*el*) and (wa) ephraim* | Worthless Specks of Carbon (ephraim* – Ashes) will falter, stumble, and fall, and they will be overthrown (kashal – will stagger and will not succeed as a result of being feeble and weak (nifal imperfect – the Northern Kingdom consistently stumbled and so their fall is not only their fault, the consequences will be enduring)) in their perverse corruptions and libelous errors (ba *aown / *awon hem – in their depravity, wrongdoing, transgressions, and resulting guilt). Yahuwdah | Beloved of Yah (Yahuwdah – Related to Yah) will also waver and succumb along with them (*kashal gam im hem – will falter and fall in addition to them, staggering and failing to succeed as a result of being weakened, even overthrown following them (qal perfect – while they will actually be overthrown, this condition will not prevail forever)).” (*Howsha / He Protects / Hosea 5:5)

One of the many reasons amplification is an aid to understanding is because otherwise we would likely miss the implications of the Hebrew stems, conjugations, and moods. In this case, the same verb, kashal | to stumble and fall, was directed at Yisra*el and Yahuwdah – albeit with very different implications and consequences. With the nifal stem, *Ephraym is responsible for having fallen and will endure a consequence of their own making. They made the mess and will lie in it, with no one to blame but themselves. Further, in the imperfect conjugation, there will be no getting up – at least for a very long time.

When scribed in the qal perfect, and applied to Yahuwdah | Judah, we discover that the Southern Kingdom will actually be overthrown during a finite period of time, and that they will not stay down, suggesting that they will genuinely rise again. Both aspects are literally true. The ten tribes of Yisra*el remain essentially lost after the Assyrian conquests 2,700 years ago. And while Yahuwdah was overthrown by Rome between 66 and 135 CE, the descendants of those who were hauled off into slavery have returned. It is Yahuwdym whom we refer to as “Jews” today.

Pride begets self-reliance. It is a condition that leads away from trusting Yahowah. And no matter how productive and powerful a nation might be, no matter how impervious its defenses appear or how stellar its collective intellect, societies that separate themselves from God quickly find that their productivity, power, and pride are a mirage.

“Within their flocks (*ba tso*n hem* – among sheep and goats and with their flocks) and among their herds (wa ba baqar hem – with tomorrow’s sacrifices), they will travel about (halak – they will go) to search to inquire about, seek to hold responsible, and look to conspire against (*la baqash eth – they will try to be accountable while rebelling against the authority of (piel infinitive – consistently defining themselves by this ill-advised quest)) Yahowah (YaHoWaH – our *elowah | God as directed in His ToWRaH | teaching regarding His HaYaH | existence and our ShaLoWM | restoration), but (wa) they will not achieve what they seek (*lo*matsa – they will not find satisfaction, obtain what they sought to uncover, and they will not encounter or experience the reaping or harvest (qal imperfect)).

He has withdrawn (chalets – He has removed Himself and disassociated (qal perfect)) from them (min hem).” (Howsha 5:6)

Yisra*elites have flocked together more than any other race or cultural group, even when exiled from their homeland. Therefore, it is more instructive to view *ba tso*n* and ba baqar from this perspective, presenting the herd mentality of Yisra*el, than it is to continuously view them as shepherders.

But what’s essential to understand here is that Yahowah has withdrawn from Yahuwdym | Jews. They pushed God out of their lives because they prefer Judaism over the relationship Yahowah intended. They even erased Yahowah’s name. Therefore, God is not presently protecting Israel. He is not answering prayers. He plays no role in the lives of His people. They stand apart.

And for the divorce to end, Jews must make the first move. They must return to Yahowah, embracing Him by name while renouncing their religion. It is shuwb for shuwb or no shuwb for you.

“They have been untrustworthy and unreliable, having been treacherous in their betrayals (bagad – they have been unfaithful and adulterous, having shown themselves in violation of the agreement by their religious apparel (qal perfect)) of (ba – against) Yahowah (Yahowah – written as directed by His towrah – teaching). For now (atah* – simultaneously), they have fathered and brought forth offspring (yalad – they have fostered descendants) who are illegitimate and estranged children (ky ben zarym – who are separated, alienated, deserted, foreign, and distant).

So (atah* – therefore), the crescent moon (chodesh – the sign of renewing light on the moon’s surface which is now symbolic of Islam) will devour them (akal hem* – will consume and destroy them, taking the space which belonged to them) along with their land (eth cheleq hem* – as a result of their seductive words, such that their fate is a reward for taking their territory).” (*Howsha / He Saves / Hosea 5:7)

Judaism is denial of God’s testimony. Rabbis don’t speak for God, they speak against Him. The religion is untrustworthy and exists in treacherous betrayal of God and the Jewish people. Rabbis are as illegitimate as those they have beguiled.

As a consequence of being religious, and tolerating religions, Israelis would lose their land to Assyrians, Babylonians, Greeks, Romans, Roman Catholics, Byzantines, Muhammad’s Muslims, Ottoman Muslims, the British, and now Muslims again. Their possessions have been devoured most recently by Islamic Jihadists. And this is why cheleq is such a provocative term in this context. In conjunction with akal*, it reveals that Allah’s little helpers would devour Israel, such that Yisra*elites were consumed as a result of their seductive words – those found in the Babylonian Talmud and then repeated in the Quran. Killing them would secure a jihadist’s fate and serve to provide virginal rewards in paradise. Some or all of this was foretold via cheleq. And it is another example of why we prefer amplification, where every reasonable connotation is considered.

There are thousands of words Yahowah could have chosen instead of chodesh to illustrate the source of Yisra*el’s, and by extension America’s torment. I include America because, throughout *Howsha, Yahowah’s audience has been Yisra*el, and there are nearly as many of God’s Chosen People in America as there are in Yisra*el. The chodesh, or renewing moon, has been the symbol of Islam since the beginning. Muslims have attacked, and they will continue to terrorize and kill Jews because it is Allah’s highest calling. Muslims are incapable of creating anything, but they are perfectly suited to “devour the wealth” of other nations, “wiping out that which is valuable, burning, destroying, and causing devastation.”

The lone remaining solutions for the surviving mortal remnant of Israel will transpire as the final Showphars are blown on Shabuw^oah and Taruw^oah...

“Blow (taqa^o – sound and trumpet (qal imperative – of your own freewill choose to actually blast)) the Showphar (Showphar – ram’s-horn trumpet; from showph – to strike out openly in a crushing and bruising manner and shaphar – in a bright, fair, and beautiful way) upon (ba) ha Giba^oah* | the Hill, the clarion (chatsotsarah – horn) in (ba) ha Ramah* | the Heights.

Signal an alarm and shout for joy (ruwa^o – make a loud noise so that it is heard openly by the public and they become aware of what is going to occur, tragically and jubilantly; serving as the basis of Taruw^oah) at Beyth awen | Home of Trouble (*Beyth awen – House of Religious Wickedness and Family of Affliction and Sorrow). It is the end for you as the other (achar atah – afterward, at a later time, during the last days, it will be over for you) O Benyamyn | Benjamite (Benyamyn – Son of the Sea). (Howsha^o 5:8)

ephraym’s | Worthless Specks of Carbon’s (ephraym* – Ashes) horrification and desolation (la shamah – devastation during a horrific, atrocious, and appalling event) will occur (hayah) in the day (ba yowm – during the time) of rebuke and punishment (towkechah – disapproval, argument, rational discourse, correction, and chastisement, of chiding and impeachment) among the various tribes (ba shebet – within the clans, family heritage, subdivisions, and people groups) of *Yisra*el* | those who contend and struggle with God (*Yisra*el*).

So to be sure, I will make Yada known (*yada^o aman – I will be known and acknowledged for being truthful and reliable, dependable and enduring (yada^o is hifil perfect – God will act at a certain point to acknowledge and make known while aman* is nifal participle – as He carries out and receives the benefits of being reliable in a highly descriptive manner)).” (Howsha^o / He Saves / Hosea 5:9)

The Showphar | Ram's Horn provides an elegant, boisterous and piercing resonance when blown correctly. It is the style of trumpet Yahowah selected to herald His announcement of *Shabuw*ah* | Sevens and *Taruw*ah* | Trumpets. Collectively, they represent the last opportunity His people will have to listen to His message and return. Yahuwdym who turn a deaf ear to the final blast of the Showphar on *Taruw*ah* will not survive to witness Yowm Kipurym | the Day of Reconciliations.

This realization is not only important to you, but to me as well. I was summoned by Yahowah on *Taruw*ah*, the day of *ruwa | signaling an alarm and shouting for joy in the fall of 2001. With other troubadours having joined the chorus, we have been *taqa | trumpeting Yahowah's message as *ruwa | loudly and openly as possible ever since. Throughout this prequel to the Last Days, we have given equal time to the tragedies and triumphs that await a misled and unsuspecting world.

Yahowah's message has sounded in *Beyth awen | the Home of Trouble and House of Religious Affliction. And in the end, it will bring down the other Benyamyn | Benjamite, *Sha*uwI* | Paul, and his religious cult – Christianity. The five volumes of Twistianity – Appalling, Towrahless, Devil's Advocate, Incredible, and Foolology – are the most effective weapons ever wielded at the world's most popular and anti-Semitic religion.

While it has always been obvious, particularly with Yahowah calling *Sha*uwI* out by name in Chabaquwq | Habakkuk, calling him the “Plague of Death,” it is reassuring to read Yahowah's concurrence. Christians will join Muslims and Marxists in the great purge.

This is a particularly revealing aspect of this prophecy for achar* | the last days, because with all of Yahowah's animosity directed at *Yisra*el*, with Benyamyn excluded from Ephraym*, the wayward tribe remained unmentioned up to this point. But now we know that the clan that gave us the two most infamous demon-possessed provocateurs in *Yisra*el*'s story – the wannabe King *Sha*uwI* | Saul and the wannabe Apostle *Sha*uwI*

| Paul – will endure the same dismal fate.

Worth mentioning, a band of religious prophets met near Gibeah to appoint Saul as king. As a tall, handsome, and rich man, he fit their criterion for leadership. And it was at Gibeah that Dowd recovered the Ark of the Covenant from Philistine captivity and brought it home.

There will be a day of towkechah | accountability for eleven of the twelve tribes of Yisra^{*el}. Many will be rebuked and disapproved, chided and chastised. Rational arguments will prevail over their religious drivel. For far too long, Yisra^{*el} has lived up to the negative implications of its name: Individuals who Contend with and Struggle against God. The truth will finally be told and hold sway over the lies.

And this fateful moment is likely Taruw^{*ah} as well. I say this because there will be four chariots which depart Shamaym that evening, two of which will search the world for Yisra^{*el} elites and Yahuwdym. Those escorted home in the white chariot will live while those gathered into the black chariot will not.

Potentially revealing, the concluding two words are both verbs. Yada^{}*, meaning, “to know and make known,” was spoken by God in the hifil perfect. This stem means that the Almighty is engaging to put Yada into action, such that Yada becomes an extension of Yahowah’s effort to educate His people. The perfect conjugation reveals that this will occur at a time of Yahowah’s choosing, one likely coinciding with the demise of the remaining religious devotees associated with Benyamyn and ^{*Ephraym} – and thus on Taruw^{*ah}.

aman*, meaning “to be sure and certain, reliable and dependable, truthful and enduring,” was conveyed in the nifal participle. The stem reveals that Yahowah is not only affirming these things, He benefits from them. And as a verbal adjective, the truth is actively and accurately presented, becoming vivid, demonstrable, and robust, even prolifically depicted.

These things yada^{}* | known and aman* | certain, the two verbs juxtaposed with their respective depictions, can convey either “To be sure, I will make Yada known at that time” or “I will be known and acknowledged for being truthful and reliable, dependable and enduring” – or both since one leads to the other. There is always a method behind Yahowah’s ruwa°.

But alas, capitalizing on neither, Jewish leadership is in for a rough ride...

“The government and religious leaders (sar – the ruling authority figures, the highest-ranking officials; from sarar – those who act like royalty, as lords with an assumed right to control others and claim power for themselves) of Yahuwdah (Yahuwdah – Beloved of Yah) are (hayah) perceived as (ka – recognized as) untrustworthy and disloyal deviants (suwg – alienating and backsliding proponents of circular reasoning).

I will pour out (shaphak – I will shed (qal imperfect)) a boundless amount (gebuwl – a colossal extent) of My righteous indignation and intense displeasure with an outpouring of My wrath (ebrah any – My utter disappointment and frustration, kindling My fury) upon them (al hem* – over and on top of them) as if it were fluid (ka ha maym – like water).” (Howsha° / He Liberates / Hosea 5:10)

Yahowah’s animosity is consistently directed toward political and religious leaders, and then it floods down upon the masses once they have been corrupted beyond the hope of words and reason. In this case, sar describes government officials and religious leaders, the authority figures, within Yahuwdah | Judah. It offers the impression that they act as lords, as if they were royals designated by their god to rule. They believe they have the right to impose their will on everyone else, restricting the choices of others to control them.

God’s assessment of Jewish political and religious spokesmen is that they are untrustworthy. He calls them “disloyal deviants” which sounds like He must know Benjamin Netanyahu personally. He takes issue with their propensity for circular reasoning and, thus, being irrational and disingenuous.

Being misled by politics or religion, even conspiracism or patriotism, is a sure way to waste one's life and lose one's soul, but it is not a crime. Misleading others, by contrast, is an offense worthy of Divine Judgment. Jewish religious and political leadership has engendered Yahowah's wrath, which He intends to unleash upon them. The torrent of His animosity will flood upon them in mountainous waves of righteous indignation. The very men who claim to speak for God and represent His people are the most displeasing to Him.

ephraym | the Worthless Speck of Carbon Ash (ephraym*), has been deceived and defrauded, extorted and oppressed (asaq* – he has been subjugated by tyrants, brutally treated, horribly cheated, and viciously exploited (qal participle)). His competence in exercising good judgment is incapacitated and his ability to reason is shattered (ratsats mishpat – his thinking and decision-making are broken, his capacity to resolve disputes is fractured and fragmented (qal participle)). This is because (ky) he has been intent on, agreeable to, and fixated upon (*ya*al* – he is particularly willing and determined (hifil perfect)) going after a variety (*halak achar – to pursue right to the very end) of worthless religious dogmas (tsaw – idolatrous forms of human excrement, revolting filth, utter nonsense, unsubstantiated ideas and fake gods, a whole lot of futile and vain blah-blah-blah)." (Howsha® / He Saves / Hosea 5:11)

The religious and political are crippling. They incapacitate nations to the point that thinking is debilitated and choices are restricted. They deceive and defraud. The productive are extorted and the poor are subjugated. And it does not matter by whom, when, where, or how these controlling schemes were imposed. The consequence is human exploitation.

In particular, religion renders its victims unable to think rationally. They become averse to evidence and unfazed by reason. Hand a rational and secular Jew the 35 volumes of Yada Yahowah and they will grow to vehemently oppose the rabbis. But you could bury the Haredim in them and they wouldn't know what hit them.

Based upon the correspondence, there is no one who has read the five volumes of Twistianity and remained a Christian. But those who are steeped in their religion can't make it through the opening chapter.

God Damn Religion has changed thousands if not millions of lives in the Islamic world. It has provided those who recognized that there was something dreadfully wrong with the religion to question and discard the doctrine that has sought to control their lives. But jihadi Muslims are incapable of reading it, preferring instead to prove the "peaceful" nature of their cult by threatening to kill me instead.

Yisra*el's inability to think rationally was a direct result of the nation's favorite pastime – being religious. They had wallowed in human excrement as if it were a bubble bath and worn it as if it were perfume. The Yisra*elites had turned futile and vain blah-blah-blah into a cherished delicacy. Nonsense was the only sense they held dear.

"But I am seen like a moth, perceived as something wasteful and fabricated (*wa *any ka ha ash – so I am thought to be a sick creature, a rotten discharge of a nocturnal insect) to *Ephraym (*la ephraym) and (wa) much like (ka – similar to) a fungal parasite or a septic infection (ha raqab – a degenerative disease or dry rot) to the Household of Yahuwdah (la Beyth Yahuwdah – to the Family of Yah's Beloved)." (Howsha® / He Liberates / Hosea 5:12)

This is a bombshell. Yahowah's dismal evaluations of the religiosity of His people were comparative endorsements when contrasted against the people's perceptions of their God. Yisra*el had come to believe that the stories of Him rescuing them were fabricated. From *Ephraym's perspective, they were a brilliant flame and Yahowah was but a moth bedazzled by their brilliance.

By erasing His name, Yahuwdah came to perceive

Yahowah as a fungus or parasite to be averted. God was to be avoided. So, it is little wonder that the relationship called for a divorce. Had they been mine, I do not think I would have dignified them with this letter. It would have been goodbye and good riddance.

Nonetheless, He is God and that comes with a number of responsibilities. One is that He must always honor His promises, no matter how undeserving the beneficiary. He has promised to reconcile His relationship with those who view Him unkindly, and that includes Yisra*el, so let's at least hope that there will be a representative number willing to recant their prior positions.

“Had *Ephraym perceived (*wa ra*ah Ephraym – had the Northern Kingdom viewed and witnessed) that which was associated with his malady and sickness (ets choly huw – his related illness and disease, his injuries and afflictions, his infirmities and the cause of his suffering), and Yahuwdah, his oozing and pustulant wound (*wa Yahuwdah *eth mazowr huw), then (wa) Ephraym (ephraym*) still would have gone (halak) to ashuwr* (el ashuwr – Assyria; from ashar* – the way to receive blessings and benefits, the basis of asherah*, the mythical Queen of Heaven and Mother of God), reaching out to (*shalach el) the king of contentiousness and the Adversary (melek yareb – the physically aggressive and vehemently quarrelsome lord of religion and politics), because this alone would have been incapable of healing you (*wa huw*lo*yakal la rapha*la atem – it won't restore your health, and it will not prevail or succeed in repairing you). This isn't enough to cure you (wa lo gahah* – but it will not provide recuperation or restoration) from the infectious disease which ensnares you (*min atem mazowr – of your ulcerous lesions and from your pustulant wounds).” (Howsha ^o / He Delivers / Hosea 5:13)

While the Northern Kingdom was never circumspect, had they confessed their sins, it would not have saved them. It still won't today. Confession isn't a remedy.

The recognition that a person has been corrupted by religion and politics is good, but it doesn't yet meet the first of five conditions of the Covenant. After someone realizes that they have been misled, they must walk away. Then they must come to trust and rely on Yahowah, while walking to Him through the Mow^edym of Chag Matsah to be perfected. This necessitates observing the terms of the Covenant and accepting its sign ~ circumcision. And even then, to benefit from what Dowd has done by fulfilling Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym, the receptive individual must appreciate what Dowd represents to capitalize upon what he achieved.

“As a result (ky), I will be akin to (*anoky ka) a roaring lion (ha shachal) to *Ephraym (la *ephraym) and like (wa ka) a conciliatory lion (ha kaphyr) approaching the Family of Yahuwdah (la beyth Yahuwdah – the Home of Yah’s Beloved). I, Myself (*any any), will tear up or tear apart (taraph – I will rip up or tear away, providing what is required), then I will either walk away or lift up (wa halak nasa – I will go away or I will carry away (qal imperfect)), such that nothing will rescue or snatch away (wa ayn natsal – so that no one will deliver or take away).” (Howsha / He Liberates / Hosea 5:14)

This is a wonderful play on words, an example where similar things convey different outcomes. Looking first at *Ephraym, the shachal | lion is roaring. With it, God is shown poised to taraph | rip the nation to shreds before halak | walking away. So, for Yisra^el, there will be ayn natsal* | no rescue or redemption for a very long time.

Now with Yahuwdah, the kaphyr | lion is conciliatory, ready to make amends. We know this because kaphyr is from kaphar | to reconcile – serving as the basis for Yowm Kipurym | the Day of Reconciliations. And as such, the kaphyr is Dowd ~ the Lion of Judah who roars as King upon his return on this day.

Then as we approach the same verbal chain, we discover that Yahowah will any* | personally taraph | tear His Beloved away from *Ephraym, separating them from harm’s way, while taraph | providing whatever they require. So now, rather than halak | walk away, God will be nasa | lifting them up and carrying Yahuwdah home. As a result, ayn natsal | no one will ever be able to take them away again.

Continuing to address Yahuwdym...

“I will go away and return (halak shuwb – I will depart and come back) to My place (el maqowm any – to My home) until they closely examine and carefully consider the way to receive the benefits of the relationship through the restoring witness (ad asher shamar) and (wa) they seek My presence, responsibly investigating and learning about My appearance (*wa baqash paneh any – the desire for encountering Me face-to-face).

It is during Ha Tsarar | the time of trouble (ba ha tsarar – in a period of great distress, of being besieged and restricted, enclosed and confined (qal perfect)) that they will approach by earnestly seeking Me, longing to learn about the relationship (*la hem shachar any – they will want to be with Me, inquiring about Me while genuinely striving to know Me (piel imperfect paragogic nun energicus – of His choosing, Yahowah is engaged by the search and will provide continuous learning at this monumental future event)).” (Howsha^o/ He Saves / Hosea 5:15)

Let’s be clear: Yahowah is currently estranged from Yahuwdym | Jews. God is in Shamaym and they are on Erets* and there is a chasm of four dimensions between them.

Therefore, Yahowah is on record affirming that He is going to back away and allow *Yisra*el* to do as they have chosen – which is to fend for themselves. Having come to their rescue, having devoted Himself to guiding, teaching, and protecting them, God has better things to do with His time than being abused. This long intermission would last almost 2,800 years with *Yisra*el* and nearly that long with Yahuwdah – from whom the last of the prophets would come.

Over the next 8 years, Yahuwdym will emerge from their nightmarish past, open their eyes during a devilish time, and become observant. And what before their wandering eyes will appear, but ad asher shamar | the opportunity to closely examine and carefully consider the way to receive the benefits of the relationship through the restoring witness of the eternal testimony.

God's people will *baqash paneh any | responsibly seek Yahowah's presence, diligently desiring His appearance, ba ha tsarar | during this time of trouble. It is then that Yisra*el and Yahuwdah will shachar | earnestly seek their God, longing to rekindle their relationship with Yahowah.

But what this also means is that Yahuwdym are so stubborn, and so resistant to change, they will cling to their religious and political preferences until they are blown away. No matter what we do or say between now and the Time of Trouble, Israelis aren't going to listen or be receptive. It is only when their backs are up against the wall and there is no other option that they will respond.

Those of us who are already in the Beryth, who attend Yahowah's Miqra*ey, and who are guided by His Towrah, will have a ringside seat for the Great Awakening. It will occur during the Time of Ya*aqob's Troubles – the last seven years prior to Yahowah's return when the world comes crashing down upon Jews. And let's not miss the fact that the Showphar blasts on Shabuw*ah and Taruw*ah announce the commencement and conclusion of the Time of Trouble.

The Eth Tsarah la Ya*aqob* is explained in the 30th chapter of *Yirma*yah* | Jeremiah – which we will consider now. Should you wish to mark your calendars, and share in the going away party, the Harvest will likely occur on the Shabat of Shabuw*ah on 11 June, 2027. Then on Pesach, Yada and ElYah will return on April 18th, 2030 during the first day of Chag Matsah. Then 3½ iterations of the Mow^{ed}ym thereafter the Showphar will blow for the Taruw^{ah} Gleaning and the sacrifice of the ^{}Adamah Parah on Taruw^{ah}, 23 and 24 September, 2033 / year 6000 Yah. Father and Son will return to reconcile their relationship with Yisra^{*el} and Yahuwdah ten days thereafter on Kipurym | Reconciliations. We will reenter the Garden on Sukah, October 7th of 2033. That story is told in the 31st chapter of Yirma^{ah}.

Yahowah is directing our attention to what He would subsequently reveal through the Naby^{*}Yirmayah. This message is recorded in the 30th and 31st chapters...

“The Word (ha dabar – the message communicated) which, to reveal the way to enjoy the benefits of the relationship (asher*), came to exist (hayah) with (el*) Yirmayahuw | Yahowah Raises and Lifts Up, Yahowah Teaches and Guides (Yirmayahuw) from (*min eth) Yahowah (Yahowah) to announce (*la amar), (Yirmayah 30:1) This is what (koh) Yahowah (Yahowah), the God of Yisra^{*el} (elohym Yisra^{el}), proclaims (amar*), so as to declare (amar*), Of your own volition, write (*kathab la atah) all of these words (eth kol ha dabarym*), which lead to the proper path to get the most out of life, that (asher*) I have and will be speaking to you about (*dabar *el atah), doing so in a written document so that there is a permanent record (el sepher*). (Yirmayah 30:2)

Because, indeed (ky), behold (hineh), a time is coming (*yowmym bow), prophetically reveals (na^{um}) Yahowah (Yahowah), when I will return to restore (wa shuwb) the property and possessions taken during the captivity (shabuwth) of My people (am any), Yisra^{*el} | Individuals who Engage and Endure with God (*Yisra^{el}) and (wa) Yahuwdah | the Beloved of Yah (Yahuwdah), declares (amar*) Yahowah (Yahowah).

And then (wa) I will return them, bringing them back

(shuwb hem), to (*el) the Land (*erets) that, for the benefit of the relationship (*asher), I gave (nathan) to their fathers (la ab hem). They will receive it as their inheritance (wa yarash hy). (Yirmayah 30:3)

And these are the words (wa *el leh ha dabarym) which, to reveal the way (*asher), Yahowah (Yahowah) spoke (dabar) concerning (*el) Yisra*el (Yisra*el) and (wa) to Yahuwdah (*el Yahuwdah). (Yirmayah 30:4) This is what (koh time) Yahowah (Yahowah) conveyed (amar) as we heard (shama) the sounds (qowl) of concern over the terrorists and terrorism (charadah pachad) when there were no prospects of reconciliation or peace (wa *ayn shalowm). (Yirmayah 30:5)

Alas (howy), assuredly (ky), this time (ha yowm ha huw*) will be so different (gadawl) that there has never been anything similar to it (min ayn kamow huw). It is the Eth Tsarah la Ya*aqob* | Time of Israel's Troubles (wa eth tsarah huw la Ya*aqob – it is the period of Yisra*el's anguish and distress, of Jacob's adversity when Israel will be narrowed, reduced in size, and oppressed by vicious foes).

And yet from it (wa min), he [Ya*aqob | Yisra*el] will be liberated and saved (yasha*). (Yirma'yah 30:7) And it shall happen in that day (wa hayah ba ha yowm ha huw*), prophetically declares (na*um) Yahowah (Yahowah) of the spiritual implements (tsaba*), that I will break (shabar) his yoke, his means of control and manipulation (ol huw), from upon your neck (min *al tsaw*r *atah) and I will pull off and tear away (wa nataq) your bonds and shackles (mowserah atah). Those who are illegitimate and unauthorized, those falsely claiming authority who are foreigners from a distant place advocating that which is improper (zar), will no longer make him work for them (wa lo abad ba huw *owd). (Yirmayah 30:8)

Instead (wa), they will serve with (*abad *eth) Yahowah (Yahowah), their God (*elohym hem), and with Dowd (wa *eth Dowd), their king and counselor (melek hem), whom, to reveal the way to the benefits of the relationship (*asher), I will raise up and establish for them (quwm la hem). (Yirmayah 30:9)

Then (wa) Ya^oaqob (Ya^oaqob), My coworker (*ebed *any), you will have nothing to fear, no reason to be intimidated or frightened (*atah al yare), Yahowah (Yahowah) reveals well in advance of it occurring (na^um). Nor will you be confused or dismayed (wa *al chathath), Yisra^oel (Yisra^oel), because, behold (ky hineh), I will save you, delivering you (*any yasha^o *atah) from being distant and alienated (min rachowq), along with your offspring (wa *eth zera^o), from the realm (min *erets) of their exile and captivity (shaby hem). And (wa) Ya^oaqob | Israel (Ya^oaqob) will change and return (shuwb), and be at peace and put at ease (wa shaqat wa sha^oan), with no one troubling him (wa *ayn charad). (Yirmayah 30:10)

For I am with you (ky *eth *atah *any), prophetically declares (na^um) Yahowah (Yahowah), to liberate and save you (la yasha^o *atah). Indeed (ky), I will engage and act (*asah) to bring an end to (kalah) all of the Gentile nations and institutions (ba kol ha gowym) among whom I have scattered and dispersed you (*asher puwts *atah) by name and reputation (shem). You will be the exception because (*ak *eth atah) I will not act in such a way (lo^{} *asah) to cause you to fail or perish (kalah).

Instead, I will provide instructions for you (wa yasar atah) in the way to execute good judgment regarding the means to resolve disputes (la ha mishpat) such that you are found innocent and are not punished (wa naqah). I will not banish you nor leave you destitute (lo^{} naqah *atah).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 30:11)

This takes us to the preeminent event in history...

“Behold (hineh – look up and pay especially close attention), a time is coming (yowmym bow^{*} – days are approaching),’ Yahowah (Yahowah – God’s name transliterated as directed by His towrah – instructions on His hayah – existence) reveals well in advance of it occurring (*na*um*), ‘when I will enter into and cut with (*wa karat eth – when I will establish through separation a set-apart agreement on behalf of) the House of Yisra*el (*Beyth Yisra*el* – the Home of those who Engage and Endure with God) and with (*wa eth) the Family of Yahuwdah (Beyth Yahuwdah – the Household of those Beloved of Yah), a restored and renewed (chadash – a repaired and reaffirmed; from chadash – to renew and repair, to restore and reaffirm) Covenant (Beryth – Family-Oriented Relationship). (Yirmayah 31:31)

It will differ somewhat from (*lo*ka* – it won’t be exactly like) the Covenant (ha Beryth – the Family-Oriented Relationship Agreement) which, to reveal the way to the benefits of the relationship (asher* – that provide directions showing the steps to walk which are correct and give meaning to those who are properly led and guided), I entered into (karat – I established by setting apart when I cut) with their fathers (eth ab hem) on the day (ba yowm – during the time) I firmly took them by the hand and, with overwhelming intent, overpowered the situation (*chazaq any ba yad – I showed an intense resolve and was inflexible in My influence over them, even overpowering them due to the urgent need for them to prevail) to bring them out (la yatsa min* – to draw them out and bring them close, descending and extending Myself to serve by removing them from) of the realm of the Crucibles of Oppression (erets Mitsraym* – the place of subjugation associated with religious coercion and political tyranny, the land of military domination and economic cruelty; from a compound of my – to question and tsar – troubling and adversarial situations).

Relationally, they broke (asher hem parar eth – they sought to nullify that relationship by thwarting its intent and by disassociating from the correct path, thereby revoking the benefits of) My Covenant (*beryth any – My Family-Oriented Relationship Agreement) although we were married (wa anoky ba^{al} ba hem),’ Yahowah (Yahowah) reveals through this prophet (na^{um}). (Yirmayah 31:32)*

‘For this reason (ky), this is (zoth – specifically) the Covenant (ha beryth – the Family-Oriented Relationship Agreement) which, to enjoy the benefits of the relationship (*asher), I will cut (karat – I will create through separation, making and establishing) with (*eth – on behalf of) the House of Yisra^{el} (Beyth Yisra^{el} – the Home of those who Engage and Endure with God) after that and then without hesitation (*achar ha hem – at a later period and in a different time, in the latter days),’ prophetically declares (na^{um}) Yahowah (Yahowah), ‘I will provide, placing (nathan – I will give and ascribe, producing, offering, and bestowing) towrah ^{*any} | My guidance (*eth towrah ^{*any} – that which is associated with My teaching, instructions, and directions) within them (ba qereb hem – inside of them, such that it is part of their inner person, part of their thought process, affecting their conscience, and animating their lives).

And integrated into their ability to make decisions (wa ^{al} leb hem – and upon their inclinations and disposition, their character and thinking, their hearts and minds), I will write it (kathab hy^{} – I will inscribe and engrave it). I will be (wa hayah – I will exist as) their God (la hem la ^{*elohym} – drawing near them and approaching them as a Ram shepherding His sheep). And they shall be My Family (wa hem hayah la ^{*any} la ^{*am} – and they will always exist near Me as My People). (Yirmayah 31:33)

No longer will anyone impart information or teach (wa lo^{*lamad} ^{*owd}) individuals in association with an errant and outspoken world (*ysh ^{eth} rea^o huw^{} – their companions, friends, and misled countrymen) or (wa) other individuals according to brotherly kinship (*ysh ^{*eth} ^{ach} huw^{}) so as to say (la ^{*amar} – approaching to declare), “Choose of your own accord to know Yahowah (yada^o Yahowah – decide to recognize and acknowledge Yah, and show some desire to become familiar with and understand Yahowah)!” because (ky – truthfully and by contrast, at this time) everyone will know Me (kol hem yada eth any – all of them, without exception, will actually be aware of and genuinely acknowledge Me), from the youngest (la min qatan hem) and up to the enduring witness of most important and oldest (*wa ad gadawl hem), prophetically reveals (*na*um*) Yahowah (Yahowah).””” (Yirmayah / Yah Lifts Me Up and Raises Me / Jeremiah 31:34)

And now you know what is going to happen, with whom, when and why it will occur. I trust you will be there celebrating along with us.

If you have not already done so, consider this your invitation...

“You should choose to go (halak – of your own volition, you should walk and explore, being willingly led (qal imperative)) because we want to return to (*wa shuwb el – since it is our desire to turn around and change, choosing to restore and reestablish our relationship with (qal imperfect cohortative)) Yahowah (Yahowah – the Almighty’s proper designation pronounced as instructed by His towrah | guidance on His hayah | existence and His role in our shalowm | reconciliation as our elowah* | God).

For He has torn us for a time (ky huw taraph* – expelled us, chased us away, and banished us (qal perfect)) so that He can heal us for all time (*wa rapha anachnuw – so He can promote restoration, cure our diseased and injured state, mend and completely repair us, making us whole (qal imperfect)).

He has stricken us (nakah – He has smitten and afflicted us, thrusting us aside), but He will wrap Himself around us (*wa chabash anachnuw – He will bandage us, wrapping clothing around us, binding us to Him and encourage us, speaking words which hearten and enliven our attitudes).”

(Howsha° / He Provides / Hosea 6:1)

It is our life and our choice because a relationship with Yahowah is subject to freewill. It cannot be imposed upon us, which means that, if we want to be with Yah, we have to get up and get going. Specifically, Yahowah's people have to return to Him. They have been busily halak-ing but going in the wrong direction. That is why they have been estranged and must change to come home.

We should also be aware that Yisra*el and Yahuwdah are not being invited into the home of Adonai, HaShem, or G-d. Likewise, the Lord, Jesus, and Allah are nowhere to be found. There is no mention of Rabbi Akiba or Maimonides, there is no Saint Peter or Paul, no Prophet Muhammad, and no hint of a Talmud, New Testament, or Quran.

This journey is through words. It travels back in time to the formation of the Beryth and conveyance of the Towrah and forward through the fulfillment of the Miqra°ey and revelations of the Naby*.

The Chosen People are being called to halak | walk with Yahowah and to shuwb | return to the Covenant. And as a vinedresser would do in a vineyard, the diseased and rotten tendrils have been pruned so that the vines can be restored to health. It is time for healing, for restoration, and for reconciliation.

Having thrust Yisra*el aside for unsightly and mutinous behavior, Yahowah stands ready to wrap His arms around His returning children. He will clothe those He exposed long ago. The divorce will end; the relationship will be restored. Love and fellowship will replace anguish and infidelity.

Yahowah's remedy for the consequence of religion, His means of restoring His relationship with those who abandoned Him, is Pesach and Matsah leading to Bikuwrym and then making Shabuw°ah possible. And for those who miss these fulfillments, consider this Taruw°ah announcement of Kipurym so that you can join us on Sukah.

“Through two days (min yowmym), He will choose to revive and sustain our lives (*chayah anachnuw – He will, in accordance with His will, facilitate the preservation of our lives so that, once saved by Him, we can continue to live (piel imperfect jussive)). On the third day (ba ha yowm ha shalyshy), He will establish our restoration, encouraging and raising us so that we can stand up and endure (*quwm anachnuw – He will make it possible for us to rise, be exalted, and confirmed, restored and supported, our purpose fulfilled (hifil imperfect)).

Then, we will live (wa chayah – we will be restored to life, sustained, and preserved forevermore (qal imperfect)) in His presence (*la paneh huw – approaching Him at His appearance).” (Howsha^o / He Saves / Hosea 6:2)

There are two perspectives from which to interpret the timing of this prophecy. The most direct is to conclude that two days are actually two specific twenty-four-hour periods that lead to a third day. Considering that the subject is the revival and preservation of human life, leading to a time when we are established and restored such that we can stand and live in Yahowah’s presence – there is an obvious answer. Our lives are extended during Pesach and our souls are restored during Matsah so that on Bikuwrym we become part of Yahowah’s Family – living forevermore in His Home.

These three days – two grievous for Dowd, and the other joyous, were fulfilled in year 4000 Yah, 33 CE. Yahowah’s beloved Son who served as the Passover Lamb, opening the Doorway to Life. The next day, the Messiah’s nepesh | soul was taken to She*owl during UnYeasted Bread to remove the fungal infection of religion from our souls, perfecting and restoring us. On the third day, the Firstborn celebrated Bikuwrym when Dowd’s soul was released from She*owl and was reunited with his Father in Heaven, thereby signifying our rebirth into the Covenant Family.

These are not only the three most important dates in history, they are the events Yisra^{el} and Yahuwdah would miss – as would the rest of the world. Even today, you would be hard-pressed to find so much as one in a million individuals who can correctly assess what occurred in year 4000 Yah. While Jews have made a religion out of denying Dowd's role in fulfilling these Miqra^{ey}, Christians have made a religion out of misinterpreting these same events. All the while, Muslims are too busy trying to kill everyone to notice.

As I mentioned previously, there is another way to perceive these three days. That is because it was two thousand years from year 2000 Yah when the Covenant was established to year 4000 Yah (two symbolic days) when its benefits were provided, providing us with the means to participate in it. But under this scenario, the third day does not get us where we need to go. Year 5000 Yah (1033 CE) is neither meaningful nor uplifting.

But what if the first two days represent the 2,000 years from Dowd's fulfillment of Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym in year 4000 Yah – and the third day designates Taruw^{ah} when the remnant of Yisra^{el} is finally prepared for Kipurym in year 6000 Yah? This would make considerable sense because, while Passover and UnYeasted Bread remain an essential part of the way Home, and to living with God, nary one in a million Jews has capitalized upon Firstborn Children. And all of this, the entire purpose of Howsha^o, indeed all of Zakaryah too, is to make Yah's people aware of their opportunity to reconcile their relationship on Taruw^{ah} for Kipurym. Everything is pointing to this day.

These fortunate few will think and say...

“We want to know (wa da^{ah} – we desire information so that we are aware, we want to be perceptive, discriminating, and discerning (qal imperfect cohortative)). We choose to invest considerable time and effort to pursue (radaph – we want to persistently engage, consistently chasing and following after (qal imperfect cohortative)) Yada Yahowah | knowing

Yahowah (yada Yahowah* – being aware of and understanding Yahowah).

This stage of His journey (mowtsa huw – His coming forth and appearance; from mah – to inquire about *yatsa – the coming forth for the exodus, departure, withdrawal, and deliverance) is as sure as sunrise (ka shachar kuwn – is as decided upon, appointed, and established, proven, and arranged as is the sun rising in the east at dawn).

He will come (*bow – He will return, arriving (qal imperfect)) for us (*la anachnuw) like the showers (ka ha geshem) of rains as they enable the gathering of the harvest (ka malqowsh) by refreshing and renewing those of the Land who accept the source of teaching and guidance which is on display (*yarah erets – by making the Land receptive to the *towrahs instructions and directions which are being made openly known; yarah is the verbal root of towrah).” (*Howsha / He Liberates / Hosea 6:3)

Ultimately, while in the throes of Ya*aqob’s Troubles, Yahuwdym will finally be motivated to *da*ah* | know Yahowah. Spoken using the genuineness of the qal stem, the consistency of the imperfect conjugation, and the volitional nature of the cohortative mood, Yisra*elites will want to be persistently perceptive and genuinely discriminating as they process the information God has provided for them to consider.

All of this transpires on Taruw*ah as Yahowah unleashes cascading waters from beneath the Temple Mount to cleanse His wayward children. And they will be restored to favor by the sacrifice of the *Adamah Parah, all in accordance with the Towrah's instructions.

As we conclude this volume on the Time of Trouble, it behooves us to pursue what was said about this time by the King considered the wisest of men as he delivered the Sermon on the Mount. In context, that narrative begins...

“At that time (*az) Shalomoh | Reconciliation (Shalomoh) gathered (qahal) the elders of Yisra*el (*eth zagen Yisra*el) with the heads of every tribe (*eth kol ro*sh ha mateh), the leadership (nasy) of the fathers of the Children of Yisra*el (*ab la beny Yisra*el), to their leader, King (*el ha melek) Solomon in Jerusalem (Shalomoh Yaruwshalaim), to ascend with the Ark of the Covenant (*la *alah *eth arown Beryth) of Yahowah (Yahowah) from the City of Dowd (*min iyer Dowd) which is on Tsyown (hy Tsyown*).” (Melekym / 1 Kings 8:1)

Construction of the building on the summit of Mowryah known as the “First Temple” had commenced seven years earlier. And now it was time to bring the Ark of the Covenant Home. This Beyth Shem Yahowah was incomplete without the arown Beryth Yahowah*. Similarly, the relevance of the iyer Dowd* is that it resides on Tsyown where the Signs are Posted Along the Way.

“And gathered unto King Solomon (*wa qahal el ha melek Shalomoh) were all of the men of Israel (*kol *iysh Yisra*el*) in the lunar month (ba yerah) of Eythan* | Ever Flowing and Long Established (Eythan*) during the Chag | Celebration (ba ha Chag) of the promise of the seventh month and time of renewal (huw ha chodesh ha shaby*iy*).” (Melekym / 1 Kings 8:2)

This timing is relevant because Yahowah wanted to showcase what would transpire on this date 3,000 years later. On the 1st day of the 7th month in year 6000 Yah / September 23rd and 24th, 2033, during Yowm Taruw^{ah} | the Day of the Herald, the final Gleaning and Sacrifice would bring Yisra^{el} back together with Dowd and Yahowah in exactly this same location. God intends for His Homecoming to be a joyous Chag | Celebration. And the one cultivating this ingathering and offering the sacrifice on Taruw^{ah} is the very individual Shalomoh would speak prophetically about, and of whom Yahowah was referring to in Zakaryah.

“And all of the elders of Yisra^{el} and the priests (wa kol zagen Yishrael wa ha kohen) came and lifted up the Ark (bow^{} wa nasa^{*} *eth ha arown). (Melekym / 1 Kings 8:3)

This is relevant because the blood of the Nakry will be sprinkled upon the Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant within the preserved original or a replica of the Tent of the Restoring Witness on the Mow^{ed} of Kipurym – also in the 7th month. He is the aforementioned Bull.

They ascended with the Ark (*wa *alah *eth arown) of Yahowah (Yahowah) and with the Tent and Tabernacle of the Restoring Witness to the Eternal Testimony of the Meeting Times (*wa *eth ohel Mow^{ed}), with all of the set-apart and special vessels and implements (*wa eth kol kaly ha qodesh) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), were in the Tabernacle (*ba ha ohel). The priests and the Lowy (ha kohen wa ha Lowy) ascended with them (alah eth hem).” (Melekym / 1 Kings 8:4)

With the House completed, the Tent of the Restoring Witness was no longer needed, but with the Covenant Home gone when the Witnesses return, it’s the perfect addition. It will serve as our home and home to the arown Beryth Yahowah*, which our Father will raise for the occasion.

“And King (wa ha melek) Solomon (Shalmoh) and the entire witnessing community of Yisra^{el} (*wa kol edah Yisra^{el}) who had chosen to join together (ha ya^{ad}) with him (al huw^{}) were before the Ark (eth huw^{*} la paneh ha arown). A goat and a bull (tsoⁿ wa baqar) were sacrificed (zabach) for the benefit of the relationship (asher). They were not counted or proclaimed (lo saphar), and they were not numbered or apportioned (wa lo* manah) from the many (min rob).” (Melekym / 1 Kings 8:5)

When this episode is reenacted on the Temple Mount in Jerusalem on the 1st day of the 7th month in year 6000 Yah, there will be someone claiming to be wise and sovereign who will be gathering the people together while touting his plan for religious reconciliation and political peace. Solomon is, in my judgment, a harbinger of what is to come.

During the celebration of Taruw*ah during the 120th Yowbel year, a Goat named ElYah will oversee the sacrifice of Yada as the adamah Parah | Red Heifer on behalf of the Passover Lamb to restore Yisra*el and prepare God’s People for His imminent arrival. They are the ones counted among those who have chosen to be with God. And it is the blood of this Goat and Bull that will anoint the Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant on Kipurym when Dowd returns on the 10th day of the 7th month.

As we consider this prophetic overture regarding our future, know that on the morning of September 23rd, 2033, *ElYah will be acting in the role of kohen as he follows the Towrah’s instructions presented in Numbers 19 relative to the sacrifice of the Bull to restore the Children of Yisra*el...

“The priests arrived and brought (wa bow*ha kohen) the Ark of the Covenant of Yahowah (*eth *arown Beryth Yahowah) to its innermost place of the Word (*el maqowm huw*dabyr) of the Family Home (ha Beyth), to the Most Set-Apart Place (*el qodesh ha qodesh), to under the wings (*el tachath kanaph) of the Cherubim (ha karuwbym).” (Melekym / 1 Kings 8:6)

We should be anticipating Karuwbym to protect the arown Beryth* of Yahowah within the ohel Mow*edym* | Tabernacle of the Restoring Witnesses in 2033. They will also be on hand to be protect the Witnesses.

“Indeed, the Cherubim (ky ha Karuwbym) wings spread out (paras kanaph) to the place over the Ark (el maqowm ha arown) and over its poles (*wa *al bad huw) from above (*min la ma al). (Melekym / 1 Kings 8:7)

The poles alone were so long (*wa arak ha bad) that the ends of the poles were seen (*wa ra *ah ro sh ha bad) out of the Set-Apart Place (min ha qodesh) beyond the presence of the inner sanctum of the word (al paneh ha dabyr*). But they could not be seen (*wa lo *ra ah) from the outside (ha chuwts). And they existed there (wa hayah sham) as a restoring and eternal witness (ad*) of this day (ha yowm ha zeh). (Melekym / 1 Kings 8:8)

There was nothing in the Ark (ayn ba ha Arown) except the two Tablets (shanaym luwachowt) of Stone (eben*) that, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), Moseh (Mosheh) placed there (nuwach sham) at Choreb (ba Choreb). There, to show how to get the most out of life (asher*), he established the Covenant (karath) of Yahowah (Yahowah) with the Children of Yisra*el (*beny Yisra el) by bringing them out (*ba yatsa * hem*) of the Land (*min erets) of Mitsraym | the Anguishing and Confining Crucibles of Oppression (Mitsraym).” (Melekym / 1 Kings 8:9)

I’m looking forward to seeing both the Ark and the Tablets, along with the original autograph of the Towrah, all of which will be revealed by Yahowah while His Witnesses are in Yaruwshalaim.

As an interesting aside, the contents of the Ark were disclosed in Dabarym 10:1-5, affirming what Solomon is asserting on this occasion. However, both serve as proof that Paul, as the author of the Christian New Testament, lied when he added “the Ark of the Covenant” “wherein was the golden pot that had manna, and Aaron’s rod that budded and the tables of the covenant” in Hebrews 9:4.

There are two ways to view what happens next because the Home of Yahowah’s Name was immediately consumed by a cloud of smoky water vapor, and to such an extent, the kohen were unable to proceed. I suspect that this was because Yahowah was disappointed in Solomon's attitude as well as lack of priestly competence, and this was His way of showing His consternation. He ran everyone out of the Home for the Covenant Family because they did not yet belong.

Further, by filling the Covenant Home with a cloud of ashen smoke and water, Yahowah is bringing us forward 3,000 years in time to Taruw^{ah}'s fulfillment. It is then that He will unleash a torrent of water beneath the sacrifice of the Bloody and Productive Bull while igniting a fire that will send ashen smoke billowing to the heavens.

“And it came to pass when (wa hayah ba) the priests came out (yatsa^{ah} ha kohen) of the Set-Apart place (ha qodesh), this cloud of water and smoke (ha ^{ah}anan) completely filled (male^{ah}) the Family Home (Beyth) of Yahowah (Yahowah), (Melekym / 1 Kings 8:10) such that the priests (wa ha kohen) became confused and incapacitated, incapable (lo^{ah} yakol) of remaining present and standing (la ^{ah}amad) as attendants (lo shareth) as a result of the presence (min paneh) of the cloud of water and ashen smoke (ha ^{ah}anan). For it completely covered (ky male^{ah}) Yahowah's honorable and respectful nature (kabowd Yahowah) within Yahowah's Family Home (eth Beyth Yahowah*).” (Melekym / 1 Kings 8:11)

Since Shalomoh's response casts Yahowah in a poor light while improperly gloating over what others had achieved, and since the king misquoted the Almighty, I see this as a harbinger of what will commence during the upcoming Time of Israel's Troubles. Solomon, rather than representing Yahowah or Dowd, is playing the role of the Towrahless One.

The corporeal manifestation of the Adversary, whom we now know is Donald Trump, will sacrifice the heart of Israel before the Shabuw^{ah} marking the commencement of the Eth Tsarah* | Time of Trouble. Therefore, I think that this may be prophetic and disclose what will occur at that time pursuant to the Great Betrayer...

“Then, at that moment (*az), Shalomoh | Reconciliation (Shalomoh) said (*amar), ‘Yahowah has stated that he would dwell (*Yahowah amar la shaken) in the deep gloom and miserable darkness of a thick cloud which blocks all light (*ba ha araphel).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:1)

The reason that we know that Solomon is revealing what God is saying about the Towrahless One rather than Himself is that during the Exodus, He watched over and lead the Children of Yisra^lel to the Promised Land as a columnar cloud during the day and as a pillar of light by night. Yahowah is Light, not darkness. What’s true, however, is that Yahowah left the Children of Yisrael not long after and He became hidden to them. And it was they who had established the smokescreen separating themselves.

After addressing the one who would try to extinguish God’s light, the King turned the spotlight on himself in the fashion of Israel thereafter...

“But I, myself, have built (*wa any banah) a magnificent dwelling with extraordinarily beautiful construction, a celestial palace (zabuwl) of a House (Beyth) for You (*la atah), a dwelling place and site (wa makown) for You to sit in and inhabit (la yashab) forever (*owlam).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:2)

Solomon didn’t actually build the House. The support beams, stone masons, and lead contractor were all from Tyre. And the House was actually understated, not grandiose, all in keeping with Yahowah’s persona. Further, Yahowah resides in Shamaym in the seventh dimension. He’s not about to be restrained in something men have made. And since the House was looted many times and razed to the ground four centuries later, “forever” may not have been the proper depiction of time.

But alas, such are the wiles of men. People often address gods they can control and cut down to their size. However, I digress, this was Solomon's time to shine...

“Then the king (ha melek) came full circle, turning back to the beginning (sabab) with his presence (eth paneh huw). And he knelt down to lift up and bless (wa barak) the entire assembled community (kol qahal) of *Yisra*el* | Individuals who Engage and Endure with God (*Yisra*el*) while (wa) everyone gathered and assembled (kol qahal) of *Yisra*el* (*Yisra*el*) was present and standing (amad*). (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:3)

Then he said (*wa amar), ‘Yahowah (Yahowah), the God of *Yisra*el* (elohym Yisra*el*) is extolled (barak) based upon what He has communicated (asher dabar*) with His mouth (ba peh huw) to Dowd (eth Dowd), my father (ab any). And with his hand and influence (*wa ba yad huw), He has fulfilled these proclamations (*male).’” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:4)

Reconciliation is Dowd's trademark. It is also symbolic of the day Dowd will return to reclaim his throne and home – Yowm Kipurym | the Day of Reconciliations. This is one of the many ways Yahowah sabab | comes full circle with His plans, bringing us back to where we began.

To Shalomoh's credit, Yahowah's and Dowd's names were cited throughout his presentation. Our fate hinges upon what Father and Son discussed. It is what Yahowah and Dowd achieved and fulfilled together that transforms our lives.

It had been 487 years since the Chosen People were freed from religious and political persecution in Mitsraym, but it was still fresh on everyone's mind...

“For it was said (*la amar), ‘From the day (min ha yowm) that, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), I brought out (*yatsa) My people (am any) from the realm of the Crucibles of Troubling Confinement and Oppression (*min erets Mitsraym), I did not choose (lo bachar*) a city (*ba iyr) from among all of the tribes (min kol shebet) of *Yisra*el

(Yisra*el) to build (la banah) a Home (beyth) for My name (la shem any) to exist (hayah) there (sham). Further (wa), I had not chosen (lo bachar) a man (ba *iysh) to exist as (la hayah) a worthy and conspicuous, announced and acknowledged leader (nagyd) over My people Yisra*el (*al *am *any Yisra*el).’’ (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:5)

This was not stated in the Towrah, which means that Shalomoh was ad-libbing. Yahowah disclosed to *Abraham and Yitschaq that He would build His Covenant on Mount Mowryah, which is now in the heart of Yaruwshalaim. And the Towrah clearly states that the Mow*edym would be fulfilled in the place where Yahowah’s name would dwell. Further, Moseh was a valiant leader of the Yisra*elites during the *Yatsa and his famous prophecy in Dabarym 18 points directly to Dowd.

“But I have chosen (wa bachar) with Yaruwshalaim | the Source of Guidance on Reconciliation (ba Yaruwshalaim) that My name (shem *any) will exist (la hayah) here (sham). And I have chosen (wa bachar) with Dowyd (ba Dawyd) to be (la hayah) over My people, Yisra*el (*al *am *any Yisra*el).’’ (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:6)

Excuse me for interrupting your faith, Twistians, but this statement negates your religion. It’s not good for Judaism or Islam either since rabbis await an unknown Messiah and Muslims have been led to believe that a sexual pervert and ruthless terrorist was the chosen leader.

“And it was (wa hayah) in the heart and mind, the inclination and judgment (*im lebab) of Dowyd (Dowyd), my father (*ab *any), to build (la banah) a Home (beyth) for the name (la shem) of Yahowah (Yahowah) the God of Yisra*el (*elohym Yisra*el). (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:7)

Then (wa) Yahowah (Yahowah) said (*amar) to Dowd (*el Dowyd), my father (*ab *any), ‘Because (ya *an) it was (hayah) in your best judgment (*im lebab *atah) Dowyd (Dowyd), my father (*ab *any), to build (la banah) a Home (beyth) for My name (la shem *any), what was in your heart and mind (ky

*hayah *im lebab atah) is beautiful and good, generous and beneficial (towb).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:8)

While Shalomoh was stumbling over his choice of pronouns and including himself in the narrative, he may also have been projecting his thoughts into a discussion that occurred apart from him. Yahowah was initially troubled by Dowd’s desire to build a house, as is demonstrated conclusively in the text of 2 Shamuw^el 7. Further, Yahowah precluded Dowd from this iteration of the House for His Name because He intended to use the “blood on his hands” for another purpose 3,000 years hence. And it is then that Yahowah will honor Dowd’s request and allow the King to build the eternal residence for the Covenant Family.

In this next statement, we find that Solomon interpreted the verse Twistians rely upon to suggest that the Messiah would be a descendant of Dowd in a manner which impugns the religion. Solomon saw it as addressing him, and thus not an unknown Christ a thousand years later. Further, not only wasn’t there a Messiah mentioned in the prophecy in 2 Shamuw^el 7, pretend Jesus didn’t live in a house much less build one. And of course, there is no mention of Yahowah’s name in the fraudulent New Testament texts.

“Nevertheless, that notwithstanding (raq), you will not build the House (atah lo* banah ha beyth*), but instead (ky), your son (*ben atah), the coming forth from your loins (ha yatsa min chalats atah). He will build (huw banah*) the Home (ha beyth) for My name (*la shem any).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:9)

What is particularly revealing here is that the beyth was a “Family Home” and that Yahowah had no intention of living there or even occupying the premises. Its purpose was to serve as a home for His name. And yet, Yahowah’s Shem was the first thing Jews removed and Christians ignored. However, it is the very thing restored by the Nakry’s Yada Yahowah.

“Now (wa), Yahowah (Yahowah) has taken a stand to establish and fulfill (quwm) His statement (eth dabar huw) that, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), He has spoken (dabar). And I have taken a stand to establish and fulfill (wa quwm) beneath (tachath) Dowd (Dowyd), my father (ab any). Because I sit (wa yashab) on the throne (al kise) of Yisra*el (*Yisra*el*) as Yahowah spoke (*ka*asher dabar Yahowah*). And I have built (wa banah) the Home (ha beyth) for the name (la shem) of Yahowah (Yahowah), the God of Yisra*el (elohym Yisra*el*). (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:10)

I have placed (wa sym) there (sham) the arown | Ark (arown) which beneficially and relationally (asher*) there is (sham) the Beryth | Covenant (beryth) of Yahowah (Yahowah) to show the way to get the most out of life (asher*) cut (karat) with the Children of Yisra*el (im beny Yisra*el*).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:11)

Shalomoh was actively proclaiming Yahowah’s name. He knew the building was a Beyth Shem. He recognized he was in this position due to the relationship Yahowah developed with his father, Dowd. He was aware that the Ark of the Covenant was to be housed within this place.

In 1 Kings 8, and again in 2 Chronicles 5, it is affirmed that the Ark of the Covenant was carried by the priests from the City of Dowd, along the ridgeline of Tsyown, and into the Beyth Shem. It was placed in the Qodesh Qodesh during the Chag of the Seventh Month – which would include Taruw*ah, Kipurym, and Sukah.

The image cast next is of Shalomoh standing and then kneeling upon a platform he had built to serve as the mizbeach | altar to ponder the implications of the sacrifice of Yahowah. This is germane to this story because it will be in a replica of this altar that the carcass of the *Adamah Parah will be placed and burned on Taruw*ah.

“And he was present, standing (*wa amad) before the presence (la paneh) of the altar to ponder the implications of the sacrifice (mizbeach) of Yahowah (Yahowah), conspicuously in the presence (neged) of the entire gathered community (kol qahal) of Yisra*el (Yisra*el). Then he spread out (wa paras) the palms of his hands (kaph huw*). (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:12)

Shalomoh (Shalomoh) made (asah) a bronze platform to be used as a caldron and basin (kyowr nachowheth) and offered it as a gift (wa nathan huw) within the inner court (ba tawek ha *azarah), it being five cubits, or eight feet, long (chamesh *amah orek huw) and five cubits, or eight feet, wide (wa chamesh amah rochab huw), while it was three cubits, or nearly five feet, high (wa amah shalosh qomah huw).

And he stood on it (wa *amad al huw). Then he knelt on his knee (wa barak al berek huw) conspicuously before (neged) all those assembled of Yisra*el (kol qahal Yisra*el). He spread out (wa paras) the palms of his hands (wa paras kaph huw*) toward the heavens (ha shamaym).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:13)

Not only will the bloodied body of the Nakry sit within this elevated basin, it is replete with two features relevant to the Herald’s mission. First, there is a ramp integrated into the design, serving as the raised path the Voice of Yahowah is asked to clear of obstacles since it leads through the sacrifice to God. Second, there are horns on the corners, two representing the Ram and a pair representing the Bull, Dowd and Yada, the two men slated to sacrifice their basar for the good of the people during the Spring and Fall Mow*edym.

“He said (wa *amar), ‘Yahowah (Yahowah), God of Yisra*el (*elohym Yisra*el), there is nothing like you (*ayin kamow *atah), God in the Heavens and on the Earth (*elohym ba ha shamaym wa ba ha *erets), considering and exploring (shamar) the Beryth | Covenant (ha beryth) and the One showing unfailing love and devotion (wa ha chesed) to Your coworkers (la *ebedym *atah) who walk toward Your presence (*ha halak la paneh atah) with all their thinking and emotions, their judgment and motivations (ba kol leb hem), (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:14) who, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), closely examine and carefully consider (shamar) the approach of Your co-worker (*la *ebed atah) Dowd (Dowyd), my father (ab any) that, to reveal the proper way (asher*), You spoke to him (*dabar la huw).

You spoke with Your mouth (*wa dabar ba peh atah), and with Your hand (*wa ba yad atah), You have fulfilled the essence of this (*male*ka*) today (ha yowm ha zeh).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:15)

There is only one Firstborn Son of God, one returning King, and only one man who can be properly recognized as the most important of Yahowah’s ebed* | coworkers. But since ebedym* was plural, we would be wise to consider the one who would show the world how to walk toward Yahowah’s presence through the recognition of how, when, and why Dowd fulfilled Chag Matsah. It is not a coincidence that the first to discover and share how Dowd’s lives contribute to our lives is the very Nakry who was foretold during this same Sermon on the Mount.

“Now, therefore (*wa atah), Yahowah (Yahowah), God of Yisra*el (elohym Yisra*el*), observe (shamar) on behalf of Your coworker (*la *ebed atah), Dowd, my father (*Dowyd *ab any), what You, for the benefit of the relationship, spoke to him (eth *asher dabar la huw), to say (*la amar), “Not will cut off for you (*lo*karat la atah) a person (iysh*) from before me (*min la paneh any) to sit on the throne (*yashab *al kise) of Yisra*el (*Yisra*el*) if only under the restrictive condition (*raq im) your sons (*beny atah) observe, closely examining and carefully considering (shamar) their way to walk (eth derek hem la halak*) in My Towrah | Guidance and Teaching, Instructions and Directions (*ba Towrah any), consistent with the beneficial way (*ka asher) you have walked before Me (*halak la paneh any).”” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:16)

That didn't happen, but it was prophetic. Solomon failed to live up to this bargain, and as a result, the throne of a united Yisra^{*}el would soon be unoccupied. And even then, virtually every leader of the Northern Kingdom and of Yahuwdah failed in this regard. But on the positive side, this statement does affirm that Dowd was resolutely Towrah-observant. And it was by walking in the Towrah that Dowd's life became so exemplary.

There can be no "now therefore" when the conditions pursuant to the agreement are not met. Nonetheless...

"Now, therefore (wa ^{}atah), Yahowah (Yahowah), God of Yisra^{}el (^{}elohym Yisra^{}el), let Your word be trustworthy and dependable, enduring and true (^{}aman dabar ^{}atah) which, for the benefit of the relationship (^{}asher), You spoke (dabar) to Your coworker, Dowd (la ^{}ebed ^{*}atah la Dowyd)." (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:17)

Since ^{*}aman was conveyed in the jussive volitional mood, Solomon is saying that he and those gathered before him wanted Yahowah's testimony to be truthful and dependable. And while that may have tickled the ears of the faithful and religious, it was an inappropriate thing to say. It implies that God has the option of reneging on His promises and of being misleading. It creates the impression that Yahowah can be disingenuous and capricious – both of which are required for Judaism, Christianity, and Islam.

Had Solomon been as wise as his father, he would have rendered this next pronouncement as a statement rather than a question to explain its purpose and describe the resident.

"Except, is it actually possible (ky ha ^{}umnam) for God (^{}elohym) to dwell or even sit (yashab) with the men like ^{}Adam (^{}eth ha ^{}adam) on the Earth (^{}al ha ^{*}erets)?" (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:18 in part)

Yes, it is possible for some aspect of God to dwell with His Covenant Family on Earth. That is what occurred between Yahowah and ^{}Adam in the Garden. It is the point of the Miqra^eey, and particularly of Kipurym and Sukah. This is something Solomon should have known since his father will serve as King over the Earth when he returns with Him and the planet is transformed back into the conditions experienced in ^{}Eden.

“Behold (hineh), the heavens (shamaym), and the heavens of the heavens (wa shamaym ha shamaym) cannot hold or contain You (lo^{} kuwl ^{}atah), so much more by contrast (^{}aph ky*) this House (ha beyth ha zeh) that (^{}asher*) I have built (banah).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:18 conclusion)

Shamaym is not a prison like She^{}owl*, so it does not have the capacity to kuwl | hold or contain anyone. Further, while we exist in 3½ dimensions as physical beings encumbered by bodies, when we become akin to light, we will be liberated in spacetime. And it is my conclusion, having studied Dowd’s 19th Mizmowr, that the universe is a six-dimensional construct and that Shamaym exists in the seventh dimension.

While all of Yahowah, as a seven-dimensional being, won’t fit in the physical universe He created, much less on Earth, in a House, or within a corporeal body, there is a solution that achieves the desired result. A tiny portion of spiritual energy can be transformed into matter and, thus, a body through Einstein’s equation $E=mc^2$. Then, Yahowah, like all living beings capable of observing and responding, has a nepesh | soul for this purpose. When it is placed within a spiritual or physical being, it projects His personality and individuality, His character and characteristics, His memories, experiences, and ambitions – somewhat like an avatar. This is how Yahowah walked in the Garden with ^{}Adam. It is how He dined with ^{}Abraham. It is how He will return with Dowd.

Also telling in this regard, it was by reconstituting Dowd’s basar | corporeal body through his DNA and then inserting his nepesh | consciousness into it that the King was able to fulfill Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym. This is how Yahowah will dispatch Yada and *ElYah from Shamaym to Earth to serve as Witnesses.

As we proceed, we are confronted by one of the more challenging Hebrew terms – tapilah. It is routinely rendered as “prayer” in English Bibles even though its etymological basis suggests no such thing. Confusing the issue, the popular Strong’s Hebrew Lexicon claims that tapilah was based upon palal | to intervene, intercede, and mediate. However, the more reasonable deduction would be that it was predicated upon palah | to be distinct and separate, distinguished and wonderfully uncommon, or even palach | to revere and serve. We expand our consideration by pondering the ta prefix. It could be a contraction of ta’ah | to err and wander away (with an Ayin and thus unlikely), ta’ah | to mark or point out (with an Aleph), tow | to desire, or ta’ | room or chamber.

Considering all of this, the most reasonable deduction from its component parts would be to render tapilah as “to point out the means to be distinct and separate, set apart and wonderfully special.” Also possible, but less probable, tapilah means “to mark out the way to intervene and intercede.” But either way, there is no Hebrew word for “pray” or “prayer” because Yahowah solicits neither.

“Yet (wa) You turn to face and appear (panah) to point out the means to be distinct and separate, set apart and uncommon (tapilah) to Your coworker (ebed atah) and for his plea and petition for favor (*tachinah huw), Yahowah (Yahowah), my God (elohym any), for listening (la shama) to the rejoicing shouts (el ha rinah), and to pointing out the means to be distinct and uncommon (tapilah) such that Your coworker (asher *ebed atah) mediates, arbitrates, and intervenes (palal) to approach Your presence (*la paneh atah). (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:19)

So (la), Your eyes (ayn atah) will be (hayah) open (pathach) to the House (el ha beyth ha zeh*) day and night (yowmam wa layl), to the place where (el ha maqowm asher)

You have said to place (amar la sym*) Your name (*shem atah) there so that You can listen (sham la shama) to the request to be distinct and separate, set apart and uncommon (ha tapilah) such that Your coworker (asher *ebed atah) pleads for intervention (palal) toward this place (el ha maqowm ha zeh*). (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:20)

And so You should listen (wa shama) to the pleas for mercy and requests for favors (el tachanuwn) of Your coworker (ebed atah) and of Your people Yisra*el (*wa *am *atah Yisra*el*) when (asher*) they request mediation and furnish justification (palal) for this place (el ha maqowm ha zeh*). And You, Yourself, should continually listen (*wa *atah shama) from the place of your dwelling (*min maqowm yashab atah) from the heavens (min ha shamaym). Then You listen (*wa shama) and You forgive (wa salach).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:21)

We should not tell God to listen to us nor should we request favors from Him. We learn and mature when we listen because the favors we need, He has already provided.

So that no one is confused, Yahowah does not listen and forgive. Those seeking entry to heaven by having their guilt removed need to approach God in the manner He has articulated and facilitated – by Dowd having fulfilled Matsah.

“If a man errs, incurring guilt (im chata* iysh), with his neighbor (la rea huw), and he is deceptive with him (wa nasha ba huw), a curse is sworn regarding him (alah la *alah huw). Then comes an oath (wa bow alah) to the presence (la paneh) of Your altar (*mizbeach atah) in this House (ba ha beyth ha zeh), (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:22) so You listen (*wa shama) from the heavens (min ha shamaym) and You act (*wa asah) and You judge (wa shaphat) Your servants (eth *ebed atah) to return and restore (la shuwb) the guilty (*la rasha) by offering a gift (la nathan). This way is foremost (derek huw ba ro*sh huw) so as to acquit the correct (wa la tsadaq tsadyq) by giving this to the one (*la nathan la huw) who is right (*ka tsadaqah huw).”

(Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:23)

Being right is what matters.

“And if Your people, Yisra*el, are afflicted and defeated (*wa *im nagaph *am *atah Yisra*el*) before the presence of an adversary (*la paneh oyeb) because they have missed the way (*ky chata) regarding You (*la atah), and they return and acknowledge by confessing (wa shuwb wa yadah) Your name (eth shem atah), and they furnish the proper justification for intervention (wa palal), and they request compassion (wa chanan) in approaching Your presence (*la paneh atah) in this House (ba ha beyth ha zeh), (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:24) then, You, Yourself, will listen (*wa *atah shama) from the heavens (min ha shamaym).

You will ultimately pardon (wa salach) the offensives and wrongdoing associated with missing the way (*la chata*ah*) of Your people, Yisra*el (am *atah Yisra*el*), when You return them to the Land (*wa shuwb hem *el ha adamah) that, for the benefit of the relationship, You gave to them (asher nathan la hem*) and to their fathers (*wa la *ab huw).”
(Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:25)

To be nagaph | plagued is to be religious. It is viral, pandemic, and deadly. It mandates that the infected be isolated and quarantined. The only cure is to cleanse oneself of all contaminated material, avoid all future contact, and then capitalize on either Dowd’s cure during Chag Matsah or Yada’s during Yowm Taruw*ah.

Apart from what Dowd accomplished by fulfilling Pesach, Matsah, and Bikuwrym, and Yada will provide on the Day of the Herald, there is no intervention that leads to forgiveness. They are both take-it or leave-it offers.

However, the House of the Name cannot be the source of forgiveness. The building erected during Solomon’s reign beginning in 968 BCE was plundered in 926 BCE by Pharaoh Shoshenq I. It was looted a century later by Yisra^{*}elite King Jehoash, who broke through a wall to carry away many of the remaining implements and treasures. Thereafter, when King Ahaz of Judah was threatened by Rezin of Damascus, he bribed King Tiglath-Pileser IV to defend him by offering the silver and gold in the House of Yahowah. Even King Hezekiah plundered the House, prying off the gold from the doors and doorsteps to bribe King Sennacherib, also of Assyria.

While the Beyth Shem was restored under King Joash, with the funding derived from popular donations, it would not endure. The building was plundered by King Nebuchadnezzar II of Neo-Babylon in 598 BCE. A decade later, Nebuchadnezzar, following a thirty-month siege, breached the walls of Yaruwshalaim in 587/6 BCE. He and his men looted the city and torched it over the next year, demolishing the building that had withstood the angst and greed of kings for 400 years.

Similarly, God is not indulgent or particularly forgiving. His plan has always been to remove our guilt by having His Son take it to She^{*}owl, never to be seen again. Without evidence against us, we appear innocent and perfect – without the need for forgiveness.

It is curious that Shalomoh would speak of shuwb hem ^{}el ha ^{}adamah | returning them to the Land. They were currently united and living in peace in Yisra^{*}el. Further, narrowly defined, ^{}adamah* actually means “ground,” whereas the “Land” of Yisra^{*}el is typically characterized by ^{}erets*. Therefore, this may have been intended to be prophetic. Recognizing that this speech coincides with Taruw^{*}ah’s approach to Kipurym and Sukah, and that it is the ^{}Adamah Parah* who will actually resolve this issue of Yisra^{*}el’s collective and individual guilt as part of the people’s return home and to Yahowah, the reference is likely directed toward the Red Heifer – the ^{}adamah* | bloody red man of the earth. This is underscored by the realization that it is for the benefit of the relationship God offered to them and to their fathers.

As we press on, Solomon addresses the lack of rain, and thus of living waters, something Yahowah will provide in overwhelming quantities for those who will have missed the way during Taruw^{ah} in year 6000 Yah...

“With the heavens being held back (*ba atsar ha shamaym) and there is no rain (*wa lo*hayah matar*) because they have missed the way to You (*ky chata*la atah) and then they plead for intervention toward this place (*ky palal el ha maqowm ha zeh) and they acknowledge while expressing appreciation for Your name (*yadah *eth shem atah) from their guilt attributable for missing the way (*min chata), they will return (shuwb) because You will answer some and afflict others (*ky anah hem).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:26)

This is also prophetic of Taruw^{ah} in 6000 Yah. Many will begin proclaiming Yahowah’s name. And those who seek a remedy for their guilt at that time will find intervention through the Red Heifer. This is Yahowah’s answer for those who wish to return. Moreover, I would not be surprised if there is a drought associated with the Time of Ya^{aqob}’s Troubles, one that is resolved by the torrent of water that Yahowah will unleash from beneath the Temple Mount in conjunction with the sacrifice of the ^{}Adamah Parah. It is also obvious that since ^{}EIYah and Yada will be addressing large crowds by standing on the Temple Mount above the Wailing Wall, there will be a staggering number of Jews below them praying and pleading for intervention.

And while many will be rejected for choosing to remain political or religious, the plea of the remaining remnant will be answered on this day.

“Then You, Yourself, will listen (*wa *atah shama) in the heavens (ha shamaym), and You will purge them (wa salach) of the offensive sin and resulting guilt (*la chata*th*) of Your coworkers (ebed atah) and Your people, Yisra^{*el} (*wa *am *atah Yisra*el*), because You will teach and guide them (ky yarah hem) toward the way which is beneficial, productive, and pleasing (el ha derek ha towb) which they should walk in it (asher halak ba hy) and give rain upon Your Land (*wa nathan matar *al *erets atah) which You gave to Your people (asher nathan la *am atah) as an inheritance (la nachalah).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:27)

Should this be addressing Yowm Taruw^{ah}’s fulfillment, then Yahowah will be listening at that time – while He wasn’t previously. On the eve of His return, and as a result of His coworkers, particularly ElYah* and Yada, He will teach and guide His people, placing His Towrah within the remnant of *Yisra*el*. This is the benefit of the Red Heifer and the rejuvenating waters that will emerge beneath his sacrifice to cleanse and restore life throughout the land. Thereupon, Yahowah will allocate His inheritance to His people.

As we proceed, Shalomoh is becoming ever more prophetic with his pronouncements. For example, during the seven years of *Yisra*el*’s Troubles prior to the fulfillment of Taruw^{ah}, Kipurym, and Sukah in year 6000 Yah, the Land and its people will be plagued, blighted, and torched by all manner of swarming pests, human cockroaches if you will, with the death cult of Islam oppressing the Land and infecting the people with the sickness of their revolting religion while Progressives spread the mind virus of socialist politics acting as their pimps. Yahuwdym will plead for intervention, for some sign of Divine favor, but apart from those who catch the last flight out of town during the Taruw^{ah} Gleaning, they will have to wait until the following morning to assuage their physical trauma and mental anguish.

Since a replica of the Tabernacle of the Restoring Witness will be erected on the Temple Mount on April 4th, 2030 as the Witnesses arrive, those struggling to survive the last three and a half years of Israel’s Anguish will have the semblance of something to reach out to after thousands of years otherwise. And those who turn to Yah will find God more than ready to receive this remnant of His people, saving them from the ultimate plague and from a time that the Earth will be inhospitable...

“Indeed, famine will exist (ra°ab ky hayah) in the Land (ba ha °erets), plague and pestilence (a), also, there will be blight and scorching heat (ky hayah shidaphown), crop failures and fungal infections (wa yeraqown), locusts, caterpillars, and cockroaches (arbeh wa basyl*).

Surely (ky), their adversaries and enemies (oyeb huw°*) will oppress them (ky hayah ky tsarar la huw°) in the Land and at their gates (ba °erets sha°ar huw°). Every assault and pandemic, each sickening disease (kol nega° wa kol machalah), (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:28) will prompt pleas for intervention, even isolation (kol tapilah).

Everyone there will be requesting assistance and favors (kol tachinah), such that this becomes pervasive among all people (asher hayah la kol ha °adam*). And for the entirety of Your people, Yisra°el (wa la kol °am °atah Yisra°el), each man will be keenly aware of his personal afflictions (asher yada° °iysh nega° huw°*), of his pain, physical traumas, and emotional anguish (wa mako°b huw°). And so he will stretch out his hands (wa paras kaph huw°) toward the Family Home (el ha beyth ha zeh*).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:29)

This time is upon us. The roaches are returning, and in far greater numbers. They are being egged on by the fungal infection which has become the mind virus of thoughtless Progressive ideology. This is the time when the Leftist – Islamic Alliance plagues the planet – an incredibly insane and hypocritical collaboration of opposites, now serving as the greatest threat to Jewish existence.

What follows, however, has not yet occurred and will not until the 1st day of the 7th month in the weeks before the 7th millennium when the plight of humans outside of the Garden will be resolved. From His dwelling place in Shamaym, Yahowah will not only listen as Taruw°ah is being fulfilled, He will act. And as a result, the entire surviving remnant of Yisra^{el} whose ways become aligned with Yah's, will be pardoned as a result of the adamah Parah* | Red Heifer.

“Then You, Yourself, will hear it from the heavens (*wa atah shama ha shamaym*), in Your dwelling place (*makown yashab atah), and You will provide a pardon (wa salach), giving to each individual (*wa nathan la ha iysh) according to all of his ways (ka kol derek huw) whose inclinations and judgment You know (asher yada *eth lebab huw).

Indeed, You, only You (*ky *atah la bad atah), know the hearts and minds (yada eth lebab) of the children of humankind (*beny ha adam).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:30)

It will be a judgment call, one only Yahowah will be able to make as He dispatches the Black and White Spiritual Chariots to canvass the planet to determine who can be restored in the days before His arrival with Dowd. Even with those already gathered in Jerusalem, with the waters pouring off of the Temple Mount, the flames burnishing the sky, and the smoke rising to the heavens, some will dance and others will drown, some will breathe and others will suffocate.

But make no mistake; throughout the 4,000-year history of Yisra^{el}, there has been no time in which the majority, much less everyone, came to respect and revere Yahowah. This will occur for the first time during the Homecoming and Family Reunion on Yowm Kipurym – sunset in Yaruwshalaim, October 2nd, 2033, and it will be the result of the Nakry, who is about to be introduced.

“Therefore (*lama*an*), they will come to respect and revere You (yare atah), then they will walk in Your ways (*la halak ba derek atah) all of the days that they live (*kol ha yowm asher hem chay) upon the presence of the earth (al paneh ha adamah) that You gave (asher nathan*) to our fathers (*la *ab anachnuw).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:31)

Far fewer than one in a million have walked in Yahowah's ways up to this point. Moseh and Dowd are preeminent examples, but so are men like Shamuw^{el}, Yasha^{yah}, Yirmayah, Zakaryah, Yow^{el}, Mal^{aky}, and the returning ^{*}EIYah, as are the women, Ruth and Debora. This, however, will soon change when the entire surviving remnant of God's People capitalize on the Nakry's Taruw^{ah} sacrifice and the Messiah's Kipurym Homecoming and participate in the Sukah return to the Garden.

This will be the last chance to come clean, to walk with Yahowah, and to inherit the benefits of the Covenant. And so, to encourage Yisra^{el} to capitalize on this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, Shalomoh prophetically pronounces that there will be another coworker, one following in his father's footsteps. Forty years shy of three millennia from this pronouncement, a Nakry | Observant Foreigner, Dowd's and Yasha^{yah}'s Choter, a Man from ^{*}Edowm, will walk out of the pages of the Towrah and Prophets and into the lives of God's People. And in these words, we find the prophecy alluded to in Zakaryah which is pertinent to this occasion...

“Moreover, this is why (wa gam – besides, in addition, and finally, truly and in conjunction with this), regarding someone else, the observant and discerning, especially responsive, foreigner from a different ethnicity and geographic location who will come to understand, the Nakry (el ha nakry* – pursuant to someone from a different place and culture, speaking a different language, who, having paid attention will comprehend and respond; from nakar – one who, by being attentive and astute, will be acquainted, recognize, and acknowledge something which deserves our highest regard and respect), who, to show the way to the benefits of the relationship (asher*), is not of your people (lo^{}min^{}am^{}atah*), this Yisra^{el} (Yisra^{el} huw^{}*).

He will come (wa bow^{}* – he will actually arrive at a moment in time, he will come, go, and return for the harvest (qal perfect third-person masculine singular)) from a distant country after a long interval of time (*min erets rachowq – from being alienated to a profoundly close association in the distant future) for the express purpose of being a Witness and voicing answers regarding (*lama*an* – for the sake and explicit intent of testifying while providing insights in response to) Your (atah*) vitaly important (ha gadowl – empowering and tremendously valuable, expansive and growth enabling) name (shem – proper designation, reputation, and renown) and Your influence, as Your Hand (*wa yad atah), as an effective troubadour for Trumpets, a prepared and capable person willing to engage in battle who is resolute (ha chazaq – an empowered person who is particularly proficient, a bit loud, very intense, sometimes harsh, overtly direct, often overpowering, and always steadfast and firm when devoted to encouraging and restoring), and (wa) as Your Zarowa | One Cultivating the Seeds Sown for Your Harvests (Zarowa atah – one who is fruitful in his ways, sowing the seeds which take root and grow while denoting and advancing the purpose of the Arm of God, of Your Shepherd, and Your Sacrificial Lamb) whom You have extended (ha natah – whom you have dispatched).

When (wa) he arrives on the scene and chooses to pursue this, coming, going, and returning (*bow – he is brought in for the harvest at this moment in time (qal perfect third-person)), then (wa) unaffected by societal, political, or religious influence, independently, he will help interested parties reconcile their relationship by providing those who exercise good judgment with the requested information and justifications to make a reasoned decision pursuant to this intervention (palal – he will serve as an intercessor for some while independently judging others (hitpael perfect third person)) regarding this Familial Relationship and the Family Home (el ha beyth ha zeh*).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:32)

This is how every concern Shalomoh raised will be resolved. His father’s Herald as the final Zarowa* will arrive at long last and restore the relationship with Yahowah that Yisra*elites had broken several millennia ago. Listen to him because the Nakry | Observant Foreigner and *Zarowa | One Cultivating the Harvests is the Qowl | Voice of God in advance of Yahowah's return.

From this prophetic pronouncement we know that gam | beyond all of this that surely there would be someone else, a Nakry | Observant Foreigner who would be discerning and responsible. This man who will asher* | show the way to receive the benefits of the relationship will be a gowy, and lo min *am *atah Yisra*el* | not be of your people when addressing Israel. This is astonishing in its own right because this is the only time in the Towrah, Prophets, or Writings that Yahowah distinguishes a Gowy in this manner.

Because it is so exceptional, after three affirmations that the Nakry is a foreigner, and not an Yisra*elite, God adds a fourth, telling His people that *bow | he will come min | from an erets rachowq* | a distant place and time. He will even transition from being alienated, like the rest of Yisra*el, to being integrated in a profound way. There is even the inference with *bow that the Nakry will arrive, leave, and then return, which is exactly what will occur. As a former Christian who had disavowed the religion, I was called on Taruw*ah. I will serve until Shabuw*ah, when I will leave. But I will return in advance of the final Harvest to serve Yisra*el in all of these ways. Therefore, there is only one person in human history for which all of this is accurate.

And that's where it gets particularly interesting because the Nakry is slated to do what I alone have done – reintroduce Yisra*el to ha gadowl shem | the exceedingly important, tremendously valuable, and empowering nature of Yahowah's personal and proper name. That has been my *lama*an* | primary purpose as a Witness. It is the explicit intent of Yada Yahowah.

God deploys those who work with Him as an extension of His yad | hand, and as a way to extend His influence. While that is fairly common, ha chazaq is not. It speaks of someone who is resolutely determined, prepared and ready to engage, and who is particularly unwavering and influential. This is an empowered individual whom God finds remarkably competent and capable – or at least, makes him that way. He can be a bit loud, is intense, sometimes harsh, typically direct, often overpowering, and always steadfast, noted for being firm when encouraging and restoring God's people.

With ha chazaq, he is the One directly associated with the responsibility of being the troubadour of Trumpets and, therefore, the Herald of Taruw^{ah}. This conclusion comes with a pair of profoundly important insights. First, in Yasha^{yah} / Isaiah 17, when addressing the Zarowa^o | One Cultivating the Taruw^{ah} Ingathering, the prophet reveals that he will be as forceful as a protective stick when lashing out at this time, as unrelenting as a rocky crag, and as strong as a bull when protecting the mortal remnant of Yisra^{el}.

Second, after Yahowah states in Yirmayah / Jerimiah 31 that He drew the Children of Yisra^{el} out of being persecuted by those abusing them with a chazaq | hand, He notes that the final Exodus, this one from Babel | the Intermixing of Truth and Lies to Confound, would differ from the initial Exodus from Mitsraym | the Crucibles of Religious and Political Oppression because He wouldn't be this chazaq | overbearing next time. He would leave that up to his Nakar – the man chosen to be chazaq | unrelenting prior to His return. And in this realization, it should be noted that Dowd was also chazaq.

The Nakry | Observant Foreigner is one of the three Zarowa^o. This is a title that is afforded to Moseh, Dowd, and Yada. And in this lama^{an} | Witness' case, he is the final Zarowa^o, One Cultivating the Seeds Sown for Yahowah's Harvests – Shabu^{ah} and Taruw^{ah}. It is for this purpose that he has been natah | extended.

In this context, we are reminded that the Nakry will bow^{}* | arrive on the scene to pursue these things, coming, going, and returning as we cycle through the Mow^oedym prior to the return of our King. In a time when 99% of people are swayed by societal customs, politics, religion, conspiracy, and patriotism, he will be the outlier who is unaffected by the things which define the lives and thinking of others. But that does not mean that he will be disengaged. On the contrary, he will independently help interested parties reconcile their relationship with Yahowah, doing so by providing those who are willing to exercise good judgment with the information they need to make reasoned decisions pursuant to his intervention.

Shalomoh's follow-on pronouncement is equally identifying, riveting, and pertinent. He tells Israelis living at this momentous time...

“When you hear this as if coming out of the heavens, listen to what comes from the spiritual realm (*wa *atah shama*min ha shamaym* – you should continually listen to what is out of the heavens) within the location where you live, no matter where you are (*min makown yashab atah – from your dwelling place so that you are properly established and endure in your life), then (wa) engage and act accordingly, doing everything (asah ka kol* – extend the energy to benefit similarly in every way) which, to show the way (asher*), ha Nakry | the Observant and Responsive Foreigner from a different ethnicity and geographic location who understands (ha nakry – this man from a different place and culture, speaking another language who is uniquely discerning) has proclaimed and invited you to read, summoning you (qara *el atah – he calls you out to meet, announcing to you by reading out loud and reciting the pronouncement to be called out (qal imperfect third-person masculine singular)), for the express purpose of serving as a Witness, a teacher who provides answers such that (lama^oan – on account of) all peoples of the Earth (*kol *am ha erets – everyone on the planet and in the Land) will have a genuine and ongoing opportunity to become familiar with Yada^o, to know, acknowledge, accept, and understand (yada^o – to possess the information to discover and reveal (qal imperfect third-person masculine)) Your name (eth shem atah – Your personal and proper designation), coming to respect and revere what pertains to You (wa la yare *eth atah – to appreciate Your awesome and awe inspiring nature) simultaneously along with (ka) Your people (am atah), Yisra*el (*Yisra*el* – Individuals who Struggle and Wrestle with the Almighty becoming Those who Engage and Endure with God).

Also, so that (wa la) they may know, acknowledge, accept, and appreciate Yada (*yada – they be may be cognizant of and recognize Yada (qal infinitive)) because, truthfully (ky – for the reason that it is indeed certain and true that), for Your name (*shem atah – on behalf of your personal and proper designation) he is designated and called, invited and welcomed (*qara – he is summoned and is asked to read aloud and recite what has been written about the Miqra, even designated by name (nifal perfect third-person masculine singular)) concerning this House and Family (al ha beyth ha zeh), which to reveal the correct path to walk to give life meaning (asher*), I have built (banah – I have constructed as the son (qal perfect first-person singular)).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / Words of the Days / 2nd Chronicles 6:33)

Whether you are a Yahuwdym, Yisra*elite, or Gowym, and no matter *min makown yashab atah | where you live, so that you are properly established in your life and endure, Yahowah is instructing you to asah ka kol* | act and engage, doing everything ha Nakry | the Observant Foreigner has *qara | proclaimed and read aloud. Yahowah is, therefore, not only inviting you to listen to the YAHOWAH BLOG, He is asking you to respond appropriately to what you hear. God even announced 3,000 years ago that you will *shama | hear his voice as if it is coming to you min ha shamaym | out of the heavens by way of the cloud and satellites which provide international internet coverage. It is almost as if He was aware that I would be reliant on Starlink to disseminate our live-streaming programs where I often recite my translations of His words.

Even then, it is not enough for you to just listen because we all must act. And amazingly, Yahowah wants you to do what we ask of you. There is none other of whom this is said. And, therefore, you can be assured that Yahowah's Seven Ruwach | Spirits are inspiring the dialogue and that we have done a great deal of prior preparation before sharing His prophetic pronouncements and Towrah | Guidance.

I realize that, had Yahowah not inspired Solomon to profess His request, this would sound preposterous. And that is especially true for Jews who have only afforded this autonomy to their rabbis whom I besmirch, and doubly so coming from a Gowy. However, there is no denying that Yahowah's statement is all-encompassing and unequivocal in what is an irrefutable context. Kol | all means "all"; that's all "all" means. To benefit from Yahowah's Nakry | Observant Foreigner, you must listen and then do what is asked of you.

The reason Yahowah could make such a bold and sweeping statement is that He is controlling the action. Before He would have me begin livestreaming via the satellites to broadcast the YAHOWAH BLOG, we would spend the preceding 23 years translating His words, contemplating His instructions, pondering what He was asking from us and offering in return, all while deducing insights from His every proclamation. We would write 38 books in the process. It would not be until I came to perceive His entire picture from beginning to end, including the revelation that His Son, Dowd, is our Messiah and King, and that he fulfilled Chag Matsah, that we would transition from writing to speaking. By that time, and with the benefit of His seven Ruwach | Spirits, Yahowah had every assurance that I would be able to effectively serve as His Qowl | Voice, such that I would say what He wanted conveyed.

By using *qara | to summon and invite, to read and recite, to proclaim and call out, to meet and welcome, Yahowah is not only associating the Nakry with the Miqra^eey, God is describing the purpose and style of the YAHOWAH BLOG – announcing its existence 3,000 years in advance of its time. Further, its lama°an | purpose would be to serve as a witness, teaching the truth to all who would listen, conveying the message to kol °am ha °erets | the Family of the Land and the people of the Earth.

In the previous statement, the Nakry's lama°an | primary purpose was to reacquaint Yisra°el with Yahowah's name. And now it is to direct attention to the qara° | invitations Yada° is reciting from God on behalf of His people. Further, it is now expressly evident that Yahowah is not only equating the Nakry | Observant Foreigner with Yada | One who Knows, He is directing Yisra°el's attention to him so that they yada° | recognize and acknowledge him and benefit from the answers he is providing pursuant to the Shem | Name. Developing a profound yare° | respect and appreciation for all Yahowah represents is the first step toward reconciliation.

And speaking of titles serving as names, in his introduction to the Nakry, Solomon equated him with a Zarowa° | One Cultivating the Harvest. And now, Shalomoh is associating the Nakry with Yada. Therefore, the Nakry = the Zarowa° = Yada.

It is not only telling, but also prophetically accurate. My message, even before I recognized that I am the Nakry and Zarowa°, was directed toward everyone on Earth, prioritizing Yisra°el – those migrating Individuals who Struggle and Wrestle with the Almighty to Those who Engage and Endure with God.

Even more revealing, since I had invested more time translating the Towrah and Naby°ym than the Writings, still writing anonymously under the nom de plume of Yada, I would not have noticed this prophecy regarding the Nakry had it not been for Zarowa°. At the time, I was trying to expand my understanding of this profoundly important word and title, and that search for answers led me to Solomon's Sermon on the Mount.

That is one of the reasons that I found it interesting that Solomon doubled down on his depiction of Yada | One who Knows and Understands, just as he did on the title Nakry | the Observant and Responsive Foreigner in addition to Lama°an |

the Prioritizing Witness. Similarly, there is a second reemphasis on the importance of Yahowah's Shem | Name. that is to say that reintroducing it has been central to Yada's, the Nakry's, and Lama'an's mission. I was *qara | summoned and invited, designated and called for this purpose. The 35 volumes of Yada Yahowah presented at YadaYah.com and the hundreds of episodes of the YAHOWAH BLOG on Facebook, YouTube, and X serve as the fulfillment of this prophecy. And since they are specific to God's declaration, and since there is nothing remotely like any of this elsewhere, there should be no question in anyone's mind that Yada is the Nakry.

It is further affirming that the focus of Yada Yahowah has been on the Beyth | Family of God. I was the first to deduce the Covenant's five conditions and benefits and to equate the Beryth with the Miqra'ey | Invitations to be Called Out and Meet with God. I'm not bragging but, instead, doing as Yada implies.

And all of this was made possible because of asher* | the path which reveals the benefits of the relationship. Asher* was the first Hebrew word I translated 24 years ago, and it has led to everything that has followed. That may be why asher* appears three times in the prophetic statement introducing the Nakry, who is Yada, the Zarowa' serving as a Lama'an so that Yisra'el would know Yahowah's Shem.

While Shalomoh was taking credit for banah | building the Beyth | House, Home, and Family, I beg to differ. It has been a collaborative effort between Yahowah and those He has chosen. Many deserve credit, and some have done more than Solomon.

This has been so enlightening and affirming, before we move on in the narrative, let's take another look at the most important prophecy delivered during the Sermon on the Mount...

“Moreover, this is why in conjunction with this (wagam), regarding someone else as the Nakry, this observant and discerning, especially responsive, foreigner from a different ethnicity and geographic location who will come to understand (el ha nakry*), who, to show the way to the benefits of the relationship (asher*), is not of your people (lo min *am atah), this Yisra*el (*Yisra*el huw).

He will arrive at a moment in time for the harvest and then return (*wa bow) from a distant country after a long interval of time (*min erets rachowq) for the express purpose of being a Witness and voicing answers regarding (*lama*an*) Your (atah*) vitally important (ha gadowl) name (shem) and Your influence, as Your Hand (*wa yad atah), as an effective troubadour for Trumpets, a prepared and capable person willing to engage in battle who is resolute, empowered, proficient but loud, always intense and sometimes harsh, overtly direct, and often overpowering, who is dependably steadfast (ha chazaq), and (wa) as Your Zarowa• | One Cultivating the Seeds Sown for Your Harvests who is fruitful in Your ways when sowing the seeds which take root and grow (Zarowa atah) whom You have extended (ha natah).

When (wa) he arrives on the scene and chooses to pursue this, coming, going, and returning for the harvest at this moment in time (*bow), then (wa) unaffected by societal, political, or religious influence, independently, he will help interested parties reconcile their relationship by providing those who exercise good judgment with the requested information and justifications to make a reasoned decision pursuant to this intervention (palal) regarding this Familial Relationship and the Family Home (el ha beyth ha zeh*). (2nd Chronicles 6:32)

When you hear this as if coming out of the heavens, listen to what comes from the spiritual realm (*wa atah shama min ha shamaym*) from within the location where you live, no matter where you are (*min makown yashab atah), then (wa) engage and act accordingly, doing everything (asah ka kol*) which, to show the way (asher*), ha Nakry | the Observant and Responsive Foreigner from a different ethnicity and geographic location who understands (ha nakry) has proclaimed and invited you to read, summoning

you (qara *el atah), for the express purpose of serving as a Witness, a teacher who provides answers such that (*lama*an*) all peoples of the Earth (*kol *am ha erets) will have a genuine and ongoing opportunity to become familiar with Yada*, to know, acknowledge, accept, and understand (*yada) Your name (eth shem atah), coming to respect and revere what pertains to You (wa la yare *eth atah) simultaneously along with (ka) Your people (am atah), *Yisra*el* | Individuals who Struggle and Wrestle with the Almighty becoming Those who Engage and Endure with God (*Yisra*el*).

And also, so that (wa la) they may know, acknowledge, accept, and appreciate Yada (*yada) because, truthfully (ky), it is for Your name (*shem atah that he is designated and called, invited and welcomed, reciting aloud regarding the Miqra*ey (qara) concerning this House and Family (al ha beyth ha zeh), which to reveal the correct path to walk to give life meaning (asher*), I have built (banah).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym 6:33)

Somehow, I don’t think I stumbled on this prophecy by happenstance. One or more of the Choter’s Seven Ruwach might have been responsible. And we are all richer for the assist.

At this point in his Sermon on the Mount, Shalomoh moved on to his concluding topic, which was defending Israel from the many foes the people would face between this day and the Nakry’s arrival. In my previous presentations of the foregoing prophecy, I had passed over the remainder of the 6th chapter, but now since the morah | rebellious and embittered Mother Goddess Cult is claiming that it disqualifies the previously stated, let’s consider...

“Indeed, when (ky) your people (am atah – your extended family members and related kin) go out over a protracted period (*yatsa – continually come forth (qal imperfect)) for the battle (la ha milchamah – for the war to fight) against his enemies and their foes (al *oyeb huw – against his protagonists and their adversaries, upon those who are hostile and harmful displaying overt animosity and rancor toward him and/or them) in the way (ba ha derek – in the path) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), You will send and direct them (shalach hem – You will consistently dispatch them).

And on their own initiative, they will meditate, intervene, and furnish justifications with copious presumptive arguments (palal – they will independently arbitrate and process their expectations regarding future contingencies (hitpa'el perfect third-person plural)) regarding You (el atah) en route (derek – on the way) to this city (*ha *iyir ha zo th) that, to show the proper path (asher*), You have chosen (bachar – You prefer and have selected) in this (*ba hy – with her), along with the House (wa ha beyth) I have built (banah) for Your name (*la shem atah).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / Words of the Days / 2nd Chronicles 6:34)

Two of the many reasons Yisra*el would need a Nakry are addressed in this follow-on pronouncement. First, estranged from God, and during Dowd’s prolonged hiatus in heaven, they would fight and lose many battles from this point forward. Yisra*el’s enemies became numerous and formidable, and they are growing more menacing every day. The world has been and remains oyeb* | adversarial with great rancor and animosity toward Jews – the most demonized ethnicity in history. And this is largely because the Children of Yisra*el have not listened to Yahowah or followed His advice. But it is also the result of Gowym being wrong about God and His people.

Second, religiously and politically, even socially and culturally, presumptuous and meddling Jews have palal | intervened between man and God, furnishing copious justifications for their many Talmudic arguments against Yahowah. Their Babylonian Talmud serves as Exhibit T, replacing the actual Towrah. This is one of the reasons an amplified translation replete with stems, moods, and conjugations is so vital to our understanding.

In this case, the hitpael stem reveals that religious Jews have done all of this on their own initiative. And in particular, rabbis have written everything pursuant to the House for Yahowah's name, including God's Shem, out of their religion.

On a grammatical matter, it is likely with huw | his following oyeb | enemies that it is addressing Yisra*el which is a masculine singular noun. But it is possible that *huw is affirming that the Nakry, who is also presented as masculine singular, has his share of foes with whom he must contend. It is even acceptable to render *huw as "their," as is the case in other situations like this throughout the Writings. And while all three options have merit, the reference is likely addressing Israel.

"So, You will listen at a particular moment in time (*wa shama – You will hear at some point (qal perfect)) from Heaven (min shamaym) to that which pertains to their wonderful request for intervention (taphilah hem – of their reasoned petitions and sound judgment; from palah – to be separated and designated as marvelous and wonderful and palal – to intervene and mediate), and You will engage and act at this time (*wa asah – You will at the right moment do what must be done (qal perfect)) to resolve the dispute with them while being just and rational (mishpat hem – to execute judgment, making the proper decision; from my – to ponder the implications of and shaphat – making informed and rational decisions which resolve disputes)." (Dabarym ha Yowmym / Words of the Days / 2nd Chronicles 6:35)

Once again, Hebrew grammar comes to the rescue. Both shama | listen and asah | act were scribed in the perfect conjugation. This means that there will be a time when Yahowah hears the request for intervention as well as a period when He will engage, but it wasn't then or immediately thereafter. It is, instead, reserved for a time coinciding with the Nakry in the years before the Family Reunion.

When God does respond, it will be to resolve the dispute that has separated He and His people for many years – which is their propensity to be religious. At long last, reason will trump faith.

But it will be a long road getting there, with more religious potholes than a gopher colony...

“Indeed, it is certain that (ky) they will continually be at fault regarding You, constantly going astray, bearing the guilt for leading many astray (chata la atah – they will constantly be wrong about You (qal imperfect)) because, truly (ky), there will be no one, not a single person who (ayn *adam asher) will not be wrong and miss the way, incurring the guilt of leading astray (lo chata – bear the loss for having erred and retreated (qal imperfect)).

Therefore (wa), You will be indignant and furious with them (anaph ba hem* – exceedingly displeased with them). And so, You will offer them up, giving them into the presence of an enemy (*wa nathan hem la paneh oyeb) so that they are taken captive (wa shabah hem) with them hauled away as slaves by their captors (shabah hem) to a land or place (el erets) far or near, in a distant time and quite soon (*rachowq or qarowb).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / Words of the Days / 2nd Chronicles 6:36)

This is reinforcing one of the most shocking themes revealed by *Yasha*yah* / Isaiah – for decades that become centuries and turn into millennia, Yahowah searched and could not find a single Yisra*elite who hasn’t gone so far astray that they were reachable and usable: *Ky *ayn *adam asher | because, truly, there will be no one, not a single solitary person lo chata | who has not gone the wrong way. This would become and remain universal among Jews. All have been wrong about Yahowah. And this is why the Nakry was needed.

The fact is, rather than pleasing G-d, the unknown HaShem of Judaism, with their rote prayers, religious rules, onerous laws, and argumentative texts, Jews have made Yahowah angry. Most everything rabbinic is wrong. Rather than enlightening and emancipating Jews so that they can engage in a relationship with Yahowah, rabbis have indoctrinated and constrained them for their own enrichment.

For God's people, the only answer is to change, leaving the rabbis and returning to Yahowah. But that's a surprisingly difficult undertaking because Yahuwdym have been brainwashed by their religious leaders since shortly after this was spoken.

“But by coming back, changing and returning (wa shuwb – by turning around and acting differently so that they can be restored (hifil perfect)) in their best judgment, improved attitudes and ambitions (lebab hem – in their hearts) while in the country (*ba ha erets) which they will be held as captives (asher shabah sham*), and by turning around and changing so that they can be restored (wa shuwb), they would take the initiative to independently pursue a more favorable consideration toward You, showing some appreciation, kindness, and affection for You (*chanan *el atah – and they are inclined to be nice to You (hitpa'el perfect third-person plural) while in the land of their captivity (*ba erets shabah hem).

As a result, they would say (*la amar), ‘We were wrong in missing the way and leading others astray (chata – our errant and offensive ways are now of the past (qal perfect)) with our corruptions and perversions, our propensity to bend and twist (awah – our being amiss and troubling), and our wicked wrongdoing such that our being evil has left us covered in guilt (*rasha – deserving to be held accountable and punished for violating the standard).’ (Dabarym ha Yowmym / Words of the Days / 2nd Chronicles 6:37)

Yahowah has His prophets repeat themselves because, with Jews, getting them to change is like slapping a rock wall – it accomplishes very little other than to hurt. So, the message is that reason must replace faith, recognizing that Yahowah's way is correct, and the religious path is wrong.

There is an interesting twist in this pronouncement I don't want you to miss. Solomon wasn't asking Yahowah to favor his people while they were wrong but, instead, for Yisra^{*el} to chanan ^{*el} | take the initiative to pursue a more favorable approach to God, to stop abusing Him and start treating Him respectfully.

The other interesting insight is that the way religious Jews have chata^{} | led themselves and others astray is by awah | twisting and bending, corrupting and perverting Yahowah's testimony for their Talmud, even New Testament and Quran, since rabbis are responsible for all three. And that is what has left God's people slathered in rasha^o | religious guilt.

So, as if addressing the proverbial rock wall, for the fourth time...

“So, should they change and come back to You (wa shuwb ^{el} atah – by turning around and acting differently toward You so that they can be restored (qal perfect)) by exercising good judgment, with a completely better attitude (ba kol leb hem – in all their heart), and with all their soul, their entire consciousness (wa ba kol nepesh hem), while in the country (*ba ha erets) which they will be held as captives (asher shabah sham*) in the realm of their captivity (*ba erets shabah hem) to which they will be deprived of their freedom (asher shabah eth hem), and without being prompted or provoked, and they take the personal initiative to meditate on the justification for intervention (wa palal – independently request different circumstances (hitpa^l perfect)) regarding the way to their land (*derek erets hem) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), You gave to their fathers (*nathan la ab hem), and the city You have chosen (*wa iy ^{*asher} bachar), as well as the House and Family (wa la ha beyth), that I have built for Your name (asher banah la shem atah), (Dabarym ha Yowmym 6:38) then, at that time, You will listen (wa shama^{*}) to their request for intervention (taphilah hem – to their reasoned petitions and sound judgment; from palah – to be separated and designated as marvelous and wonderful and palal – to intervene and mediate) from Your Heavenly dwelling place (*min ha shamaym min makown yashab atah), as well as to their pleas for mercy (*wa eth tachinah hem).

The reason the hitpael stem is pervasive in this prophecy addressing Jews today is because Yahowah wants them to take the initiative to break free of the social, cultural, political, and religious perversions and platitudes that keep them apart. For example, to this day, it is nigh on impossible to convince Jews to say Yahowah's name. Told that Dowd is their Messiah and Son of God who fulfilled Chag Matsah, they respond as adroitly as the Western Wall.

It is a simple concept: listen to Yahowah and He will listen to you. Don't, and He won't.

It's best when we refrain from telling Yahowah what to do, but nonetheless, Solomon showed that he wasn't the brightest in this regard...

“Listen at that time (*wa shama – will hear at this moment (qal perfect)) from the Spiritual Realms (min shamaym), from Your dwelling place where You reside (*min makown yashab atah), to their glorious request for intervention (eth taphilah hem* – to their reasoned pleas and sound judgment; from palah – to be separated and designated as marvelous and wonderful and palal – to intervene and mediate), as well as to their pleas for compassion (*wa eth tachinah hem), then You will act in that moment (*wa asah – You will engage at that time (qal perfect)) to resolve the dispute with them while being just and rational with them (mishpat hem – to execute judgment, making the proper decision for them; from my – to ponder the implications of and shaphat – making informed and rational decisions which resolve disputes) and pardon Your people, removing their guilt, releasing Your family from their religious crimes (*wa salach la *am atah – sparing Your people (qal perfect second-person masculine singular)) who have been wrong about You (chata la atah – who have been misled regarding You).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / Words of the Days / 2nd Chronicles 6:39)

We ought to thank Yahowah for His promise to respond to His people and deliver them from harm's way in the end. When their backs are up against the wall and there is no other option, thousands of Yisra^lelites are going to plead for Yahowah to intervene. While it is better late than not at all, sooner would have been a better choice.

Every Jew who survives the Time of Israel's Troubles will eventually listen to Yahowah's representatives, and they will either save or condemn them. So why postpone what is inevitable, especially when the right choice is so desirable and the alternative so dismal?

So that there is no confusion, the way Yahowah will engage at this time is by facilitating the two Harvests, by deploying the four Spiritual Chariots, by speaking through the two Witnesses, and by sacrificing the ^{*}Adamah Parah. In the end, every dispute will be resolved one way or the other, with Yahowah and His representatives consistently informed, rational, and fair in every decision. This will be the ultimate mishpat | judgment, a time of releases and recompense. Those who continue to be wrong about Yahowah won't much like the outcome while those who are right will love the result.

In this case, at this time, those receiving a salach | pardon, those whose salach | guilt is being removed, are the beneficiaries of the sacrifice of the Man from Edom as the Red Heifer. All religious malfeasance will be expunged. It's back to Eden.

In winding down his speech, Solomon reemphasized what Yahowah will provide on Taruw^{ah} by way of His Nakry | Observant Foreigner and Zarowa^o | One Cultivating the Seeds of the Harvest so that everyone Yada | Knows...

“Now (^{}atah), My God (^{}elohym ^{*}any), I implore (na^{*}), may it be that (hayah) Your eyes are open and receptive (^{}ayn ^{}atah patah), and Your ears are attentive (wa ^{}ozen ^{}atah qashub) to the glorious request for intervention (la taphilah – to the reasoned pleas and sound judgment; from palah – to being separated and designated as marvelous and wonderful and palal

– through intervention and mediation) of this place to take a firm stand, rise up, and be home (ha maqowm ha zeh – to the source of direction on standing upright and being established).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / Words of the Days / 2nd Chronicles 6:40)

This remains germane to the Nakry’s mission because he is the one providing intervention on behalf of the Yisra*elites who are receptive to their redemption. And it will be offered in this very location – maqowm | the place to take a stand, arise, and come home.

For those who may be unaware that the maqowm is a place to take a stand, know that it is based upon the actionable root of quwm | to stand. That is why Shalomoh is providing the following clarification. In addition, Dowd’s son reminds Yisra*el that Yahowah’s Maqowm | Home is the very place His Ruwach will nuwach | settle in the dwelling where the arown* | Ark of the Covenant will reside...

“Now (atah*), Yahowah, Almighty (*Yahowah elohym), I want You to choose to take a stand to establish (quwm – My will is for You to elect to raise up (qal imperative paragodic he* cohortative)), Your dwelling (*la nuwach atah – to Your resting place and abode), You (atah*), and the Ark (*wa arown) of Your might, strength, and power (oz atah – of Your fortification).

Your priests (*kohen atah), Yahowah, Almighty (*Yahowah elohym), they chose to be clothed (labash – they are dressed by choice (qal imperfect jussive third-person masculine plural)) with deliverance and freedom from danger with a loud voice (*tashuwa*ah* – let them cry for salvation and victory; from *shawa – to cry out and shout) and your Set Apart, Favored, and Devoted Ones (*chasyd atah – Your most loyal, special, and Godly) elect to rejoice (samach – decide to bring great joy and eternal happiness (qal imperfect jussive third-person masculine plural)) in the generosity and prosperity, the goodness and wellbeing (ha towb – the festive and beneficial result).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / Words of the Days / 2nd Chronicles 6:41)

Obviously, Yahowah is abundantly oz* | mighty and powerful, but it not only goes without saying, the arown* | Ark isn’t so much an indication of power but, instead, a symbol of the Covenant Family. It speaks of the Kaporeth | Mercy the Miqra^eey provide. And it is Dowd’s throne and seat of honor.

There were kohen | priests available on this day, but they had been run out of the House. So, while they may have been properly dressed, they weren’t providing much of anything beneficial. Therefore, we have to leap forward in time 3,000 years to the service of EiYah* and Dowd, when both will be dressed and performing in the role of kohen on Taruw^eah and Kipurym. As a result of what Yahowah does through them, freedom and salvation will reign.

All the while, in the expensive seats in an amphitheater in the sky, the returning chasyd | set-apart ones who were favored with participation in the previous ingatherings, will rejoice in the generosity and benefit of it all.

The son’s Sermon on the Mount concluded with a declaration that was as affirming of his father’s role in God’s future plans as it was devastating to Judaism and Christianity. Yahowah is returning with Dowd, His Messiah and ours. And it is through him that Yahowah’s compassion will prevail and His devotion will be manifest.

“Yahowah, Almighty (*Yahowah elohym), do not turn away forever nor fail to return (al shuwb* – do not continuously abandon or fail to restore) along with the appearance and presence (paneh) of Your Mashyach | Messiah (*Mashyach atem).

I want You to choose to remember and emphatically memorialize (zakar – it is my desire for You to elect to mention the most memorable of men (qal imperative paragogic he cohortative second-person masculine singular)) Your steadfast devotion, loyal love, genuine kindness, enduring affection, and unfailing favoritism (*la chesed atah) for Dowyd (Dowyd), Your coworker and associate (ebed atah)."

(Dabarym ha Yowmym / Words of the Days / 2nd Chronicles 6:42)

With this statement, Christianity and Judaism are tossed in the trash bin labeled: false religions. Ha Mashyach | the Messiah is a known individual, he is Dowyd | David, and he is returning with Yahowah.

Therefore, if there is to be a future Messiah, he is Dowd, not Jesus or bar Kokhba. If there is to be a Gospel of Grace, it will be delivered by the King of Israel not a Mr. Christ or his originator and provocateur, Paul.

So let's be as clear as the Nakry | Observant Foreigner: Yahowah is God, Yaruwshalaim is His Earthly Home, Dowd is His beloved Son and Messiah, and both are returning on Yowm Kipurym | the Day of Reconciliations in year 6000 Yah / sunset, 6:22 PM in Jerusalem, October 2nd, 2033. Any questions?

I have some: since the psychotic, embittered, and rebellious woman luring her enablers to her Mother Goddess cult claimed that the conclusion of the 2nd Chronicles 6 implied that Yada, as the Zarowa[®], could not be the Nakry, when no such indication is stated or implied, why does anyone believe this pathetic liar? Why do Jews seek the arrival of an unnamed Messiah? Why have they erased God's name. Why aren't they anticipating His return?

Now that every intelligent listener and reader has discarded the Talmud, rabbis, and Judaism, the New Testament, church, and Christianity, even conspiracy cults and their false witnesses, let's ponder the next entry in the narrative of what occurred on this day. I suspect that we are ready to witness a harbinger of the Greatest Show on Earth.

As it will transpire eight years from now, 3,000 years ago, Yahowah sent down fire from the sky. This is predictive of Taruw^{ah} and concurrent with the sacrifice of His Nakry | Observant and Responsible Foreigner as the adamah Parah* | Red Heifer. In this way, God will justify His approach to divine intervention...

“And to reveal the relevant comparison, as soon as (wa ka) Shalomoh | Reconciliation (Shalomoh - Solomon) finished (kalah – concluded) independently and demonstrably furnished the justification for intervention (la palal – presented the deciding factors regarding mediation and judgment apart from societal, religious, or political influences (hitpael infinitive)), then the fire (*wa ha esh – the brilliance of radiant energy and light) descended (yarad – came down at that moment (qal perfect)) out of the Heavens (min shamaym – from the Spiritual Realm).

And it consumed (*wa akal – it devoured with ongoing implications over time (qal imperfect third-person feminine singular)) the elevating offering (olah* – the burnt offering which makes acceptable and enables ascent up the stairway; from alah* – to rise and ascend, to be withdrawn and grow (feminine singular)) as part of the sacrifices (wa ha zebach - the offerings killed as part of the annual feasts, including Passover where the individual is slaughtered for the benefit of the family (masculine plural)).

Then the glory and splendor of the manifestation of the persona and reward (wa kabowd – the honorable presence and respectful attribution of status, even the glorious gift) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH – our God’s shem | name pronounced as instructed in His ToWRaH | Instructions proclaiming His HaYaH | Existence) completely filled (*male) the Beyth | Family Home (beyth).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym / Words of the Days / 2nd Chronicles 7:1)

Yahowah is providing justification for using His Nakry as the Red Heifer on Yowm Taruw^{ah} | the Day of the Herald to prepare the Adulterous Woman of the Towrah. She metaphorically serves as a portrait of the mortal remnant of Yisra^{}el who is being prepared for her betrothal to her returning King, Dowd. And for this to occur, God must ignite the flames beneath the sacrifice, just as He did 40 Yowbel 888 years prior with ^{}EIYah when ridding Yisra^{*}el of the advocates of religion and politics.

When Yahowah lights the fire that will consume my basar | body, it will be a bolder and public version of incinerating Dowd's corporeal basar | body after it had successfully served to fulfill Pesach | Passover as the lamb forty Yowbel previously in 33 CE. And just as Dowd alone fulfilled Chag Matsah, there is but one ^{*}olah | elevating offering on this Mow^{}ed. Further, the victim is presented as feminine singular because the ^{}adamah Parah is the Red Heifer.

By fulfilling Taruw^{}ah in this way, the surviving remnant of Yisra^{}el will rise above their guilt because it will be purged and incinerated, then washed away by the torrent of cleansing waters. The remnant is now prepared to enter God's presence and grow as a family.

However, the Nakry is but one of two men offered in this capacity during the Mow^{}edym* | Restoring Witnesses to the Eternal Testimony of the Designated Appointments. Dowd is the other, which is why the zebach | sacrificial victims are masculine plural.

Once this is accomplished in accordance with the Towrah and Naby^{*}ym, Yahowah will appear above Yaruwshalaim in all of His glory. This manifestation of his magnificent persona will fill the skies above His Beyth | Home for the Covenant Family.

At this moment, every celebrant of Yowm Kipurym | the Day of Reconciliations will be shouting Yahowah's magnificent name. And as we do so, this brilliant projection of God's Light will fill His Beyth – streaming out in all directions, as His Son beams with pride and joy.

All too often the most relevant spiritual metaphors associated with fire are completely overlooked. Yes, fire is enlightening, warming, and inviting. And yes, fire is purifying, particularly in cooking by purging what we consume of bacteria and other toxins. But it is how fire works that is the most relevant. Fire is transformative, just as Yahowah will be when emancipating and elevating, even empowering and enabling us, by exchanging our decaying physical bodies with all of their limitations, into vastly superior energy and light. Similarly, fire transforms dead organic matter into radiant energy – which is a form of light. And as we watch this marvelous evolution from matter to energy, we grow ever wiser by reveling in the direction of the flames, always reaching upward toward the heavens.

Three thousand years ago, Yahowah revealed that He would use a Gentile to reach His People and call them Home. He would even endorse what he would write and say, telling Yahuwdym to do as he asked, recognizing that His Nakry would “nakar – come to know Him by being observant, that he would understand by being discerning, and that he would prevail by being responsive.” Yada would explore by closely examining and carefully considering the Towrah, *Naby*ym*, wa Mizmowr | the Guidance, Prophets, and Songs, composing *Yada*Yahowah!* From them. And in the process, he would not only reveal the proper pronunciation and importance of Yahowah’s name, he would reintroduce Dowd to Yisra*el as their King, Messiah, Son of God, Chosen One, and Savior.

This is likely why Yahowah wanted His message translated and amplified into English, the language spoken by more Jews and Gentiles than any other. It is why the proper assessment of Moseh and Dowd is so vital to God and to His People. It is why Yahowah turned to a Nakry known as Yada to awaken *Yisra*el*, becoming the only time that He would ask His people to engage based on what a foreigner had to say. But, let’s be clear: Yada isn’t foreign to Yah or to Yahuwdym.

This Nakry would serve as a *Lama*an* | Witness and Teacher, as someone providing the answers which can be *qara | read and recited on behalf of all people, especially Yisra*el. Beyond the written translations and insights found in An Introduction to God, Yada Yahowah, Observations, Coming Home, Babel, Twistianity, and God Damn Religion, even beyond the reach of Yah's Word recited throughout Yada Yah Radio and social media outreach through YouTube, Rumble, Facebook, and X to broadcast the YAHOWAH BLOG, this is also inferring that Yada will be invited to serve alongside *Elyah as the final Witness during the Time of Ya'aqob's Troubles (Malaky 4:5 and Zakaryah 4:14).

Beyond all of this, there is but one reason that the Nakry | Observant and Discerning Foreigner in a faraway place and time would have been introduced and authenticated by Yahowah during the dedication of His Covenant Home. Yahowah wants Yisra'el, and the world at large, to consider what His Zarowa' has translated and shared because the information, insights, and perspective he is providing are relevant and credible, valid and reconciling, and indeed dependable and trustworthy – and indispensable at this time. He has thoughtfully considered what Dowd has accomplished by fulfilling Chag Matsah and is willing to acknowledge and properly credit the Passover Lamb for the first time since the Prophets long ago.

Yada is devoted to cultivating the remaining Harvests, such that there will be a productive Shabuw'ah Qatsyr followed seven years later by a hard-fought Taruw'ah Laqat. Then, as the Adamah Parah*, the Nakry will lay down his life for the remnant of Yisra'el. His blood and ashes will cleanse the Adulterous Woman. Yahowah will come home, as will Dowd, and they will enjoy their Family Reunion.

By investigating something others were afraid to even consider, the Nakry became so uniquely relevant to knowing Yahowah, to appreciating what He is offering, and to recognizing what He is asking in return, that God saw fit to validate His Lama'an | Witness to His Shem, to the Towrah, Naby'ym, wa Mizmowr, to the Beryth and Miqra'ey, to Yisra'el and Yahuwdym, and most of all, to His Bakowr, ha Mashyach, our Ra'ah and Melek, the Zarowa', Dowd.

And all of this is in our immediate future, just eight years from the time of this writing in the Spring of 2025. We are living in the most exciting and enlightening epoch of human experience. Soon, the entire universe will be ours as we explore it with our Creator.

As it would transpire, Dabarym ha Yowmym / Words of the Days / 2nd Chronicles 6 does not stand alone. As I completed the preceding translation, I received a note, requesting a translation of Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:16. I discovered that it addresses the same period when Israel's religious rebellion against Yahowah would necessitate a Witness who would do what Yahuwdym would not – listen. So, let me share this amazing prophetic portrayal of our time and God's solution with you now.

As we delve into this commending and condemning narrative, keep in mind that while some of what was shared 2,600 to 2,700 years ago pertained to the immediate aftermath of the Assyrian conquest and subjugation of the Northern Kingdom of Israel as well as the impending Babylonian assault on Judea, every word of it resonates with us today. This becomes especially true when we realize that Yirmayah's day was unique because rather than one or none to speak for Yah, there were a number of relatively concurrent prophets including Howsha^o, Yasha^oyah, 'Amotz, and Mykah, who he would have followed, Chabaquwq, Tsaphanyah, and ^oObadyah who were contemporaries, and Yow^{el}, Zakaryah, and Malaky who spoke for God shortly thereafter.

“Receive this warning and become correct (yasar – choose to accept this admonition and reprimand and show a willingness to be taught (nifal imperative)), Yaruwshalaim | Jerusalem (Yaruwshalaim) or else (pen) I will disassociate My soul and consciousness from you in disgust and remain alienated and estranged (yaqa^o nepesh any min* ath* – I turn My persona away from you (qal imperfect)), and so that I don't cause you to become (pen sym ath*) a wasted land, a ruinous, devastated, and desolated planet (shamamah erets*) without inhabitants (lo^{}yashab*).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:8)

This is the very purpose of the Nakry | Observant Foreigner. Yahowah is using him to admonish Jews and Israelis, warning them of their errant religious and political ways before it is too late. By listening to Yahowah, he becomes a conduit for what is correct and acceptable – keeping Jews from being completely disenfranchised.

Should the warning Yahowah is heralding through Yada as His Nakry be ignored, the Earth would be devastated, become lifeless, and be destroyed. This is the same message Yahowah conveys in His last prophetic announcement in Mal°aky, the last of the *Naby. And this is because without the message conveyed through His Choter, there would be no harvest on Shabuw°ah or Taruw°ah, no Adamah Parah or cure for the Adulterous Woman of Yisra°el, and therefore no Homecoming on Yowm Kipurym. Without a remnant to reconcile back into the Covenant, without a Family, there is no return to Eden and the Earth no longer serves any purpose.

So, if you want to know why Yahowah makes such a fuss over Yada, His Nakry, Choter, °Edah, Zarowa°, Basar, Mal°ak, and Adamah Parah*, who is the *Zeh Bow *Min Edowm, that would be the answer. The prophecies would go unfulfilled and it would all be for naught.

We don't very often hear Yahowah referencing His nepesh | soul, but He obviously has a form of nepesh | consciousness, which is not only a sign of life but also of being observant and responsive.

Beyond the obvious, the advantage of Yahowah having a nepesh | soul is that He can project it when entering lesser dimensions. While all of God won't fit into our universe, this aspect of Him can be deployed within any lifeform of His choosing.

However, Yahowah is particular, and He chooses not to associate with religious scum or political pricks. And even with His people, when they estrange themselves from Him, He reciprocates. And the consequence of being disassociated from the source of life is devastating and desolating.

Roman Emperor Hadrian's assault on Yahuwdah and Yahuwdym was so diabolical and ruthless, between those he butchered and those he enslaved, the land was largely without inhabitants. And while there was always a remnant of Jews in the land, along with some Arab squatters and Christian interlopers, the population was relatively insignificant prior to Israel becoming a nation again in 1948. And now, if it were not for Yahowah laying the foundation for His return, outnumbered 100 to 1 by murderous Muslims seeking their annihilation, God's people would be devastated.

Consistent with what He revealed in what is now the 17th chapter of *Yasha*yah* | Isaiah, Yahowah is affirming that there will be two labor-intensive gleanings, the first on Shabuw*ah and the second on Taruw*ah. But even then, there will be a remnant, many of whom will have been left behind because they remained foolish. And the preponderance of them will die, killed by a relentless flood of mujahideen.

“Thus says (*koh amar) Yahowah of the spiritual implements (Yahowah tsaba), ‘They will either be thoroughly and effectively gleaned with a second harvest of what remains or be among the foolish who are ruthlessly abused (alal alal – they will either be subjected to a second ingathering or left behind struck and killed), similar to the tendril, stem, or vine (ka ha gephen) as the surviving remnant (*sha*eryth* – the remaining descendants) of *Yisra*el* | Individuals who Strive Against and Struggle With God or Those who Engage and Endure with the Almighty (*Yisra*el*), returning (shuwb – changing and restoring) your hand and influence (*yad atah) in the manner of (ka) one who gathers in and harvests or fences in and restrains (batsar – one who cuts off clusters of grapes from the vine and then either cherishes and fortifies or disposes them in an inaccessible place) over and around the branches comprised of the valued or rejected (salsilah – vines or shoots bearing fruit viewed as significant or tossed aside).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:9)

Not only was alal* repeated, it has a decidedly positive and wholly negative connotation – both of which fit the declaration. Some will be gleaned in a secondary harvest, joining other immortal members of the Covenant Family on Taruw^oah. However, as we learned from Yasha^oyah and Yow^oel, in the prelude to this event, the mortal remnant of Yisra^oel will be ravaged by jihadists.

Specifically, in the 17th chapter of Yasha^oyah | Isaiah, we learn that there will be two to three left on the uppermost branches and four or five on the branches that were cut away, representing Yahuwdym and Yisra^oelites. The Zarowa^o who is responsible for the Ingatherings will protect them as an extension of Yahowah's influence. And even among them, there will be a percentage who remain religious while others are finally interested in developing a relationship with Yahowah. Those ready to be transformed by the sacrifice of the Red Heifer will be protected while those clinging to the old ways will be disposed of in the most inaccessible of places – She^oowl. This is the last opportunity for the Chosen people to choose whether they want to be valued or rejected by God.

This brings us to the conditions that necessitated the Nakry and Choter. Anticipating the final allocation of souls, Yahowah wanted to give everyone the best possible opportunity to make an informed and rational choice. But that's difficult when there is no one willing to listen to the criteria upon which the decision will be made. In all of Yisra^oel, and throughout the millennia, there would be no one willing to pay God any heed. Even in the famed Shama Yisrael of Dabarym 6, where Yahowah's people are asked to listen to God, rather than actually listening, they turn it into a twice daily declaration to a nameless Lord. So, Yahowah queries...

“Through whom (al my*) can I choose to speak who will respond (dabar – who will I communicate with who will listen (piel imperfect first-person singular cohortative)) and who can I choose to testify as a Witness to sustain and to warn (*wa uwd – who shall I use to responsibly admonish and assist who will continually speak like Me (hifil imperfect cohortative first-person singular)) such that they will listen (*wa shama – they will hear without relenting (qal imperfect))?

Behold, they have (hineh) uncircumcised and stubborn, unresponsive ears (arel ozen hem) and they are incapable of listening, comprehending, or enduring (wa lo yakol la qashab* – they have no interest in or capacity for paying attention or responding).

So, look now and notice that (hineh) the Word (dabar – the communication, speech, and message) of Yahowah (Yahowah) now exists as (hayah – is at this time (qal perfect) an insult to be scorned and disrespected by them (la hem cherpah). They don't want it, possess it, or delight in it, nor do they favor or prioritize it (lo chaphets ba hy)." (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:10)

Mal^aky was the last of the prophets in 447 BCE. From that point until Taruw^ah in 2001, there had been no one through whom Yahowah could dabar | speak. For there to be a final uwd* | Witness to admonish and assist Yisra^ael and Yahuwdym, someone would have to shama | listen. And I did exactly that for 23 years before finally being asked to speak on the YAHOWAH BLOG. And in all of that time, with few exceptions, Jews have been arel | unresponsive. They are as good at talking as they are bad at listening.

Further, Jews are only fooling themselves. They insist that they are 'Torah observant,' but that is only because they refer to their rabbinical Talmud as the 'Torah.' As for Yahowah's Towrah, they dress it up like a whore, parade it around, kiss and fondle it, and occasionally even read from it, but even then, they vie for who gets to speak while no one actually listens. The simple truth is that rabbis, and those who are misled by them, love their names as much as they hate Yahowah's. Their words are prioritized over His. And that, of course, is understandable. They love being religious and Yahowah hates the religious – and says so every chance He gets.

Fortunately, where there are instructions to be grasped, people to teach, obstacles to be swept aside, and challenges to overcome, there is an opportunity, even if others don't see it. And that is the reason the Nakry as the Choter was called and deployed. God had all but given up on His people. He has become indignant, dissatisfied, and furious at Yisra^{el}. Jews are antagonizing God, and to a horrendous extent.

One of the advantages of being the Big Guy is that you can delegate what you no longer enjoy doing. Speaking to Yisra^{el} through His prophets ended with Mal^aky, 2,450 years prior to the time I was approached. That's a long time to be disgruntled and disengaged. However, this hostility, no matter how deeply entrenched, would have to end for the Kingdom of Dowd to begin. So, Yahowah found someone who was willing to do whatever He asked. He even allowed him to demonstrate his devotion by initially assigning him the three most deplorable jobs on Earth – 1) exposing and condemning Islam via the Quran and Hadith, Allah and Muhammad, 2) explaining the reason Yahowah asked Howsha^o to marry a religious prostitute while announcing the divorce proceedings, and 3) repudiating Paul and the Christian New Testament to clear the way for His people to know the true Messiah, Son of God, and Savior. Yada would listen twelve hours a day, seven days a week, for twenty-four years, demonstrating that it could be done, and that yada^o | knowledge and understanding would result.

And while that is all as clear as it is irrefutable, why are the religious unaware that Yahowah rebuked them in this declaration?

“Therefore, regarding (*wa eth) the righteous indignation, extreme dissatisfaction, hostility, and antagonism (chemah – the wrath and fury, even rage) of Yahowah (Yahowah), I've had My fill (*male – I can accept no more). I am offended, and I have grown weary of holding it in because I can no longer endure it or comprehend it (*la*ah kuwl*), pouring it out upon (*shaphak al) the childish and unjust, these perverse adolescents (owlel*) right out in public view (ba ha chuwts), even upon their best at conspiring to establish the insidious cults with their assemblies and counsels of chosen sages (*wa al sowd bachuwr).

Of those associated with them, who have joined together with them (yachdaw), therefore (ky), there are also men with women (*gam *iysh *im ishah) who are controlled, captured, and caught (lakad – will become caught up in it, immobilized and seized), the more mature with those whose days are over (*zaqen *im male*yowm*).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:11)

Ouch, that’s disconcerting coming from God, especially when so many Jews wrongly claim devotion to Him. When Yahowah says, “God damn religion,” He isn’t kidding around. And let’s be clear, there is no other Jewish institution other than Judaism that could engender such disdain from God. Yahowah is offended by Judaism. He can neither endure it nor comprehend it.

The consequence of Yahowah’s extreme dissatisfaction with Israelis and Jews is broad and deep, public and documented. He is spewing his resentment at the childish, perverse, young and old, men and women. But His ultimate antagonism is kindled for those who conspired to create the insidious cult of Judaism with its sages, assemblies, and contrarian counsel. It is pervasive and controlling.

We have already seen the consequence. Rather than living in peace, Israel is surrounded by a billion Muslims – many, if not most of whom, seek their annihilation. And as we approach and enter the Time of Ya^aaqob’s Troubles, it is only going to get worse with the next rendition of October 7th played out one thousand-fold.

“Their homes (beyth hem) will be surrounded by others in the end (*shabab la achar), fields and open territory, the countryside, and even country (sadeh) along with women and girls (*wa ishah), all together and in like manner (yachdaw).

In response (ky), I will extend My influence (natah *eth yad *any) over those who have settled in and occupied the land (*al yashab ha *erets),’ prophetically announces in advance of it occurring (na*um), Yahowah (Yahowah).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:12)

Since the Mossad, Shin Bet, IDF, government officials, societal influencers, and rabbis were all completely inept in dealing with the preplanned Al-Aqsa Flood October 7th invasion of Israel by 6,000 Muslims from Gaza on foot, motor scooters, and pickup trucks, mostly lightly armed, many without weapons, they will be even less competent in the presence of 6,000,000 jihadists inside and surrounding Israel when the Islamic attack is rejoined in 2027 after the imposition of a Fakestinian State. And their failure, no matter how tragic, will be our opportunity – the last and best hope for Israel’s survival. And that is why Yahowah will be extending His influence, first with Yada and then with *ElYah.

This resolution will have to come from Yahowah because there will not be an acceptable response from Israelis...

“This is because (ky), from the least significant of them (min qatan hem) and inclusive of the greatest and most prominent of them (wa ad gadawl hem), every one of them (kol huw) is deceptive and immoral, cut off and separated, for having severed the relationship for a dishonest gain (batsa^o batsa^o). From prophet to priest (min naby* wa ad kohen), every one of them (kol huw) acts and engages (*asah) falsely and deceitfully, vainly and uselessly, without reason or benefit (sheqer).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:13)

Kol is devastating in this context. As of present, there isn’t a single Jew in Israel who isn’t deceptive and, as a result, estranged from God. They have severed the relationship as a result of Judaism – which is what “from prophet to priest” affirms. According to Yahowah, the rabbis are frauds, vain and useless, without benefit. They are moneygrubbers.

Of course, you don’t have to trust Yahowah. You can believe the rabbis instead – freewill and all. But what you cannot do, at least without squandering your soul and jeopardizing your nation, is pretend that there is some kind of an affinity between Judaism and Yahowah, or even Judaism and the survival of Jews and Israel. Other than to denounce them, there is no mention of rabbis, Judaism, the Talmud, a Star of David, the Tefillin, Phylacteries, Kippahs, Yeshivas, the Haredi, Chabad, mourning suits, weasel hats, Purim, Hannukah, Rosh Hashanah, eating Kosher, nine-candle menorahs, the Four Species, Jewish Law, HaShem, or G-d, in the Tanakh. There is no mention of Jesus, Christ, Christian, Christianity, Church, Catholic, Pope, Nun, Cardinal, Bishop, holy water, a Holy Spirit, a cross, a New Testament, a virgin birth, an angel named Gabriel, Christmas, the Last Supper, Good Friday, Easter, the Eucharist, Communion, baptism, a Trinity, a man-god, resurrection, or a Gospel either, but that’s another story. And don’t get me started on Islam. The last time I rebuked it, there were 4,200 pages of insanity to expose.

What Yahowah is saying next is that that rabbis have trivialized the extent to which Judaism has crippled Jews, fracturing the relationship with Him. They claim that for a small fee, or actually a large donation, they can provide a rabbinical blessing to cure every ill. Not according to God.

“So they have played the role of healer to mend (wa rapha) that which pertains to the crippling wound and fracturing injury, this destructive fissure sickening (eth sheber – the crashing downfall and crushing blow to) My Family and People (am any) with disdain, trivializing it as if an insignificant slight or trifling occurrence (al qalal*) by saying (*la amar), ‘Shalowm Shalowm | Peace and Reconciliation (shalowm shalowm),’ when there is no *shalowm | peace or reconciliation, companionship or salvation, friendship or blessings, contentment or wellbeing (wa ayn shalowm).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:14)

Shalowm is the byword of Judaism and Jews. They yearn for peace, when there has been none. Reconciliation comes by way of the Miqra[®]ey Dowd fulfilled, and they don't acknowledge his achievements. So, while there are rabbis, and they have influence over Jews, Yahowah and Yahuwdaym live apart.

Religion is so irrational; believers should be ashamed. But they aren't that thoughtful or moral and that bothers God immensely...

“They were shamed and humiliated (bowsh) when actually committing (*ky asah) the detestable and repulsive religious abomination with repugnant worship (towebah). So although (gam) they were shameful in humiliating themselves (bowsh), they were not ashamed (*lo*bowsh*).

Moreover (gam), they did not know (*lo*yada[®]*) they were disgraceful and dishonorable, even embarrassing (kalam). Therefore (laken), they will fall, prostrating themselves and bowing down, descending (naphal) with those who fall, prostrate themselves, and bow down, while descending (ba ha naphal) when the time comes that I take inventory of them and hold them accountable (*ba eth paqad hem).

They will stumble and fall (kashal),’ says Yahowah (amar Yahowah*).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:15)

From God's perspective, every aspect of religion is towebah | repugnant, repulsive, and reprehensible. Judaism, Christianity, and Islam, the rabbinic religions, are an abomination to the Almighty. Believers foolishly revel in what God considers shameful. The faithful are embarrassing themselves.

Religions all lead to the same place: bowing down in judgment before God and being condemned by Him. The best possible outcome for the faithful is to forfeit their soul. However, those guilty of promoting their beliefs will call She[®]owl home, making Hell a very religious address. Yahowah is on record saying that He will take inventory of those who bow down and their recompense will be to bow down in judgment before being cast down.

This brings us to the verse a Covenant Member asked me to translate for her on our Facebook home. It conveys the alternative to being religious, which is to stand upon the path Yahowah has provided to bring us home, back to Him and into the Covenant Family. But, doing so does not appear acceptable to the religious...

“This is what Yahowah says (*koh amar Yahowah), ‘Choose to be present, standing (amad*) upon (al*) the paths (derek) and be observant, choosing to look (*wa ra*ah*). Then, of your own freewill, inquire about (*sha*al*) the eternal ways to walk (*nathybah olam), where you should consider the agreeable, productive, and beneficial way (e zeh derek ha towb*). So, choose to walk in it (*wa halak ba hy) and discover (*wa matsa) a restful state of relief from anxiety and trouble (*margowa) for your soul (*la nepesh atem).’

However, they said (*wa amar), ‘We will never walk (lo halak*).’” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:16)

The Beryth and Mow^eedym are inseparable, with the annual Restoring Witnesses to the Eternal Testimony of these Appointed Meetings providing the way Home to the Beryth Covenant Family. Affirming this, the first three Miqra^eey fulfilled in 33 CE by Dowd, deliver the benefits of the Covenant Relationship: Life, Perfection, Adoption, Enrichment, and Empowerment. And, of course, it is by walking away from religion that these benefits become possible.

The depiction of the Tsaphah | Observant Watchman laying everything out in a systematic and orderly way and that of the Nakry | Observant and Responsive Foreigner in 2 Chronicles 6 and Jeremiah 6, bear a striking resemblance, which is one of the reasons I chose to reinforce one prophetic proclamation with the other. Yahowah’s recommended response to this individual is consistent as well...

“So, there will come a time when I will raise up and establish (wa quwm) someone who is especially observant to keep watch over you, laying everything out in a systematic and orderly way (*tsaphah *al atem).

Be alert and pay attention, choosing to listen closely, accept what you hear, then respond appropriately to (qashab) to the Qowl | Voice (la qowl) of the Shophar | Trumpeter (blown to announce Shabuw^{ah} and Taruw^{ah}) (shophar).

However, they said (*wa amar), ‘We will never listen or respond (lo^{} qashab*).’” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:17)

While the identity of and the requested response to the observant individual are consistent, there is an additional attribute afforded in Yirmayah 6 that is not mentioned in 2 Chronicles 6 – that of the Qowl | Voice resonating through the Shophar. The obvious implication is that Yada is the Trumpeter of Shabuw^{ah} and Taruw^{ah} which is when the Towrah instructs us to herald the Mow^{edym} by blowing the Shophar.

The realization that the Nakry and Tsaphah will speak on behalf of Gowym and Yahuwdym is another uncommon thread woven in common between the accounts. And here we find God encouraging those interested in receiving the benefits of the relationship to listen to Yada as the edah* | Restoring Witness...

“As a result, it is important that (laken) you choose to listen (shama^{}*) Gowym | non-Yisra^{*}elites in addition to other nations (gowym – gentiles). Then, of your own freewill, become familiar with and recognize, coming to know and acknowledge Yada (wa yada^o – discover, respect, and decide to be concerned about, comprehending Yada (qal imperative)) as the edah* | Restoring Witness to the Community (edah* – as the one offered to convey the eternal testimony to the multitudes) regarding the benefits of the relationship with them (eth asher ba hem – for the way to walk to get the most out of life along with them).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:18)

In His Towrah | Instructions, Yahowah clearly states that there is one Towrah for Yahuwdym and Gowym. Jews were the Chosen People, but not the only people. And the realization that most Yahuwdym have not chosen Yahowah in return, has in this case brought Gowym to the forefront of the Jeremiah 6 and 2nd Chronicles 6 prophecies regarding the reawakening and restoration of Yisra^{el}. Following a period of absolute silence for 2,500 years, God would equip Yada to be His ^oEdah on behalf o^o ^oAsher.

While I am known to be a man of many words, my wife, Leah, is a woman of many sheep. And, therefore, quite literally, in what has been an arranged marriage, we have Gowy and Yahuwd, ^o*edah* and Ra^oah. And in collaboration with Yahowah and Dowd, we will deliver a Pery | Productive Harvest of the Machashabah | Thoughtful and Rational.

But pay no heed to all of these uncanny similarities because it's apparent that, just because I was asked to translate this prophecy the same day I completed the proceeding presentation of Solomon's Sermon on the Mount, and that Yirmayah's narrative echoes the same themes while adding others that are equally specific, instructive, and identifying, is purely coincidental. Nevertheless, since this is God speaking to the Earth, you may want to listen anyway...

“Listen (shama^o) Earth (erets*), and see that, behold (hineh), I am bringing (any bow^o*) a Ra^oah | Shepherd to enable, lead, and care (ra^oah – a woman to tend to the needs of the flock (feminine singular)) for these people (el ha am ha zeh), producing a fruitful harvest (pery) for Machashabah | the Thoughtful and Rational among them (machashabah hem – for those who take the plan into account and then consider and value what has been imputed; from mah – question the implications of chashab – intelligently assessing the plan to comprehend and value the creativity that went in to composing it).

But by contrast (ky), upon My Dabar | Word (al dabar any), they have not paid attention, listened, or responded (lo^o qashab), and My Towrah | Teaching (*wa towrah any), they have not only rejected it, they limit their association with it, spurning it (ma^{as} ba hy^o).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:19)

I am intrigued and comforted by Pery Machashabah | a Harvest of the Thoughtful and Rational, specifically excluding the Dabar Lo^o Qashab | Those who Do Not Listen to the Word of God. This affirms Yahowah’s affinity for intellect and preference for quality over quantity.

From the outset, I have relied upon Yahowah’s prior disclosures to calibrate the nature of the ensuing harvests. The party in Eden began with one person, Adam, and only became two with the addition of Chawah, not for Yahowah, but for the benefit of the man. Then, Yahowah reached out to a single individual, Noach, when He wanted to save the best of humankind in the Ark – the eight members of Noach’s family. Next, Yahowah introduced Himself to ^{*}Abram on his way out of Babel. They became a family of three, forming the third iteration of the Covenant.

Having conveyed the impending specter of a fractured family with Hagar and Ishmael being rejected, the internal conflict would play out again with Ya^oaqob being chosen while ^{*}Esa^oow was banished. Thereafter, a family of three would grow with the addition of two wives, a daughter, and twelve sons. And while this wasn’t a reminder of God’s preference for quality over quantity, since the boys behaved badly, there are glimmers of it in the next episode.

A lone individual, Moseh, was asked to liberate the Children of Yisra^{el}. When he balked, knowing firsthand that the Hebrews were mostly unsalvageable, Yahowah offered to include another, ^{*}Aharown, who contributed nothing and mucked up everything. Then, when Moseh gave up and told Yahowah that he couldn’t do this alone, God shared the Ruwach that He had offered Moseh with seventy Yisra^{el}elites, only to show that more would be counterproductive. Then, even when approaching the Promised Land, only two, Yahowsha^o and Kaleb, of the generation rescued from Mitsraym, were allowed to enter – demonstrating Yahowah’s predilection for quality over quantity.

Even in this, the Ra^oah | Lady Shepherdess would play her part as the Chakmowth | Wise Woman of the 14th Mashal. As an intellectual introvert, Leah’s happy place is with reasoned thoughts rather than a mob of people. Not only would her contribution to the Pery | Fruitful Harvest be comprised of those who value everything Yahowah has imputed, she would be a gatekeeper, precluding the approach of those who do not belong because they have not qashab | responded appropriately to Yahowah’s Towrah | Teaching. In fact, everything in Leah’s world revolves around the Towrah. Like Yahowah, ma^oas | reject it or spurn it, and she will ma^oas | limit her association with you. No pleasantries or niceties afforded, nor any of the customary social protocols – just goodbye and good riddance.

The Towrah is the dividing line between living in Yahowah’s presence or being banished from it. We choose where we belong by being Machashabah | Thoughtful and Rational regarding God’s Guidance. And to this purpose, the volumes of Yada Yahowah are comprehensive and cerebral, neither summarized nor dumbed down for the faint of intellect.

Yahowah has no interest in those who would rather believe man’s rubbish instead of following the path He has provided Home. Even when the stench of religion is fumigated by burning incense, the smoke still obscures the perspective on how things like labownah | frankincense sweetens the aroma of the sacrifice which purifies the Adulterous Woman of Yisra^oel prior to the King’s arrival.

The religious know nothing of Yahowah’s Shaba^o | Promise to Qaneh | to Acquire the Branch needed to Redeem them *min^o erets merchaq | from a faraway land outside of Yisra^oel. Unaware of Solomon’s dedication speech at the commencement ceremony for the completion of the House for Yahowah’s Shem, the uninitiated remain believers rather than knowers.

He has marked the path with His symbols, serving as signs to tell us that we are in the right place for the right reason in the correct season...

“For what is there for Me (*la mah zeh la any) of frankincense (for incense, as an accoutrement to the sacrifice, or as a means of purifying the Adulterous Woman) (labownah) coming from Shaba^o | the Promise (Shaba^o bow^o) of Qaneh | the Acquired and Redeeming Branch (qaneh – a wise stem or knowledgeable rod which is obtained) who is productive and beneficial, pleasing and generous (ha towb) from a faraway land (*min erets merchaq).

Your sacrificial and burnt offerings (olah atem) are not acceptable and garner no favor (lo la ratsown*) because your sacrifices that you have prepared (*wa zebach atem) are a worthless bargain because they are unrelated to Me (lo *areb la any).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:20)

It is by knowing that we come to understand. If not for being aware that the Choter, who is the Nakry, serves to heal the Adulterous Woman of Bamidbar 5 by way of the Adamah Parah* of Numbers 19 through the inclusion of frankincense, we would miss the connection between this and the Shaba^o Qaneh | Promised Redeeming Branch who is towb | productive and pleasing from a erets merchaq* | from a distant time and place. This is what Yahowah is offering. Take it, or leave.

In addition, and as a result of this, we are told that the rabbinical offerings and their high holy days will remain unacceptable to God because they are incompatible with His approach and that addressed in His Towrah. Therefore, nothing the rabbis offer through Judaism will be of value to Jews because Judaism is rejected out of hand by Yahowah. Paying the rabbi for his blessing, or for a membership in his synagogue, will be of benefit to no one.

The concluding statement of the 6th chapter may appear shocking to many, but it is not only appropriate, it is how it must be. Since the rabbis put all manner of obstacles in the path to knowing Yahowah to misdirect, capture, and control Jews, God has reciprocated, such that the religious will never know the One they are antagonizing.

Twenty-four years ago, it was by tossing all of the hindrances aside by rejecting the religious approach, that the truth became evident for the first time in twenty-five centuries. The thirty-five books available through YadaYah.com are now infinitely more valuable than all of the tomes written by the rabbis combined – all of which actually serve as impediments to Yahowah.

So, cling to them Israel if you must, but be aware that the consequence is continued estrangement from the God whose name rabbis deliberately erased. Not only will the disenfranchised continue to stumble and fall, they will take their families and friends, even foreigners, down with them.

“As a result, thus says (*laken koh amar) Yahowah (Yahowah), ‘Behold (hineh), I will allow and place (nathan) before these people (el ha am ha zeh) obstacles (mikshowl) and they will falter and fail (wa kashal) with them (ba hem), fathers and sons together (ab wa ben yachdaw*), his neighbors and residents, even foreigners, friends, and countrymen (shaken wa rea huw) will be expelled or annihilated (abad* – will wander away, be driven out, or exterminated).” (Yirmayah / Jeremiah 6:21)

Let it be known: when it comes to knowing the truth about Yahowah’s name and Dowd’s achievements, even understanding the Towrah and Prophets, the world is now without excuse. The YadaYah.com website and YAHOWAH BLOG are available to all eight billion people wielding one of the eight billion smartphones currently in circulation and feeding off of Starlink.

*Tsadaqah Any ~ Right About Me

When it comes to advice from God to His people, encouraging them to listen to His Qowl | Voice and His Son's Basar | Herald, so that they can respond appropriately to His Nakry | Observant Foreigner, one Prophet stands heads and shoulders above the rest – Yasha^oyah. These words were inspired for them to observe and consider today...

"For this is what (ky koh – indeed [from 1QIsa]) Yahowah (Yahowah – a transliteration of 𐤆𐤓𐤕𐤍, our elowah* – God as directed in His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence) says (amar* – promises and avows): 'Be observant and consider (shamar – remain focused, closely examining while thinking about) the means to exercise good judgment and justly resolve disputes (mishpat – making good decisions; from my – to question the implications of and shaphat – deciding)."

Then (wa) engage, acting upon (asah* – do, profiting from) that which is correct and vindicating (tsadaqah – that which is right, justifiable and acquitting), because indeed (ky), My deliverance and resulting salvation (*yashuw^oah any – My liberation and freedom; from yasha^o – to save, liberate, free, and deliver) are approaching (*qarowb la any – is near, close, and intimately personal).

Therefore (wa), the Tsadaqah *Any | One who is Right about Me (*tsadaqah any – the one who is correct about Me, the one with a just cause, and even My Righteous One) will come (la bow^{}* – will arrive) such that he will be revealed (galah – he will be made known, disclosed, and seen)."
(Yasha^oyah / Yahowah Saves / Isaiah 56:1)

This has always been God's plan. It is plainly and persistently presented. For those who are shamar | observant and mishpat | exercise good judgment, there is the opportunity to asah* | act upon that which is tsadaqah | vindicating and right. This is Yahowah's means to *yashuw*ah* | deliver on His promises to liberate us from our guilt. And therefore, to present this message that has long been forgotten, God has promised to provide tsadaqah | someone who is right about Him. When he arrives, the truth will galah | be revealed.

Promise made. Promise kept.

If not now, then when? If not Yada, then who? If not through Yada Yahowah, then where? Has anyone previously offered even one percent of the revelations, insights, and understanding found in these pages and programs?

Therefore...

“Blessed by the benefits of the relationship (ashry* – joyous and productive by way of being on the correct path) is the person (enowsh* – is the mortal man and otherwise ordinary individual) who acts upon and engages based upon this (asah zo*th* – who participates in, celebrates, and profits from, doing these things [from 1QIsa where “this” is masculine]).

Because (wa) children (ben – the child) of humankind (adam* – mankind), by observing (shamar – by closely examining and carefully considering) the Shabat (Shabat – the seventh day of promise), and by not defiling and profaning it (*min chalal huw – without making it common and ordinary or treating it with contempt), he is empowered and strengthened, enlightened and restored (chazaq – he prevails and is established, invigorated and enabled, becoming intensely steadfast and unwavering, renewed and resolute, firm and capable) by it (*ba hy).

And by being observant (wa shamar – by remaining focused and thoughtful), his hands (*yadym huw – his actions and that which he influences [1QIsa where hands are plural]) are kept from acting upon or engaging in (*min asah – does not do) anything unjust, immoral, or irrational (*ra – unethical, harmful, troubling, counterproductive, or evil).”

(Yasha ʿyah / Yahowah Delivers / Isaiah 56:2)

Since the benefits are for all mankind, this message cannot be from a rabbi, priest, or imam because they focus exclusively on either Jews or Gentiles. Since the results are attributed to those who act upon what can be learned, this message of salvation cannot be delivered by a religious person who would encourage faith. Then excluding rabbis, priests, and imams again, not only is the Shabat prioritized, and not either Sunday or Friday, it is the time when uncommon observation and contemplation lead to enlightenment and restoration. The instruction is to engage actively on the Shabat such that it does not become counterproductive. Has anyone other than Yada expressed these things?

Continuing to speak of this exceptional gowy, we are not only reminded that he is an Observant Foreigner who is God’s authorized designee, but also that it would be unwise to suggest that Yahowah has abandoned him to toss the baton to another...

“Do not say to (al amar – do not claim [1QIsa omits the wa]) this Son (ben – man who is the child of the Father), the Nakar | Observant and Responsive Foreigner (ha Nakar – the one who pays attention and is observant; from nakar – one who knows and understands through thoughtful examination, who recognizes and acknowledges, and who is discerning and respectful) who has joined with Yahowah, having connected himself to Yah by forming such a close relationship that he is actually accompanied by Yahowah (*ha lawah el Yahowah – who has joined forces with Yahowah, who is attached and bound to Yahowah, engaged in a very close friendship with and therefore united with Yahowah (nifal stem – he receives and conveys the benefits of being directly associated with Yahowah, perfect conjugation – completely and totally at this time, third-person masculine singular)) something which would infer or suggest (*la amar) that I (any*), Yahowah (YaHoWaH – pronounced as guided by His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence), would under some circumstances dismiss or separate from, or would even consider abandoning the relationship, so as to be withdrawn from (badal badal min – will ever be excluded or withdraw from (hifil infinitive imperfect third-person masculine singular)) being over his family and near his home (al *am huw – being among his people).

And let no unproductive or impotent individual as a castrated representative of an emasculated group say (*wa *al amar ha sarys – let not the neutered agent who is eviscerated and thus cut and cast off and unproductive, profess), ‘Look and perceive that now (hen – oh, what if), I am a dried up and withered tree (any ets yabesh – I have become a paralyzed and shriveled tree)?” (*Yasha*yah / Yahowah Saves / Isaiah 56:3*)

The Nakar | Observant Foreigner, who was initially introduced to Yisra*el by Solomon during his commencement speech at the dedication of the Family Home for Yahowah’s Name in year 3007 Yah / 961 BCE, and is being acknowledged here for his indivisible and close association with Yahowah circa 700 BCE by Yasha*yah, has now become the foremost benefactor of Yahowah’s Beryth | Covenant Family. As such, the Nakar is considered God’s beloved son, which is an endearing way to reintroduce the man Yahowah has chosen and equipped to call Yisra*el and Yahuwdym Home. Further, by referring to His Nakry | Observant Foreigner as His ben | son, our Father is acknowledging that the Family He originally conceived with Gowym remains open to Gentiles. In this way, the Zeh Bow Min edowm | One Coming Out of Edom is reuniting God’s fractured family by healing the rift between *Esa*o פ | Esau and *Ya*aqob* | Jacob, as well as between Abraham’s descendants and God, Himself.

The message here is twofold. First, the Nakar is *lawah el Yahowah | connected to and associated with Yahowah. Empowered by the seven Ruwach | Spirits of Yahowah, he is forever accompanied by Yahowah because they are inseparable. They are totally united, completely joined together by an inseverable bond. Throughout the whole of time, Yahowah badal badal min | will never, under any circumstances, abandon His relationship with him because of his al *am huw | oversight of and closeness to His people. God's badal badal | relationship with his Nakar is so vital to God's plans for the restoration of His people that Yahowah is ever present al *am huw | over his family and beside his home. To attempt to come between them, to try and weasel oneself into the mix as Miryam and Aharown wrongly attempted, is to be rebuffed by the Almighty.

The second aspect of this narrative is one that is also of prophetic importance. As we discovered in Bamidbar / Numbers 11, the seventy elders contributed nothing to the message Yahowah intended to convey, while they were helpful in reducing the burden Moseh endured, sharing his managerial responsibility to the extent he could endure it. But with today's Mother Goddess Cult of Leprous Hornets, they are as unproductive as they are impotent. Yahowah perceives them to be castrated and emasculated, cast off as useless.

Not heeding Yahowah's assessment and warning, they are of the opinion that the Tsemach | Branch and Choter | Stem are no longer productive because Yahowah is unable to work through them. And to this, God says that those He has put forth, whether as Dowd representing the Tree of Lives or Yada as an extension of the Tree of Knowledge, or even Yada and *Elyah as the two Olives beside His Manowrah planted firmly on the Temple Mount, His tree has neither dried up nor withered. This is meritorious as confirmation because the returning Ben | Son is the Tsemach | Branch and the Nakar is the Choter | Stem. It also reminds us that both Olive Trees representing the two Witnesses will be productive. In the end, Yahowah's branches – Dowd, *Elyah, and Yada – will be productive because God's tree bears fruit.

“To the contrary, this is what (ky koh) Yahowah (Yahowah – a transliteration of ٱلله, our elowah* – God as directed in His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence) says (amar* – promises and declares) on behalf of individuals who have been castrated as a result of the positions they have taken as leaders (la ha sarys – regarding highly valued individuals who have been granted authorization, these official guides, who have been emasculated and neutered by their societies as a result of their leadership), of those who provide guidance regarding the benefits of the relationship (asher* – who walk along the correct path) by being consistently and continually observant (shamar – by closely examining and carefully considering (qal imperfect active – who are literally and genuinely, constantly and habitually attentive)) during My Shabats (eth shabatowth any – with regard to the celebration of My promise pertaining to the seventh day), who evaluate and choose (bachar – who prefer and desire, who after probing and examining the evidence prefer (qal perfect)) to walk along the correct path (*ba asher – the proper way) in deference to Me (chaphets – out of respect for Me and to please Me by expressing their desire to be with Me, volunteering and eager to experience this with Me (qal perfect)), and (wa) who are willing to demonstrate an intense desire to learn about, to be steadfastly committed to, and to become empowered (chazaq – who are resolutely focused upon, committed to studying, and dedicated to accomplishing the intended purpose through their unremitting and unrelenting resolve to help encourage others to grasp hold of and prevail (hifil participle – the subject causes the object to participate in this manner, becoming ever more like them to the point that they are literally defined by this approach)) by My Covenant (*ba beryth any – through My Family-Oriented Agreement).” (*Yasha yah / Yahowah Saves / Isaiah 56:4)

In this parallel arrangement, we find that an individual’s fate and position with God is a product of their choices relative to God. Here the sarys find favor in Yahowah’s company because they walk along the correct path while in the previous statement, they are ostracized for inferring that God is no longer productive. Also of interest, the Shabat is presented as a day of observance, as a time to learn about and be resolutely focused upon Yahowah. And by doing so, those on the correct path become members of the Covenant Family.

The association of sarys with eunuchs is potentially revealing because from one statement to the next we find a group of people cut out of and then cut into an intense desire to remain committed to the Covenant Family based upon what they choose to shamar | observe and whether they remain on the asher* | correct path to the benefits of the relationship. In this way, sarys is synonymous with karat | being cut into or out of the Covenant based upon circumcision.

Entrance into the Beryth | Covenant is a result of prioritizing the relationship, of closely examining and carefully considering its conditions and benefits, especially during the day set apart for celebrating it. We enter God's home by walking along the path provided through the Miqra^ey, demonstrating that we respect Yahowah's approach. And in so doing, we not only please God, we reveal our desire to be with Him, spending quality time together, especially on the days He has designated. All the while, our priority is to study His testimony so that we can encourage others to benefit from what we have learned to be true.

“I will offer, freely giving (wa nathan – I will bestow and grant) to them (la hem – concerning them and on their behalf) in My Home and within My Family (*ba beyth any – in My household) and within My protected enclosure (*wa ba chowmah any – inside of My secure and impenetrable walls, in My especially compassionate embrace as the Father- and Mother-in-law; from an unused root meaning to join) an outstretched, welcoming, and empowering hand (yad – the support, authority, and ability to powerfully influence so as to accomplish an essential mission) and a name (wa shem – a personal and proper designation and renown) even better (towb – more pleasing and satisfying, beneficial and valuable) than other sons and daughters (min ben wa min bath).

I will give to him and them (nathan la huw / hem* – I will offer him and bestow upon them, appointing for him and them

[*huw | him in 1QIsa^a and LXX, hem | them in 1QIsa^b and MT]) an everlasting and eternal (owlam* – an enduring) designation and reputation (shem – personal and proper name) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher* – to convey the correct way to get the most out of life), will never be removed (*lo*karath* – will not be taken away (nifal imperfect – the subject carries this out and receives the benefit for all time)).” (Yasha Yah / Yahowah Saves / Isaiah 56:5)

In light of what Yahowah is providing through His Nakar, many will benefit by their inclusion into the Beyth | Family. These fortunate individuals will enjoy Yahowah’s loving embrace as they celebrate life in Shamaym. This is God’s gift to His people, one freely offered to those who listen and are observant. And as a result, they will be bequeathed a share of the Name of Names. We will enjoy the everlasting benefit of becoming Yahowah’s sons and daughters regardless of our ethnicity, which is why God values the contribution of His Nakar and the supportive team who are now Family.

There is a question here as to whether Yahowah revealed that His Nakar, as His outstretched hand, will receive the most pleasing and productive of names or if his special designation will be shared with his offspring. The Great Isaiah Scroll says that this beautiful moniker is afforded to “him” while another copy of the same text reveals “them.” My conclusion is that while I have already been acclaimed by Yahowah in this manner with a score of marvelous accolades, with many endearing names, and descriptive titles, my favorite of which is Yada Yahowah, just as God shares credit, so do I. And therefore, the answer is that everyone who remains committed to the Beryth, Miqra^eey, Mashyach, Yahuwdym, and Yahowah will share an exceptional designation.

As we ponder this narrative, we must not blame Yahowah for abandoning His people, or for preventing them from being part of His Family. God tried; His people didn’t. Yisra^eelites are estranged from God because they have done this to themselves. Therefore, the mission is to share this truth with all who will listen.

This known, the Nakar | Observant Foreigner has not sought to replace Yahuwdym but, instead, to welcome the Beloved of Yah back into the Family. He is committed to guiding God's people home as well as reaching out to Gowym.

Yahowah values the observant, especially when they take their lumps for standing up against the ways of man. He wants us to provide guidance, helping Yisra*el reclaim the benefits of the Covenant relationship while sharing the truth with others during Israel's absence.

While it is apparent that the Nakar is seeking to please Yahowah, and is not pursuing accolades, God, as his Father, is offering him, and those who accompany him, a name better than any other. They will forever be known as the ones who shared the benefits of the relationship. And having done so, others will benefit...

“The children (wa beny) of the Nakar | Observant and Discerning Foreigner (ha Nakar – of the one who pays attention and is attentive; from nakar – one who knows and understands through thoughtful examination, who recognizes and acknowledges, and who is perceptive and respectful) have formed a relationship with (*ha lawah al – are associated with, having joined forces with, are attached and bound to, and are engaged in a very close friendship with and are therefore seen as accompanying (nifal participle – the offspring of the Nakar receive and share the benefits associated with being in a demonstrable association and close relationship with)) Yahowah (𐤏𐤓𐤕𐤓𐤠 – a transliteration of YaHoWaH as instructed in His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence).

They serve him (*la sharath huw – they render assistance to and help him, attending to him in his ministry (piel infinitive construct – the object of this team effort by the offspring of the Nakry cause the Observant Foreigner to be more effective, passionately sharing his message without ceasing), in love with (*wa la *ahab eth – in a close personal relationship, they show their genuine affection for and appreciation of (qal infinitive – actually, intensely, and unceasingly in devotion to) [from 1QIsa]) Yahowah’s (YaHoWaH – an accurate presentation of the name of elowah* – God as guided by His towrah – instructions regarding His hayah – existence) name and renown (shem – personal and proper designation and reputation).

Existing as his coworkers (la hayah la huw la ebed – it will actually and eternally be (qal construct infinitive – it will genuinely), they all extoll Yahowah’s name (barak Yahowah shem – lift up and acclaim Yah’s reputation and renown [from 1QIsa]) and always observe (kol shamar – each exclusively, literally, and continually examines and considers (qal participle active – known for actually and actively being attentive and thoughtful)) the Shabat as the seventh day (Shabat – the promise of seven), making it special, and thus unreligious, by not disrespecting it (*min chalal huw – not treating it with contempt by allowing it to become commonplace and ordinary).

They willingly demonstrate an intense and unrelenting desire to be steadfastly committed to, and thus to become empowered (chazaq – they are resolutely focused on and committed to studying, then dedicated to accomplishing the intended purpose through their unremitting resolve to help encourage others to grasp hold of and prevail (hifil participle)) by My Covenant (*ba beryth any – through My Family-Oriented Agreement).” (*Yasha*yah* / Yahowah Saves / Isaiah 56:6)

With a statement from the pen of the epitome of the Prophets, *Yasha*yah* / Isaiah, as resounding as this one, why isn’t everyone, the world over, including every Yahuwd | Jew and Gowy | Gentile, searching to identify the Nakar | Observant Foreigner? He is the announced and authorized conduit through whom a relationship with God is formed.

Yahowah unambiguously inspired His most prolific Prophet to affirm that “the offspring of the Nakar receive and share the benefits associated with being in a demonstrable association and close relationship with Yahowah.” Since nothing is more valuable, the Observant Foreigner who facilitates this result is inarguably among the most important individuals in God’s story – easily within the top three, with the others being Moseh and Dowd. And yet, in all the world, and in all of this time, the only one who has shed a light upon the prophecy and revealed its profound implications is the one of whom it speaks.

Even more extraordinary, this exceptional prophecy goes beyond what would otherwise be the ultimate goal in life: “The children of the Nakar | Observant Foreigner engage in and share a close, personal relationship with Yahowah.” Those who are introduced to Yahowah by the *Nakar sharath huw | passionately engage to work alongside the Observant Foreigner, helping him fulfill his mission. And while I originally presumed that the Children of the Nakar would be serving Yahowah, making *huw an uppercase Him, the piel stem indicates otherwise because the object of this declarative statement is empowered and enabled by their contributions. Further, in the infinitive, the assistance of those who have gained access to God through the Nakar make him considerably more effective by their ongoing devotion and steadfast passion for his mission. Therefore, just as Yahowah does not work alone, His chosen implement for this occasion enjoys the ongoing and unceasing support of others who are committed to contributing to sharing the message Yahowah is delivering through the Nakar.

The distinction regarding who the Children of the Nakar are serving is only meaningful to the extent that they are working indirectly with Yahowah through the Observant Foreigner. Their motivation is that they have come to love Yahowah’s name and all God represents.

As we press deeper into this prophetic statement regarding the Nakar and the team of Covenant Members supporting him, we are reminded of the value of the Dead Sea Scrolls because the 1400-year older witnesses to the prophet’s declarations add a great deal to this discussion. And in this case, we are finding that the common denominator among them is a soaring reverence and respect for Yahowah's glorious name.

Then, we find an affirmation that the Shabat is special to the Covenant Family. And indeed, it is because the highlight of the week for us is our Shabat Family Hour (or two) on Friday evenings, when everyone joins in to celebrate our devotion to Yahowah, His beloved Son, and His Towrah | Teaching. And unique to us is the way we use the seventh day to advance and share what we have come to enjoy about our relationship with Yahowah. It is for us the least religious, and therefore, most uncommon, day of the week.

One of the most fundamental things we have learned from our ongoing translations and related insights is that to be Covenant, one must remain chazaq | steadfastly devoted to being of benefit to the Family. We are unrelenting and passionate about supporting Yahowah in all He wants to achieve. There are no couch potatoes, deadbeats with a sense of entitlement, or anyone who has previously contributed but has now abandoned their post. Further, the Beryth | Covenant remains the most empowering aspect of our lives.

This entire narrative regarding the Observant Foreigner and his offspring is role reversal. Hasidic Jews look down upon non-Ultra-Orthodox Jews, and they are racists in their degradation of Gowym. With all evidence to the contrary, they view themselves as superior. And yet those receiving preferential treatment from Yahowah are gowym and secular Jews. As the proverbial sons and daughters of the Nakar | Observant Foreigner, they would all have been decidedly anti-religious.

However, the gowym being adopted by Yahowah are not accepted because they are gowym but, instead, because they exemplify the meaning of *Yisra*el* | "individuals who engage and endure with God." And these Yahuwdym are being replaced, not because they are Yahuwdym but, because they have chosen to behave like gowym. Therefore, the Covenant relationship is correct while Judaism is wrong.

It would be impossible to overemphasize what Yahowah has inspired Yasha^oyah to convey on our behalf. These are transformative words, serving to enlighten a lost world at odds with God's People and itself. And from this perspective, we know that this is the Nakar's purpose and time.

“At the proper time, I will bring them (*wa bow*hem* – I will pursue them and carry them at the appropriate moment (hifil perfect first-person singular)) to My Set-Apart Mountain (el har qodesh any) and I will cause them to rejoice, being elated (wa samach hem – I will enable them to enjoy this result, having a positive attitude, happy (piel perfect first-person singular)) in My distinguished family (*ba beyth taphilah any – within My set-apart and special home; taphilah is from palah – to be distinct, unique, illustrious, and set apart or palal – intervention and mediation).

Their uplifting and elevating offerings (olah hem* – their ascent up the elevated stairway on this occasion) and their sacrifices as they are killed (wa zebach hem – their compensation to make amends by offering their mortal existence and corporeal bodies), are acceptable and will be approved with pleasure (la ratsown – are desired and will find favor) as they rise up (alah* – as they ascend [from 1QIsa]) on My altar (al mizbeach any).

This is because (ky) My House (*beyth any – My Home and Family) will be called (*qara – will be designated and summoned as (nifal imperfect)) a distinguished and special Home (beyth taphilah – a special and set-apart family; taphilah is from palah – to be distinct, unique, distinguished, and set apart or palal – intervention and mediation) for all kinds of people and for the entire family (*la kol ha am).” (Yasha^oyah / Yahowah Saves / Isaiah 56:7)

There are three profoundly important statements being conveyed in Yasha^oyah's prophecy. It begins by announcing that Yahowah is committed to bringing a mortal remnant of His people home at the proper time. He will pursue them and then carry them to His Har Qodesh. This is a preview of what we find in Zakaryah 6, especially when the White Flying Spiritual Chariot canvases the world from dawn to dusk on Taruw^oah in year 6000 Yah to bring the final remnant of Yisra^uel to Mount Mowryah. It is there and then that they will derive benefit from the sacrifice of the Adamah Parah*. Prepared for the imminent arrival of God and King, they will be overjoyed on Kipurym, which is in concert with the affirmation found in Zakaryah 12 upon the return of Father and His Firstborn Son – the one who was pierced.

In this way, Yahowah's Covenant Family will be distinguished from the family of man. The mortal remnant of Yisra^uel will be set apart and distinct

In the second point, the uplifting offerings and compensating sacrifices of two or more individuals will be approved by God and deemed acceptable by Yisra^uel. And in this regard, while Yada^o's sacrifice will be set ablaze by Yahowah within His altar and before the Tent of the Restoring Witness, we know that Dowd's Passover offering also occurred on Mowryah. Both men will have willingly laid down their lives for the benefit of Yisra^uel. Also reassuring in this regard, the Great Isaiah Scroll reveals that while their bodies will be sacrificed, their souls will rise.

But if I may, there is yet another who is likely included among those distinguished by offering their basar | bodies on behalf of the nepesh | souls of Yahuwdym | the Beloved of Yah on Mount Mowryah – ElYah*. After performing as the Master of Ceremonies during Taruw^oah, we have every reason to expect ElYah*'s booming voice to be the one welcoming Yahowah and Dowd back home. And then, it would be poetic justice for the man who has not heretofore experienced mortal death to be honored with the distinction of offering his blood as the Goat to complete the anointing process of the Kaporeth | Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant. It would be instantaneous, painless, and glorious as ElYah*'s soul rises to join the immortal

Covenant Family.

In the third proclamation, we are reminded that Yahowah's Home and Family are special. They are uncommon, which means that they are unpopular. And since religion is the common thread of civilization, the Covenant is distinguished by the realization that it is akin to Eden, and therefore sparsely populated and unreligious.

Also interesting, Yahowah's Beryth is for all people. It will include Yahuwdym and Gowym. Further, there is only one Covenant for everyone.

Perhaps the most pondered question throughout time has been: If there is a God, how do I approach Him? And here we find the answer. These prophetic writings demonstrate that Yahowah is God. And He has just provided a list of things shared by those who are invited into His home.

As members of our Heavenly Father's Family:

1. We form a relationship with Yahowah. We choose to associate with God in a manner that is consistent with the Covenant's Terms and Conditions. Man was created for this purpose and, therefore, is rewarded for choosing to know, love, trust, and rely upon our Creator's and Savior's Instructions.

2. We serve God. Those of us who accept the invitation to live in Yahowah's home render assistance, fulfilling our roles in our Heavenly Father's Family. Our contribution enables the family to grow.

3. We love Yahowah's personal name. More than just knowing it, we adore and treasure it. We wear Yahowah's name proudly in recognition that God is our Father. And we proclaim Yahowah's name boldly, recognizing that it alone has the power to save, especially when it is associated with His beloved Son.

4. We are and will always be devoted to learning. By closely examining and carefully considering the Towrah, we are motivated to share Yahowah's guidance. This inspires us to expose and condemn religious lies as witnesses to the truth of the Towrah.

5. We actively observe the Shabat. We use this day to increase our understanding of Yahowah's plan and prophetic timeline while seeking to enhance our relationship with our Father.

6. We are passionate about the Mow^eedym, and as such, we walk with God and respond to Him in accordance with the dates He has set to meet with us. And by responding to and accepting the Miqra^eey's invitations, we are afforded abundant and eternal life within Yahowah's Family. As beneficiaries of Passover, UnYeasted Bread, and Firstborn Children, we blow the showphar on Seven Shabats and the Day of the Herald in anticipation of the Homecoming and Family Reunion on the Day of Reconciliations alerting everyone to the prospect of Camping Out with Father and Son.

7. We respond to Yahowah's instructions and appreciate that He and His Family are distinctly special and uncommon, and thus unpopular and unreligious. As a result, Yahowah is pleased to bring us to His mountain and home so that we can celebrate His return with Dowd.

Continuing to teach us more about what will transpire on Yowm Taruw^aah | the Day of the Herald with the final Ingathering followed by the sacrifice of the Red Heifer, we learn more about the arrival and presence of the mortal remnant of Yisra^ael.

“Yahowah (𐤆𐤏𐤃𐤁 – the proper pronunciation of YaHoWaH as guided by His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence), My Upright One and Foundation (*edowny), who obtains, gathers, collects, and assembles (qabats – who locates, grasps hold of, picks up, and amasses) the banished and scattered (nadach – the exiled, driven away, and cast out) of Yisra^ael (Yisra^ael – Individuals who Engage and Endure with God) yet again for restoration (*owd – now at this time for evermore) announces, in advance of it occurring (na^aum – prophetically prophesizes), ‘I will locate and obtain, collect and bring together (qabats – I will accumulate and amass (piel imperfect – the assembled are obtained by God’s actions and will endure)) unto and before him (al huw – in front of and above him) besides those they have already gathered (*la qabats huw – to those obtained and assembled (nifal participle – those who are here will benefit from this ingathering through their attendance in a dramatic manner) [from 1QIsa]).” (*Yasha*yah* / Yahowah Liberates and Delivers / Isaiah 56:8)

This is yet another preview of what will later be shared in Zakaryah 6. There, we learn that the White Spiritual Chariot will circumnavigate the Earth to collect Yahuwdym who have the proper attitude to benefit from the sacrifice of the *Adamah Parah on Yowm Taruw*ah ~ the Shabat of September 24th, 2033. They will not yet be Covenant because if they were, they would have been gathered in and brought to Shamaym during the Laqat | Gleaning the previous evening. This is also indicative of the promise Yahowah makes to the final remnant of His people in *Yasha*yah* 17 upon the conclusion of the Harvests.

One of the things I enjoy about this is that God is adding to what *ElYah and I will have striven to accomplish, which is to convince a goodly number of Yisra*elites to avail themselves of our impending sacrifices. Therefore, we prevail because we are working together with God for the same result.

This known, it is also possible that *Yasha*yah* is acknowledging another related event. The beloved prophet could be foretelling that Yahowah will “qabats – obtain, collect, and assemble” the “nadach – scattered” sheep of Yisra*el 85 years prior to this in 1948. This process began on January 27th, 1945, with the liberation of the Auschwitz concentration camp, leading directly to the return of Yahuwdym to Yisra*el. It will conclude 88 years 248 days thereafter (777,360 hours) on October 2nd, 2033 (in year 6000 Yah) on the Day of Reconciliations.

The second aspect of this appears to be deeply personal, letting us see an aspect of Yahowah seldom considered. God has arranged a glorious reception on behalf of the gowy frantically blowing the showphar, the Nakar | Observant Foreigner, and Sarys | Authorized Designee. Yahowah wants the man He has deployed to call His people home to witness the product of his efforts: a united Yisra^{*}el gathered before Yahowah. It is an acknowledgment of a job well done and greatly appreciated.

And while Yada views his contributions as negligible compared to Moseh and Dowd, God realizes that a joy shared is a joy magnified. The Nakar will get, albeit in a much more dramatic fashion than he anticipated, what he has long desired – the opportunity to experience Yahowah’s joy in the presence of His people. So, while he has requested nothing more than being allowed to stand in the back of the room when Yahowah greets His Family for the first time, it seems that God wants more. It is what Fathers do when their children please them by accomplishing something worthwhile. He, as a proud Father, wants to see His Son’s response to all they have achieved by working together. Turns out, they want the same thing and for the same reason.

On behalf of Yisra^{*}el, I have shared the prophetic pronouncement regarding the Nakry throughout Yada Yahowah. In the Hebrew text, the only difference between Nakar ~ rkn and Nakry ~ yrkn is the addition of the Yowd י, or hand of Yahowah, making nakry “My Observant Foreigner” while setting him apart as the “Hand of God” at this time.

In the pictographic characters which originally shaped these words, Nakar ~ rkn depicts: the son who sows the seeds which take root and grow reaching out with an open hand to offer what he has observed to those who are willing to listen to, read, and consider the message Yah is conveying through him. And while that is marvelous, when presented as yrkn ~ Nakry it is even more spectacular. And this is because Hebrew words are determined to be beneficial based upon whether the characters which comprise them are oriented toward one of the letters comprising Yahowah’s ~ ייוד name. And in the case of Nakry ~ yrkn, the Nun and the Rosh face Yahowah's Hand in the Yowd. Therefore, the Son in whose Hands are the Seeds for a Productive Harvest kn is an especially Observant Individual who Listens, Looks, and Thinks before Speaking א, Engaging as Yahowah's Outstretched Hand ב.

With an eye to these characters, the Nes | Banner the Choter | Branch has been tasked with writing at Yahowah's behest is scribed Sn. It speaks of a Son sowing the Seeds which Grow and Bear Fruit for a Sign which can be Lifted Up for all to See. With this in mind, here is Shalomoh | Solomon's commencement address to the Children of Yisra^{*el} upon the completion of Yahowah's Home on Mount Mowryah – the very place the Nakry will offer his life to spare the remnant of Yisra^{*el}. And since this prophetic pronouncement was delivered on *Yowm Taruw^{ah} | the Day of the Herald in 961 BCE, standing in the very place the Nakry will serve as the ^{*}Adamah Parah, these words will have echoed above the Temple Mount for seven years shy of 3,000 prior to their fulfillment on the Shabat of Taruw^{*ah}, September 24th at sunrise, year 6000 Yah / 2033.

After addressing the exemplary lives and lyrics of his father, Dowd's son proclaimed...

“Moreover, in conjunction with this (wa gam), regarding someone else who is the Nakry, this observant and discerning, especially responsive, foreigner from a different ethnicity and geographic location who will come to understand (el ha nakry*), who, to show the way to the benefits of the relationship (asher*), is not of your people (lo^{} min *am atah), this Yisra^{*el} (*Yisra^{el} huw^{}*).

He will arrive at a moment in time for the harvest and then return (wa bow^{}*) from a distant country after a long interval of time (*min erets rachowq) for the express purpose of being a Witness and voicing answers regarding (*lama^{an}) Your (atah*) vitally important (ha gadowl) name (shem) and Your influence, as Your Hand (*wa yad atah), as an effective troubadour for Trumpets, a prepared and capable person willing to engage in battle who is resolute, empowered, proficient but loud, always intense and sometimes harsh, overtly direct, and often overpowering, who is dependably steadfast (ha chazaq), and (wa) as Your Zarowa• | One Cultivating the Seeds Sown for Your Harvests who is fruitful in Your ways when sowing the seeds which take root and grow (Zarowa• atah*) whom You have extended (ha natah).

When (wa) he arrives on the scene and chooses to pursue this, coming, going, and returning for the harvest at this moment in time (*bow), then (wa) unaffected by societal, political, or religious influence, independently, he will help interested parties reconcile their relationship by providing those who exercise good judgment with the requested information and justifications to make a reasoned decision pursuant to this intervention (palal) regarding this Familial Relationship and the Family Home (el ha beyth ha zeh*). (2nd Chronicles 6:32)

When you hear this as if coming out of the heavens, listen to what comes from the spiritual realm (*wa atah shama min ha shamaym*) from within the location where you live, no matter where you are (*min makown yashab atah), then (wa) engage and act accordingly, doing everything (asah ka kol*) which, to show the way (asher*), ha Nakry | the Observant and Responsive Foreigner from a different ethnicity and geographic location who understands (ha nakry) has proclaimed and invited you to read, summoning you (qara *el atah), for the express purpose of serving as a Witness, a teacher who provides answers such that (*lama*an*) all peoples of the Earth (*kol *am ha erets) will have a genuine and ongoing opportunity to become familiar with Yada•, to know, acknowledge, accept, and understand (yada•) Your name (eth shem atah), coming to respect and revere what pertains to You (wa la yare *eth atah) simultaneously along with (ka) Your people (am atah), *Yisra*el* | Individuals who Struggle and Wrestle with the Almighty becoming Those who Engage and Endure with God (*Yisra*el*).

And also, so that (wa la) they may know, acknowledge, accept, and appreciate Yada (*yada) because, truthfully (ky), it is for Your name (*shem atah that he is designated and called, invited and welcomed, reciting aloud regarding the Miqra*ey (qara) concerning this House and Family (al ha beyth ha zeh), which to reveal the correct path to walk to give life meaning (asher*), I have built (banah).” (Dabarym ha Yowmym 6:33)

And as we recall from the last chapter, this led to God revealing through Solomon...

“Unfortunately by contrast, it is certain that (ky) they will continue to be at fault regarding You, constantly going astray, bearing the guilt for leading many astray (chata la atah) because, truly (ky), there will be no one, not a single person who (ayn *adam asher) will not be wrong and miss the way, incurring the guilt of leading astray (lo chata).

Therefore (wa), You will be indignant and furious with them (anaph ba hem*). And so, You will offer them up, giving them into the presence of an enemy (*wa nathan hem la paneh oyeb) so that they are taken captive (wa shabah hem) with them hauled away as slaves by their captors (shabah hem) to a land and place (el erets) far and also near, quite soon and in a distant time (*rachowq or qarowb). (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:36)

But by coming back, changing and returning (wa shuwb) in their best judgment, improved attitudes and ambitions (lebab hem) while in the area (*ba ha erets) which they will be held as captives (asher shabah sham*), and by turning around and changing so that they can be restored (wa shuwb), they will take the initiative to independently pursue a more favorable consideration toward You, showing some appreciation, kindness, and affection for You (*chanan *el atah) while in the place of their captivity (*ba erets shabah hem).

As a result, they will eventually say (*la amar), ‘We were wrong in missing the way and leading others astray (chata) with our corruptions and perversions, our propensity to bend and twist (awah), and our wrongdoing such that our being malevolent has left us covered in our guilt (*rasha). (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:37)

But they change and come back to You (*wa shuwb *el atah) by exercising good judgment, with a better attitude (ba kol leb hem), with the entirety of their soul and consciousness (wa ba kol nepesh hem), while in the land (*ba ha erets) which they will be held as captives (asher shabah sham*) in the realm of their incarceration (*ba erets shabah hem) where they will be deprived of their freedom (asher shabah eth hem).

And without being prompted or provoked, they will take the initiative to meditate on the justification for intervention (wa palal) regarding the way to their Land (*derek erets hem) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), You gave to their fathers (*nathan la ab hem), and the city You have chosen (*wa *iyr asher bachar), as well as the House and Family (wa la ha beyth), that I have built for Your name (asher banah la shem atah). (Dabarym ha Yowmym 2 ~ 6:38)

Then, at that time, You will listen (*wa shama) to their request for intervention for those wanting to be set apart (taphilah hem) from Your Heavenly dwelling place (*min ha shamaym min makown yashab atah), as well as to their pleas for compassion (*wa eth tachinah hem), listening at that time (*wa shama) from the Spiritual Realms (min shamaym), from Your dwelling place where You reside (*min makown yashab atah), to their request for the distinction of being set apart (eth taphilah hem*), as well as to their pleas for compassion (*wa eth tachinah hem).

Then You will act (*wa asah) to resolve the dispute with them while being just and rational with them (mishpat hem). You will pardon Your people, removing their guilt, releasing Your family from their religious crimes (*wa salach la am atah), even those who had been wrong about You (chata la *atah)." (Dabarym ha Yowmym / 2nd Chronicles 6:39)

What an awesome depiction of what will come as we draw ever closer to the sacrifice of the *Adamah Parah and Dowd's glorious return as Yahowah's presence fills His Home. Every word of this speaks of Yowm Taruw^oah and Yowm Kipurym in year 6000 Yah, just 99 months from now on September 24th of 2033 – recognizing that this speech was delivered on the Day of the Herald seven years shy of 3000 years before its fulfillment.

And since this addresses the role that I have been asked to perform to facilitate the Messiah's and King's triumphant return, it's worth noting that it was spoken 2,924 years before I was born, 2,970 years before I was called and engaged, and seven years shy of 3,000 years before I will have achieved what Yahowah is acknowledging through this prophecy.

And while I did not ask Yahowah to draw your attention to what He would achieve through our collaboration, it is obviously vital to our King's success. So clearly, He has my undivided attention and commitment to work together, such that the mission is successfully completed to His satisfaction. And therefore, we would be doing God and His people a disservice to run from these prophetic pronouncements because it is by acknowledging them that we gain their attention and trust. Yahowah wants Yisra^ael to listen and come home. And not finding a Yahuwd who was willing to engage, God selected a gowy. Nevertheless, He seems to be pleased with what we have accomplished on His People's behalf.

And while I am thrilled by what we have accomplished, I am also overwhelmed. It is one thing to read and share the heroics of Moseh and Dowd, but entirely another to see oneself spoken about in the ways we have just considered. Aware of my flaws and failings, but also my steadfast devotion, I have at times struggled to put this all into the proper perspective – especially as Yasha^oyah led us from Choter to Nes, from Basar to Qowl, and from Zarowa^o to Parah, and Solomon spoke of the role of the Nakry.

I would have been delighted to remain Yada^o, an invisible and transparent witness, striving to share Yahowah's testimony as accurately as possible. But my Father wanted more, and He incorporated His adopted son into His story. I have become the Voice calling out in the wilderness of words, preparing all who will listen for Yahowah's arrival with His Firstborn, our Shepherd, Messiah, and King – as well as our Savior. I have even been afforded the opportunity to cleanse the whore, preparing the remnant of Yisra^hel for the Great Reset in advance of my beloved God's and King's return.

Should you be Jewish, the thought of a gowy performing in this fashion for God may come across as a bit insulting, and perhaps that is the point. Given every advantage, Yahuwdym turned a blind eye to Yahowah. And so, by using a gowy, our Father may be taunting His children, saying, "If he gets it, why are you all so clueless?" God has tried every other approach, including speaking directly to His people, but with limited success, so this slap in the face is His final attempt at awakening them. If you are offended, good. Live up to your calling and we'll sing together.

The reunion with His Family on this day may be the single most joyous moment in Yahowah's eternal existence. And to think that He wants to share it with you and me speaks volumes about Him. It is so consistent with Yahowah's nature and intent, so much like the loving Father we have come to know and respect.

*Bow*Min Edowm ~ Coming from Edom

Near the conclusion of Yasha'yah / Isaiah, in his 63rd chapter, we witness something heretofore unseen among the prophets. They typically present an unappealing portrait of human religious malfeasance with catastrophic consequences because this is the history and propensity of man. But not this because Yasha'yah is celebrating what he is witnessing. The great prophet is jubilant over the arrival of the Man from Edom because he provides salvation for Israel by making Yasha'yah's revelations relevant again. So, in context, the prophet is on record proclaiming...

“For the sake of Tsyown (la ma'an Tsyown – for the benefit of and with regard to the Signs Posted Along the Way), I will not keep silent nor be unresponsive (*lo*chashah* – I will not remain hushed nor will I hesitate and do nothing (qal imperfect)).

And for the benefit of Yaruwshalaim (wa la ma'an Yaruwshalaim – for the sake of the Source of Guidance on Reconciliation), I will not rest (*lo*shaqat* – I will not be at peace or serene, nor will I remain inactive) until (ad*) her righteousness and vindication (*tsedeq hy – her willingness to do the right thing, to be honest and accurate, to be equitable and just, moral and correct) are brought out (*yatsa – come forth) as knowledge and enlightenment (ka nogah – as light, brilliant and radiant) and her deliverance and salvation (*wa yashuwa'ah hy – her victory and freedom) are like a blazing torch (*ka lapyd ba*ar*).” (Yasha'yah / Isaiah 62:1)

This is the collaborative effort between the Choter and the Seven Spirits of Yahowah as guided by Yahowsha*'s textbook on proper chotering. We will vindicate Yaruwshalaim on behalf of Yahowah, enlightening Yahowah's beloved home on earth.

To accomplish God's purpose, the Choter must share the word of our God regarding His people far and wide. By working together, we will serve as the Mouth of Yahowah as our God proclaims our renewing and restoring name...

“People from different places and races (wa gowym) will see (*ra*ah* – will have revealed and will witness) that you are accurate and honest, readily validated and vindicating (*tsedeq ath – that you (feminine singular) are correct and fair, in accord with the standard, straightforward and consistent, truthful and ethical), and all of those who are thoughtful and responsive (wa kol malak – those who are receptive and carefully consider the evidence, especially those who are willing to accept counsel and lead) will see your value (*kabowd ath – your (feminine singular) honorable nature and the subsequent reward which is a manifestation of power).

And he will call you (*wa qara*la ath – He will meet with you and welcome you, summoning and inviting you (pual perfect – the person being addressed (which is feminine singular) is accepting this gesture without asking for it with the subject being third-person masculine singular)) by a renewing and restoring (chadash – a reaffirming and reestablishing) name (shem) which, as a benefit of the relationship (asher* – which to show the way to get the greatest joy out of life), the mouth (peh) of Yahowah (Yahowah – written as directed by His towrah – teaching) will designate for him (*naqab huw – will bestow upon him that which is notable).” (*Yasha*yah* / Isaiah 62:2)

Yisra*el remains adrift and needs a rudder, propulsion, a map, and a compass. Collectively, if accepted, they can be deployed to lead them to the crown worn by her King. Supporting this effort, directions are being offered by the royal counselor, Dowd's Herald. He is making this presentation from the palm of Yahowah's hand.

“You will be (wa hayah – at this moment you will exist as (qal perfect second-person feminine singular)) an honorable and adorning (tiphe^{re}th – an attractive and ornamental) metaphorical crown and a compass (atarah* – a garland, wreath, or diadem) in (ba – as, with, and positioned by) Yahowah's (YaHoWaH) hand (yad – influence and authority) and (wa) a royal counselor (maluwkah – as a sovereign and leading advisor to consider; from malak – to counsel and advise on behalf of the king) in the palm (ba kaph – in the hollow of the hand) of your God (elohym ath).” (Yasha^yah / Isaiah 62:3)

Once Yahuwdym decide to be receptive and listen...

“You shall no longer be called (lo^{} *amar la *ath owd) ‘Abandoned (azab* – a rejected outcast, forsaken and relinquished, deserted or destitute, damned or estranged),’ and concerning your Land (*wa la *erets ath), no longer will it be called (lo^{} *amar owd), ‘Wasted (shamamah – ruined and depopulated, desolated and devastated, a terrifying wasteland clothed in despair),’ but instead (ky), you will be called, designated, and welcomed as (*la ath qara^{}* – you will be summoned and invited as, even named), ‘Chephtsy | My Delight (*chephets any – My Desire and Great Pleasure because I Am Pleased)’ and your Land (*wa la *erets ath), ‘Ba^ulah | Married (ba^ulah – in a possessive relationship).’ This is because (ky) Yahowah (Yahowah) desires you (*chaphets ba ath – is delighted with you, He is pleased with you and He wants you). So, your Land (*wa *erets ath) will be wedded (tiba^el – in a state of matrimony).” (Yasha^yah / Isaiah 62:4)

The transition from azab* | being forsaken and shamamah | wasted to qara^{}* | welcomed and chephtsy delighted, leading to ba^ulah | married and tiba^el | wedded in a state of matrimony, will be manifest by the chadash | renewing and restoring one serving as the peh | mouth of Yahowah on Yowm Taruw^ah | the Day of the Herald. Then, the adamah Parah* | Bloody Red Man of the Earth who is Productive will be sacrificed as the Red Heifer of Numbers 19 to prepare the Adulterous Woman of Numbers 5 for Yisra^el's betrothal to the returning Messiah and King Dowd.

These “marriages” are symbolic of the reconciliation of the Covenant and restoration of God’s family and will be celebrated as such on Yowm Kipurym | the Day of Reconciliations.

“By way of comparison (ky), as a fine man (bachuwr – as an exceptional bridegroom, as an exemplary individual who is battle-hardened and capable, resilient and strong) marries (*yba*al* – comes to take and possess in matrimony) a virgin (bethuwlah – a young woman without any sexual experience; from an unused root meaning to separate), Your sons (*beny ath – Your children (beny is masculine and ath* is feminine)) shall wed themselves to You (*ba*al ath – shall marry You (singular feminine and thus addressing the Ruwach Qodesh)), and as the bridegroom (wa chathan – the Father’s daughter’s husband, a son-in-law) rejoices and is delighted (masows – is celebrating with a positive attitude) for the bride (al kalah* – the one getting married), your God (elohym ath) will be pleased for you (*suws *al ath – will be delighted for you, enjoying the relationship with you).” (*Yasha*yah* / Isaiah 62:5)

This is to say that the connection between the sacrifice and the reunion, *Taruw*ah* and Kipurym, the Red Heifer and the Adulterous Woman are astute. The divorce proclaimed in *Howsha will be reconciled in Yaruwshalaim | the Source of Guidance on Reconciliation. And while God’s fractured family will be whole again, the question as to how many will join in the festivities remains...

“Upon your walls (al chowmah ath – along your elevated thoroughfare), Yaruwshalaim | Jerusalem (Yaruwshalaim – Source of Guidance on Reconciliation), I will summon and determine the number (paqad – I will call, arm, muster, organize, and appoint) of the observant (shamar – those who closely examine, carefully consider, and focus intently, as watchful individuals).

And all day and all night (wa kol ha yowm wa kol ha laylah) they will continuously exist (tamyd – they will be uninterrupted and constant), never inactive or silent (*lo chashah – never hesitating to speak out nor idle), always remembering (ha zakar – never forgetting and consistently recalling and proclaiming) that those who associate with Yahowah (eth YaHoWaH*) are never silenced or inactive (al domy* – they continually communicate the restoring testimony and eternal witness, and never cease, they are neither still nor dumb) regarding you (*la atem).” (Yasha'yah / Isaiah 62:6)

There has been a long silence, but the words once spoken here are long remembered and they will echo off of her stones yet again. The voice of God has been silent, but He will not remain so. Yahowah is addressing His people even now.

“And so, You should not allow him to be silenced, neither inactive nor stopped (*wa *al nathan domy la huw – You should not cause him to be incommunicative, silenced, or overwhelmed, nor even pause and rest such that he is always striving to be a more literal and effective witness, or: You should not allow anyone to impede his progress or censure his message, never permitting anyone to stop him (qal imperfect jussive – with nathan being negated, either the observant spokesman’s freewill is curtailed for an ongoing period of time such that there will be no pause in the work or cessation in the communication, or the prophet is affirming that God will ensure that no one silences him or interrupts him)) as he prepares the enduring and restoring testimony (ad kuwn* – while he authenticates the legitimacy, secures and sustains through a thoughtful and systematic arrangement of the evidence, making ready (poel imperfect – whereby the object, Yaruwshalaim, becomes fully equipped to prevail as a result of the active witness)) and causes through the eternal witness (*wa ad sym – until he brings about through the restoring testimony) Yaruwshalaim (eth Yaruwshalaim* – that which pertains to the Source of Teaching and Guidance on Restoration) to be adored and considered praiseworthy (tahilah – is appreciated, her reputation laudable) throughout the Earth (*ba ha erets).” (Yasha'yah / Isaiah 62:7)

No matter how much God wants resolution, regardless of how vociferous the witness or the degree the testimony is restorative, until and unless Yisra^{*}el listens, our collective efforts will be like clouds soaring over the desert bereft of rain. But should this change, new restored and eternal life, will take root, grow, and thrive. And for this purpose, Yahowah's long intermission and silence will be resolved with a restoring Witness whose voice will reverberate throughout the Earth.

We know this to be true because Yahowah has promised to provide a final Zarowa[®] to cultivate a productive harvest...

“Yahowah (YaHoWaH – an accurate presentation of the name of elowah* – God as guided by His towrah – instructions regarding His hayah – existence) has made a promise (shaba^{}* – has sworn an oath, vowing to affirm the truth of this statement which is based upon approaching seven and the Shabat) by His right hand (ba yamyn huw^{}*) and with His empowered and fortified (wa ba ^ooz huw^{}* – through His resolute and unwavering, with His bold and forceful, secure and prevailing) Zarowa[®] | Capable Arm who Sows and Cultivates the Seeds of the Harvest and Shepherds the Flock (zarowa[®] – the prevailing and effective one with the resolve and ability to be a productive guide and protective ram, a defender and caretaker engaged as a shepherd among the sheep who is fruitful in accomplishing the mission, especially when sowing the seeds to advance the purpose of the Arm of God and that of His Shepherd and Sacrificial Lamb).” (Yasha^{yah} / Isaiah 62:8 in part)

Yasha^{yah} / Isaiah 53 opens asking if anyone has determined the identity of the Zarowa[®]. He realized, of course, that it wouldn't be until the arrival of the final Zarowa[®] that anyone would ascertain the names of the previous two or recognize the last of his class. This is poignant because the prophecy which follows wouldn't be properly attributed until the last of the Zarowa[®] made it so. Also relevant, it is through the Zarowa[®] | One who Cultivates the Harvest that the Shabuwa[®]h and Taruwa[®]h Ingatherings will be fulfilled and the surviving remnant will be prepared for the Family Reunion.

Affirming that Yahowah was addressing the Shabuw^{ah} Qatsyr of Standing Grain, Yasha^{yah} reported...

“I will not allow your grain which you grow for the harvest to be given away (*nathan *eth dagan ath – I will not offer what you produce) ever again, or (owd*) to be consumed in a questionable way and processed destructively (*ma*akal* – to be butchered and destroyed; from mah – to question and akal* – to consume) by your enemies (*la *oyeb ath – by those who show enmity and hatred toward you) on the condition that (*wa im – so long as) the children (beny – the offspring) of the Nakar | Observant Foreigner (nakar – the little appreciated and often misunderstood non-Yisra^l elite from a distant land who closely examines and carefully considers, then recognizes and acknowledges the truth, making it known through declarative statements, the discerning friend who highly regards what can be perceived and should be respected) can choose to experience and feast upon (shatah – can express his desire to drink and dine during the consumption of (qal imperfect jussive)) your new wine of inheritance (*thyrowsh ath – your recently harvested and sweet, freshly pressed, grapes; from yarash – to inherit and become an heir) which you have labored to produce (*yaga – you have expended the energy to make) with him (*ba huw).” (Yasha^{yah} / Isaiah 62:8)

Just as *Zarowa | One cultivating the Harvests is used by Yahowah and Yasha^{yah} in conjunction with the Shabuw^{ah} and Taruw^{ah} Ingatherings, both deploy Nakar | Observant Foreigner to address the final Witness. And in this case, you will notice that not squandering the gift of the harvest is conditional upon allowing the Nakar | Observant Foreigner to participate in the inheritance represented by the harvest and production of new wine. That is to say that there will be another harvest after Shabuw^{ah} and it will entail some bloodletting, as was the case with Pesach. As such, this is yet another reference to the sacrifice of the Adamah Parah during Taruw^{ah} and to the anointing of the Mercy Seat of the Covenant on Kipurym with the blood of this same Bull along with the Goat representing “Truthfully, this is because (ky) those who gather together at the ingathering of the harvest with him (asaph huw – those who join together and are withdrawn to receive it with him) will consume it (akal huw) radiating light (halal – extolling the virtues while expressing complete confidence) in the name of and with (*ba shem eth – in the renown and reputation of [from 1QIsa]) Yahowah.

And those who are assembled and obtain it (*qabats huw – those who have come together and grasp it) will drink and experience it (*shatah huw – will celebrate a feast with it) within the courts (ba chatser – within the enclosure) of My Set-Apart Sanctuary (*qodesh any),’ says your God (amar *elohym atem – declares your Mighty One [from 1QIsa]).”
(*Yasha*yah* / Isaiah 62:9)

Following the Taruw^{ah} Laqat | Gleaning on Friday evening September 23rd, 2033, with the celestial acknowledgement of a solar eclipse on Saturday morning, the mortal remnant of Yisra^{el} will have one final opportunity to come clean and be properly prepared for Yahowah’s return with Dowd on Kipurym. Then, Yahowah’s Family will be invited into His Home to watch as Dowd anoints the Kaporeth | Mercy Seat of the Ark of the Covenant. The common denominator among us will be the love of Yahowah’s shem | name.

Our King opened the Door to Life by fulfilling Passover, inviting his people to walk through and capitalize upon what he has achieved on their behalf. Unfortunately, even 3,000 years after he volunteered, 2,700 years after Yasha^{ah} brought this to our attention, and nearly 2,000 years after honoring his promises in 33 CE, there were still no entrants. Therefore, the Choter, God’s final Zarowa^{ah} and Nakar, would be equipped and tasked with reestablishing the way for the people to pass from death into life, from estrangement into reconciliation, and from earth to heaven.

“Let nothing stop you from choosing to actually pass through (*abar *abar – of your own freewill and with unrelenting resolve to cross over, transit and move through (qal imperative)) the door (ba ha sha*ar – within the gates and entranceway).

Of your own freewill, prepare the way (panah derek – before the appearance, turn around, change direction, and pay attention, face reality, then make ready the path (piel imperative active – as a result of their choices, those paying attention and responding cause others in the family to respond similarly)) for the people (ha *am – for the family).

You should be resolute in your determination to build up and cherish (salal salal – raise and extol under the auspices of freewill (qal imperative active)) the Masilah | Raised Highway (masilah – the main road, the thoroughfare, the elevated walkway to conduct one's life).

Toss away and remove (saqal min – throw and haul away (piel imperative)) the stumbling stones (*eben mikshowl – pondering the implications of the impediments [from 1QIsa]).

Lift up (ruwm – it should be your desire to be influenced by and then raise showing that you respect and value (hifil imperative)) the Nes | Banner (nes – sign conveying a vital message which is raised up on a shepherd's staff for all to see, prominently communicating the leader's desire to alert, prepare, and rally the people; from neses – to lift up an ensign and put it on display) over the people (*al *am – before the family).” (Yasha*yah / Isaiah 62:10)

Once again, there is a lot to unpack in this prophetic pronouncement. It begins with a sense of urgency from someone who knows the situation all too well. He saw Heaven's Door opened once before, and 2,700 years ago, no one was waiting outside. So, with the Choter in place and the Nes written, spoken, and on display, and with time running out, the prophet encourages his people to pass through the door without delay.

The second part of Yasha*yah's appeal is an ode to something he wrote in what is now the 40th chapter of Isaiah. He, therefore, knows that the Nes | Banner associated with the Choter in Isaiah 11 and the Qowl | Voice of Yahowah conveyed in what follows, are tasked with preparing the Masilah | Raised Highway to God while removing the stumbling blocks along the way. Here is that prophecy...

“Choose to change your thinking and relent, and you will be comforted and consoled (nacham nacham), My people (am any), promises your God (amar *elohym atem). Speak (dabar) from the heart, exercising good judgment (al leb*), regarding Yaruwshalaim | the Source of Guidance on Reconciliation (Yaruwshalaim).

Make a *Qara | Announcement, summoning her by reciting to her (qara *el hy), that indeed (ky) her battles (*tsaba*hy) are over (male). The consequence of her missing the way (awon) is pardoned through restitution, causing her to be accepted, regaining favor (ratsah) because she has obtained (laqach) from the hand (min yad) of Yahowah (Yahowah) a double portion (kephel) for all of her (ba kol) errant and mistaken ways (*chata).

A Qowl | Voice (qowl) calls out (*qara) in the wilderness where the word is questioned (ba ha midbar), ‘Turn around and choose to change your direction in life such that you are prepared for (panah) the Derek | Way (derek) of Yahowah (Yahowah).

Of your own freewill, choose to become straightforward and correct so that you are prepared for (yatsar) the Masilah | Raised Highway (masilah) through the dark and lifeless fabric of commingling and mixing together (*wa ba ha arabah) to approach our God (*la *elohy anachmuw).

Every depression (*kol gay) will be raised (*nasa) and each (wa kol) elevated place of illicit worship (*har wa giba*ah*) will be brought down (shaphel). Then it will transpire (wa hayah) that the insidiously deceitful aspects of that which was not on the level, that which was misappropriated and misconstrued (*aqob), will be removed and flattened over (la mishowr) such that the uneven terrain, obstacles, and conspiracies which had made the way impassable (ha rekes) will be ripped apart and torn asunder (biqa*ah).

The overall significance (wa kabowd) of Yahowah (Yahowah) will be revealed, becoming more openly known (galah). And every Basar | Proclamation of the Human Herald (wa kol basar) will reveal this (ra*ah) all together in its entirety (yachdaw). This is reliable because (ky) the mouth (peh) of Yahowah (Yahowah) has spoken it (dabar).'

A Qowl | Voice urges (qowl amar), 'Qara | Read and Recite, choosing to be Called Out and welcomed (qara*).'

So I asked (wa *amar any), 'What should I recite, who should I invite to be called out, who should I welcome, and what should I offer to read aloud and announce (mah qara)?'

'Every Basar | Proclamation of the Herald (kol ha basar) is a place to dwell (chatsyr) which is entirely loving, providing all of the benefits of the relationship (wa kol chesed huw*), akin to a gleaming flower blossoming and shining, productive and flourishing (ka tsyts), while spreading across the open terrain (ha sadeh).

This dwelling place (chasyr), he will be gone for a while (yabesh), the blossoming and gleaming flower (tsyts), he will be treated with contempt at this moment (nabel) because, truly (ky), the Ruwach | Spirit (ruwach) of Yahowah (Yahowah), She blows like the wind, dispersing and driving forcefully away through him (nashab ba huw*).

Insightfully (*aken), the abode and dwelling place (chatsyr) is for the family (ha *am), because the Word (wa dabar) of our God (*elohy *anachnuw) stands (quwm) forever (la *owlam).'" (Yasha*yah / Isaiah 40:1-8)

The more we ponder the implications of Yasha*yah, the more we come to appreciate that much of it exists to present the mission and implications of the Choter, Basar, and Qowl of God. Neither the Prophet nor his God want their people to disregard him or ignore him. He is the man with the *Qara | Invitation to come Home. He is trying to redirect Yahuwdym back to Yahowah...

“Please pay attention (hineh – look up, consider this narrative here and now)! Listen to (*shama – hear what is being said by) Yahowah (𐤏𐤍𐤐𐤓 – a transliteration of YaHoWaH as instructed in His towrah – teaching regarding His hayah – existence) unto the ends of the Earth (el qatseh ha erets).

Say unto (amar la*) the women in the environment surrounding (bath – the daughters in the area around; from banah – to build up and ben – a child of) the Signs Posted Along the Way (Tsyown), ‘Behold (hineh – look now and see), your liberation and salvation (yesha ath – your rescue and deliverance, your victory and assistance) will come (*bow – will return, come back, and arrive at this moment in time (qal perfect)).’

Look up and see (hineh – please pay attention) His reward, which is His payment for safe passage (*sakar huw – He has paid the fare to provide His means of transportation). It is with Him (eth huw), as is His recompense (*pa*ulah huw – the consequence of what He has accomplished through His maternal approach, both as a reward and as a punishment; from *pa*al* – what is done is what is made), all in conjunction with His appearance (*la paneh huw – to approach His presence).” (Yasha Yyah / Isaiah 62:11)

The message is for Yisra*el, the Adulterous Woman of Bamidbar 5, so that, should she listen, the *Adamah Parah of Numbers 19 will prepare them to be betrothed to the returning Messiah and, therefore, reconciled in the relationship with Yahowah. Between the Passover Lamb and the Red Heifer of the Day of the Herald, recompense will be afforded prior to Yahowah’s appearance, providing safe passage Home for the Family Reunion on the Day of Reconciliations.

This is God's Invitation to return and for redemption. Don't miss it.

“Therefore (wa), they shall be *Qara | Invited and Welcomed as (qara la hem* – they will be summoned and met, proclaimed, called out, designated) ‘Am ha Qodesh* | the Set-Apart Family (am ha qodesh* – the people who are separated, unique, special, and uncommon),’ those being redeemed (ga'al – the delivered who were ransomed and bought back by the kinsman redeemer (qal participle)) by Yahowah (YaHoWaH).

Then (wa) you will be called (*la *atah qara – you will be invited and summoned, announced and proclaimed) ‘Sought After (darash – aware and known, accounted for and looked after, and in a relationship),’ a city whose occupants (iyar* – a population) are no longer forsaken (lo azab – are no longer abandoned, rejected, or neglected).” (Yasha'yah / Isaiah 62:12)

Therefore, this preamble devoted to the Choter, Qowl, and Basar, as well as his Nes, serves to introduce Yisra'el to the One who Comes from Edom...

“Who is (my) this Man (zeh – he, the One (masculine singular)) who comes at this time (bow – he who arrives and then returns at this moment (qal participle perfect absolute active third-person masculine singular)) out of edowm | Edom (*min edowm – from those influenced by the bloody red nature of Rome and the Roman Catholic Church, and thus the Western World, and from one who outed Islam (my DNA states that I am Romano Celtic)) in reddish (chamuwts – crimson, brilliant and vibrant red, from that which was yeasted and ruthless, cruel and oppressive) garments (begeg – apparel) from the sheepfold to gather and protect (batsrah – from a fortified place; from batsar – to gather, fortify, and protect)?

He is the One (zeh – this individual man) who is shown great favoritism and is respected (hadar – who is honored on high and treated with distinction, considered noble and of high class, the best among men, and inspiring). Therefore, he is suitably adorned and arrayed (*ba lebuwsh huw – with his clothing, raiment, vestments, and apparel), striding purposely (tsha^oah – walking forthrightly with a sense of intensity and urgency, attentively pursuing the goal) in the abundance (rob – in the upper range and extent) of His influence and authority (koach huw^{}* – His power and might, His potential and ability, His substance and means, his qualifications and accomplishments).

I am sharing this message (any dabar* – I am communicating, verbalizing and announcing this matter with these words) accurately (tsadaqah – correctly and verifiably, honestly and forthrightly) to deliver and save (la yasha^o – to rescue and liberate, freeing) a great many (rab – a vast and significantly large number).” (Yasha^oyah / Isaiah 63:1)

The Zeh Bow^{} min edowm | Man who Comes from Edom is a single individual male arriving at this time. He, like the Nakar, is a foreigner, and not a Yisra^{*}elite, and that makes him particularly unique in God’s story. He is also distinguished by the proclamation that he will “yasha^o rab – deliver and save many.” This is said of no one else anywhere in the Prophets.

Edowm* speaks of the descendants of ‘Esau, who was so named because he was hairy and red, which is symbolic of Roman red and their Caesars (which means “hairy” in Latin). This recognition, and identification with the Beast of Imperial Rome that became the Roman Catholic Church, helps explain why Yahowah said that He hated him and consider him hostile, vicious, and deadly.

The Man Coming Out of Edom, however, is distancing himself from such nastiness, just as Abraham* and Moseh walked away from Babel and Mitsraym before they were used by Yah. As such, my witness is also disassociated from, while renounced by prior affiliations – political and religious

The reddish garments obviously caught Yasha^oyah’s attention, and this is because they were stained in blood. The Man from Edom is sacrificed as the adamah Parah* | Bloody Red Man of the Earth who is a Productive Bull on the Day of the of Herald to save the mortal remnant of Yisra*el – God's lost sheep. He will gather them on the evening of Taruw*ah during the Gleaning and then he will protect them the following day with the final sacrificial offering of the *Mow*edym* | Restoring Witness to the Eternal Testimony. In this way, the Man from Edom will spare many, delivering a vast number of Yisra*elites from their own misconceptions.

Since I did not write this, and have never sought acclaim, should you be among those who don't like anyone acknowledging that they have been appointed by God, or more, that they are hadar | favored and respected by God, take your complaints up with Yahowah. The truth is that God found a Choter / Sucker and enabled him as the Nakar | Observant Foreigner. They collaborated on a Nes | Sign and a Masilah | Raised Thoroughfare, and upon their completion, Yahowah's Basar | Herald would serve as His Qowl | Voice, going from prolific writer to vociferous blogger. For being resilient and steadfast, uncommonly devoted and bold, deriving thousands of insights en route to being the first to present the entire story from *Eden and back to the Garden, Yahowah sees the Man from Edom as distinguished and inspiring. And He's not alone, because Yasha*yah and Dowd are impressed, as is my wife, which means something to me even if not to anyone else.

The reference to being lebuwsh | suitably arrayed is funny since I have a fondness for being casual. I present the YAHOWAH BLOGS comfortably attired – sending a subtle message. And in spite of the bare feet or flipflops, I have striven with purpose since we began twenty-four years ago, never wavering or veering off-course. I know the objective, the path to it, and the time crunch we are under. And I know that as the Man from Edom, the Gowy serving Yahowah on behalf of Yahuwdym, my collaboration with God will save a great many.

It is true, however, that I began our relationship together in my comfort zone, which was anonymous as Yada*. But that changed once I was confronted by the realization that there were no other candidates for the Choter, or any of the other score of descriptive titles Yahowah chose to portray our mission hundreds of times throughout the prophets. And so, I came to realize and share that I was serving under the koach | influence and authority of Yahowah.

There is only one other place in the whole of the Towrah, Naby*, wa Mizmowr where we read something akin to an admission “I am sharing this message accurately and truthfully,” and that is when Yahowah is acknowledging that the promises He has made to Dowd are vows He will never break. Since in the Messiah’s case, his basar | body served to fulfill Pesach as the ayil* | Lamb, the inference here is that the Man from Edom will save many as the adamah Parah* | Bloody Red Man of the Earth who is a Productive Bull on Taruw*ah – the Day of the Basar | Herald.

Yahowah wants His People to know that there is a perceptive foreigner who will walk in Dowd’s footsteps...

“Who is this One who comes at this time out of Edom in reddish garments from the sheepfold to gather, fortify, and protect? He is the One who is shown great favoritism and is treated with distinction and respected. Therefore, he is suitably adorned and arrayed, striding purposely and forthrightly with a sense of intensity and urgency in the abundance of His authority and influence, qualifications and accomplishments. I am sharing this message accurately and honestly to liberate and rescue, deliver and save a great many.” (*Yasha*yah* / Isaiah 63:1)

In that the Man from Edom would have to know who he is to get this done in such a profoundly important way, and since prophecy pertains to this moment when I am the only one who fits the profile and who is engaged in advancing this mission while revealing the intent of Yahowah’s pronouncement, the identity of the Zeh | One is incontrovertible.

As we continue, we find that *Yasha*yah* cannot contain himself. Having labored alone, and having seen no results, then witnessing Yahowah searching through out the centuries and finding no one to help, when the Man from Edom finally arrives, the prophet is overjoyed...

“What can be known (maduwa – why therefore and what is the reason) of your apparel (*la labuwsh atah – is your clothing (your is masculine singular)) being red (adom* – the color of wine) is that your garments (*wa beged atah) are similar to (ka) those of one who treads (darak – who sets out to walk, trampling) within the winepress (ba gath). (Yasha Yah / Isaiah 63:2)

I have tread (darak – I have set out to walk within, trampling) the wine vat (puwrah – the winepress; from puwr – to crush) alone (la bad – by myself). Among the people (*wa min am), there was not a single individual (ayn iysh) with me (eth any). And so, all of my apparel (*wa kol malbuwsh any – everything I have worn) is defiled and stained (ga'al – is unclean and discolored, polluted and desecrated [from 1QIsa because the MT includes some angry and bloody remarks]). (Yasha Yah / Isaiah 63:3)

Therefore (ky – as a result), I was inclined to pursue in my best judgment (*ba leb any – I felt it was appropriate and reasonable in my heart) a day of recompense (yowm naqam – a time to inflict retribution and revenge, to harm those who have been harmful, and thus of vengeance and punishment) because (wa) the year of my redemption (*shanah ga'uwlym any – the time of my restoration and redeeming work) had come (*bow – had arrived at this moment (qal perfect)). (Yasha Yah / Isaiah 63:4)

Having continuously looked (wa nabath – having been especially observant and perceptive, considering it all while looking for the proper response (hifil imperfect)) and having found no one to help (*wa *ayn azar – only to have no support or assistance), I was devastated and felt abandoned (shamem – I was deeply affected and hurt, feeling inadequate, actually stunned, even astonished and appalled that I had been deserted (hitpa'el imperfect – this ongoing sense of disappointment and inadequacy was self-imposed)).

So when there was no one to provide any support (*wa ayn samak – because there was no one to help establish this, uphold it, or work with), my Zarowa• | the Strengthened Arm Sowing and Distributing my Seeds while Cultivating a Productive Harvest (zarowa• any* – the one shepherding the flock for me, my capable arm who prevails in an effective way as a guide in my stead, my defender who is fruitful in His ways and cares about me accomplishing my mission, especially when sowing the seeds of truth while denoting and advancing the purpose of the arm of God), he will deliver victory for me by bringing salvation through me (wa yasha• *la any – he will bring this to a successful conclusion for me) even though my disappointment and emotional turmoil (*wa chemah *any hy – my displeasure and frustration, even heated perceptions and antagonism) remain (samak – pressing heavily upon me, making me anxious at the moment (qal perfect)). (Yasha•yah / Isaiah 63:5)

Yasha•yah is insistent that readers realize that the Man from Edom's clothing is red for a reason. And that is because the prophet has foreseen the sacrifice he will make thrice over for Yisra•el. He will protect Israel from bleeding to death during the Time of Ya•aqob's Troubles, constantly putting himself in the line of fire to protect God's people from the savagery of Islam. He will serve as the adamah Parah* | Bloody Red Man of the Earth who becomes particularly productive when allowing himself to be bludgeoned to death by the corporeal manifestation of ha Satan during Yowm Taruw•ah | Day of the Herald. And it is the blood of the Bull which will be sprinkled by Dowd before the Mercy Seat to enable Yisra•el to enter Yahowah's presence.

Since Yasha•yah had toiled in the winepress alone, he equated the color of our apparel, recognizing that wine is Yahowah's metaphor for blood. And it is in the winepress that the grapes which have been pulled from the vine are trampled and crushed in preparation for their transformation. So now, after the passage of 2,500 years, the prophet is announcing that the Man from Edom has arrived to support his efforts.

This pronouncement is emotional for Isaiah because, for the intervening period, Yahowah revealed that there wasn't a single sole among Yahuwdym willing to do what must be done to call God's wayward family home. He had written the primer on proper Chotering, but no one was the wiser for it. Then finally, a day of redemption: the Choter was established and empowered by the Seven Spirits of Yahowah to fulfill his destiny.

But this is no easy job. Yisra*elites are a tough audience, and the world is rife with rubbish. Those who engage with Yah are certain to be stained and stigmatized by the experience. Even today as I was announcing that I was pulling away somewhat from X to focus more on Facebook, I explained that the reason was because X is a cesspool of dunderheads and antisemites.

Clearly, the year of Yasha*yah's redemption has come. The prophet's revelations are now center stage, restoring Yisra*el to the Covenant as he had hoped and foreseen. But while that is good news for the beneficiaries, the long line of naysayers who have precluded his message from resonating with his people will suffer a day of recompense and retribution. The Prophet will seek vengeance against the religious and political leaders he impugned in his opening ten chapters for all of the harm they have done over the ages.

This is followed by one of the most emotionally compelling and mentally anguishing revelations in the whole of Yahowah's prophetic witness. Yasha*yah was devastated. There was no one to carry out his instructions or benefit from his testimony. He felt abandoned. He felt inadequate; astonished on one hand and appalled on the other. What was so obvious to him, so beneficial for his people, was constantly overlooked and dismissed.

But then, just when all hope seemed lost, just 30 years from the planet being destroyed rather than restored, "no one" became "one" with the arrival of the One from Edom who would serve as the final Zarowa*. Yasha*yah is affirming that the Choter |

Branch will Zarowa° | Bear Fruit and Cultivate a Productive Harvest. The One from Edom will bring yasha° | salvation to Yisra°el by correctly conveying the message Yasha°yah had scribed long ago. The final victory will be achieved because salvation is the result of the One from Edom advancing the prophet's agenda by following his instructions as inspired 27 centuries ago by Yahowah.

But the Machiavellian notion of the ends justify the means, or “all’s well that ends well”, is neither valid nor moral. Too much was lost with billions of souls needlessly squandered. Yes, Yahowah is intervening to save the day and reconcile His relationship with Yisra°el, but only after Israelites have been indignant and rebellious for thousands of years. Yasha°yah realizes how different it would have been if only his people had listened long ago. And in this, there is also the possibility that beyond lamenting for Yahuwdym, Dowd, and Yahowah, those who have insulted them are deserving of antipathy.

In that we are examining the Choter Handbook and Playbook for the One from Edom as scribed by Yasha°yah, it is instructive to note that this is actually the third time the prophet has mentioned the final Zarowa° as the witness goes about distributing the seeds of the final ingatherings. This course was set in the 59th chapter with this riveting declaration...

“Truth is lacking, and no one is honest because there is a lack of integrity, and no one is dependable (*wa hayah ha *emeth adar). Furthermore (wa), anyone who turns away from what is wrong, who departs from that which is perverted (*suwr min ra) is victimized, attacked, and discredited (shalal). (Yasha°yah / Isaiah 59:15)

When (wa) Yahowah (YaHoWaH) witnesses this (*ra*ah*), it is disturbing (*ra*a*) in His sight (*ba *ayn huw) that, indeed (ky), no one exercises good judgment (ayn mishpat*). (Yasha°yah / Isaiah 59:16)

He looked and saw (*wa ra*ah*) that there wasn’t anyone, not a single individual (*ky ayn yesh). So (wa), He was devastated, even appalled (wa shamem), that there was no one to intercede and plead His case (*ky ayn paga).

Then (wa) His Zarowa | the One Cultivating the Seeds for a Productive Harvest as His Emboldened Arm shepherding His flock (zarowa huw huw) became a means to salvation for Him, rescuing from harm's way as a liberator on His behalf, freeing and delivering those wanting to approach Him (*yasha la huw).

Thereby (wa), the realization that he was right and had engaged correctly (tsadaqah huw asah) was upheld and sustained (huw samak huw).” (Yasha Yah / Isaiah 59:17)

Just as is the case with the Zeh Bow min edowm | One Coming from Edom, the final Zarowa | Cultivating the Harvests serves to deliver God's People and save them, proving that he is right and that they are one and the same. It seems that no matter where we turn in Yasha Yah, we find Yahowah's Spirit working through this man.

Demonstrating this point, shortly thereafter, we read about the one whom the Spirit would inspire to sow these seeds ...

“The Ruwach | Spirit (Ruwach) of Yahowah (Yahowah) is upon me (al any). For this reason (ya an) Yahowah (YaHoWaH) has anointed, designating and appointing (mashach) that which is associated with me (eth any) for the purpose of bringing this proclamation of the uplifting message of the Basar | Herald (la basar) to the unpretentious and sincere who are ready to respond (anaw*).

He has sent me at this time (shalach) to encourage and gird (chabash) those whose desires have been shattered and whose thinking has been thwarted such that their judgment has suffered (la shabar leb), to provide an invitation which can be read aloud (*qara) to be liberated without constraint (darowr) to those who are being led away and controlled (la shabah), and to those who are obligated and bound, who have sworn an oath of allegiance and who have joined in (wa *la asar) by providing a means of release, offering an opening to extricate themselves from being controlled (paqach-qowach). (*Yasha yah / Isaiah 61:1)

The seeds you have sown and your resulting offspring (wa zera atah) will be known, Yada, and recognized (*yada) among the gentiles (ba ha gowym) in addition to (wa) what you have produced with your descendants (*wa tse*etsa* atah) within (ba tawek) the Family (*ha am). Everyone who witnesses them (*kol ra*ah hem*) will recognize and acknowledge the Nakar | Observant Foreigner along with them (nakar hem) because (ky) they are the offspring of the seeds sown (*hem zera) which Yahowah (YaHoWaH) has blessed and lovingly raised, now beneficially extolled (barak).” (*Yasha yah / Isaiah 61:9)

By combining the Ruwach of Yahowah, previously associated with the Choter, as also enabling him, *Yasha*yah* is identifying himself with the one who will save *Yisra*el* by delivering his message. And even more than this, by using mashach | anointing, Isaiah is announcing that, in addition to the Mashyach Dowd, he and the Choter / Zeh Bow min edowm / *Zarowa / Nakar & Qowl are similarly prepared and set apart for service to Basar | Herald the Uplifting Message. We are all working to provide *Yisra*el* with a *Qara | Invitation to be darowr | liberated from human control.

The parallels continue, of course, with *zera because it is the actionable root of *Zarowa | One who Sows the Seeds for a Productive Harvest. Further, these are the seeds of truth distributed by Yada so that God’s People become reacquainted with Yahowah again, becoming Am* | Family. This is the work of the Nakar | Observant Foreigner producing spiritual offspring in time for the final ingatherings.

God’s is a cohesive story which has been unfolding before our eyes since the 55th chapter. Yahowah and *Yasha*yah* have led us to this place for a reason. They want their people to finally pay attention and return home.

This next statement appears to be in Yahowah's voice rather than Yasha'yah's. It seems as if God is inserting Himself into this discussion to express His disappointment and to show empathy for His prophet. It should not have happened this way. Yahowah had given His people every advantage, establishing His Covenant with them, liberating them, revealing His Towrah through them, and inviting them to His Feasts. He did it all in their language and in their presence. And in spite of this, He would have to deploy a gowy to get their attention because every Yisra'elite ignored Him.

‘So, I have rejected (wa buws – I neglected and disregarded) the people (am*) in My displeasure and resentment (*ba *aph any – in My anger and overt frustration). I caused them to drink their fill of (wa shakar hem – I incapacitated them with) My righteous indignation (*chemah any – in My hostility born out of extreme disappointment). I have brought down (yarad – I have poured out) to earth (*la ha erets) their preeminence and opportunity to endure forevermore (netsach hem – the brilliance of their lifeblood).” (Yasha'yah / Isaiah 63:6)

Yisra'el's relationship with Yahowah has been soured for a long time, and all based upon the irritating religious behavior of Yahuwdym. And to be ignored by God is to eliminate the possibility of eternal life. So, Yasha'yah knew that Yahowah intended otherwise and that the means to the preferential state would be to appreciate God rather than antagonize Him.

“I will recall and will recount (zakar – I remember and will mention) the loyal love, unfailing kindness, and enduring affection (chesed – the resolute goodness, devotion, favor, and mercy) of Yahowah (Yahowah – God's name transliterated as guided by His towrah – instructions), the praiseworthy character, renown, and reputation (tahilah – the positive and excellent words) of Yahowah (YaHoWaH) in accordance with all (*ka al kol – consistent with everything) which, for the benefit of the relationship (asher*), Yahowah (YaHoWaH – an accurate presentation of the name of our elowah* – God regarding His hayah – existence) has done for our benefit (*gamal anachnuw – has produced so that we might grow), as well as the abundant (wa rab – great) blessings (tuwb – beneficial and enriching effects, good things which are delightful and productive, joyful and pleasing) for the House and Family (beyth – the Household) of Yisra*el (*Yisra*el* – Individuals who Engage and Endure with God) which show the way to get the greatest joy out of life that (asher*) He has accomplished so that they might grow (gamal – He has done to wean and rear them) in accordance with (ka – consistent with) His compassion and mercy (*rachamym huw – His willingness to favor those who are not deserving), and in harmony with (wa ka – consistent with) His steadfast love and devotion (*chesed huw – His genuine kindness and enduring affection).” (*Yasha*yah* / Isaiah 63:7)

This is God’s plan and provision. However, it has gone unheralded for centuries. It is now buried under mountainous amounts of religious rubbish. This must change, so...

“For He said (*wa amar), ‘Then it will be true (ak* – indeed by contrast), My people (am any – My family), will no longer be children who deceive and mislead (*hem ben lo*shaqar* – they are not sons who lie, who betray, and who deal falsely, claiming that which is untrue, promoting a fraud which is disappointing and wrong).’ And so (wa – then, therefore), he will become (hayah – he will be (qal imperfect)) for them (la hem) an approaching Savior (*la mowshya – a Liberator who delivers them from harm’s way).” (*Yasha*yah* / Isaiah 63:8)

Reconciliation is a two-step process. First, God’s people must stop deceiving and misleading one another, and only then is a Savior possible. For example, Dowd served in this role in 33 CE, fulfilling Chag Matsah, but since his people have led most everyone astray regarding him, there have been very few beneficiaries. God’s remedy, therefore, is the Man from Edom whose mission it is to reacquaint Yisra*el with their Messiah. Therefore, while Dowd remains the central agent in God’s plans, without his Basar | Herald, no one is the wiser for it. This is what makes them collaborators in the process of delivering God's people from harm's way.

*Mal*ak* | Messenger is another of the Choter's titles. Here he is portrayed announcing the return and appearance of Yahowah and Dowd...

“Throughout all of their afflictions and anguish (ba kol tsarah hem – with all of their adversity and troubles, confinements and tribulations, persecutions and subjugations), the *Mal*ak* | Messenger announcing (*wa mal*ak* – the informative witness, representative, and herald making these pronouncements) his/His presence and appearance (*paneh huw – His personal existence and characteristics) will not be restricted (lo tsar* – will not be opposed, restrained, or prohibited, nor even troubled) in liberating and saving them (*yasha*hem* – in rescuing and delivering them, removing them from danger).

With His love (*ba *ahabah huw – because of His affection), and due to His compassion and mercy (*wa ba chemlah huw – as a reflection of His concern), He will redeem them (huw ga'al hem* – He will ransom and deliver them, reassess and release them, freeing them from bondage). Then He will lift them up (wa natal hem) and carry them away (wa nasa hem*) based upon everything which has previously transpired and will occur throughout eternity (*kol yowmym owlam – for all that had transpired in the past and forevermore).” (Yasha'yah / Isaiah 63:9)

Had the *Mal*ak* | Messenger not come to announce Yahowah's and Dowd's return, and should his message to God's people have been restricted, no one would survive their return. The Man from Edom is quite literally saving Yahuwdym from themselves. And through the sacrifice of the adamah Parah*, Yahowah will redeem His people. Even better, those who capitalize upon the Zarowa's invitation to participate in the Shabuw'ah and Taruw'ah Ingatherings, will be lifted up and carried away, transported to a glorious eternity in the seventh dimension. And this is possible because of what Dowd has previously accomplished during Chag Matsah.

This known, Yahowah wanted His people to appreciate why He elected to engage in a relationship with a gowy on behalf of His people, even when they were not seeking Him. Unknown to Yisra^{*el}, God was left with no other option.

“I decided to engage in a relationship (darash – I sought the presence of someone willing to investigate, process, and consider what I cared about, who would seek answers to relevant questions (nifal perfect)) on behalf of those who were not seeking Me (la lo^{} sha^{al} – for those who were not inquiring about Me).

At this moment, I initiated contact and was subsequently found so that I could reach out (matsa^{}* – I disclosed My existence and was at this time finally discovered through My teaching and became known (nifal perfect – the subject, Yahowah, initiates the contact and benefits from the subsequent discovery during a finite period of time)) to approach those who were irresponsible, who had conspired against Me, and who had no interest in learning about Me (la lo^{} baqash^{} any – with the goal of moving toward those who have been ignorant and uninterested regarding Me (piel perfect)).

I actually said (amar* – during this finite period of time, I literally declared (qal perfect active)), ‘Behold, here I am (hineh^{} any hineh^{} any – please pay attention, look up now and see, I am present)!’ to a gentile (el gowy*) who was not invited by or designated at that moment (lo^{} qara^{} – who was not summoned or called (pual perfect)) by My name (ba shem^{} any* – with My personal or proper designation).” (Yasha^{} yah* / Isaiah 65:1)

This is among the most revealing statements from the Almighty regarding His decision to reconnect with His people by using a gowy. And the reasons were as obvious as they were aggravating. There were no Yisra^{*el}ites inquiring about Yahowah. Yahuwdym were more interested in erasing His name and writing Him out of their lives than they were in knowing anything about what He was offering and expecting in return. So God said, "Behold, here I am," to a gentile.

Should you be curious about why I was not invited or designated at that time by Yahowah's name, the answer is twofold. First, it would be later that year that I would come to know it and share it. And second, I'm not a Yahuwd, and therefore, I was not identified by Yahowah's name. That would come later, which is why this was written in the perfect conjugation. God did this because...

"I had spread out (pharas – I had opened up and made known) My hands (*yad any) for the entirety of this time (kol ha yowm) to a stubborn, defiant, and rebellious people (el am sarar – for an obstinate, insolent, and insubordinate race) who walk (ha halak) in a way that is not good (ha derek lo towb* – such that their way is counterproductive and disagreeable, ugly and immoral), following after (achar* – incalcitrant and left behind, with a different and antiquated approach) their own thoughts and musings, designs and intentions (machashabah hem – their own justifications and reasons, their designs and contrivances which they have invented)." (*Yasha yah / Isaiah 65:2)

And there you have it. Having failed to overcome the stubbornness of Jews for centuries, Yahowah tried a different approach. The Chosen People have chosen every counterproductive alternative over God and that's not good. They have become a self-absorbed people enamored with their own musings. But this must and will change as a result of the anguishing Time of Ya'aqob's Troubles. In the choice between annihilation and life, Yahowah finally prevails.

Yahowah is not happy with His people and yet Yahuwdym seem oblivious to God's disappointment. And yet, this is the very reason this Choter as a Basar was required. Someone had to have the wherewithal, persistence, and compassion to break the Jewish obsession with religion and politics.

“Yahuwdah (Yahuwdah – the Beloved of Yah, now known as Judah and Jews) has been untrustworthy and spiritually unfaithful (bagad – has engaged in spiritual adultery and betrayal while playing disgusting religious dress-up). A detestable and repulsive religious abomination (*wa tow*ebah* – a reprehensible, loathsome, and abhorrent form of worship which is troubling and false, confusing and misleading) has been committed (asah* – is performed, engaged in, and acted upon) in Yisra*el (*ba Yisra*el* – within Israel) and in Yaruwshalaim (wa ba Yaruwshalaim – within Jerusalem).

Indeed (ky), Yahuwdah (Yahuwdah – Judah, Jews) has defiled and profaned (chalal – has dishonored and treated with contempt) the Set-Apart Place (qodesh – the sanctuary which separates and distinguishes, making special and dedicated) of Yahowah (Yahowah – written as directed by His towrah – teaching) which, to provide the benefits of the relationship (asher*), He loves (ahab* – He adores). Further (wa), he has married and is owned by the Lord Ba*al (*ba*al* – his familial relationship is governed by Ba*al, who is in control of), the house (beyth – the home and family [from 4QXII whereas the MT reads bath | daughter]) of an illegitimate god (el nekar* – a foreign deity).” (*Mal*aky* / My Messenger / Malachi 2:11)

Since this is Yahowah's assessment of Yahuwdym | Jews, they are not who they purport to be. God is unequivocal, plainly stating that the people He chose, chose not to respond in kind. Jews have been spiritually unfaithful, indulging in the repulsive religious abominations of Judaism, Christianity, Islam, and now, Political Liberalism and Socialism. They have, and continue to, profane Yaruwshalaim and Yisra^{*el} – the place Yahowah loves. And then to assure there would be no mistaking the fact that He was condemning His people’s propensity to be religious, God announced that Israelites were owned and operated by the Lord Ba[°]al – the illegitimate god more commonly known as ha Satan. And this would mean that the gods the religious rabbis founded, HaShem in Judaism, Jesus Christ in Christianity and Allah in Islam, are phony.

Speaking of the Talmud, New Testament, and Quran, perhaps even X, we find...

“And so, you have wearied (wa yaga[°] – therefore, you have worn out and exhausted, troubling [the opening conjunction is from 4QXII]) God (el* – the Almighty [from 4QXII whereas the MT reads Yahowah]) with your words (*ba dabar atem – with your statements).

But you say (*wa amar), ‘In what way (ba mah) have we exhausted and troubled Him (yaga[°] – have we caused Him to gasp, be wearied and worn out)?’

By you saying (*ba *amar atem – by you claiming), ‘All of those who engage in (*kol asah – everyone who acts and capitalizes upon, profiting from) shouting with fellow countrymen, no matter how wrong (ra^{}* – the loud and boisterous proclamations of religious associates, even if they are errant) benefit, as if they are moral and good (towb – are pleasing and agreeable) in the sight (*ba ayn – from the viewpoint and perspective) of Yahowah (Yahowah – as directed in His towrah | teaching regarding His hayah | existence) because He is pleased by them (wa ba hem huw^{} chaphets* – because this is what He wants).’

Or (ow* – alternatively), ‘Where is (ayeh*) the God (elohym*) of the Mishpat | who decides what is right, vindicating, convicting, and just (ha mishpat – who exercises good judgment regarding the means to resolve disputes; from my – to ponder the implications of shaphat – deciding what is right?)” (*Mal*aky* / My Messenger / Malachi 2:17)

This is one of the greatest crimes ever committed. Rabbis not only spewed out millions of words in the conceptions of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam, they attributed their false characterizations to God. In Judaism, they went so far as to call their Talmud “Torah.” Rather than listen to Yahowah, they shouted over Him.

The first claim that Yahowah is rebuking is the false notion that Jews who go along with the rabbis and with tradition are moral, good, and righteous. God is lambasting the view that He is pleased with the religious. They claim it; Yahowah denies it. Who do you suppose is right?

The second religious assessment God is denouncing is that men have earned the right to determine mishpat | what is right and wrong. Just because He is avoiding them, does not mean that they have replaced Him. What it means is that rabbis are annoying Yahowah.

Therefore, since God cannot communicate through those who speak over Him, who don’t listen to Him, who claim that their criteria matter more than His, and who do not know Him, He would select, prepare, and dispatch a *Mal*ak* | Messenger of His own...

“Therefore (ken – for this reason [from 4QXII]), behold, I am going to send out (*hineh any shalach – pay attention and look to Me, because here and now I am going to reach out and dispatch (qal participle – literally and demonstrably, I will actually and actively direct)) My *Mal*ak* | Messenger (*mal*ak any – My representative who, as a herald, will interpret and convey My intentions and thoughts, commissioned to declare what I have to say).

And (wa) he will prepare, clearly mark, and highly regard (panah – he will behold, perceive, and respect, turning toward and making ready the means to approach (piel perfect – at this moment in time he will show)) the Way (derek – the path, route, and journey) unto Me, and regarding My appearance and approaching My presence (*la paneh any – to face Me).

Then suddenly and straightaway to open eyes and minds (*wa pith*om* – in a relative instant to create an opportunity to be open and receptive), he / they will arrive to pursue the harvest (*bow – he or they will come for an inclusive return (qal imperfect – he or they will continually come [4QXII has hem – they while the MT reads *huw – he])) for His palatial home (el hekal huw – to His royal residence, Sanctuary, and house of his God; from yakol – the place to prevail and endure, be empowered and accomplish the mission): the Upright One (edown / adown – the master of the house, the most capable leader, and the one who provided the foundation for the Tabernacle) whom (asher* – to show the way to walk to receive the benefits of the relationship), you, yourselves, have sought (atem baqash* – you have inquired about, asked and searched for (piel participle)), along with (wa – in addition to) the Mal*ak | Messenger (*mal*ak* – the representative who, as a herald, will interpret and convey the message, who is commissioned to declare the account) of the Covenant (ha Beryth – of the Family-Oriented Relationship) in whom and for which (asher* – in whom [addressing the edown*] and for which [speaking of the beryth] to show the way to get the greatest joy out of life) you (atem*) have desired (chaphets – have wanted and preferred).

So pay attention (hineh – behold), he is arriving and will be returning to pursue the harvest (*huw*bow – he is coming [huw | he is found in 4QXII in addition to the verb being scribed in the third-person masculine singular]), promises (amar – and affirms) Yahowah (YaHoWaH – our elowah* | God as directed in His ToWRaH | teaching regarding His HaYaH | existence and our ShaLoWM | restoration) of the spiritual implements (*tsaba – of the heavenly messengers).” (*Mal*aky* / My Messenger / Malachi 3:1)

Recognizing that Yahowah expressly agreed to go away

and not speak directly to His wayward and rebellious children under the prior and present circumstances, and realizing that there hasn't been a single Yisra*elite in the intervening period willing to listen and respond to Him, as we approach this rather dire juncture, Yahowah was left with a singular rational option. He would *shalach mal*ak* | dispatch a Messenger.

Of course, it wouldn't be that easy. It never is. The *Mal*ak* | Messenger would have to be located, selected, and approached. He would have to agree to engage and be willing to devote the time – currently 1,222 80-hour weeks and counting. He would then require equipping and preparation. The infusion of the Seven Spirits of Yahowah accomplished the first part, and writing 36 books accomplished the latter. Then there would be the matter of gaining Yisra*el's attention – no easy chore since they refused to listen to God.

The goal at this time is to panah derek la paneh | to prepare and clearly demarcate the way to approach Yahowah prior to His appearance. In this manner, the *Mal*ak* would cause those who are receptive and open-minded to pursue the harvest. And in this regard, the reason that he / they was written to reflect both options is because manuscripts show both, although based upon what follows, it is apparent that Yahowah is referring to Yada and *EiYah working collaboratively at this time.

Therefore, suddenly and straightaway, the blind will see. It is the miracle of Yasha*yah's treatise on chotering. *EiYah and Yada will return to pursue the harvest where the celestial voyagers will arrive at the hekal | royal residence and palatial home of Yahowah and Dowd. This is the destination of future intellectual time travelers. And while it speaks of Shamaym | Heaven, as well as Dowd's royal Beyth | Residence, we will all return to the Home of the Beryth | Covenant Family.

Based upon what we are told at the beginning of Zakaryah and here towards the conclusion of *Mal*aky*, we know that Yahowah will be dispatching His favorite anti-religious orator in *EiYah. And since he was the last Yisra*elite to stand up against the religious and political establishment and take them down, he has earned the distinction of being the edown* | Upright One. As further evidence for this, Elyah* is the one individual whom Yisra^{*}elites have sought, not recognizing that he is overtly opposed to the religious who are clamoring for him. And all the while, the two they should be anticipating – Yahowah and Dowd – went unheralded.

And with the Upright One identified as Elyah*, the Mal^{}ak Beryth* | Messenger of the Covenant must be Yada. And since I am the first to identify and report the Beryth's five conditions and five benefits, and the first to reveal that the rewards are derived from Dowd's fulfillment of Chag Matsah, the title seems fitting. And in this case, while there is still no sign that Yisra^{*}elites have collectively come to their senses, in time, this will change. Moreover, the Covenant the Mal^{}ak* is reconstituting is highly desirable. And that is why he is shown arriving to arouse an interest in Yahowah and to pursue the harvests.

Fair warning, those who are not prepared either through the benefits of Chag Matsah or the sacrifice of the Adamah Parah for the arrival of Yahowah on Yowm Kipurym in year 6000 Yah in 2033, will perish. By contrast, those present and standing for God's return appearance will have benefited from the refiner's fire. Their guilt will be purged and their souls cleansed.

“So, who (wa my) can comprehend and endure (kuwl – can understand and seize upon, properly calculate and support (piel participle)) this day (eth yowm*) when he arrives (bow^{} huw^{} – of his return to pursue his harvest)?

And who (wa my) will be present, standing and remaining (ha ^{}amad* – will endure, established and alive, continuing to be upright) beside his appearance (ba ra^{}ah huw^{} – when he comes into view)?

Because indeed (ky), he (huw^{}*) will be similar to (ka – will be like) a refiner's fire (esh tsaraph* – a means to enlighten, purify, and test, a flaming light which purges the darkness), and* akin to (wa ka) an alkali detergent which cleanses (boryth kabash – a water-soluble cleansing agent and soap for washing).” (Mal^{aky} / My Messenger / Malachi 3:2)

The ingredients will be fire, water, and ash as Yahowah ignites the flames and releases the torrents of water stored beneath the Mount. The Mal^{ak} Beryth will have given his basar | body as a herald of purification. And ^{*}EIYah will serve as the master of ceremonies. It is all explained in Numbers 19 and 1 Kings 18. And this brings us to the Adulterous Woman...

“From the days (la min yowmym) of your ancestors (ab ^{}atem), you have turned away from (suwr min – you have rejected and forsaken) My clearly communicated written prescriptions for living (choq ^{}any – My inscribed recommendations and prescribed thoughts regarding an allocation of a share of the agreement). You have not observed them (wa lo^{}shamar – you have not focused upon or considered them).

Choose to return to Me (shuwb ^{}el ^{}any – change and come back to Me) and I will choose to return to you and to restore you (wa shuwb ^{}el ^{}atem – I will come back and transform you),’ promises (amar – affirms) Yahowah (𐤆𐤏𐤇𐤃𐤁 – a transliteration of YaHoWaH as instructed in His towrah | teaching) of the spiritual implements (tsaba^{}).” (Mal^{aky} / My Messenger / Malachi 3:7)

Many Yahuwdym will, but only after a 3,480-year intermission for bad behavior. They have been slow in learning the lesson ^{*}EIYah taught them forty Yowbel, 888 years earlier.

As simple and wonderful as all of this sounds, let’s not skim over the parameters of this deal. Return to Yah and Yah will return. Don’t, and He won’t. Individually, this is the difference between life and death, but galactically, it is more akin to the survival of our planet or its destruction. Should ^{*}EIYah and Yada fail there would be no surviving remnant and no Homecoming, and without both, there is no reason to return or restore the planet ravaged by war.

This begins by addressing both Witnesses, but in particular, *Elyah, who is speaking to his countrymen. Then God transitions to a focus on Yada, the Qashab | Comprehensive Messenger who, after listening to Yahowah, writes a book systematically conveying the revelations of the previous prophets, word for word...

“Then, at that time (az* – thereupon, at this distant and vitally important moment), he who respects and profoundly values (*yare – he who reveres and is inspired by) Yahowah (YaHoWaH) will convey the word, speaking (dabar – will communicate the message) as an individual (iysh* – a man) to his countrymen (el rea^o huw – to his friends and associates as well as against his errant and irrational country).

And (wa) Yahowah (YaHoWaH) will listen attentively, and accepting what He hears as true, He will respond by assisting this Qashab | Comprehensive Messenger (qashab – He will receive the entire message, hear everything which is said, and will regard it favorably, acting to enable its dissemination because of its accuracy).

And He will continue to listen (*wa shama – He will actually and genuinely, consistently and continually, hear what is said), such that (wa) a book (sepher – a body of literature comprised of written documentation containing the official record) of remembrance, systematically conveying a word-by-word recollection of the previous communication (zikarown – to recall and bring to mind, to make foremost in one’s thinking, commemorating the right inheritance, conveying what is accurate and important, mentioning and memorializing what should be remembered) will be written (kathab – will be inscribed and composed as an enduring and indelible statement) before His appearance (*la paneh huw – to approach His presence) for those who respect and admire (*la yare – for those who genuinely value and revere) Yahowah (YaHoWaH) and who consider, account for, and who have determined the merit of (wa la chashab – who impute meaning and value to thoughtfully contemplating every aspect of) His name (shem *huw – His personal and proper designation).” (*Mal*aky* / My Messenger / Malachi 3:16)

If the book being described of written recollections from the previous prophets composed prior to Yahowah’s arrival to reintroduce His people to the merits of God’s shem, isn’t Yada Yahowah, then there is some plagiarism afoot and I have a secret clone. And should that be true in a parallel universe, fortunately, we work for the same Boss and produce the same result.

And while he is a mentor and inspiration rather than a clone, Yahowah is affirming that there will be another Witness in the end. And he will serve to find and refine Yahowah’s foremost treasure.

“As a result (*la ma*an* – therefore, it stands to reason), they will be Mine (*wa hayah any),’ promises (amar*) Yahowah of the vast array of spiritual implements (*YaHoWaH tsaba). ‘Approaching that day (la ha yowm) when, to show the way to receive the benefits of the relationship (asher*), I will engage, acting in a demonstrable way, to prepare My most treasured possession, someone whom I value and hold especially dear (asah* – I will do what needs to be done, working to develop and celebrate My affection for that which I treasure).

And so, I will protect and spare them, delivering them from harm, while heaping favor upon them recognizing the scope of the challenges before them (*chamal al hem – I will demonstrate My appreciation and enduring love, even commiserate with them, especially considering the difficult task of showing compassion under these conditions), similar to the way (*ka asher) an individual (iysh*) favors, spares, and protects, assuring the safety while empathizing with (*chamal al – is especially generous and affectionate toward, even lenient and patient considering the challenging circumstances, demonstrating his appreciation and love, while being responsible for) His Son (*ben huw – His child) who works with Him (*ha *abad *eth huw – who serves alongside Him).”

(Malʿaky / My Messenger / Malachi 3:17)

The promise Yahowah has made is to restore the fortunes of His People. He will do so by providing the benefits of the Covenant relationship through the fulfillment of the Mowʿed Miqraʿey. This known, in the first sentence of the second paragraph, the focus seems to be on the two Witnesses, such that they are able to complete this challenging the mission. And Yahowah’s commitment is being equated to the favoritism He has shown His beloved Son, Dowd. This is appropriate because they are so committed to serving the interests of their returning King, Dowd is shown working through and with them.

Ultimately, it is this simple...

“So return (wa shuwb – then come back and be restored) and you will see (wa raʿah – and you will witness) the distinction, and understand the difference, between (bayn – comprehending the dissimilarity of) the one who is right (tsadyq – the one who is vindicated because he is upright and correct) as opposed to those who are wrong (la rashaʿ – compared to those who are incorrect and unrighteous, guilty for having been errant), understanding the dissimilarity concerning (bayn – comprehending the distinction between) the one who works with God (abad elohym – the one who serves the Almighty) in contrast to the way of (*la asher) those who do not serve Him (*loʾ abad huwʾ – those not working with Him).” (Malʿaky / My Messenger / Malachi 3:18)

It is better to be good than bad. However, being right is forever while if you are wrong you are gone.

Bayn | understanding the distinction between tsadyq | being correct and rashaʿ | errant is essential when approaching Yahowah. It is the litmus test God uses to determine who prevails and who fails.
